REMARKABLE OPERATIONS

There was given in Chicago, on October 13, a wonderful exhibition of the advantage of knowing how. Some children are so unlucky as to be born with their hip-joint out of its socket. Of course unless the joint can be put in place such children are cruelly crippled for life. This misfortune had happened to the little daughter of Mr. Armour. He learned that the surgeon who succeeded best in these hip-joint cases was Professor Lorenz, of Vienna, so he opened negotiations with Professor Lorenz, and was able to induce him to come to Chicago and put little Lolita Armour's hip to rights. He came and did the operation. The next day he went to the College of Physicians and Surgeons, and there, in the amphitheater, with eight hundred doctors and students looking at him, he did for nine afflicted children the same service he had done for Mr. Armour's child. The newspaper account of how he did it describes the unconscious child brought to him, the "large projection at the hip-joint caused by the head of the dislocated femur," and the corresponding depression in the groin, "deep and discolored, with the surrounding flesh shrunken and unnatural in appearance," showing where the head of the bone belonged. Then, the despatch says:

"The surgeon took the leg in his hands, drew it up at right angles to the body, and, holding it, paused to say: 'The manipulations I am about to make might with ease break the bones of the leg. It is not necessary to break bones, however. It is only necessary to know how to handle them.' A series of rapid, deft turns, twists, and pulls followed. Suddenly the surgeon paused. He held the leg in one hand and pointed with the other to the spot where the dislocation had been so apparent. The spectators then saw the culminating point of the operation. The ugly protrusion was gone; the depression beside it was gone, too, and except for the discoloration of the flesh, the entire hip appeared like the other. The eight hundred onlookers broke out in applause. No knife had been used, nothing had been done, as was formerly believed indispensable to prepare the socket for the presence of the dislocated femur. Knowledge, skill, a certain amount of daring and precision of movement, which showed a knowledge to a hair's breadth of how far to move and twist, had wrought what medical men say will be a cure. It had taken five minutes."

We all clap our hands with the eight hundred who saw the miracle of skill. How it happened that a surgeon from Vienna could do who no surgeon in Chicago knew how to do is not explained. But it has so happened, and great is the glory of Dr. Lorenz, and enviable his privilege, in discovering to his American brethren a process so merciful, so efficacious, and, apparently, so simple. There seems to be no doubt that the operation is efficacious. Dr. Lorenz says that the cure is permanent in every case when the bandages are taken off. It is beautiful! Good luck to this skilful European who gives such blessed exhibitions of sleight-of-hand!

PIETRO MASCAGNI

Whose Fame Was Born in a Night

Mascagni is coming. Are you going to hear Mascagni. The musical world along the line of Mascagni's movements has been expectant for many a day, and all music lovers have been and are asking one another this question; and many another not among the inner circle has voiced the query, and has has asked besides, Who is Mascagni? And now he reaches Canada's Queen City, bringing increasing plaudits in his train.

Who is Mascagni? Pietro Mascagni comes from soft-voiced Italy, the land of fire and love, of summer and of song. He is the greatest musical composer of the present day, having written many orchestral works and songs, and he comes supported by a chorus of one hundred voices, a complete orchestral of seventy-five, and scenery made under his own supervision and from sketches from life. The principals in the company are all famous singers, each specially trained for their parts by the maestro himself, their parts written for their voices, so that any unfortuitous circumstance would not occasion a change in programme. His operas are given under the personal direction of the master-composer himself, and he leads the orchestra at every performance.

"Cavalleria Rusticana" (Rustic Gallantry) is an opera of world-wide celebrity, wherever there is genuine appreciation of the best in music drama. It was composed in a little more than six weeks and entered in the famous Sonzogno competition. It was selected for the prize. Its production at the Costanzi in Rome is remembered by the lovers of music in that world of song, the furore which it created is familiar yet to all interested in the rise and reward of true genius. Mascagni, with one prodigious effort passed from obscurity to fame in one night. "Cavalleria Rusticana" has been played in all the leading opera houses of the world since then.

"Zanetto" and "Ratcliff" are each one act. "Ratcliff" is based on the poem of Heine; which tells the story of young William Ratcliff, a Scottish gentleman, who because of a maiden of Clan Macgregor, became involved in a feud with the houses of Douglas and Macgregor. The story is intensely romantic, and the sparkling music which Mascagni has set to the libretto enhances both its tender sentiment and warlike action.

Mascagni tours for sixteen weeks, commenced at New York on Oct. 8th. He visits every place of importance between Boston and the Pacific Coast, going by the northern route, returning by the southern. His repertoire is extensive, and all equally worth hearing. He performs in Toronto on Oct. 30, his selections being "Cavalleria Rusticiana" "Zanetto" and "Ratcliff." The last two have never been played in America before and form the programme for the afternoon. Peterborough's musical world should come to hear Mascagni, or better still, should invite him to their own city.

WHEN THE WEATHER BEGINS TO GET COOL

In yesterday's issue the Horse Editor of this great family journal broke into rhyme over the subject of cool weather. This g.f.j. in printing it took great chances of breaking the press. The fact that the press is still in business after so great a strain goes to show the superior quality of the machinery in this office. Now the Junior Reporter tries his hand and works off the following spasm dedicated to the Horse Editor:

There are more joys than sorrows, my pessimist friend,
When the weather begins to get cool;
They are yours, though you haven't a dollar to spend,
When the weather begins to get cool;
There's a maiden who waits at the edge of the town,
Clad in russet and umber and scarlet and brown,
From her hair flaming garlands float temptingly down
When the weather begins to get cool.

She is dusky October, with grapes in her hand,
When the weather begins to get cool;
She beckons us on to a smoke-softened land
When the weather begins to get cool;
O'er the purple hills follow her mild, mellow flute,
Drink the wine of the sunshine, the blood of the fruit,
And forget all about your old last summer's suit
When the weather begins to get cool.

she would set the ball rolling. They took the two turnings, and presently entered Salt street, the masked singer announcing the fact in a businesslike tone.

Winifred thanked him with a dismissing "Good-night." Obediently, her late guide dropped behind, his occupation gone; but, apparently to the surprise of both, they met again at the door of No. 13.

CHAPTER XXIII.

A Meeting.

The lady in the veil and the man in the mask stopped, and looked at each other. Then off came the man's hat again. "I beg your pardon," said he, "but I live here. Was it No. 13 you wanted?"

"Yes," responded Winifred, "I thought so. Maybe I've made a mistake. Isn't it Mrs. Purdy's house?"

"It is," he answered, "and I'm Mrs. Purdy's lodger."

"Oh!" exclaimed Winifred, "she spoke of you. She said you had been good to her sick daughter."

"I haven't been able to do very much," said the masked man. "You know, her daughter's ill, then?"

"Mrs. Purdy told me."

"I don't think," he went on, "that it's right for you to come into the house. Miss Purdy's better, but——"

"I'm not afraid," Winifred broke in. "Mrs. Purdy sent me here. I—I hope I can be taken in. It would be—very inconvenient otherwise."

"Of course you can be taken in, if you're not afraid. I don't believe myself there's much danger now, but one never knows; and for your sake I wish——"

"Please don't mind," she interrupted him again. And then, hesitatingly: "I—think I recognize your voice as one I have heard before."

"I recognized yours the moment you spoke," he returned. "But I thought perhaps I ought not to say so."

"As you are Mrs. Purdy's lodger, and I shall be in her house for a time," said Winifred, "we are sure to see each other's faces. And if your face is the one I think it is I feel certain you will respect my wish to let no one know that I am here."

"You may be certain of that," he answered. And, fitting a latch-key which he had taken from his pocket into the key-hole of a small, battered door in a mean little house in a row of other mean houses exactly like it, he threw the door open for Winifred to walk in.

Inside was a tiny passage, lit by a common, unshaded paraffin lamp suspended from the wall by a bracket, with a tin reflector as a background. The floor was bare, save for a narrow strip of carpeting meant to cover a staircase, and on one side of the passage were two doors.

"Miss Purdy's in that room," said the masked man, indicating the door near the front. "At the back here there's a sort of sitting-room and dining-room and kitchen all in one. Will you walk in?—and I'll light the lamp."

Winifred did walk in, and in a moment, after some fumbling with matches, darkness was turned into light. The girl saw dimly through the double folds of her fichu veil a small room, uncarpeted, and furnished only with a red-covered table, a few chairs, a kitchen range, plenty of shelves for brightly-polished tins, and cheap blue and white china. A queer old-fashioned clock, with the picture of a pastoral landscape on the door under its face, ticked with supernatural energy on a very narrow mantelpiece above the range. Hanging over this was a vilely-executed crayon enlargement of a photograph, representing a good-looking young woman dressed as a "pantomime boy."

There was hardly anything else in the room save a colored mat woven of rags, which adorned the bare floor and afforded a resting-place for a large black cat; but everything was spotlessly clean, and, despite its poverty, the poor, little room contrived to wear an air of homely comfort.

Winifred's heart warmed to her refuge. Somehow she suddenly discovered that she was not as unhappy as she had been. She felt a sudden accession of courage and hope, though there was little which could reasonably account for either emotion.

The masked singer gave her a chair, and she sat down, conscious that she was faintly embarrassed in his presence. He had recognized her voice, just as she had recognized his; they knew each other, and she desired to account to him in some commonplace manner for her anomalous position; yet she did not see how to do so without revealing the actual, hateful truth.

The young man laid his banjo on the table beside his hat and began removing his mask. As he did so, with a sudden impulse Winifred's hands went up to the knot which tied the piece of chiffon at the back of her head.

Perhaps he had his secret as well as she. But he was trusting her, and she would show that she meant to trust him as well. Many wise people, knowing her circumstances, would have thought her exceedingly imprudent to do this. And doubtless she was imprudent. But she did not fear the consequences. And the veil and the mask slipping down at the same instant, the man and the girl looked into each other's faces.

The man's was pale, and his dark eyes were bright. If Winifred had possessed the slightest clue to his strong feeling she might have wondered at the light in his eyes. His expression was that which a man might wear in dreaming a wonderful dream from which he feared to be awakened. But Winifred was not in a mood for subtle comparisons, and she only realised more keenly than she had at their last meeting that his face was fine and virile, and singularly attractive in a way that she could feel without analyzing.

She wondered, nervously, if he would ask any questions; but he did not, and it seemed to her that he was making an effort to pass the whole matter off as if it were but a mere commonplace occurrence—nothing to excite surprise at all.

"I must go to Miss Purdy's door and knock softly, to find out whether she's sleeping still, or if she's woke up and wants anything," he announced. "After a fashion I'm acting nurse when the poor girl's mother's away; but she's so well again now that she can be left alone for a while, so I went out for an hour. I'll be back in a minute, and perhaps you'll let me get you something to eat or drink, if—if you're tired."

As he spoke he had been gazing at her with a wistfulness that would not be

ALMOST SOLID COPPER

One 18 inch vein of 90 per cent copper (almost the solid metal) has been opened up in Copper Queen Extension Claim, one of the six constituting our Montana property, while mining a thirty-foot vein of free milling 18 per cent copper ore, carrying thirty ounces of silver to the ton.

This is so far ahead of our expectations, brilliant as our former prospects were, that we realize the IMMEDIATE building of a mill to handle this magnificent output, equalled in richness only by the Calumet and Hecla mines, is an ABSOLUTE NECESSITY. This will make OUR OWN portion of the stock, as well as THAT ACQUIRED BY THE PUBLIC, for the purposes of this immediate development, worth an immense amount of money in an exceedingly short time.

Help us build a Mill immediately by purchasing our One Dollar Shares, which are offered this week at 30 cents a Share as a Special Inducement to insure the speedy building of the Mill, and we will make your stock yield you an inordinate profit as quickly as the Mill can be put in operation.

We furnish the rich property—you furnish the mill. In a few months it will be in operation—almost before you expect it—and we divide the immense returns.

Some News of Interest

New York, Oct. 25.—The Brooklyn Rapid Tran. stock is down at present pretty close to bottom prices. Immediate facts warrant its selling higher shortly. It is improving its gross and net earnings. The company has just published its figures for September. They are as follows, and most excellent: For September gross earnings increased 44.225 over same period for last year while the net increased $108,254. From July 1st the net increase amounts to $327,110, while operating expenses decreased $150,472. This shows the company to be the gainer at both ends of the proposition. We believe the B. R. T. to be a good purchase in the lower sixties. A United States Steel director is quoted as saying that the settlement of the coal strike has stimulated the demand; in every department of the steel corporations the coal shortage was becoming serious. Several of their mills would have to shut down. A discontinuance of the strike has stimulated confidence. The steel industry has just began to expand; the growth for the past ten years has been tremendous and the U. S. Steel Corporation now leads the world. This country has just begun to build up this industry, and our company is the chief exponent of same. Andrew Carnegie has just told the English people that the commercial supremacy of the past has been wrested from them for ever by the new and younger American colossus. The records of exports for September, the largest for some time past, showing material gains. The best opinions foreshadow for the remaining exporting months the largest totals ever made. Many of the financing schemes underway, in the interests of several companies which have recently sold their rights, and in other ways readjusting their capitalization, will be brought to a conclusion within the next thirty days. As a result millions of money will be released and will then return to the Wall street market seeking employment. It will aid most materially in easing the financial situation, not only through providing additional cash for market purposes, but further minimize the present loan account most greatly. The comparatively quiet market of the past week has worked untold wonders in easing up the money situation. Cash at present is only but barely commanding legal rates of interest.

Summary: Tex. Pac. was to-day taken in hand and advanced about 2 points upon comparatively lively business. Bullish manipulation was noticeable to quite a degree in B. & O. Atch. was fairly dealt in and was strong, as were A.C.O. and P. R. S. issues. Quite a business was transacted in C. F. I. though changes in prices were insignificant for that mercurial industrial. An extremely favorable Bank statement was issued, showing an increase in reserve of over 13 millions and in deposits of over nineteen millions. It is the best statement that has been issued in many weeks and will benefit the market the coming week. After a monetary spurt based on the bank statement the bearers made a supreme effort to nullify its influence, by offering stocks freely in the board room. Money, nothing doing. Total sales [illegible].

DROWNED IN RICE LAKE

SAMUEL CURRIER, OF TOWN, LOST HIS LIFE SATURDAY MORNING

Mr. A. E. Talbot Had a Close Call and Was Rescued—A Gun was Discharged and Blew a Hole in the Canoe

A very sad drowning accident occurred in Rice Lake on Saturday morning, by which Mr. Samuel Currier, of Ashburnham, lost his life. It appears that the unfortunate man, accompanied by A. E. Talbot, tobacconist, town, went out from Mr. Harry Neil's cottage, (where they had been staying with a party of friends) to shoot ducks. They were engaged in raising a screen, preparatory to commencing operations, when one of the guns in their canoe was accidentally discharged, tearing a ragged hole in the bottom of the boat. The canoe at once filled with water and turned over. The two men clung to the boat, and called loudly for help. Their cries were heard after a time by Mr. John Hogg and John McNutt, of Alnwick, who were at Curtis' Point, and who at once proceeded with all haste in a skiff to the rescue. When they reached the spot, Currier had sunk to the bottom and Talbot was almost unconscious. He was at once pulled into the boat and taken to Mr. Sam Curtis' house, where he was put to bed. He became unconscious and remained in this condition for a couple of hours.

As soon as possible efforts to recover the body of Currier were undertaken, and the search continued until shortly after dinner, when it was grappled and raised. It was brought to Ashburnham in the evening.

It appears that the unfortunate man made a desperate fight for life. Four times he is said to have lost his hold on the upturned boat and sank.

The sad occurrence is universally regretted, as Mr. Currier was well known and very popular with his many friends. He leaves a widow with one little daughter. Deceased was about 35 years of age, and was employed as driver for the Oakland Brewing Company.

The funeral will leave the family residence, Ashburnham, at 11 o'clock and proceed to the Grand Trunk station, where the remains will be taken to Port Hope and from there to Welcome.

COFFEE FLYERS

Be one if You Stick to it

The coffee habit is as injurious as other drug habits of the same nature. Don't think so? Well, dig in and see. The system craves a stimulant more and more until finally the victim wakes up.

When we are as fortunate as Mr. James D. Kimble of Northampton, Mass. to realize that we have got to stop or the penalty will be severe, it is a little startling at first to consider. He says, "I was an inveterate coffee drinker during twenty years of my life.

The first ten years I experienced no ill effects from the coffee but its insidious working brought forth a train of evils later on. I became very nervous and irritable, in fact felt all the time as if I should 'fly to pieces.' My nerves were all unstrung and I craved coffee as a toper does liquor, in truth I was a 'coffee toper.'

My appetite became very poor and solid food repugnant to the sight; dyspepsia and indigestion were my inseparable companions and food did me but little good. About four years ago a friend advised me to try Postum Cereal Food Coffee. I was loath to believe that coffee was the cause of my trouble therefore I did not have much faith in Postum, nevertheless I commenced its use and from the very first I experienced a decided benefit. My appetite returned, food began to taste natural and did me good. My nervousness gradually disappeared; the brain became clear, the loss of strength and flesh arrested and the stomach gradually strengthened. Life seemed once more worth living and the continued use of Postum has not disappointed me. To me coffee proved slow poison. I have found Postum to be the builder and sustainer of the system and I heartily recommend it to the slaves of coffee, without a single reservation."

Mr. Kimble mentions in his letter many of his friends in Northampton who have recovered health and strength from using Postum on his recommendation.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

—The writs for the referendum are expected daily by the returning officers, Sheriff Hall and County Registrar Morrow.

—The corundum mines at the head of Stony Lake, which have been closed down for some weeks, are once more the scene of activity. Mr. Haycock, the new manager, arrived on Monday, and with Foreman Williamson and a staff of workmen left on Tuesday morning to begin operations. They took with them a considerable quantity of supplies, and we are informed that it is the intention of the company to push operations vigorously.

—A report from Lindsay says John Smith, a youthful farmer, purchased a bottle of effervescent salts at a local drug store recently, and after returning home and reading the directions found that they should be taken in tepid water. He immediately hurried back to the store and asked the druggist for a quart of teped water. The druggist in his usual pleasant manner, picked up a bottle, filled it with pure water, and handed it to the customer cautioning him to warm it a little before using, charged him 25cents and took a snapshot of him as he passed out the door.

The Breakfast State of Mind.

Why is breakfast "the most trying meal of the day?" asks a writer in the "Spectator." Why are people irritable at breakfast and disinclined to talk? Is it possible, perhaps, that there exists a particular breakfast bacillus, which thrives in the presence of bacon, coffee and buttered toast, and which attacks everybody who comes into the room where it lives, with a varying effect upon different constitutions? For the breakfast state of mind varies with different persons. There are several distinct classes into which the prevalent symptoms seem to fall. People do not behave in the same way at breakfast as at other meals, and though at dinner their moods may be practicably indistinguishable — the states of mind of diners, that is, do not greatly vary—at breakfast they conduct themselves as differently as possible. There are some people, for instance, who are in offensively high spirits early in the morning; in a state of health, in short, which really is rightly described as rude. You can hear them coming downstairs, no matter how far the stairs are away from the dining-room, after slamming their bed-room doors with a resounding bang. They open the dining-room door as if they were pursued by a policeman, and probably slap their male friends on the back in an extremely provocative manner. During breakfast itself, while consuming great quantities of all kinds of food, they comment loudly on the small appetites of others, and insist upon drawing the attention of those who clearly wish to eat very little to the presence of everything which is edible in the room. They appear to be perfectly unconscious of the amount of suffering which their splendidly healthy habits inflict upon other persons of less robust constitutions, and are only able to suggest, in answer to possible complaints of a headache, that the complainant should resort to the particular dishes of which they have themselves eaten, and which they invariably describe as "quite excellent."

If the frame of mind of the rude and boisterous breakfaster is one extreme, the other extreme is the mental state of the man who goes through the meal in a condition of profound depression. He glances vaguely and uncomprehendingly at a succession of dishes, eventually taking the smallest possible amount of the dish that is easiest to get on with. He does not speak unless someone speaks to him, when he either answers shortly and sadly, or, more often, with obviously forced merriment and inconsequent laughter. Or—and perhaps this variant of the breakfast state of mind is a more striking antithesis to the rudely boisterous—his unbalanced mental attitude may be one of suppressed fury. Men have been known who every morning of their lives hold a kind of review of their acquaintances and friends, and in some cases of those whom they employ. They occupy the breakfast hour in passing, so to speak, down the front and rear ranks, and in trenchantly summing up the habits and qualifications of every man reviewed, ending in each case with the verdict that "he is an ass." Probably he is nothing of the kind; later in the day, indeed, he may become endowed with all the virtues, but from eight o'clock in the morning until ten he possesses for the furious breakfaster no characteristics except those of the idiot, or, in exceptional cases, of the professional robber. Of course, between the extremes of the rudely boisterous and the profoundly depressed or trenchantly furious breakfast states of mind there are others less definite. The curious case came under the observation of the present writer of a man who, although in every respect temperate and healthy, did not find himself able to breakfast until everyone else had finished. He was accustomed to get up at the same time as everyone else, but knowing that others staying in the same house were breakfasting in the ordinary way downstairs, he would pace up and down his room waiting until a footman, specially instructed, brought in the news that breakfast was over. He would then enter the dining-room with an excellent appetite, which, however, failed him completely should any fellow-guest by chance return to the room. But nothing, in any case, exhausted his patience; if it happened that a late riser remained at the breakfast-table half an hour longer than the rest, he accepted the situation with complete equanimity; nor, upon any consideration, would he consent to breakfast in his own room, or anywhere except at a deserted table.

There are other and more or less comprehensible states of mind; as, for instance, the dislike which some persons have of watching other people eat porridge; the unhappiness which possesses some breakfasters, usually journalists, unless they are allowed to walk up and down the room in silence; the extreme difficulty which some men find in breakfasting in a room in which there is a looking-glass; and the strange mental condition which, at whatever time they may happen to come down to the dining-room, impels some persons to but one desire—namely, to get the thing over as soon as possible. "Early or late, winter or summer, work or holidays, two damns and a cup of coffee—that's my breakfast," was the succinct comment of one who invariably began the day in a quite unnecessary hurry.

IT'S SO EASY

To take cold. It's so common to neglect the cold. That is one reason why there are so many people with "deep-seated," stubborn coughs, and so many more with "lung trouble."

The short, quick way to cure a cough is to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The quicker this remedy is used the quicker the cure. But even when neglect has let disease fasten on the lungs, "Golden Medical Discovery" may be relied on to cure in ninety-eight cases out of every hundred.

The only motive for substitution is to permit the dealer to make the little extra profit paid on the sale of less meritorious medicines. He gains. You lose. Therefore accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery."

"I am feeling quite well," writes Miss Dorcas A. Lewis, of No. 1119 24th St., Washington, D. C. "My cough is very much better, and I owe it all to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I cannot say too much in praise of the medicine. I had been quite a sufferer for a long time, and after reading Doctor Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser thought I would try his 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I commenced taking it in May, 1899. Had not been sleeping well for a long time. Took one teaspoonful of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and slept nearly all night without coughing, so I continued taking it. I am in great sympathy with everybody who suffers with a cough. I had been a sufferer for more than ten years. I tried lots of different medicines and different doctors, but did not feel much better. I coughed until I commenced spitting blood, but now I feel much stronger and am entirely well. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the best medicine I have ever taken. My home is in Williamsburg, Virginia."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a ladies' laxative. No other medicine equals them for gentleness and thoroughness.

IS THE HUMAN BODY NOT IMMORTAL?

Wonderful Experiments Being Conducted at the Pasteur Institute

PROLONGATION OF HUMAN LIFE INDEFINITLY

Rejuvenating the Blood Cells and How It Is Accomplished—Some Remarkable Tests

Paris, Oct. 27.—"For the second time in the history of humanity, a man may say: 'it may be possible for me to live indefinitely, until some accident shall take me off; so long as I escape such accident I need not die of old age!'"

These words were spoken the other day to the writer by a friend of one high in the Pasteur Institute in Paris. He had been talking of the recent inauguration of the statue of Pasteur at Dole, his native town, and of the veiled promises contained in the discourses of Dr. Roux on that occasion.

"The Pasteur Institute has solved a problem that may change the destiny of all humanity as we imagine it?" continued this friend of one of the workers. "It is now slowly and methodically studying how to apply the discovery to man, instead of laboratory animals. They all grew out of the blood serum, whose announcement made such a stir in January, 1900. At that time Dr. Bordet began by injecting the blood of a living rabit into the body of a living guinea pig. Later he injected blood from this same guinea pig into another rabbit. The rabbit died. Starting from the fact that poisons elaborated in the guinea pig was fatal in large doses, Professor Mechnikoff, the chief of Dr Bordet, argues that its action in small dose might be stimulating to the rabbit. On this principle is based the action of such poison medicines as arsenic and strychnine. He therefore began to inject into rabbits certain feeble solutions of the blood of guinea pigs into whose bodies there had been injected the blood of a rabbit. The cubic millimeter of the rabbit's blood before injection contained 3,000,000 red globules, in three or four days the number had increased to 8,000,000.

PROLONG HUMAN LIFE.

"A sovereign remedy against anaemia had been discovered. Then, little by little, it dawned on them that they had hist on a specific serum for the blood and a means of indefinitely prolonging human life."

'Do they still make the claim?" we asked.

"As much as ever. When the reporters crowded around him the first day of the announcement Dr. Bordet told them: 'The main problem has been solved, but for the moment we cannot prolong anything. We are still at laboratory experiments, abstract work. For the moment all I have to say is that, in theory, it seems possible to prolong human existence indefinitely by arresting senile decrepitude.

"And what would he say now?" I asked

"He could say a great deal more if he were willing. The discoveries have gone far beyond that of the blood serum. In a word they have proved the same thing for each organ of the body For example, they take out a living rabbit's liver. They inject a paste of it into a living guinea pig. A few days later they inject blood from this guinea pig into another rabbit. And just as in the case of the first serum for the blood, its effect in small doses is to invigorate the special organs whose cells had been previously injected into the guinea pig.

REJUVENATING BLOOD CELLS.

"The Pasteur Institute experimenters have discovered a great general law," continued my informant. "Cells of a rabbits liver having sojourned for a few days in the body of a guinea pig, there elaborated a specific poison or a specific invigorator—you may even say rejuvenator—for the livers of all other rabbits. And so with the nerves, brain, kidneys and other organs."

"And the practical result?" we asked

"You can see for yourselves," he answered. "When all these discoveries are brought from laboratory proof to actual practice, man may hope to live on almost indefinitely. Should you or I come to the doctors with our kidneys damaged, they could set the forces of our body working ing to restore them. It will be well worth while, because we shall no longer have to fear death from old age."

This was Dr. Oscar Jennings, the authority on drug and alcohol addictions and a specialist of nerves and neurasthenia.

Dr. Bordet has spoken very openly," said the interviewer. "Old age seemed natural; every one accepted it. 'Then one day,' says Dr. Bordet, in an interview, 'it struck me that there might be interesting matter for investigation in the subject. It came to me from this reflection: Life being a function like any other, if we should die normally we ought to die with joy, with the desire to die. When we have eaten we are no longer hungry; after the labor of the day we wish to sleep. How is it that old men, with rare exceptions, cling to life? Because generally we are forced to go before the instinct to die is awakened in us. Death either takes us too soon or else old age weakens us to the point of not permitting this desire for death to blossom in us. What is this imperious old age that arrests in us a sinking down? It is an inferiority, a lack of equilibrium among the various elements of our being. Bodies are composed of myriads of cells. Well, there are certain of these cells that finish by eating their nobler brethren."

"The Pasteur Institute discoveries will put it in our power to stop this cannibalism and its final catastrophe in altrophies and paralysis," was said to Dr. Jennings.

"The moral is not far to seek," he continued. "Pending their announcement we have a new motive to live on to old age, and a very greatone. But will the average man whose health is threatened take the trouble? I am pessimistic not of the discoveries, but of man's willingness to benefit by them."

RIPE OLD AGE.

"Here are some photographs of men who have lived to a green old age," continued Dr. Jennings. "Here is Herbert Spencer, who I know was very delicate some twenty years ago. Here is Littre, who lived to be near a hundred—as a vegetarian! Here is Tolstoi, who lives like a peasant, eating beans and tilling the ground. They lived to ripe to ripe old age by taking the trouble to do so.

"You have heard of course of the book of the American Dr. Dewey?" inquired Dr. Jennings, "and of the writings of Dr. Keith in England? Both have made a great stir. In the profession Keith is called 'the starving doctor.' Both he and Dr. Dewey, independently, have come to the conclusion that instead of 'feeding up' the ailing, the true method is to starve them. Dr. Dewey goes so far —in downright illness even—as to keep the sick man without food at all for 30 days."

"No food at all?"

"But water. And his very general practice is to cut off the morning entirely. Dr. Haig, the celebrated London specialist on uric acid, tried Dr. Dewey's plan. He says that it gave him mornings of well being such as he never before experienced."

"Take the case of Succi, the professional faster. When he first fasted here he was troubled with a chronic ulceration in the corner of his eye. Well, it healed while he was finishing his fast, which shows that it is an error to imagine that to effect repair you must have rich nutriment —or any nutriment: Dr. Dewey says that every man has a reserve of food in his own body on which he can call in time of illness to keep him in nutrition without taking food from the outside to complicate his trouble."

"What is the signal to begin to eat again?" he was asked. An appetite?"

"Not even that. A sick man may eat ravenously from a craving induced by a stomach out of order. The true signal to begin eating is improvement in the patient's health. When he gets well he may take hunger as a signal. And, note, he ought never to eat without hunger. One of Dr. Dewey's favorite expressions is 'two days' or 'three days from a beef-steak appetite.' He claims that those who follow these rules will eat more in the long run and those 'who force themselves' and I agree with him.

"To sum up, there is a new and hopeful movement in the medical profession:

"1. Against 'supporting' patients with nutritious food.

"2. Against the theory that to live long one must live on a 'generous diet.'

LIVED TO BE 180 YEARS.

"The Lancet recently devoted much space to the subject of longlevity," Dr Jennings, "and the general result of its investigations may be summed up in the case of Michael Solis, of Bogota, carefully examined by the Lancet while the man still lived, in 1878. Dr. Hernandes, himself over 80 years of age at that time, had known Solis as a centarian when he himself was but a boy, and documents dated 1712 contain his signature! Now, the conclusion of the Lancet, after having twice investigated the case is that Michael Solis lived to be 180 years old. What is more pertinent, Michael Solis had his theories on longlevity. He ate but one meal each day, and this he allowed to get cold before he touched it. It consisted of the strongest and most nourishing foods obtainable; but, on the other hand, he fasted twice a week, on which days he drank water in large quantities.

EAT OR NOT EAT.

There comes a time in the life of most men when they must take this decision—or refuse to make it. Gout means a condition of the system in which there is excess of uric acid, and according to locality, it causes any quantity of different symptoms. Any quantity of people are in this condition without knowing it. They think they have heart disease, for instance. Indeed rheumatism, gout or uric acid will be found at the bottom of nine-tenths of all chronic illnesses. Congestion of the liver, stomach trouble, heart trouble, kidney trouble—all of these are uric acid! Men arrive at one or two other of these troubles before natural old age has time to steal upon them. What need have they for a serum against decrepitude. Of what use to them will be the discovery?

"I say to such patients, 'You must be willing to give up what is necessary to cure you. I can't say in advance to what extent you must abstain. But—

"'(1) To start with, you must cut off all alcoholic drinks—beer, wine, spirits, etc.—and restrict very much the quantity of meat you eat. Then—

"'(2) Be ready to suppress meat entirely, i.e., become a vegetarian. This may be sufficient; but if necessary, you must be ready to give up, one after the other, butter, sugar, tea, coffee, and even salt—or at least restrict their use to very little.'

"They reply: 'But, Dr. Jennings, what you demand is not practical. I cannot do it,' and, "Are you not prejudiced? You find the regime good yourself; therefore, you generalize it must be good for us."

THE CONCLUSION OF THE MATTER.

"I answered that while I do so, profess to be without fads, I am confirmed in these views by my reading as well as my study and investigations. Ever since the time of Galen, when a doctor has proposed a scheme for the alleviation of chronic diseases it has been based on these lines. For example, take the celebrated Dr. Cheyne, of the last century, whose book called "The English Sickness," may be looked on as the first monograph on neurasthenia. At a time when everything was port wine and beefsteaks, when physicians were the pillars of the coffee houses and gave consultations in their favorite restaurants, he showed that abstemiousness and a mild diet are the true cure for the spleen'—the neurasthenia of our fast-living ancestors."

"Then your conclusions, doctor?"

"Is that those of us who hope to profit by the serum against senile decrepitude had best take care not to die of disease before we need it."

"The specific serums for the various organs will aid us to do that?"

"Yes," said Dr. Jennings, "they will. Therefore, let us strive to live on to extreme old age—to be alive when they shall be perfected."

THE LAKEFIELD BANK FAILURE IS VERY BAD

Mr. James Linton Meets the Creditors and Submits a Statement

The Liabilities are Thirty Four Thousand Dollars and Assets of Less Than Half This Amount

Yesterday Mr. James Linton, head of the firm of James Linton & Co., proprietors of the defunct bank at Lakefield and Orono, arrived in Lakefield, and attended a meeting of the creditors in the Town Hall at 7.30 p.m. There were about 80 persons present, most of whom were creditors of the bank.

Mr. Linton submitted a statement of the assets and liabilities of the Lakefield branck, as follows:

Total liabilities		$ 34,000
Available assets...	$8,224
Notes, good......	6,000	14,224
Shortage		$19,776

In addition to the above there are notes to the amount of about $5,000, which are regarded as worthless. The above is approximately the position of the bank, as it was impossible to prepare an accurate statement in time for the meeting.

Mr. Linton stated that Mr. Benson, the late manager of the Lakefield office had evidently misrepresented the position of the bank in his last statement, made on September 29th.

A rather warm discussion followed and Mr. Linton was kept under a heavy cross fire of cross questions by excited creditors for a couple of hours or more.

The loss is divided amongst the villagers and farmers living near the village several cheese factories being involved.

GREAT BRITAIN AND VENEZUELAN REPUBLIC

Strained Relations Between the Two Countries Becoming Very Acute

London, Oct. 27.—Between Great Britain and Venezuela friction has arisen which may at any moment lead to something worse. For months the Republic has been in a state of civil war, which appears to be the only method is has for adjusting its political disputes. In the lawlessness that has ensued, a band of Venezuelans visited the Island of Patos a few weeks ago and murdered several of the inhabitants. This little island, which lies in the Gulf of Paris, about half way between Trinidad and the coast of Venezuela, has for a long time been British territory. To warn the intruders away, and protect the inhabitants, the Governor of Trinidad sent a small force of men Against this action the Government of Venezuela protested, on the ground that the island belongs to the Republic. There is not the slightest doubt in the minds of the British authorities that Patos Island is and has long been British territory, and hence the objection of Venezuela has thus far gone unheeded. It is altogether likely that President Castro will appeal to Washington, if he has not done so already, and invoke the Monroe doctrine, as Venezuela did on a former occasion. As Great Britain is always as willing to maintain her rights by force of argument as by other means, a respectful request for arbitration would not be in vain.

In the meantime, however, the Government of Venezuela has found another grievance against the British. It now charges that the revolutionists are using Trinidad and other British islands as the bases of operations against the Republic. President Castro's declaration that the British Government offered to stop this, in exchange for commercial privileges, is evidently a misrepresentation, or worse. It is the duty of a Government to prevent expeditions from being organised within its jurisdiction and despatched against a power with which it is at peace. No one knows that better than the British authorities, and by no one is the rule more jealously observed. But President Castro makes the charge flatly against Great Britain, and at the same time declares that by tomorrow it may lead to bloodshed. One would imagine that he has enough trouble at home without looking for more elsewhere. Possibly he supposes that a foreign complication would unite the Venezuelans under him, and the he can always rely upon Uncle Sam to go to his rescue if he treads too heavily on the lion's tail. In this he is playing a dangerous game, for patience has its limits both at Washington and London.

London, Oct. 27—That the gravity of the situation in South Africa is at last recognized by the Government is shown by the announcement of Mr. Chamberlain's decision to proceed to South Africa to examine on the spot the problems presented by the termination of the war and the settlement of affairs in the new British colonies. This morning's newspapers, without exception, warmly congratulate Mr. Chamberlain upon his decision to proceed to South Africa.

It is tolerably certain that if the situation had not been one of extreme gravity the Colonial Secretary would have left the whole matter absolutely in the hands of Lord Milner.

The feeling between the British and Dutch people in Cape Colony just now is said to be more bitter than it was in the days before the war. The former Transvaal and Free State colors are worn freely in the Dutch towns of the Cape, and sedition is openly preached.

In all probability, however, the situation in Transvaal Colony is causing the Government even greater anxiety. Evidently Mr. Chamberlain has no intention of making the Transvaal pay more than the colony can bear. Rand magnates have been astonished at the proposed imposition of a tax of 10 per cent. on the gold mines, and they have hinted that they will not use their resources for the development of fresh properties unless they receive better treatment at the hands of the Imperial Government. At present there is an entire absence of enterprise in the Transvaal and the Government is warned against the policy of killing the goose that laid the golden eggs.

IN TIME OF PEACE PREPARE FOR WAR.

Uncle Sam Believes That in Times of Peace Get Ready for a Scrap

Washington, D.C. Oct. 26 — Secretary Root will recommend in his forthcoming annual report to Congress that the United States Government purchase arms and equipment sufficient for a force of 250,000 men. He believes this number of troops will be absolutely necessary to repel invasion by a foreign army in time of war.

Under the army reorganization bill the President is given discretion to increase the strength of the regular army to 100,000 men, but the Secretary of War thinks that force is not sufficient. In addition to keeping on hand arms with war footing, Mr. Root would have the government buy 150,000 additional which to equip the regular army on a stand of arms and equipment to correspond.

He purposes that this war material shall be stored away in government arsenals, where it shall be kept to be utilized only in case the United States should become involved in war with some foreign power. In such an emergency the Secretary of War would arm and equip 250,000 volunteer soldiers. He believes that this plan would save much time in organization of an army, which with the regular forces, would number 350,000.

In advancing this proposition Mr. Root is bearing in mind the experiences of the War Department at the outbreak of our late conflict with Spain. At that time Secretary Alger was called on to arm and equip over 200,000 volunteers on short notice. The resources of the department were taxed to the uttermost in the performance of this task, and much of the work necessarily was done in an inferior manner. Secretary Root would obviate all the Rush and Hurry that were gone through with in 1898 by keeping constantly on hand arms, ammunition, clothing and other equipment that could be distributed immediately among recruited volunteers. He will exert all his energies in an effort to get Congress to appropriate a sum sufficient to carry out his plan at the coming session.

Secretary Root also plans to have the state militia forces organized into a national reserve. He wants to have them armed with Krag-Jorgensen rifles, and equipped with military stores similar to those in use in the regular army. He thinks the members of the various state guards should be trained and drilled in strictly military fashion, and in uniform manner, so that in the event of an emergency the state militia could be relied upon to furnish a large and homogenous body of well-trained and thoroughly equipped troops that could be mustered into the service of the United States without delay.

Chairman Dick of the house committee on militia has been constituted Secretary Root's especial representative in carrying out this plan. He has prepared a bill embodying the secretary's ideas about state militia, which will be introduced at the coming session, and pushed, as Mr. Root hopes, successfully through both houses of Congress.

A WORD TO FARM TOILERS

Paine's Celery Compound

The Home Friend of the Farmer and His Family in the Autumn Season

After the labors and toils of the summer time, and harvesting crops in the early autumn, many of our farmers, their wives, daughters and sons, find them in a condition of health demanding careful attention if suffering is to be avoided later on. Many experience kidney trouble of some form; with some the liver is torpid; there is biliousness, nausea and vomiting, with loss of appetite and depression of spirits. Thousands who have been exposed to cold, damp winds and rains, now feel the twinges of terrible rheumatism; others rundown by worry, overwork and irregular dieting, are tormented with the pangs of dyspepsia.

To the thousands of rundown, sickly and half dead men and women in farm homes we recommend with all honesty and confidence the worker's friend, Paine's Celery Compound, the only medicine that can quickly and fully restore the strength to the weak body and vigor to the muscles. Paine's Celery Compound tones the stomach; it removes poisonous acids from the blood which cause rheumatism; it feeds the weak and diseased nerves and banishes neuralgic tortures; it purifies the blood and gives true vitality and life. The use of Paine's Celery Compound in autumn means the establishing of a perfect physical vigor to withstand the rigors of a severe winter.

Selling Coal at $6.50 a Ton

To Everybody in New York—A Great Shortage of Cars

New York, Oct. 27.—With tracks comparatively free from passenger traffic, all the anthracite roads rushed trains eastward on Sunday to fill the gap in the coal marts, caused by the great strike More than 10,000 tons reached the receiving yards and piers in Jersey City and its neighborhood. That coal will be divided into small lots and put on the retail market today, with the understanding that consumers shall not be required to pay more than $6.50 a ton for it in any instance. Some dealers even went so far as to promise they would sell it to the poor at the rate of ten cents a bucket, which really would be $8.00 a ton.

Many dealers who still have coal bought at high prices during the strike will still charge $2.50 a ton more than the dealers who are handling the new supply.

Railroad officials declare that the indications of a serious car shortage throughout the country, are becoming more and more pronounced, and the outlook is causing no little apprehension, says the Journal of Commerce. The movement of general freight, both east and west-bound is reported to be unusually heavy. Under normal conditions the principal lines would find their facilities heavily taxed. The termination of the coal strike, however, and the resumption of mining, has resulted in the abnormal demand for cars of all kinds suitable to carry coal by the anthracite roads, and the heavy coal shipments are expected to severely tax the hauling power of these lines. All-rail grain has not yet started to come forward to any great extent, but will begin to move in larger quantities next month, and then, judging from all present indications, the officials declare, est car shortages on record. All the trunk lines are using their utmost endeavor to force the per diem agreement agreement to hurry the return of their cars.

New Link for British Empire

Mr. Chamberlain's Visit to South Africa is Expected to Impress Europe and Please the Colonies

London, Oct. 27—The Times Johannesburg correspondent, says the present inordinate cost of living is exercising a paralyzing effect at Johannesburg. The only panacea is supposed to lie in a reduction of railway rates. However, in the absence of the Transvaal loan it is difficult to see how the Government will be able to reduce rates, at least to the extent that will be needed. Money must be forthcoming from some source during the next half year. The correspondent declares there will be no satisfactory reduction in current prices until competition is keener. When this is the case the system of plunder practiced by housekeepers and others under pretense of high customs and railway rates will inevitably receive a death blow.

In an editorial on Chamberlain's approaching visit to the South African colonies, the Times says: "It constitutes, we trust, and believe, a new departure in the consolidation of the Empire. We sincerely hope this statesmanlike departure from the routine rule of administration may bear such fruit as to insure that it will become a precedent. Nothing, we are confident, could contribute more effectually to the growth of Imperial policy at home and in the colonies, than a series of such visits to each of the chief groups of British possessions successively. Can we doubt that the step will deeply impress Europe, and perhaps more deeply impress our kinsmen beyond the Atlantic with the sincerity of our desire to cement the Empire we have built up by the contentment and loyalty of its people."

London, Oct. 27—A banquet was given on Saturday evening to Lieutenant-Governor Lawley, of the Transvaal, Lord Milner, Governor, was present. The Lieutenant-Governor, in replying to the toast of his health, said that the Government had at last overcome the physical difficulties in connection with the repatriation of the Boers. Forty thousand Boers had been repatriated from the burgher camps and none had returned to them. Seed would be distributed in the middle of December to Boers returning to their farms. Lord Milner, in toasting the chairman, said that in regard to its contribution toward the expenses of the recent war, the Transvaal might trust to the good sense and generosity of the British public. Imperial credit would greatly assist the development of the colony, and if great prosperity resulted, it was only reasonable that they should contribute from their abundance. It was not intended to place any burden on the colony which might delay its progress. The Governor added that he could not hold out hopes of any considerable reduction in railway rates or customs duties, since revenue must be obtained from somewhere.

PROGRESS OF GERMAN COMMERCE.

London, Oct. 27—The Vienna correspondent of The Times says that the progress of German's commerce is one of the most marked features of recent trade development in the Balkans, and part of the Levant, where Austria-Hungary was formerly supreme. The German success, says the correspondent, seems largely due to the antiquated ideas in regard to economic affairs prevailing in the American aristocratic and official world, which is accused by the industrial element of neglecting to afford effective State support and encouragement to industry. Such State aid is one of the main causes of German success. The correspondent remarks that another cause of German predominance in the near East, and even within Austria-Hungary itself, is the vigorous self advertising of the Germans. They have managed to convert a considerable portion of their military renown into a reputation for high industrial capacity, which reputation some of the best judges are not always prepared to confirm. The powerful influence of the German press adds the correspondent, has almost completely hypnotized public opinion in Vienna. It is only on rare occasions such as the publication of the German Customs Tariff Bill that the Austrians realize that they are becoming economically as well as politically and intellectually a colony of the German Empire.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

At the other side of the earth Premier Seddon, of New Zealand, is accused of talking too much too. The skies change, not tongues.

The trouble for the Mad Mullah and Britain, lies primarily across the route for the Cape to Cairo railway. He has to be persuaded to be reasonable.

The Liberal party has an opportunity to suggest to itself that no revision of the tariff which it can undertake could be as pleasing to the manufacturers and the protectionists as that which would be undertaken by the opposite party if it gets a chance. And after considering such a suggestion, the party may be in a position to inform itself that there are a considerable number of consumers in this country who would be pleased by a revision of the tariff in the reverse direction. Or make the British preference fifty per cent, and call quits.

Great Britain is not going to have an easy task to restore good feeling throughout South Africa. The Dutch in Cape Colony are showing an ugly spirit, even those high in office make no attempt at concealing their hatred of those who remained loyal to Britain during the war. It is to be doubted whether the latitude given to the disloyalists has not for the best. It certainly has not availed between them and the men remained true to Britain and made sacrifices for her cause.

WHEN THE WEATHER BEGINS TO GET COOL.

The Senior Reporter of this great family journal desires also to make a few remarks in verse, in reply to the poems which recently appeared in the Times, written by the young Horse Editor and Junior Reporter. The Managing Editor [would say just here in brackets, that this whole business must stop, or he will be tempted to take a hand in and throw the Horse Editor, the Junior Reporter, the Political Editor and all the rest of the Editors out of the front window.]

It's all very well for a chesty young swain,
When the weather begins to get cool.
To chase a brown maiden thro' forest and dell
And in other ways act like a fool.
But a man with a wife and six kids to amuse
Can find other methods to wear out his shoes,
And o'er frost-tinted landscapes will hardly enthuse,
When the weather begins to get cool.

So chase the coy maidens my bachelor friend,
Ere the warm blood of youth shall grow cool.
But remember such sport has its logical end
In a term at connubial school;
And when once in the harness you'll seldom resort
To the high-colored woodlands to prance and cavort—
There'll be other things doing to keep you in sport.
When the weather begins to get cool

The Sporting Editor of this great family journal, not to be outdone by any of the other members of the staff, left the following on the copy hook yesterday evening, and which has been O. K'd by the Managing Editor. It is addressed to the Junior Reporter:

Those joys that you dream about my optimist friend,
When the weather begins to get cool,
Are not yours, tho' a million dollars you spend,
When the weather begins to get cool,
For the dusty old maiden whose garlands float down,
Who waits for her lover in the woods out of town,
No, she isn't for green nor she isn't for brown,
When the weather begins to get cool.

There's an old Cavalier from the north who'll come down,
When the weather begins to get cool,
Who will meet this old damsel so dusty and brown,
When the weather begins to get cool,
His name as you know is November, so chilly and cold,
There is ice in his face and his manner is bold.
To his arms Miss October he fiercely will hold.
When the weather begins to get cool.

AN AWFALUL CAMITY AVERTED

How our New Reporter Worked up a Sensational Item

The new reporter was sent out on the streets Saturday with general instructions to rubber around and get a good feature story for Monday. He rushed in about 3 p.m., his face flushed with the excitement of the chase after the elusive item and his eye gleaming with the satisfaction of having found it. He started in to tell the city editor "it was this way," but the heartless magnate choked him off with the remark: "Write your story and turn it in at once." The new reporter bounced into his chair, threw back the top of his desk, with the following result:

An awful calamity was averted at the crossing of the Grand Trunk Railway on Hunter street on Saturday about noon. The streets were thronged with goers and comers to and from the busy marts of trade for lunch. The sun was shining bright and all nature seemed keyed up to the spirit of the gladsome approaching holiday season. Conductor Fred Haskill's ponderous Lakefield Express was backing down towards the station, a little faster than the regulation speed. The grim conductor with one hand grasping firmly the brake wheel and the other the bell rope, cast his eyes nervously ahead. On the crossing in front of the car a sight met his gaze which must have caused his blood to run cold. From the east rode a woman on a green wheel, bound northward. Her eyes were fixed straight ahead and she heeded not the mighty engine of death which was moving so ponderously toward her. From the west rode a man, also on a green wheel, bound down town. His eyes were also fixed straight ahead and he heeded not the mighty engine of death which was moving so ponderously toward him. Each green wheel with what seemed its doomed rider reached the track at the same time. Then each rider glanced up and saw the big car almost on them. Both turned the same way and at the same time. The wheels crashed together and the two riders sprawled at full length right on top of the cruel rails and over the unfeeling right of way between the rails. A shudder of horror went up and down both avenues for a block either way. The conductor set his teeth and the brake at the same time. The death-laden wheels ground on the rails under the firm grasp of the brake, creaked out a hoarse protest at being deprived of their prey and came to a stop just as the wheels touched one of the recumbent bicycles. The two frightened riders had meanwhile scrambled up and were brushing the dust from their clothes. If they hadn't got up when they did and if the gallant conductor hadn't stopped his train when he did, an awful calamity would have resulted. As it was, no damage was done, not even to the green wheels. And the goers and comers from the busy haunts of trade continue to go and come

The story went up to the desk. The cross copy-reader glanced it over, grunted significantly, got busy with his blue pencil, gave up in disgust, and wrote the story as follows:

Two careless bicycle riders, a man and a woman, each on a green wheel, collided in front of a Grand Trunk train at Hunter street crossing, about noon. No damage was done to either wheels, riders or train.

THE MOONSTONE SPHINX

concealed. Winifred guessed that she must be pallid and weary-looking after all she had gone through, and fancied that her white face had suggested his stammering offer.

There was something curiously comforting and helpful in his manner, though he had made no offer of help or hinted his suspicion that she might need it. While he was gone from the room Winifred listened attentively to the sound of his footsteps in the passage, his low-toned conversation with the sick girl, and was glad when he came back again—a warming, protected gladness as of one who has found safe haven after storm.

"I always make myself a cup of tea or cocoa when I come in about this time," he said, when he had returned to the kitchen sitting-room. "Mrs. Purdy has given me permission, and I feel myself very much at home. Won't you have some tea? Or do you like cocoa better at night?"

"I should like tea very much, thank you," Winifred answered.

She leant back in the cheap, old easy-chair and watched him. There was something wonderfully restful about it, after all she had passed through.

He seemed to understand by instinct that she was too weary and worn to talk, and went quietly about his work.

In this little household the lumps of coal and kindling were luxuries, so the fire had not been lighted. Hope Newcome boiled the water over a spirit lamp, and before the kettle had begun to sing he cut thin, tempting slices of bread and buttered them. He knew where to find everything, and performed his self-appointed task with the skill of one who has cooked himself many a meal at times and in places when otherwise he would have had none.

There was a glass of milk for the sick girl in the next room, and when it had been carried to her the tea had stood long enough to be good. A pleasant fragrance filled the little room. Feeling like one in a dream, Winifred ate bread and butter and sipped strong tea. It was a very strange thing, but nothing on earth had ever tasted so good.

"What nice tea you make!" she said.

"Do I? I'm glad," he answered. "I used to make it for my mother."

"And my mother used to make it for me!" the girl exclaimed. Then suddenly it struck her that it was curious they two should have been thrown together again, and be talking most familiarly in a calm, everyday way, ignoring all that made each one's heart sad or anxious, and knowing absolutely nothing of one another's lives.

Yet, now that she thought of it, did this man know nothing of her life? She had told him nothing. But he had been at the Duke of Clarence's that night, and now he was here in Brighton. He might have had some superficial knowledge of her as an actress in the beginning, and possibly he had asked questions. At least, he could hardly be ignorant of her name after what he had done in her service outside the stage-door of the London theater; and if he remembered it, he must know that Winifred Gray was billed to act in "Mazeppa" to-night and after.

The blood rushed up to her face as this conviction seized her. What he had not already learnt Mrs. Purdy would probably tell him. Somehow the girl could hardly bear that he should know all the truth. It would be horrible to feel that she was associated in his mind with a man of Lionel Macaire's reputation.

Of course there was no reason why she should care what this poverty-stricken young minstrel, who masked himself and played his banjo in the public streets, thought of her, even though, whatever his outward circumstances, he was certainly by birth and breeding a gentleman. Still, Winifred did care, disproportionately, cruelly.

She was seized with a vivid desire to discover how much he already knew. All the brief, sweet restfulness had vanished with those thoughts.

"Do you know my name?" she asked, abruptly.

"Yes," he answered without hesitation. "I hope you don't mind my remembering it so well. You are Miss Winifred Gray. I couldn't help enquiring at the theater that night; and the doorkeeper told me. As for me—not that you'd be interested, still, I'd like to tell you—I call myself Hope Newcome. It's not my real name; I merely chose it because it meant something to me, for a sort of mission that brought me to England, and I shall drop it when that mission's done. But I haven't told anybody else this."

"Thank you for trusting me," said Winifred, guessing that he had told her just to show his trust, and to let her see that she was not the only one who had secrets to keep. "I can't feel that we're strangers after what you did for me that other night. I've never forgotten. But there are other things I want to ask you. Did you know that I was to have acted in Brighton? Of course, though, you must have seen the bills."

As she spoke her eyes fell and her color rose, for she seemed to see one terrible poster with a crowd about it. Perhaps he had been one of that crowd, or another like it.

"I knew, yes," said Hope Newcome, and flushed a little, for it was because he had known that he had come to Brighton. But he would not tell her that.

He could not tell her how he had been tempted that night when he had first seen her (and the whole world had seemed the brighter and sweeter for his knowledge of her) to follow and find out where she lived, merely that he might sometimes pass the house and look up at the windows.

He could not tell her of his astonishment and pain when he had read in a paper that Miss Winifred Gray had suddenly severed her connection with the Duke of Clarence's Theater. He had meant somehow to get the money for a seat on the first night of "As You Like It" to see her as Celia, but the Duke of Clarence's lost its attraction for him when he knew that she was gone.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Partners.

He could not tell her that, nor how often he had thought of her, wondering whether she were still in London; whether she were ill or well; whether she were "resting" or rehearsing for some new play of which he had missed the announcement.

He could hardly have looked her in the face to-night if she could have guessed how when he had read that she was in Brighton, he had hastily answered an advertisement in a dramatic paper requiring a banjo-player and singer of American "plantation" melodies for a negro minstrel party to open at an early date at a cheap music-hall in that seaside town. He could play the banjo well, and a very good one which he had had since his college days was still in his possession; that is, grim necessity had not yet obliged him to pawn it.

He had got the engagement, as the manager was in a hurry and ready to take almost anybody. And he had been delighted with the chance, though he would have to black his face with burnt cork every night, associate with cads and bounders, and receive in exchange for his services the sum of one pound a week.

As a matter of fact, the pound was forthcoming for one week, and no more. Business was bad, and the manager disappeared before treasury day of the second week, leaving the five members of the troupe to do as best they could.

What Hope Newcome did was to stay and help his landlady take care of her sick daughter. When his funds failed he put on a mask, which Mrs. Purdy made at his request, and went out into the street or down by the sea with his banjo, earning not only money enough to pay his way, but to provide some little delicacies for the invalid, which otherwise she would have to do without.

Unassisted, he would perhaps not have thought of this method of refilling his empty pockets, but when the "ghost" ceased to "walk" for the "Six Jolly Niggers," Clara Purdy had suggested the idea. Newcome had come to occupy the one room her mother had to let, before a cold had developed for her into serious illness, and she had not long before been earning a few shillings in the same way herself. Having no engagement for this year, she had been in the habit of going out, masked, to sing popular music-hall airs, with a sweet, untrained voice, and she had thought that Hope Newcome might utilize his rich tenor and his banjo.

So he had taken her advice, and had been in Brighton three weeks. But there was very little of this which could be explained or even mentioned to Winifred Gray. And if he could tell her nothing about himself, still less could he ask her questions. He must be content for the present with the crumbs that she cared to throw to him

And how content he was! As if it mattered what wind had buffeted her within his reach, if he were not hurt by its roughness, since here she was beside him!

"Yes, I knew you were here," he had said, simply. And the answer seemed bald and cold enough compared with the whole reality which he had in his thoughts. "I knew it some weeks ago. You were here before I was."

He had not referred to her question about the posters. But perhaps he had only forgotten to speak of them. Perhaps he had not seen those horrible new ones of which that girl at the theater had told her.

"Did Mrs. Purdy speak of me?" she asked.

"No. Not to me. Since she went to the dress rehearsal she hasn't spoken of anyone in particular at the theater; and, of course, as there's been nothing going on there except rehearsals, she wasn't at the place till then, since you came to Brighton."

Newcome might have added that he had taken the room in Mrs. Purdy's house because someone at the music-hall had told him she acted as a dresser at the theater; and that he had tried to extract from her some information concerning Miss Gray after the dress rehearsal of Mazeppa, but had not gone about it tactfully enough to get the satisfaction he wanted. But he kept this part untold.

"You must be wondering very much why I am here, instead of playing my part on the first night," Winifred said, hesitatingly, not sure yet how far she meant to go in explanation.

"I'm not thinking about that," Newcome answered. "I am only thinking that I should like to help make you comfortable now you are here."

"I simply couldn't play the part as they wanted it done," the girl faltered on. "They deceived me up to the very last, on purpose, of course, because they must have known I wouldn't do it if I had been told in time. They hoped that at the last moment they could force me to take their way. But I would not. Still, if it hadn't been for Mrs. Purdy they might have succeeded. She helped me to get away, and nobody at the theater guessed. When they found out that I was gone—as they must have long ago now—I don't know what they could have done. I suppose they sent somebody else on in my place. But I can't care much, because it was like a plot, and I had to save myself, since they were determined that I should wear—that I should play the part exactly in their way. I don't want them to know where I am. It's to be quite a secret, if it can be kept so. And, oh, I hope it can!"

"It shall be," said Hope Newcome. His firm tone gave the girl courage, and she felt a thrill of gratitude.

They were still talking together when Mrs. Purdy came home with the news of the theater and all that had happened after Winifred's disappearance.

Winifred flew down the passage to meet the old woman when her latch-key was heard scraping in the lock. She wanted time for one whispered caution before her hostess should come into the sitting-room.

"If you guess the name of the man I most want to escape from," she said, hurriedly, in Mrs. Purdy's ear, "please don't mention it to anyone, not even your daughter or your lodger, will you? I can't bear to think that people should know in what a horrible way I have been persecuted."

"If I've a thought in my mind about that, there it stays locked up," rejoined the old woman. "The name I was thinkin' of isn't known to the public as the manager of the play, and there's no reason why anyone here, anyhow, who ain't in theatrical secrets should put it alongside o' yours."

"That is what I hope," the girl exclaimed. "And now I'm so anxious to hear all you have to say. Your lodger has been very kind to me. But I've been impatient for you to come and tell me if there's any suspicion——"

"Not a jot, thanks to my lies," broke in the old woman. "I've told a pack this night, and my only hope is that I may be forgiven, as 'twas in a good cause. When I've had a peep at my gal I'll come into the sittin'-room and tell you everything."

Farmers in Sanpete County, Utah, are having "pin-shows," only they use grasshoppers instead of pins as tickets of admission. The crops last year were ruined by the grasshoppers. This year the farmers determined to destroy the pests, so they arranged for a series of entertainments to which only those might be admitted who brought half a bushel of grasshoppers with them. Seventy-five bushels were the receipts of the first entertainment. The grasshoppers were burned at the close of the evening's amusement.

The Eastern manager of the Pennsylvania Railway has issued an order forbidding passengers to exchange kisses with their friends in the Jersey City station. They must give such greetings and farewells where they will not obstruct traffic. The Western manager says this order will not be enforced on his side of the Alleghany Mountains. And there you have it—the broad, expansive osculatory freedom of the West pitted against the exclusiveness of the East!

In London a curious experiment was recently tried by a South American named Papuss. Having wrapped around his body three hundred and fifty yards of flannel he lay down in a sort of glass coffin, which was then hermetically closed and placed at the bottom of a large tank filled with water. By means of an electric ventilator and of a tube, one end of which passed into the coffin, a constant supply of fresh air was assured, and this air was the only nourishment which Papuss received during the eight days that the experiment lasted. An eight days' fast is not an extraordinary occurrence, but what is particularly interesting about the present case is that the faster did not consume any water.

The "Lancet" has unearthed the curious fact that nearly all the important events in the life of His Majesty King Edward VII. have happened on a Tuesday. He was born, baptized, and married on a Tuesday; on a Tuesday he was appointed a member of the Privy Council; on a Tuesday it was definitely ascertained that he had contracted typhoid fever, and it was on a Tuesday he attended the public thanksgiving service for his recovery. On a Tuesday he succeeded to the throne; on a Tuesday the Royal Standard was first hoisted at Marlborough House, and on a Tuesday His Majesty underwent an operation for perityphlitis. Students of "the occult" may be able to deduce something from this dominance of the day dedicated to the god of war in the life of the King, but without any such deduction the series of coincidences is a very remarkable one.

Not only the horses but the powers of the law, says the London "Chronicle," are swift at Ascot, for the course has a special tribunal for the punishment of evildoers. No sooner is the pickpocket, welsher, or ticket-snatcher arrested than he is standing before Sir Albert de Rutzen in a little room in the royal stand, where the evidence is heard and the verdict and sentence pronounced before the offender fully realizes that he is caught. Nowhere else does punishment so swiftly follow crime as at this court, which is decreed by clause 31 of the Indictable Offences Act of 1848. This race-course tribunal arose curiously in the eighteenth century from an assault upon a royal personage. In his indignation at the impossibility of instant punishment of the assailant, he ordered that in future a magistrate should always attend the royal race meeting. This has ever since been done, and by the above-mentioned act the chief magistrate of Bow street was constituted ex officio a justice of the peace of the County of Berks, in order to enable him to hold this court at Ascot.

A Letter From Burns.

A traveler in Ottawa who recently visited an old Scotch settler obtained the privilege of examining the contents of a musty leather trunk full of papers and letters. In a bundle of receipts from tradesmen, preserved with Scottish thrift among the family papers, he found an unpublished letter from Robert Burns. The New York "Sun" gives it as follows, and justly remarks that it shows the great poet at his best, a sympathetic, kindly man at heart:

R. Burns, Dr., to G. Turnbull, for five copies of his poems at 2s 6d—12s 6d.

Dear Sir: I send you by John Glover, carrier, the above amount for Mr. Turnbull, as I suppose you have his address.

I would fain offer, my dear sir, a word of sympathy with your misfortunes, but it is a tender thing, and I know not how to touch it. It is easy to flourish a set of high-flown sentiments that would give great satisfaction to "a breast quite at ease," but as one observes who was seldom mistaken in the theory of life, "The heart knoweth its own sorrows, and a stranger intermeddleth not therewith." Among some distressful emergencies that I have experienced, I ever laid this down as my foundation of comfort, "that he who has lived the life of an honest man has by no means lived in vain."

With every wish for your welfare and future success, I am, my dear sir, sincerely yours,

ROBERT BURNS.

No Liquor to be Sold on Referendum Day December 4th

Many inquiries have reached the license branch of the Ontario Government as to whether bar-rooms must be closed on December 4th, the day of the vote on the Liquor Act. J. K. Stewart, Chief Inspector of Licenses, said that by a clause in the prohibition at the provisions of the general election law respecting closing of bars, corruption, etc., would apply to the coming vote.

Special Stock Market Review

—FOR—

THE TIMES — PETERBOROUGH ONT.

By the Manager of the Speculators' and Investors' Information Club, New York City

The course of stock market values during the last week has been marked by a good deal or irregularity, and especially during the early part of the week prices were wholly under the influence of changing reports about settlement of the coal strike, and also about the measures contemplated for the relief of the monetary situation by the Secretary of the Treasury. The final settlement of the coal strike and the return to almost normal conditions in the monetary situation, has been a great relief to the whole financial community. These two factors were looked upon in Wall street as practically the only dark clouds on the horizon of the country's prosperity, and with their removal a revival of active speculation was confidently expected. No wonder therefore that prices for stocks responded with a rush to the first favorable reports. The general advance was unquestionably helped by a considerable "short" interest, but at the same time the market has shown since a good deal of underlying strength. On the whole, stocks retained their advances fairly well. Market leaders and banking interests do not seem to desire any great increase in speculation at the present time. The best proof of this is the close scrutiny of collatoral presented for loans, but there is a certain speculative element apparently ready to run away with the market in spite of anything. With the coal strike out of the way and money at about six per cent., where does the stock market stand? What are the prospects for investors and speculators? However careful and conservative views a man may be disposed to take, the fact is that the stock market finds itself face to face with the prosperity of our great country. It is confronted by conditions which are bound to be reflected in the earnings of railroads and other industrial enterprises, and the increased receipts will find corresponding expression in the prices of stocks of the various corporations. Some railroad stocks have already advanced to a price level which discounts a great deal of all the good things to come, but there are a good many others whose advance can be said to have barely begun. It will be the object of this weekly stock market review to point out to the readers of The Times those stocks which offer the best and safest opportunities for profitable speculation or investment.

There is for instance New York Central now quoted about 156. The earnings of this road are something wonderful. All the surplus earnings of the Lake Shore Road are going now into the New York Central treasury, and it will not be many years before New York Central disappears from the speculative market just as Lake Shore has done. There has been the best kind of buying in the New York Central lately. That stock is worth easily 1200 a share, and it will reach there simply on the strength of its merits. Two other stocks which are equally good are Pennsylvania Railroad and Missouri Pacific. A man who will buy moderately of Pennsylvania whenever that stock declines is sure of a profit on his purchase. From its present price of 164, an advance to 200 is only a question of time. As to Missouri Pacific, comparatively few people realize what a fine property it is to-day. Its physical condition is excellent, and compared with other railroads for cost of construction and cost of capitalization per mile, Mo. Pacific is to-day the cheapest railroad property in the United States. It pays at present a regular dividend of 5 per cent., which makes the stock look rather attractive around 110. It will not be such a long time before that stock will reach a price nearer 150 than 110. Among high priced stocks the three mentioned above are probably the most promising from a conservative standpoint. There are, however, a number of other low or medium priced railroad stocks which perhaps appeal stronger to the general investing public than the expensive issues. First among these should be named the preferred stock of the Toledo, St. Louis and Western, the old Clover Leaf Road. The "Information Club," in its daily letters of advice, has urged Club members to buy that stock ever since it was selling around 32. At time of writing the price is above 45. Brokers identified with leading market interests have been buying T.O.U. prefered in connection with some important pending developments, and the management of the Information Club wishes to predict now at least 60 for T.O.U. preferred stock within a reasonable time, probably before the end of November. Stocks like Texas Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio, Alton, Chicago & Great Western, Erie, are all selling at prices below their intrinsic merit. To buy these stocks whenever they are weak and look like lowering, will prove a profitable transaction. The greatest mistake which a man can make in stock market operations is to overtrade. Members of the Information Club have been advised right along to leave all dangerous or gambling stocks strictly alone. To trade only in solid conservative stocks which have an established record, and not to buy a single share more than they can afford to take care of. Conservatism is the secret of success in Wall street. Another stock which should strongly commend itself to investors and speculators, is United States Steel, both common and preferred. The common stock returns now almost 10 per cent. on the investment. The payment of that dividend is assured for an indefinite period, and it is only a question of time when the intrinsic merit of U.S. Steel stocks will secure for them the recognition which they deserve, and the price will then be found nearer to 70 than to 40. Stock market conditions generally favor a gradually improving market. The Information Club does not advise, however, the indiscriminate purchase of railroad securities. A good many of the high priced issues are selling on a level with their intrinsic merits. Stocks like Louisville, Met., B. & O., Manhattan, etc., etc., while excellent and well managed properties, can hardly be called cheap around present quotations. Traders would therefore be naturally afraid of them and it would seem safer to look for profitable returns in meritorious, conservative low and middle priced stocks. An attempt has been made the last few days to revive public interest in "International Power," and the tip ine largely circulated that "insiders" intend to advance that stock to par. Club members have been advised not to have anything to do with that stock at any price. The "Information Club" does not accept accounts or monetary deposits. We confine ourselves strictly to giving advice. Club members are advised free of charge about securities they are interested in, and the Club's daily financial letter points out those stocks which offer the best and safest opportunities for either speculation or permanent investment. Club members contribute $5.00 per month. If interested, you can obtain free sample letters from

AGED, BUT GAME

Six Robbers Met More Than Their Match in an Old Farmer

Cleveland, O., Oct 26.—In a secluded farm house on a country road two miles from the village of Rochester, in Lorain county, last night, three aged men named Meach were attacked by six desperate robbers. As a result two of the robbers were shot to death, one probably fatally wounded and two of the Meach brothers are badly beaten. There are three of the Meach brothers, Loren, aged nearly 80 years, John, about 70, and Jarvis, aged 65. The old men are said to be rich. About eight o'clock, while in the barn, John was surrounded by three robbers and bound. Going to the house they knocked Jarvis Meach into insensibility by blows on the head. John Meach worked himself free from his bonds, however, and securing a shotgun cautiously stole upon the three burglars, who were working on the safe. He shot two of them to death and fatally wounded the third men. The three companions of the men who were watching outside the house, realizing their danger, immediately got away. The third of the brothers, Loren, is bedridden and could offer no resistance, so he was not molested. The authorities are scouring the neighborhood, and great excitment prevails. The would-be robbers secured no money. The wounded robber was taken into custody, but he refused to make any statement as to his identity and there was nothing on his person to tell who he was. The authorities believe the men are from Cleveland. The outlaws are typhical tramps in appearance.

The Morning Paper

In the morning, one feels fresh and vigorous, with body rested, and one is mentally active and energetic. You want to be up and "dong thinks." An axiom of the commercial world is to do business before the day is late. No new proposition should be placed before a tired man or woman.

This logically explains the superiority of the morning newspaper as an advertising medium. An advertisement in The Times reaches the mind when the reader's mind is active and aggresive—when to think is to act.

The great newspaper in every city is always a morning paper. Its influence is wider and prevails amongst the more thoughtful and thrifty. The evening newspaper, because of its narrow sphere of circulation, and the fact that it reaches a wearied, passive mind, can never be a power, nor yet a productive advertising medium amongst other than the poorer classes.

—The corundum mines at the head of Stony Lake, which have been closed down for some weeks, are once more the scene of activity. Mr. Haycock, the new manager, arrived on Monday, and with Foreman Williamson and a staff of workmen left on Tuesday morning to begin operations. They took with them a considerable quantity of supplies, and we are informed that it is the intention of the company to push operations vigorously.

RESULTS:

Some years ago the public was offered the following stocks at nominal figures. Each one to day is in demand at a fancy price and paying a large income.

$500 invested in Gold Coin in 1897 is now worth	$11,000.00.
$500 invested in Lillie in 1895 is now worth	9,000.00
$500 invested in Portland in 1896 is now worth..	8,000.00
$500 invested in Elkton in 1896 is now worth....	3,420.00
$500 invested in Home Mining in '99 now worth	$12,300.00
$500 invested in Vindicator in 1897 is now worth	3,100.00
$500 invested in Isabella in 1898 is now worth..	2,100.00
$500 invested in Gold King in 1897 is now worth	5,000.00

There are thousands of instances in Colorado where investments in bona fide properties have returned many hundred-fold for every dollar invested and have made men and women independent for the balance of their lives. More fortunes are created in gold mining than in any of the other industries, and it is the only product the demand for which fails not and market quotations control not.

A small investment in this company, which is safe and sure of quick returns, may bring an enormous return at any moment. It has the possibilities of rivalling the great mines of the past

ED. McCARTHY & COMPANY, Bankers, Responsibility, $100,000
GALVESTON, TEXAS, September 18, 1902

This bank will receive subscriptions for the stock of the Pitkin Gold Belt Mining and Reduction Company and hold the funds in trust, subject to terms of guarantee, which are as follows:

"Subscriptions to the stock of the Pitkin Gold Belt Mining and Reduction Company sent to or deposited with Ed. McCarthy & Co., Galveston, are to be held in trust for subscribers until the Company cuts an ore shoot of smelting grade (2 oz to 6 oz, or $40.00 to $120.00 per ton) and makes shipments. Upon the Company furnishing a certificate executed by competent parties that a tunnel has cut an ore shoot and shipments made of smelting ore, the bank will transfer all funds to the Pitkin Gold Belt Mining and Reduction Company, and certificates of stock will be issued to subscribers upon presentation of receipt issued by this bank. Should the Company fail to accomplish this within three months' time all funds so held in trust will be returned to subscribers upon presentation of receipt issued by this bank.

The Board of Directors of the Pitkin Gold Belt Mining and Reduction Company are well known to us to be reliable and responsible, and wecan recommend the Company as worthy of confidence.

(Signed) McCARTHY & CO'Y

THIS IS A GOING, NOT A WAITING, ENTERPRISE

The property of this Company, consisting of over 100 acres, with one mile of a true fissure vein, is located in Gunnison County, Colo, in what is known as the Gunnison Gold Belt, which is in the great Gold Belt of Colorado, the "Mother" lode, or dike, which has produced 55 per cent. more gold than the total output of the Cripple Creek district.

The best machinery money can buy has been installed and paid for and with it development is being pushed night and day.

Smelting ore has been shipped from shallow workings to the Bueno Vista Smelter—value $40 to $120 per ton. The cost of mining, freight and smelters' charges amounts to $12 per ton. So, with oceans of this ore, this mine has the possibilities of rivalling the great mines of the past.

The capital stock of the Company is $100,000—par value of shares $1.00—full paid and non-assessable. A portion of the treasury stock is now offered at

25 Cents Per Share---Par Value $1.00

FULL PAID AND NON-ASSESSABLE

The proceeds are to be placed in a trust fund, so, when guarantee is complied with and shipments of ore begins, fund will be on hand for the immediate erection of mills and boarding houses, buying horses and wagons for hauling ore to the railroad, and make this not a small mine, but a great one. Order at once, as the right is reserved to advance this stock without notice and to return any subscriptions.

INVESTIGATE AT OUR EXPENSE

Any person or association of persons in any town or community desiring to buy as much or more than $600 worth of Pitkin Gold Belt mining and reduction Company's stock may deposit such money in their local bank, to be held by such bank pending a trip by one of their number to visit Pitkin, Colo., to personally inspect the gold belt and investigate the Pitkin Gold Belt Mining and Reduction Company and its property, and upon this Company being notified by such bank of such deposit, will forward to the person selected free transportation to Pitkin, Colo, and return. If, upon thorough investigation, the representations made by us are found to be true, such investment is to be made; otherwise, all money is to be returned by such bank to the parties depositing same.

Invaders of the Sanctum.

A united states newspaper once announced that a notorious thief, well known locally, had been lynched for horse-stealing. The man called at the office, sound in wind and limb, and demanded a withdrawal of the unfounded statement. "We cannot retract," said the editor; "we never do." "But the 'Mail,' which published a similar report, has withdrawn it," said the man. "That may be," replied the editor. "The report appearing in the 'Mail' was no doubt without foundation; but our news is always true. However, we don't mind saying in the next issue that the rope broke, and that you escaped with a slight contusion."

If a story told in journalistic circles be well founded, a somewhat similar incident occurred in London. One day a gentleman called at the office of a well-known newspaper and said to the editor, a famous man in his time: "Sir, it is announced in your paper that I am dead." "Well," replied the editor, "if it is in our paper it is correct." "It is not correct, for here I am alive," rejoined the other. "Well, it can't be helped," said the editor. "But I expect you to contradict it," said the gentleman. "No, I cannot do that," said the editor, "as we never contradict anything that appears in our paper. I will do the only thing I can do to bring you to life again. To-morrow I will put you in the list of births."

Sometimes the editor gets the better of these unpleasant intruders into his sanctum. A friend of ours was seated in his editorial chair in a Yorkshire town, quietly snipping paragraphs from contemporary journals, when in walked, unannounced, a big, ferocious-looking man with a heavy stick in his hand. "Is the editor in?" he asked. The menacing tone in which the question was put showed that he had not come to make a friendly call, to insert an advertisement, or to pay a subscription to the journal. "No, sir," replied the editor, with admirable presence of mind—"he has just gone out. Take a seat and read the paper; he will return in a minute." Down sat the indignant visitor, crossing his legs, with his club between them, and commenced reading a paper. In the meantime the editor quietly vanished downstairs, and at the landing he met another excited man, with a cudgel in his hand, who also asked if the editor was in. "Yes, sir," was the prompt response, "you will find him seated upstairs, reading a newspaper." The second visitor, on entering the room, commenced a violent assault upon the first, which was resisted with equal ferocity. The fight was continued till they both rolled to the foot of the stairs and had cudgelled each other to their hearts' content.

New Round Dances.

Three new round dances have just been approved and adopted by the Normal Association of Masters of Dancing of the United States and Canada, which recently met in New York. They are the Military Dip Waltz, the Olympia Schottische, and the Antler's Gavotte. The Military Dip Waltz is said to be the simplest and most graceful of the three. It has been predicted that this dance will sweep the country, and may take the place of the two-step in the matter of popularity. The movements are thus described: Take a position facing your partner, as if for waltzing. The left foot of both lady and gentleman should be in the fourth position, front; that is, about the length of one step in front of the right foot. At the beginning of the strain the gentleman dips forward upon his left and the lady backward upon her right; then both reverse the movement. The gentleman next makes a quick change, stepping forward on the left and then on the right. The balance is repeated in this position, the two dip movements having occupied just four measures in all. From this point glide into the waltz, waltzing four measures; then repeat the balance movement again, and so on ad libitum. The dance is simple, easy, and fascinating. The Olympia Schottische is designed for the more agile and spirited dancers. It is begun in the open position assumed for any schottische, the gentleman holding the lady's left hand with his right, the two facing one another. The lady starts with the right foot, the gentleman with the left. Dip backward with a graceful bend of knee, then bring the rear foot forward and rise on the toes. Repeat the movement with the other foot; glide four times to the right, repeat both movements, face forward and hop on left foot, kicking right with toe touching the floor; then hop on right, kicking left. Next assume the closed position and take four glides, a half turn, finishing with four more glides in the same direction. The Antler's Gavotte is made up entirely of familiar steps. This is begun in the closed position. March two measures, two-step four, take three glides to the left, finishing on the right foot, and waltz to the close of the strain. This is a new combination of the two old favorites, two-step and waltz, with the march step for variety.

A Valuable Clue.

"Please, sergeant," exclaimed a lady, as she rushed into the police station, half out of breath. Then she hesitated.

"What is it, ma'am?"

"I don't like to tell you."

"Proceed. Have you been robbed, or ——?"

"Robbed, sir; cruelly robbed. Last night someone stole a lot of clothes from off my line."

"Just give me a list of the articles stolen."

"I couldn't do that, for they took two pairs of ——"

"What?"

"Oh, no; I really couldn't say; but, Mr. Policeman, if you see anybody wearing them, arrest them."

With this brief explanation she departed, and now she is telling all the neighbors that the police force of this country are too stupid to detect crime, even when they get a clue at first hand.

Verestchagin, the artist who is painting a large picture of the Battle of San Juan Hill, with President Roosevelt as the central figure, was very much depressed over New York's sky-line, when he visited the metropolis fifteen years ago. He said that the occasional skyscraper was a painful blot on the landscape; that it made the sky-line one terrible thing to behold. The other day, after long contemplation of it and the scores of big buildings which load down the Island of Manhattan, he is said to have turned to a friend and remarked: "Really" (a pause), "it begins to be grand."

Mainly About People.

The "Courier de Paris" relates that a party of men, sitting in front of a boulevard cafe, were recently approached by a man who had a clarionet in his hand, and who said: "Gentlemen, excuse me, I have to make my living, but I suppose you would rather give me a sou not to hear me." They took the hint. He repeated this performance several times, till, one day, one of the men said he felt like hearing a tune, and asked him to play. "I am sorry," said the man with the clarionet, "but I cannot play a note."

George Douglas, the author of "The House With the Green Shutters," says that once he met Froude in the house of an Oxford don. "It's astonishing," the historian remarked to Douglas, "it's astonishing! You're the living image of my dear friend, the late John Conington." Douglas said he was glad to hear he was so like the great authority on Virgil. For a moment Froude's thoughts seemed to be busy with the sacred past. "Conington," he then added, dreamily, "was the ugliest man I ever clapped an eye on."

A beginner in newspaper work in a Southern town who occasionally "sent stuff" to one of the New York dailies picked up last summer what seemed to him a "big story." Hurrying to the telegraph office he "queried" the telegraph editor: "Column story on so and so. Shall I send?" The reply was brief and prompt, but to the enthusiast unsatisfactory. "Send 600 words," was all it said. "Can't be told in less than 1,200," he wired back. Before long the reply came: "Story of creation of world told in 600. Try it."

Several stories are told of Tennyson's thoughtless speeches. "What fish is this?" he once asked his hostess where he was dining. "Whiting," she replied. "The meanest fish there is," he remarked, quite unconscious that he could have wounded anyone's feelings. Yet his kindness of heart was such that when his partridge was afterward given him almost raw he ate steadily through it, for fear his hostess might be vexed. On one occasion Tennyson was very rude to Mrs. Brotherton, a neighbor at Freshwater. The next day he came to her house with a great cabbage under each arm. "I heard you liked these, so I brought them," he said, genially. It was his idea of a peace-offering.

In a speech in London the other day Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman told an admirable story of the advice given by an Englishman, a Scotchman, and an Irishman, respectively, to a gentleman whose servant was constantly breaking articles in the household. The Englishman, in his blunt, honest way, said to the employer: "Oh, get rid of him—dismiss him." The Scotchman's advice was "Stop the money out of his wages." "But," said the master, "he breaks more than his wages amount to." "Then," said the Irishman, "raise his wages."

An extremely stout, good-tempered Englishwoman once contrived to wedge herself into a gallery seat at the Adelphi Theater that would have accommodated a person of ordinary size, to the unconcealed annoyance of a smartly dressed youth next to her. She began to peel an orange, and the youth, with a gesture of complaint, removed his silk hat fussily to a safer position. "I suppose," said the good-tempered woman, "that you'd rather have had a gentleman sitting by the side of you, sir, wouldn't you?" The youth replied, snappishly, in the affirmative. "Ah!" said the woman, thoughtfully, "so would I!"

United States Senator Perkins says that once when he was a sailor, a tremendous storm came up, and it looked as if the vessel were doomed to go under. In the midst of the excitement a minister, who was one of the passengers, asked the captain if he could have prayers. "Oh, never mind about the prayers," said the captain; "the men are swearing too hard to stop for prayers, and as long as you hear them swearing," added the captain, "there is no danger." The minister went back to his cabin. A little while later, when the storm grew worse, the preacher went on deck to see what the sailors were doing. Then he went back to his wife. "Thank God!" he said, fervently, "those men are still swearing."

Lord Spencer of Althorp, one of the greatest of book collectors, was at home only in his own field. One day, in browsing about Bond street, London, he went into the shop of a dealer in bric-a-brac. The dealer, who knew him by sight, said, persuasively: "Here is a fine bit of pottery which your lordship really ought to have, and you shall have it very cheap—only two guineas." So Lord Spencer bought it and took it home, and set it in a high place. One day a connoisseur of china paid him a visit, and Lord Spencer showed his bargain. "What did you give for it?" asked the connoisseur. "Two guineas," answered Spencer, rather proudly. "What!" said the connoisseur. "At that price the marmalade should have been included." "What do you mean?" "Why, that precious piece of yours is nothing more nor less than a shilling marmalade pot, with a green thistle painted on it."

A Natural Conclusion.

KERN COUNTY (SUNSET DISTRICT) OIL COMPANIES PAID

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS IN DIVIDENDS IN AUGUST ALONE

MORGAN IN THE OIL INDUSTRY--NEW YORK FINANCIER AT THE HEAD OF A $20,000,000 COMPANY TO EXPLOIT CALIFORNIA FIELDS

Bakersfield, Cal., Sept. 27.—J. Pierpont Morgan is about to identify himself with the oil business in California. On October 12, or a few days later, surveyors will be put into the field, and will run lines to the ocean from Sunset, Coaling, McKittrick, Midway and Kern River fields to determine by which route it is most feasible to transport oil to tide water. The surveys will run over the coast range at a number of points, and also will go down the San Joaquin valley parallel with the line of the Standard.

A company having a capitalization of $5,000,000 has been organized for the construction of lines, pumping stations, storage tanks, and the like. Mr. Morgan and his associates have also formed a separate company, capitalized at $20,000,000, half of which will be invested in proven ground and the other half turned into a reserve fund.

It is stated that the Morgan syndicate will be prepared to handle 2,000,000 barrels the first year, and will increase that amount at the rate of 1,000,000 a year until the whole demand of the market is met.

THE ST. PAUL & SUNSET OIL COMPANY own and control a large tract of absolutely oil proven asphalt land in the very heart of the best oil producing land of Kern County, California, the district where flowing wells are situated. We have a bed of Liquid Asphalt underlying a portion of our lands. Our property is situated right at Sunset Station. A new line of railway is surveyed and will be constructed in a very short time, putting us not only in touch with Eastern cities, but in touch with tide-water. This, in addition to the railroad facilities we now have. Remember that we own our land—it is paid for and entirely free from debt.

ST. PAUL & SUNSET OIL CO.'S GIGANTIC TRACT

will be developed and should prove a formidable rival for the now company.

PROFESSOR DR. RUD J. SCHIMPER, Analytical and Expert Chemist, of St. Paul, makes the following statement relative to the composition, what can be produced and the estimated profits of the Sunset Crude Oil. A copy of the original certificate can be seen at the office of the St. Paul & Sunset Oil Co., which is in substance as follows:

"This is to certify that the undersigned, Dr. Rudolph J. Schimper, Chemist expert, member of Parisian Academy, according to analysis made from the crude oil furnished me by the St. Paul & Sunset Oil Company, I find the following valuable products and with each beg to submit my estimate of its value:

1. LIQUID RUBBER—2000 lbs of this crude oil (6 bbls.) will produce 1,800 lbs. of liquid rubber, value of which is from 25c. per lb. and up. (Estimated value $450.00.)
2. SOLID RUBBER—2000 lbs of this crude oil (6 bbls) will produce 1,700 lbs. of solid rubber, value of which is from 50c. upwards. (Estimated value $450.00.)
3. FUEL BRIQUETTES—2000 lbs. of this crude oil (6 bbls.) will produce 2,000 lbs. (1 ton) of fuel briquettes, which, according to government tests made, is equivalent to two tons of best anthracite coal. (Estimated value $22.00)
4. ASPHALTUM—2,000 lbs. of this crude oil (6 bbls.) will produce ½ ton of asphaltum, value $25 to $35 per ton. 25 gal. of lubricating oil, value 50c. per gal. and upward. 40 gal. illuminating oil, value 10c per gal. and up. 60 gal. of distilled oil, value 5c. per gal. and upward. (Estimated value $64.50.)
5. SOAP—2000 lbs. (1 ton) of crude oil and filling will prduce over 2,000 lbs. of soap, value 3c. per lb. and upward. (Estimated value $60.00.)

Id my opiniou many other valuable products can be obtained from the oil of that famous field.

Respectfully, DR. R. J. SCHIMPER, Chemist Expert."

THIS goes to show the immense profits that will accrue from our products when refined. We expect to commence Building Our Refinery in the very near future. The sale of the next allotment of stock will be made for that purpose. The largest flowing wells in California were brought in adjoining our property and their stock was taken off the market. We employ the best drillers who report rapid progress on our wells and we expect to bring in gushers equal, if not to excel any in the Sunset field. Our General Manager, Superintendent and Drillers, all are experienced oil men. The officers of our company are all thorough, competent and efficient men who have always made a success of their undertaking in life and who will see that the welfare of the St. Paul and Sunset Oil Company is furthered, portected and promoted to the most advantageous extent possible.

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS SHOULD BE PAID STOCKHOLDERS.

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS should be paid to the stockholders of the St. Paul and Sunset Oil Company when their property is fully developed, their refinery equipped and in full operation. ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS IN DIVIDENDS was paid by Kern County Oil Companies during the month of August alone.

SIX MILLION BARRELS is the consuming capacity of the Southern Pacific Railway engines, which are now equipped for burning oil. Outside of this consider other railway lines, smelters, factories, steamships, stationery engines, which are all heavy consumers of fuel oil and last but not least, hotels and private dwellings are falling in line with the procession in the use of fuel oil.

A GOOD REASON WHY YOU Should Invest in the stock of St. Paul & Sunset Oil Company. More fortunes have been made in oil than any other business. Consider the immense amount of money the Standard Oil Company has made for its fortunate stockholders, and the California oil companies have done better in proportion to their capitalization than the Standard Oil Company. Here is what $100 has accomplished for those who invested that amount in the following California companies in the beginning of their career:

Home Whittier $1,000 on an investment of $100.

Kern returned $2,200 on an investment of $100.

Peerless returned $1,800 on an investment of $100.

Dillon returned $2,500 on an investment of $100.

New York returned $30,000 on an investMent of $100.

Union returned $150,000 on an investment of $100.

Home returned $50,000 on an investment of $100.

THERE is no reason in the world why the St. Paul and Sunset Company's oil holdings and property, when developed and handled, should not bring like returns

CONTRARY to the general supposition the earth is the repository of all mineral wealth. When it is known and demonstrated beyond a question of a doubt where its wealth reposes and you put your money up to take it out, your money is invested. Hence you are an investor, not a speculator. A proven oil producing property does not draw its profits from the people but creates new wealth. It is therefore an investment.

Wonderful Increase in Value of Oil Stocks.

WE CLAIM NOTHING WE CANNOT PROVE TO BE TRUE

BRIEFLY, OUR PROPOSITION IS THIS: THE ST. PAUL & SUNSET OIL COMPANY

owns its immense tract of proven Oil Land—without a penny of incumbrance. The property is located in the most wonderful and richest oil producing section in the world, in the famous Sunset District of Kern County, California. A LIMITED AMOUNT OF THIS STOCK WILL BE SOLD AT 35c. PER SHARE, PAR VALUE $1.00.

BUY NOW. THIS STOCK WILL BE ADVANCED TO 50c WITHIN THE NEXT 30 DAYS

THE ST. PAUL & SUNSET OIL COMPANY will erect their own refinery, etc. are now owners of the property they are developing, employ the best drillers in the whole State of California. The manager is an old and experienced oil man who has been connected with large California companies. The officers are all successful and reliable business men, who are investors—the same as every other stockholder. And the company, with plenty of ready capital, proposes to make the St. Paul & Sunset Oil Co. a leader in the field and to develop their property to the fullest extent that money and brains will permit.

The first orders received will be the first ones to be filled. In case we are unable to fill your orders at 35c. your money will be refunded. Send Orders and Remittances to

One 18-inch vein of 90 per cent copper (almost the solid metal) has been opened up in Copper Queen Extension Claim, one of the six constituting our Montana property, while mining a thirty-foot vein of free milling 18 per cent copper ore, carrying thirty ounces of silver to the ton.

This is so far ahead of our expectations, brilliant as our former prospects were, that we realise the IMMEDIATE building of a mill to handle this magnificent output, equalled in richness only by the Calumet and Hecla mines, is an ABSOLUTE NECESSITY. This will make OUR OWN portion of the stock, as well as THAT ACQUIRED BY THE PUBLIC, for the purposes of this immediate development, worth an immense amount of money in an exceedingly short time.

Help us build a Mill immediately by purchasing our One Dollar Shares, which are offered this week at 30 cents a Share as a Special Inducement to insure the speedy building of the Mill, and we will make your stock yield you an inordinate profit as quickly as the Mill can be put in operation.

STOCK MARKETS

Two More Preferred Investments

New York, Oct. 27.—As promised in these letters a day or two ago, to take up certain preferred stocks good for investment, absolutely safe and yielding large returns, we to-day call your attention to the car and foundry preferred shares and the U. S. Steel Corporation preferred shares, both of which are paying seven per cent in quality installments, and which can be purchased quite well below par. These two stocks are intrinsically cheap, extraordinarily so, and are in our opinion absolutely certain to maintain these dividends under all and any conditions. Both concerns have a large and rapidly increasing surplus, are paying dividends upon their common shares, and are impregnable in their market situation. Time will witness both of these issues salable pretty close to 120, as is the case at present with the preferred stock of the American Sugar Refining Co., which also has frequently been below par. The falling interest rates and steadily advancing average prices for railway investments will cause in the next year or so a vast amount of money to seek investment in the shares of the preferred industrials. American Car and Foundry Co. for its last fiscal year shows net earning upon its common stock amounting to about 15 per cent. This is indeed a remarkable showing. The company was a large lender of money all through the close money period; its business has increased in one year's time fully 60 per cent. and it has enough orders on hand at present to keep it busy for fully one year to come without any additional orders. You can, in our opinion, make no mistake in purchasing either one of these stocks either speculatively or for investment.

Our special letter now ready for distribution, copy of which will be mailed you upon request, most exhaustively analyses United States Steel, devoting four pages to the subject, while on the subject of investment issues, we would also call your attention to Western Union shares. This stock has paid five per cent. for over twenty years without a miss, sells in the neighbourhood of 90 and is cheap. Its closer affiliation with the postal company since the death of Mackey makes it even more valuable than heretofore. It is not only a good investment at going prices, but likely within a year to sell closer to 110 that to its present price.

Summary.—The proverbial Blue Monday again. Stocks, however, more sluggish in movement, and prone to drift with a sagging tendency. Bears apparently more cautious, their market selling failing to dislodge long stock in any quantity. The general market opened off following the lead of London. After the delivery hour, stocks endeavored a rally, but it was fitful and as sluggish as the retrograde movement. It is doubtful if there will be any great market activity until after election day. Should the Republicans maintain control of Congress as indications now point, quite a lively buying movement should put in an appearance after that date. To buy now would be to precede the movement. Money closed last loan $1.2. Total sales, 433,300.

HAIGHT & FREESE CO.

Corporation Light

Now that Peterborough is in possession of a dam of its own, whereby power may be developed to furnish electric light, the following is of special interest: "Brockville at least, seems to have profited by municipalization of its lighting plant. Two years ago the plant was acquired by the municipality. As the year draws to a close the commissioners find that in addition to providing for the annual payment on the debenture debt, both for purchase and improvements, they can reduce the price of fuel gas from $1.25 to $1, and this in the face of coal at $8 a ton."

—As the best farmers in this district have silos and in many places silo-filling bees are all the rage. It requires about twenty-five men and a number of teams, and in some cases more, where the fodder is a greater distance from the silo, to handle the job properly. About 120 tons is placed in an average sized silo.

Has a 10-stamp mill in operation on the property now producing gold and intends to install 30 more stamps. Has 1,000,000 shares in the treasury for development purposes.

Four Boys Wanted

Four good boys wanted at The Times office—one to learn bookbinding, one to learn press work, one to carry an Ashburnham route and one as messenger in the bookstore.

Fine Lot of Cattle

Mr. H. P. Kennedy yesterday purchased about 75 head of cattle from Mr. David Conroy, who brought them down from his ranch in Harvey. The cattle weighed about eleven hundred pounds each, or a total of 8,250 pounds. They were as fine a lot as has been seen in town for some time.

Struck on the Head

While engaged in the excavation work on the sewer on Babb's Lane, Mr. John Cousins met with a painful accident yesterday morning. He was down in the trench, when a large pipe rolled in, striking him on the head and inflicting a bad cut. He was attended by Dr. Pigeon, who addressed the wound, and Mr. Cousins, with his well-known vitality, returned immediately to work.

St. John's Dedication Festival

The Dedication Festival will be held on Sunday next. Among the events in connection with the occasion will be a Young People's Social on Monday evening next, to be arranged for at a meeting of young men tomorrow evening. On Tuesday evening, Nov. 4th, a Turkish Social will be given, a feature of which will be an address on "Turkey," given by Rev. Mr. Brooks, formerly Chaplain to the British embassy at Constantinople.

Severe Electric Shock

While working the elevator in Mr. Fair's store on Saturday evening, a clerk named Elliott received a severe eletric shock. It appears the young man caught a live wire with one hand and named Elliott received a severe electric tor in the other, thus creating a circuit. He was doubled up and his moans brought assistance. There was no serious injury, however, and the young man is now at work as usual.

The Agonizing Pains of Rheumatism

Swollen, aching joints, muscles are stiff and sore, every movement accompanied by pain. The most potent remedy is Polson's Nerviline, which has five times the pain-subduing power of any other preparation. Apply the Nerviline copiously, rub it on well and then bind in a hot flannel bandage. This will cure the worst cases in a short time. Try Nerviline for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica or Lumbago—it's all right and only costs a quarter.

Carrier Pigeons

Mr. Harold Snowden has about thirty carrier pigeons with which he is making very successful experiments. One of his birds, No. 4, has a splendid record, having made a flight from Belleville and three from Lakefield. It is Mr. Snowden's intention to send No. 4, and No. 58 back to Parry Sound, with a party of hunters. The distance is over two hundred miles as the crow flies, and it is his opinion that the birds can make the journey. He will also send pigeons to Eagle Lake. They proved a very effectual means of communication last year.

An Interesting Case

The manager of the 48th Highlanders Band, of Toronto, has entered an action against the Cobourg committee who had charge of the Old Boys' celebration in August last to recover $125 claimed to have been guaranteed for expenses. The band was entered to play at the tournament, and won second money, which no doubt helped to make the manager sore, and to get even he entered the suit. A defence was filed on Tuesday, and no doubt the case will be very interesting when it comes up for trial in December. The Post says that the committee guaranteed nothing.

Meat May be Cheaper

Everyone will be pleased to know that while coal is dear the prospects for cheaper beef are bright. The west and our own province are marketing thousands of fat cattle in earnest. The supply has outrun the demand, and everything points to the downfall of high prices. Deliveries of live stock at the Toronto stock yards for the last month have been the largest since their inception. About 300 car loads of all kinds of stock were delivered. The natural consequence is that beef cattle are cheaper and lambs are so cheap that every one in Toronto who is a lover of chops, may get them at a very reasonable price. It is hoped this wave will strike Peterborough.

Soot is the Trouble

When householders begin to burn soft coal in the furnaces or base-burners, as they may have to do, there is one element of danger to be guarded against, viz., the heavy deposit of soot in the flumes. This soot, unless it is swept out at stated intervals, will accumulate, and being inflammable, would be liable to ignite and produce a fierce fire in the chimney, with a consequent risk to the dwelling. It sometimes happens that the ends of rafters and beams are, by careless or ignorant contractors allowed to project into the chimney flues. These might become ignited and carry fire to the interior of the house. There is a further danger that the shower of sparks from a burning chimney would ignite the shingle roof. These risks may be obviated by sweeping the chimney, say once in two months.

Some Results of Impure Blood

A blotched, pimply, disfigured face feeling of exhaustion, wracked nerves, headache and a dull brain. The proper cure is one Ferrozone Tablet after each meal. Ferrozone clears and beautifies the complexion by making rich, pure blood. It restores the enfeebled brain and unstrung nerves to a healthy, vigorous condition. It invigorates all the physical and mental powers, and brings strength and ambition to the the depressed. Refuse a substitute for Ferrozone—it's the best tonic, rebuilder and invigorator known. Price 50c., at Druggists or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

WITH INTENT TO KILL

Murderous Assault by a Chinese Laundry man

At the Police Court yesterday Hop Sing, a Chinaman of the Simcoe street laundry, was charged with assault with attempt to kill. It seems that a man called for his laundry which was not forthcoming and in trouble ensuing Hop Sing made a vicious assault on him.

In the absence of His Worship Magistrate Dumble, Mr. J. Stevenson, J. P., remanded the prisoner until this morning.

The Chinaman, as near as can be made out of him, says it was in self-defence, but will be given a chance to clear himself today.

THE GREEN EYED MONSTER.

The Cobourg People are not Favorable to Mr. Culverwell

The following from the Cobourg Post shows that our contemporary has a severe attact of the green eyed monster. That Peterborough should be prefegred to Cobourg by Mr. Culverwell's prospective industries is only natural, considering our many natural advantages. Here is what the Post says:

"Mr Culverwell, the gentleman who visited Cobourg some months ago and talked so encouragingly of introducing electric power from Burleigh Falls, has not been heard of for some time. Perhaps he is too busy booming Peterboro, and has no time to look after such small fry as Port Hope and Cobourg. There were many in Cobourg at the time of his visit who had but little faith in the scheme, and we regret to learn that there are many more now who have become converts to that belief. Mr. Culverwell has frequently announced that he has secured the necessary capital, but it now looks as if the subscribers to the enterprise "have a string" on their money. It will soon be up to some other party to "promote" another power scheme.

—No matter how you look at it, this coal business looks black.

THE LATE MR. D. E. EVANS

Demise of One of Peterborough's Oldest Inhabitants

There passed away on Sunday last at the family residence, 44 Paterson st., Mr. Enos D. Evans, one of Peterborough's oldest and most respected inhabitants. The deceased was a native of Western Ontario, but has resided in Peterborough for about 57 years. He was a carpenter by trade and was prominently associated with the building of All Saint's church. The deceased was a member of the Church of England, and in politics was a Conservative. He leaves to mourn his demise a wife and six sons and four daughters. The sons are Messrs James T., of Copper Cliff; Walter Henry, Wallace and George, of town; and Russell, of Niagara Falls. The daughters are Mrs. William White, Mrs. George Young, and Mrs. Pentland Alexander of town, and Mrs. Fred Adams, of Guelph.

The funeral will take place from the family residence at three o'clock this afternoon and proceed to the Little Lake cemetery for interment.

—On Sunday last a team of horses, driven by Mr. Lee Fadis town, while tied in front of the Craig House, at Lakefield, broke loose and ran away. The whiffletrees were broken, and the rig otherwise damaged. The party borrowed another set of whiffletrees and were able to reach home.

—The Ontario Bank's branch at the corner of Yonge and Carlton streets, in Toronto has been opened this week, under the management of Mr. G. G. Adam; and a branch has been opened in Collingwood, under the management of Mr. James Morris, formerly at Peterborough.

—The Grand Trunk Railway Company has leased the old Parliament grounds west of the Union Station, Toronto, for a term of twenty-one years at a rental varying from $6,000 to $7,000 per year, with the option to purchase at the expiration of a certain term. The company will use the site for freight sheds and yards, and will possibly build ultimately a new passenger station.

—In view of the referendum in December the following figures are of interest—In the Ontario plebiscite on 1894 there were 192,489 votes cast for prohibition and 110,489 against. In 1898, with 676,784 names on the list there were 154,498 votes cast for prohibition and 115,275 against, a decline in the prohibition vote of 37,990 and an increase in the anti-vote of 4,865. In 1894 there were 14,000 votes cast by women and women cannot vote on December 4. In the Ontario general elections of November, 1898, there were in all 436,083 votes cast. It would take 213,439 of these to carry prohibition in December.

Corporation Light

Now that Peterborough is in possession of a dam of its own, whereby power may be developed to furnish electric light, the following is of special interest: "Brockville at least, seems to have profited by municipalization of its lighting plant. Two years ago the plant was acquired by the municipality. As the year draws to a close the commissioners find that in addition to providing for the annual payment on the debenture debt, both for purchase and improvements, they can reduce the price of fuel gas from $1.25 to $1, and [illegible] in the face of coal at $8 a ton."

Sideache, Backache, Headache,

And many other aches to which women are peculiarly subject are generally the result of a diseased condition of the womanly organism. When this diseased condition is cured, sideache, backache, headache, etc., are cured also.

Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription establishes regularity, dries the drains which weaken women, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. When these diseases are cured the aches they cause are also cured.

"I will drop you a few lines to-day to let you know that I am feeling well now," writes Miss Annie Stephens, of Belleville, Wood Co., West Va. "I feel like a new woman. I took several bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and of the 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I have no headache now, no backache, and no pain in my side any more. No bearing-down pain any more. I think that there is no medicine like Dr. Pierce's medicine. I thank you very much for what you have done for me—your medicine has done me much good."

The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a book containing 1008 pages, is given away. Send 31 one-cent stamps for expense of customs and mailing only, for the book in paper covers, or 50 stamps for the volume bound in cloth. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

COAL $5.00 A TON WITH THE WONDERFUL STAR HEATER

The only heater that is guaranteed to give satisfaction with soft as well as hard coal. As a fuel economizer it is unequalled, producing heat on about one-third the coal used in any other heater in existence.

The Star has a tube behind for the escape of the gas. As anyone who uses soft coal knows, the gas accumulates under the fresh coal, and if there is no escape there will be explosions and puffs of smoke. In the Star this disappears in the gas escape. The Star has a sliding damper and ornamental door of mica.

After being filled, the Star will heat for 48 hours without attention. It will hold fire and give out heat longer than any other stove.

The Star is 25 per cent more economical than any other stove.

MORE THAN 5,000 ARE IN USE IN THE LOWER PROVINCES.

PRICE LIST

No.	Height	Diameter	Price
0	24 1-2 in.	9 in.	$11.20
1	30 1-2 in.	9 in.	$12.00
2	34 in.	10 1-2 in.	$15.00
3	37 1-2 in.	12 in.	$19.20
4	41 in.	15 in.	$23.80

DIRECTIONS

When filling the stove always shut the draught door at the bottom.

Keep the small opening in the back pipe closed except when cleaning.

Clean the back pipe every two weeks.

COAL CONSUMERS, ATTENTION!

We are using one No. 3 Star stove in our large rooms, where formerly we had four large wood heaters, and get more heat now than before. The wood stoves cost us $4.50 every week for fuel, and the Star stove which we are now using costs us only $1.50, making a saving of $3.00 per week in the price of fuel—which would soon pay for the stove. We can recommend this stove to any person wanting a first-class heater. We would not use any other stove that is made.

ST. PETER'S T.A.S.
M. J. Serro, Chairman Trustees.

We certify that we have in use one No. 3 Star stove in our large pool and billiard room, the size of which is 45x33 ft., with 15 ft. ceiling. We have perfect heat, and the most coal we have used on the coldest day yet has been three scuttles in 24 hours. We are so well pleased with the stove that we would not use any other.

ROCAMORA & CALLAHAN.

I have been using a No. 3 Star stove in the sitting room at the City Hotel for some time past, and it has proved so satisfactory that I have ordered two more to replace two stoves in the upstairs. The Star gives more heat than the other stoves with half the amount of coal.

MARTIN CONNORS.

We have in use in our composing room a No. 3 Star coal stove, and wish to state that it is giving eminent satisfaction. The entire absence of gas by the escape provided, the increase of heat and the saving in coal are special features of the Star, and it requires a minimum of attention.

OF GREAT ADVANTAGE TO GREAT BRITAIN

Chamberlain's Visit to South Africa will Enhance His Reputation

Special to The Times.

Vienna Oct. 28—Neue Freie Presse says that the journey to South Africa, about to be undertaken by Mr. Chamberlain, British Colonial Secretary, is of much importance, which will not only fortify Chamberlain's position and enhance his reputation as a politician, but will also be of the greatest advantage to Great Britain. For some time there has been a complete revolution of opinion in many parts of the Continent in regard to Chamberlain, who was once the object of general execration, but since peace in South Africa, has been almost popular.

RUSSIAN COMPANIES FAIL.

Odessa, Oct. 28—In consequence of the discontinuance of the Government subsidy the Black Sea & Danube Company has decided to sell its entire fleet of twelve ships. No dividend has been paid since the formation of this company. This is the second Russian steamship company plying in the Black Sea which has been forced to liquidate in eighteen months, mainly owing to bad management.

CONSUMPTION OF TOBACCO.

Paris, Oct. 28.—The consumption of tobacco is increasing in France. About 26,000,000 pounds were sold in 1817; 32,000,000 pounds in 1826; 60,000,000 pounds in 1876, and 81,000,000 pounds in 1900. The average per head is now 1 3-4 pounds, which is exceeded in Belgium, Holland, Spain, Germany, Austria, Hungary, Denmark and Norway, but exceeds the average in Turkey, Bulgaria and Greece.

ABUSIVE ARTICLE BY O'BRIEN.

London, Oct. 28—The Irish People, a paper owned by William O'Brien M.P., refers abusively in an article quoted in a telegram from Dublin, to the welcome to the Earl of Dudley, new Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, at Connemara. The paper says that the habit of presenting "whinning addresses" to "every wretched creature of ascendency" who come among them must have struck Lord Dudley as a proof of how men can be transmuted into slaves under conditions favorable to the growth of slavery. The Irish People deplores the fact that the Lord-Lietenant can travel through a "place most foully branded with English misrule without hearing a word of truth as to what the people think of him."

ARE RESIGNED TO SEPARATION.

Paris, Oct. 28—A representative of The Gaulois has interviewed a number of protestant pastors and Jewish rabbis in regard to the proposed separation of the Church and State. All expressed themselves as either in favor of or resigned to the step.

FORTIFICATIONS OF PARIS.

Paris, Oct. 28—Parliamentary Credits Committee has accepted the scheme for setting back the Northern and Eastern portions of the fortifications of Paris at a cost of $10,000,000. The sites of the present fortifications will, it is estimated, produce $20,000,000.

WORSHIPPING FATHER JOHN.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 28—Ignorance and religious fanaticism of Russian peasantry are illustrated by the peasants' almost blasphemous veneration of the famous Father John of Kronstadt, which exists much against his will. Recently a peasant of Kostroma wrote a hymn in Father John's honor, placing him almost on an equality with the Trinity.

Father John wrote a severe rebuke but it was not effective, whereupon he was compelled to visit Kostroma. There are cases of peasants openly maintaining that Father John is Jesus Christ reincarnated. Portraits of Father John are frequently used as images and venerated

Ottawa, Oct. 28.—It is learned at the Indian Department that there is no truth in the reports sent out from Helena, Mont., alleging that Canadian officials had sent into the United States Canadian Indians suffering from smallpox. The Indians concerned were American Indians, and, according to the information supplied by the United States Indian police, they had been put across the boundary into Canada upon the order of Major Monteith, a United States Indian agent, who also give instructions that they were not to be allowed to recross, not because they were Canadian Indians, but because they did not belong to his —Monteith's—reservation.

Cared for by Canadians.

On October 8th the Canadian officials were notified that United States Indians, suffering from smallpox had crossed the boundary, and the Canadian Mounted Police were at once sent to the camp. Some of the Indians could not at the time be moved without endangering their lives, so the band was quarantined, food sent to them, and medical attendance provided.

When the physician in charge reported the Indians were fit to be moved across the line, Major Monteith, the United States agent whom the Indian police had ordered to make the deportation, was requested to make arrangements for receiving them.

He refused to receive them, saying: "I shall resist by any and all means the putting upon this reservation of any Indians affected with smallpox who do not belong here."

He further suggested that if the Canadian police desired to cross the Indians into the United States they would have to take them beyond where the eastern boundary of his reservation intersects the international boundary line and cross them at that point. Later he telegraphed: "The Indians are not Piegans. I will not allow them in Blackfoot reservation."

An American's Queer Ideas.

It htus appears that the United States agent deported these unfortunate Indians, although they were American Indians, simply because they did not belong to his particular reservation. The Canadian police, on the other hand, provided them with food and medical attendance, although they had no claim upon Canada.

The Indians were Assiniboines on 60 days' pass from the United States Belknap agency. It is customary for Indians from the United States and Canada to interchange visits, but the United States medical authorities should have taken every possible means to prevent such a visit wehn smallpox was pereva-lent.

Panama, Colombia, Oct. 27— The Colombia cruiser Bogota—formerly the British steamer Cutch, and later the Jessie Banning, arrived here today from San Francisco, October 7. Captain H. H Marmaduke, her commander, informed the correspondent of the Associated Press that the vessel made a slow trip because the crew was exercised at target practice all the way down the coast. She stopped at Madgalena Bay for about 30 hours to lighten parts of her engine and for target practice. The Bogota made very good time after taking the outside course and reached here in fine condition, with no sickness on board and ready for action.

Soon after the Bogota's officers had landed they were shown the fortifications and sights of the city. Captain Marmaduke visited Generals Perdomo and Salazar, who welcomed him most cordially.

The Columbian gunboats Chicuito and Clapet are under the orders of Captain Marmaduke, who, as chief commander, will have charge of the Colombian fleet, which he will reorganize.

Montreal, Oct. 28—Mr. Willard R. Green of New York, the representative in America of the English Marconi Company, is here for the purpos eof completing the organization of the Marconi Company for Canada. He said:-

"The company will do a trans-Atlantic business with England and other countries, and also an inland telegraph business throughout the Dominion, Newfoundland and Nova Scotia. The long distance station at Cape Breton is now practically finished and ready. This station has been constructed at a cost of approximately $100,000. This station will belong to the Canadian company, and will be used for long distance business and oceanic business. Other inland stations will be built for inland business These cost much less, depending upon distance of operation, and varying from one thousand dollars to twenty-five thousand dollars each."

"Has overland transmission been demonstrated?"

"Yes. Within the past few months messages have been sent from stations on the west coast of England to various points in Denmark, Germany and Russia. During the festivities at the time of the visit of the King of Italyto the Czar, communications were sent from England to St. Petersburg and courtesies exchanged. These messages, as will be seen wer esent across the widest portion of the South of England, across Denmark and Sweden and the intervening bodies of water. This was over a route supposed to present exceptional difficulties if there are any, since it is not only across large bodies of land, over various great cities, including London, where powerful electric currents are constantly being generated and liberated, but also including various ranges of mountains and hills. This theoretically is the most difficult task conceivable. Messages have alse been sent between England and Mediterranean points, including a point near Rome. This of course, was done at noo jump across the entire intervening continent of Europe, including the Alps Mountains."

FELL IN LOVE WITH SOLDIER.

London, Ont. Oct. 28—"See that young fellow there," said a gentleman yesterday to a reporter, pointing to a fine stalwart chap who was walking along the street. "Well, he's carrying around him the symbol of a pretty little romance. If he were to roll his sleeve back on his arm you would see a magnificent gold bracelet studded with diamonds on it. He was one of the boys who went from this city to South Africa to fight in the late war. While he was down there a Boer girl fell in love with him. She was the daughter of a rich Boer, and when he was leaving she took a bracelet off her arm and put it on his asking him to leave it there until she could take it off again. He promised, and left her, never thinking, no doubt, that he would ever see her again.

"But now I understand that he has just heard from her father, who says that he is coming to Canada, and if it's the country he thinks it is, he'll probably settle in this country."

Berlin, Ont, Oct. 28—At the Police Court this afternoon, before Police Magistrate Blake, Messrs. Brikert and Zien, two of the Krug strikers were each fined $10 and costs for besetting the factory of Mr. Mr. Krug, of Berlin. The evidence went to show that these gentlemen had interfered with some of the Krug employees, while on their way to and from their work. The interference was of such a nature as to intimidate the workmen, and they were afraid of being injured by the strikers mentioned.

Police Mailstrate Blake said in the concluding remarks of his address that he proposed to make an example of these men by imposing a fine in order to establish a reverence for the law, which clearly sets forth that every workman shall be protected from interference or insult when going to and from his lawful calling. The simple fact of a man, or a number of men, walking on a certain street for days consecutively, at stated hours, and observing certain premises does not in the estimation of Mr. Blake constitute a breach of the law But the moment any threats are made, the person making such threats renders himself liable under the "Act."

Law Cannot Reach Food Fraud

The Adulterators Can be Punished Only if the Consumer Dies

Ottawa, Oct. 28—The attention of the Minister of Inland Revenue was this morning drawn to a report of Dr. Laberge, health officer of Montreal,, in which it is stated that large quantities of imported foods are exposed for sale which are adulterated with injurious substances. Out of 24 samples of tomato catsup and jams examined by the Montreal city anaylst, 12 were of American origin and were all condemned. Ten of the Canadian brands were similarly condemned, only two being found free from deleterious matter.

Hon Mr. Bernier said, "I have not yet seen the report you refer to, but on the matter being submitted the department will give it due attention. We have a staff of analyists and are trying to cope with the evil of adulterated foods, but even after a case has been submitted to the courts, it is almost impossible to secure a conviction. The manufacturers show that the article in question has been on sale perhaps, for years, so that unless we can bring forward witnesses who actually suffered by its use, the time spent in prosecution is usually thrown away. It amounts to this, that under the interpretation the magistrates put upon the law we would have to poison an individual to convince the court that the food is injurious. They will not take the analyst's word for it alone. In this way the analyst's branch of the Inland Revenue Department is made of extremely small value. But I am looking into the subject to see if the difficulty cannot be overcome.

"The public deserves this protection in the matter of food products and we must be able to punish those who break the law by placing injurious foods upon the market."

THE KAISER AND THE BOER GENERALS

The Generals Must Approach the Emperor as British Subjects if at all

Berlin, Oct. 28.—It is evident that public sentiment does not altogether approve of the Kaiser's attitude toward the Boer generals. Up to a few days ago it was generally believed that the Emperor had expressed a wish to receive the three great heroes of the Boer cause at his court. It is now known that the Kaiser's stand in the matter is strictly neutral. His Majesty does not wish to offend public opinion in either Germany or England.

If the Boer generals come to Berlin as subjects of King Edward, and are introduced in the usual manner by the British Ambassador, the Emperor will give them a cordial reception. It is reported from Brussels that the main object of the generals in seeking an interview with the Kaiser is to increase their chances of raising large subscriptions throughout Germany in aid of exiled Boer families who are eager to return to the Transvaal and the Orange Free State and establish their ruined fallths.

Accordingly a member of the Emperor's Government is said to have sent to Brussels an unofficial intimation that the Kaiser will gladly set an example to the German people by making a generous personal contribution. It is thought here that this contribution will be considerably larger, and have a wider influence, if the generals sink their personal pride and present themselves here through the offices of the British Embassy, thus sparing the Emperor all embarrassment on diplomatic ground, than it would if De Wet and his comrades could stand on their dignity and keep out of Germany.

However, the cause of the Boer families is not likely to suffer in Germany through lack proper representation. It is a German publisher who has purchased all rights in General De Wet's History of the South African War, and paid therefor the handsome sum of $50,000.

HARD COAL NOW COMING

PETERBOROUGH WILL PROBABLY GET SOME SOON

Hard Coal Has Dropped in Toronto but $15 is still Asked for it in Peterborough—Will soon Take a Tumble

There is no change in the fuel market as far as Peterborough is concerned, the only hard coal for sale here being that of the McClellan Coal Company, who are still selling it at $15 per ton. In Toronto yesterday the price dropped for soft coal to $7 per ton.

The general opinion among dealers in Toronto is that anthracite will not be selling lower that $8 per ton for some time. Since April, when it sold at $6.50, the mining operators have added $1 per ton to the price. Lake rates at present are $1 per ton as against the usual rate of 25 cents, so that the price is expected to be sustained for some time.

A considerable quantity of anthracite is now on its way to Canada, but it will be some little time before any of it reaches Peterborough, as Toronto and other cities are presumed to have the first call. Small quantities will doubtless soon be coming in, when the price will drop.

OUTBREAK OF DIPHTHERIA

Child of Christian Scientist Died Without Medical Attendance

Port Hope, Oct. 28—Much alarm is felt here over what appears now to be a serious fight with diphtheria, the disease having a hold on different parts of the town. The worry to the inhabitants has been increased through Christian Science, as a child of one of its followers, Edward Long, died from the disease without a doctor having been called in, while his brothers were allowed to play with the other children on the street. The indignation of the people was increased when the father and another child appeared on the main street this morning. A coroner's inquest will be held to-morrow. The Board of Health will also take immediate action in the matter. One of the schools has been closed and the others will probably be but slimly attended.

Powerful Warships

They will have a speed of 25 1-4 knots when in fighting trim, their engines will be of 17,000 horse power, and their sea-going qualities will be superior to those of the torpedo boat destroyers.

TYPHOID FEVER NOW CURED BY SURGERY

A Paris Surgeon Performed a Novel and Successful Operation

EVERYTHIND ELSE HAD FAILED

A New Field for the Scientist in the Treatment of This Disease

Paris, October 28.—Typhoid fever has been cured by an operation. A Paris surgeon has just brought a patient out of a seemingly hopeless case of the disease and the method by which he did it constitutes a distinct achievement in curative science.

Dr. J. S. Dauriac, an eminent practitioner of Paris, resorted to surgery as a last remedy in a case which had been given up. The patient, a young man of 17 years, is now in full possession of his health.

While the physician was convinced that the intestines could be cleaned antiseptically and the inflammation thus reduced, he would not have undertaken the dangerous operation if the father of the young man had not urged it and if it had not been that the patient was doomed, and if it had not been apparent that he could live but a few days.

The fever had followed its course for twenty days and the case was seen to be hopelessly. The father, seeing the hopelessness of his son's condition, urged the physician to perform the operation as a last measure, and it was decided to undertake it.

An incision about the length of the index finger was made in the left side, about two and a quarter inches inside the forward and upper iliac spine, into the peritoneum. This incision was just sufficient to allow the physician to take hold of the small intestine and draw it out. Alittle shield was attached in the peritoneum, and in the deeper points of the incision, with the convex side toward the smaller intestine, and this shield fastened by catgut. The intestinal tumor was then opened and cleaned out and the edges tied to the skin. The wound was then closed up minutely and protected all around the mouth of the intestine by sterilized cotton, covered by a thick layer of iodoformed collodion.

Afterward a Nelation tube in flexible rubber was introduced and the drainage of infected matter from the intestines facilitated by the employment of boiled water slightly cooled and salted. At the end of the second day the water thus used seemed to be free from infected manner. From the first day there was a noticeable improvement in the patient's condition. His temperature steadily decreased and three days after the operation it was lower than it had been at any time since the beginning of the illness.

The physician then did not hesitate to give his patient more or less solid food, beginning with thick vermicelli soup, then noodles and fine macaroni cooked in water. Seven days afterward the invalid ate an egg, followed by a lamb chop. From that time on the recuperation was extremely rapid, and the young man to-day is enjoying perfect health.

In describing the details of the operation Dr. Durlac said that probably many American physicians had realized the possibility of resorting to surgery in the treatment of typhoid cases and a relation of this operation might prove interesting to them.

"I was careful to select a point of the intestine sufficiently removed from the ileocaecal valve to avoid the center of the ulceration," said the physician "and not too much above the jujunum to interfere with nutrition. I was guided in the operation by the ecchymose aspect presented in spots by the exterior surface of the small intestine the nearer I approached the largest of the intestines."

The achievement of the Paris physician is greeted by men of his profession in that city as one of the memorable surgical achievements of the year.

BEATEN BY STRIKERS

Two Men Suspected of Working During Strike Nearly Killed

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct 28 Two strikers, who were suspected by their fellow-countrymen of having worked as non-union men were terribly beaten today and one is in a dangerous condition.

Anthony Jelinski came back to this region and said he had been working in the soft coal fields. Several believed he worked in the lower end of the coal strike district, and this morning he was terribly beaten. The physicians say his recovery is doubtful. Four of his assailants are under arrest; three are still free.

Stanley Mecally who told the same story as Jelinsky, was enticed into a little tailor shop by six men and cross examined as to his movements since the strike began. They were not satisfied with his answers. He was stripped and held upon a table and beaten with rubber hose until he was covered with welts and bruises. The six men were arrested and jailed.

JUMPED IN FRONT OF TRAIN

Former Peterborough Man's Desperate Attempt to Commit Suicide

In our telegraphic news yesterday mention is made of a terrible accident which befell Mr. Wm. J. Stump at Cobourg on Sunday afternoon. We were informed that Mr. Stump has been residing at Cobourg for some time, engaged in taking orders for enlarging pictures, and that he had been drinking rather heavily. When in Cobourg he made his stopping place the hotel near the G. T. R. station Shortly after dinner on Sunday he tried to end his life by attempting to hang himself. He was discovered in the act, and about half an hour later, seeing the Intercolonial flyer coming, he ran and threw himself in front of the engine, receivin gterrible injuries, from which he may not recover. He was taken to Toronto on the regular train leaving Cobourg at 3.45, and was conveyed to the General hospital, where his legs were amputated. In addition to his legs being mangled he was terribly cut and bruised about the face and head.

Mr. Stump is a former resident of Peterborough, having been engaged here as clerk in the Palace hotel, when Mr. Joseph Armstrong was proprietor. While in Lindsay he was married to a Miss Reynolds. While in Peterborough he boarded at the Oxford hotel.

WILL BE TROUBLE WITH DOUKHOBORS

Mr. John Wallis Says That They are a Dangerous Element

UNDESIRABLE CHARACTERISTICS

All That is Needed to Make Anarchists of the Entire Crew is a Leader

Mr. John Wallis, who has just returned rfom the Northwest, in speaking of the Doukhobors, gave The Times his opinion regarding these peculiar people. He resided for some time in close proximity to them.

"We never know what they are going to do next," he continued. "I am afraid that some day one of them with more power of leading his fellow men than the rest, will rise up and declare himself inspired of God, and in the midst of his fanaticism will excite them to do some damage. It is not a very comfortable feeling to be aware that there is a whole army of foreign fanatics within a few miles of one's house, if they were but steady in their beliefs they would be tolerated, but they have shown themselves to be most erratic, and any move on their part now would not be surprising, after their peculiar actions of late. They refuse to conform to the laws of the Dominion, a thing that no other foreigner does. They refuse to settle on their own land, and as soon as this country is anything like settled, what will they do?"

BOTHERSOME WORKMEN.

"Did you ever have any trouble with them?" queried the reporter.

"No; I cannot say that I have," he answered, "for I never went near them. I hired a couple once, and they were good workmen, strong and ablebodied. Their physical condition, beyond being a little dirty, was all right, but their actions even when employed are most annoying. At the close of each day they wanted their pay and refused bills, demanding silver in every instance. They are suspicious and scheming. When they thought I had to rely on them for my labor they tried to raise the rate of wages, refusing to proceed in the middle of a job, so I dropped them off and since then have nothing to do with them."

COMMOTION AMONG THEM.

"Did they attempt to march on Yorkton?" was the next question.

"I don't know," he answered. "On several occasions they have moved about mysteriously, and commotions among them are frequent. They are a curious people and their only use, as far as I can see, is as subjects for a psychological student, and if the government wants to propogate that line of research it should put them nearer the large centres of population where their habits can be watched.

"Are they good farmers?"

"In this country there are farms with dozens of horses and many heavy implements, and how can the Doukhobors expect to compete with these farmers by utilizing no power except that of their own muscles. The government will certainly be accomplishing much if they can improve the country with these people who will produce barely a sufficiency for their own existence."

NO SOLUTION.

"Are they in good financial circumstances now?" was then asked.

"I believe so," said Mr. Wallis, "but there is no knowing. None cannier than the Doukhobors exist and the difficulty of approaching them is one of their chief drawbacks. They can feign stupidity better than any other foreigner that I ever had dealings with. A solution to the question regarding the disposing of either the sect or its fanacticism will be hard to get at and it will take a wise head to even suggest a practical solution."

IRISH ENVOYS WOULD LIKE TO ARBITRATE

They Desire an Opportunity to Settle Ireland's Troubles as the Coal Strike was Settled

New York, Oct. 28.—Carnegie Hall was filled last night at a public reception to the Irish envoys, Redmond, Davitt, Dillon and Blake. Bourke Cockran, who presided, made an appeal to swell the Irish parliamentary fund. Ushers who went among the audience returned with baskets heaped with five, ten and twenty dollar notes. There were several hundred dollar bills collected.

John E. Milholland and Bourke Cockran gave $1,000 each. About nine thousand dollars altogether was collected.

Mr. Redmond was received with great cheering. He said that he and the other envoys appeared before the people of America on behalf of united Ireland. "There is great need," he said "of encouragement from the people of this country for those who are struggling against the tyranny of England in Ireland There is a conspiracy between the English Government and the Irish landlords to crush the movement of the United Irish League. It is the most formidable conspiracy that has faced the Irish people for many years. We would like to settle the trouble between the landlords and the tenant at home in the way the coal strike has been settled here, that is, by arbitration. But the landlords won't arbitrate. We want the British Government to compel them to do so."

Mr. Dillon said that England was now engaged in committing against the people the greatest crime she ever was guilty of, with the exception of that against the Boers. We have not overthrown the British Government by our work in Parliament, he said, but we have shown the civilized world we are not willing subjects to British rule. The British House Parliament is now absolutely incapable of governing the British Empire.

Mr. Davitt said the British Parliament violates its own constitution in trying to suppress the Irish members, but all in vain.

Mr. Dillon will then proceed to Canada with Mr. Blake, and speak in Toronto, Ottawa, and Montreal, returning to Washington to speak there on December 7, and sailing for Ireland two days later.

WILL NOT ACCEPT FAVORS FROM EITHER SIDE

To Arbitrate, Not Inspect--Operators Find Coal Commission will More Than Investigate

Washington, Oct. 27—The first meeting of the coal strike commission was held this afternoon and the work before them outlined. The fairness of its members was noticeable from the outset, and it is significant that they refused to place themselves under obligation to either party, although the mine owners offered every facility, and proposed to provide for their comfort and convenience.

Judge Gray, president of the commission, said they would first receive the statements of the miners, who might be regarded as prosecutors. The other side could then reply. President Mitchell read the demands adopted by the Shamokin convention, the rejection of which resulted in the strike.

Objection to Mr. Mitchell as a representative of the union was taken by President Baer, the chief operator, Mr. Mitchell said he simply represented the anthracite workers.

It was agreed that Mr. Mitchell should file with the commission next Monday a detailed statement off the claims of the miners. The statement he read today was a preliminary statement of the case. The representatives of the operators announced that they would file an answer to this statement of Mr. Mitchell on Monday, or within three days of that time. It was suggested that each side to the controversy appoint an expert to go through the books of the coal companies to secure data upon which to work, but President Baer and other representatives of companies immediately objected and suggested that they would furnish whatever information the commission needed. This question precipitated a long discussion, in which the coal presidents and the miners' representatives took part.

Before adjourning it was decided that the operators shall submit sworn statements as to their pay rolls, etc., and that Mr. Mitchell shall have an opportunity of verifying them through the miners, if discrepancies wer found it was agreed that the commission shall appoint an auditor whose findings shall govern the commission.

SLIDING SCALE.

Mr. Baer said he would contend for a sliding scale in the regulation of wages.

"I shall urge the adoption of that profit sharing plan which gave us peace formerly in our realtion to our employes" he said.

Mr. Thomas of the Pennsylvania Coal Company, objected to the word arbitration being applied to the work of the commission. It was only an investigation. Judge Gray said the President's instructions settled it as an arbitration.

One of the commission suggested that the mines be visited. Mr. Baer fell in with the idea, as did Mr. Mitchell, who thought the homes of the miners should also be visited.

BEGIN INSPECTION.

After consulting the members of the commission President Gray announced that it would begin its inspection next Thursday, commencing its work in district No. 1, in which the City of Scranton is located. While the subject was up Mr. Baer said that the mine operators would furnish all facilities at their command to enable the commission to make its investigation thorough adding that they would place a special train at the disposal of the commission, providing also for the accommodation of a representative of the miners. The public meeting of the commission then came to a close, and the commissioners retired for the purpose of private consultation. They first took up the question which had been raised by the proffer of a special train by Mr. Baer, and unanimously decided not to accept the train. The exchange of views brought out the fact that the commissioners expect personally to pay all their expenses, accepting no favors, and relying on the Government to reimburse them if so desired.

A BRAVE ACT RECOGNIZED

Royal Humane Society's Medal Awarded Miss Hay

Miss Isabel Hay, daughter of Mr. T. A. S. Hay, town, has been awarded the medal of the Royal Humane Society. The act of heroism for which this honor has been awarded to her occurred at Chemong Park, on August 18th last. Miss Hay, in company with other ladies was bathing, in the lake, when she and Miss Maud Allen, of Toronto, swam out for a considerable distance. Suddenly Miss Allen became unconscious and disappeared beneath the water. Miss Hay swam to her and diving brought her to the surface, and finally to the shore. To do this she had to swim with her burden a distance of sixty-five yards, as testified by Mr. W. Bell of Chemong, who witnessed the rescue and helped materially to resuscitate Miss Allen. The girls were several times under water and the fact that a strong breeze was blowing and there was consequently considerable sea made the rescue all the more heroic. It was a very plucky feat for the young lady to perform, and it has been fittingly recognized by the award of the Humane Society's medal, an honor which is the more valuable because it is given so sparingly and only when found after strict investigation to be thoroughly earned.

PETERBOROUGH, OCT. 29, 1902.

A RUSSIAN TYRANT

The Czar of Russia has appointed Gen. Wahl as assistant Minister of the Interior. Wahl was the tyrant who narrowly escaped assassination at Vilna. He arrested two hundred persons in a theatre. During the performance seditious proclamations were showered upon the audience from the gallery, and two hundred men were taken into custody as they left the theatre. Gen. Wahl flogged the lot. For this he was shot at at a public function, and many persons were sorry that he escaped. While he was Governor of Vilna he allowed no street gatherings of any kind, and many laborers and students were whipped by his directions. Certain Polish priests were forbidden to preach, and he even went so far as to close the Roman Catholic churches. As Minister of the Interior he will have full fling to flog.

OPENING UP SOUTH AFRICA

Among other land questions in South Africa there is one concerning large areas of the Zulu territory, which will have to be settled soon. When this territory was annexed it was stipulated by the Imperial Government that nothing should be done with regard to European settlement for at least five years, and that then certain areas should be demarcated for the use of the natives. That period having now expired, a commission has been appointed to delimit these areas, and the Government evidently intends to open part of the province to European occupation. The dispatch of an expedition to Zululand to ascertain the most suitable routes for railways, and of an engineer to inspect the coast with a view to the possibility of the establishment of harbors, indicates the value of the province. Zululand is, as yet, practically virgin soil. No part of South Africa has been less exploited; but the existence of mineral wealth is beyond question, and large districts are suitable for agriculture. Hereafter, it may be expected to prove one of the most productive parts of South Africa.

MORE ELECTION SAW-OFFS

A considerable number of election protests in Ontario have just been 'sawed-off' by evident agreement between the two political parties, says the Ottawa Journal. "You drop your protest in that county and we will drop ours in this." Agreed. What the agreement means may be illustrated by further supposed conversation. "We (Conservatives, or Liberals as the case may be, let us say Liberals) we Liberals have filed in court a declaration on oath that your candidate in that country was elected by bribery and fraud. You Conservatives in this county have filed a declaration on oath that we elected our candidate here by bribery and fraud. Let us drop both protests. We will be practically compounding crime and defeating the ends of justice unless indeed one or both of us have committed perjury; but as we both will be guilty, we won't hurt each other, and as for justice or morality, let them go hang." So the protests drop.

Some discussion is going on as to how the saw-offs can be legally stopped, or at least, the filing of protests be made more likely to mean business. Of course, in mere hopes of sawing-off, each party enters protests for which it knows there are no good grounds—though each party gets some stool pigeon to swear that there are. How can this be checked? A deposit of $1,000 is required with each protest, but the money is returned if the protest be dropped or dismissed. One paper suggests that the money be forfeited if the protest does not succeed. That seems hardly fair for a contestant may have a real case yet not be able to prove the facts. Another paper suggests that if the $1,000 were to be forfeited in case the protest were dropped or failed, there might be a pretty lively manufacture of evidence in order to save the $1,000 deposit. In the South Oxford trial, Judge Street has just expressed a belief that a lawyer for the Liberals in one of these protests had been going perilously near to cooking up evidence by paying money to disreputable witnesses.

Possibly it might be safe to enact that the deposit of $1,000 in connection with a protest should be forfeited if the complainant is not brought to trial, and forfeited or not according to the discretion of the court if the protest should be tried but fail. The court can generally tell from the evidence whether decent reason existed to enter the protest.

But the thing which can be done and ought to be done is for decent men of all parties to refuse to agree to either countenance empty protests, or withdrawal of protests which are once made.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Boer leaders are finding that European sympathy though eloquent in words is not so much disposed to make that sympathy tangible in deeds and dollars. De Wet is disappointed and wants to go home. The experience will impress upon them the conviction that old John Bull is their stanchest friend after all.

There are three Liberals in Quebec good for cabinet timber of quality—Brodeur, Prefontaine and Parent. Mr. Brodeur is in a way next in succession and a man of the highest character, but ex-Mayor Prefontaine, of Montreal, and Premier Parent, of Quebec, both are political leaders of quite exceptional courage and ability. Mr. Tarte will be succeeded by one of the three.

THE MOONSTONE SPHINX

By Mrs C N Williamson

Author of The Barn Stormers Fortune's Spor Miss Nobody, Her Royal Highness Lady Mary of the Dark House, etc.

She was as good as her word; and presently Winifred's mind was relieved for the moment of the fear that Mrs. Purdy's complicity in her act or the hiding-place chosen had been suspected by anyone at the theater.

Later, Hope Newcome had also a private word for the old woman's ear. He wanted to give up his room to Miss Gray without letting her know what he was doing, and transfer his few belongings to the store-room behind it, where a bed of some sort might be made up on the floor.

Mrs. Purdy had mentally apportioned this poor accommodation to her unexpected guest, since she herself slept in a cot in her daughter's room downstairs; but since Mr. Newcome was willing to endure inconvenience, there was no reason against it; and it was like him, that was all she had to say!

So Winifred was made comfortable at the expense of her knight, blissfully ignorant that he was sacrificing himself for her sake.

Next morning she made Clara Purdy's acquaintance, and Clara's fertile mind, alert in her convalescence, suggested a method by which Winifred's safety from pursuit might be further secured. Clara was a red-haired girl, but her tresses were neither long, curly nor abundant. One year in a provincial pantomime she had played the fairy queen, and she had worn a ruddy wig, which was an improvement upon her own hair. That wig had been preserved with care since then as an expensive "prop," which might be found useful at any time; and in going out to sing in the streets this autumn she had worn it, as being more attractive, when hanging on her shoulders, than her own rather scanty locks.

She was ill now, and not likely to leave her room for ten days or a fortnight. Meanwhile, Miss Gray might have the wig if she would take it; and as Miss Gray's "make-up" box had been left in her dressing-room at the Thespian Theater with many other things that were hers, Miss Gray was at liberty to use Clara's, which had not done duty since the pantomime last year. Miss Gray might make up with a wig and grease paints to look quite different from herself; and then, if any prying eyes spied her through door or window, she would never be associated with the young lady who had run away from the Thespian.

Clara's advice was taken, to a certain extent. Winifred did wear the wig and blackened the soft natural darkness of her brows and lashes to give the same somewhat startling contrast presented by Miss Purdy's own. Seeing her so, a stranger but casually acquainted with Clara's appearance might, after a fleeting glimpse of her, go away and say that he had seen Mrs. Purdy's daughter.

A day or two passed, and Winifred remained closely in hiding. Accounts from the theater were satisfactory. Suspicion was not turned towards Mrs. Purdy or Mrs. Purdy's house, and Winifred had so far some cause for satisfaction. Nevertheless, she was restless and utterly miserable.

It was dreadful to be living on charity, with no present prospect of being able to repay the debt of gratitude she owed, and the girl chafed under her burden of humiliation.

One of the first things she had done after finding sanctuary at the house in Salt street was to write a letter to her mother. Even to do that she had been obliged to beg paper and a postage stamp.

It had been a difficult letter to write, because Mrs. Gray's state was still critical, in so far that the least excitement might induce a relapse. Something she had to be told, lest strange rumors might reach and distress her; but Winifred had weighed each word as she set it down on paper. She explained that unfortunately she had had a "misunderstanding with the management," and at the last moment thrown over the part of Maseppa, which she had felt she could not play according to their requirements. They had been angry, threatening legal proceedings; and at present she did not wish her whereabouts to be known. Her dear one must not worry, but instead of letting the nurse write, or scrawling a few pencil lines herself to the theater, she must address Miss W. Graham, Poste Restante, Brighton. And then she begged that a word or two might be sent to her soon. But no word came, though Hope Newcome called at the post-office twice a day.

Winifred grew desperately anxious. She longed to telegraph to the head nurse of the "home" where her mother was, but she had not a penny; and though she often tried to find courage enough to ask for a loan, she invariably failed at the last moment.

The Purdys were very poor. They had nothing save what they could earn, and Clara had not been a breadwinner for many weeks. It was bad enough to be wearing their clothes and eating their bread, without borrowing their hard-won shillings.

But, though the girl could keep silence, she could not hide the fever of anxiety in her eyes. Hope Newcome saw it there, and asked her straight out what was the matter. Was she not comfortable? Was she in a great hurry to bring her short stay in this poor little house—so unworthy of her—to an end? Above all, was there anything that he could do?

She did not dream of what he was already doing. She did not know that his long absences from the house were all for money-getting, that little delicacies might be bought to tempt her appetite, or a bunch of flowers to bring a fleeting smile to her face.

So she answered that he could do nothing. She was only rather worried at not hearing from her mother, who was ill at a nursing home in London.

"Why don't you telegraph?" he said.

Winifred flushed, and did not answer. Then he knew what he had already suspected. He had posted the letter she had sent to Mrs. Gray, and though he had not meant to look, had accidentally seen the number of the house in Welbeck street, and had since been unable to forget it.

He hesitated for a while, and then went out, having made up his mind. Three hours later he brought home a telegram addressed to "Miss W. Graham, Chief Post-Office, Brighton."

"Mrs. Gray had relapse, unable to read or write letters," the girl read with a sick throbbing of the heart. "We hope no cause for serious alarm. Now we have address will write same when further news."

This message was signed by the head nurse, and for a few minutes, in her grief and terror, Winifred had no time to wonder how or why it had come. She looked upon the telegram as a

In pronouncing sentence, a Scotch judge once added: "Ye did not only kill and murder the man, and thereby take away his valuable life, but ye did push, thrust or impel the lethal weapon through the bellyband of his regimental trousers, which were the property of His Majesty."

J. Pierpont Morgan was showing some friends through his kennels the other day, and one of them expressed great admiration for an imported setter. "Yes, he's a fine dog. His name is Russell Sage." "How did you come to give him that name?" "Well, he never loses a scent."

Curran said to Father O'Leary, the wittiest priest of his day, "I wish you were St. Peter." "Why?" asked O'Leary. "Because," said Curran, "you would have the keys of heaven and could let me in." "It would be better for you," said O'Leary, "that I had the keys of the other place." "Why?" asked Curran. "Well, then I could let you out."

Secretary Hay's poem, "Little Breeches," was frequently attributed to the late Bret Harte. A young lady once said to him: "I am highly pleased to meet you, Mr. Harte. I have read all your poems, but I have enjoyed 'Little Breeches' the most." "Pardon me, madam," Harte is said to have replied, "but you have put the 'Little Breeches' on the wrong man."

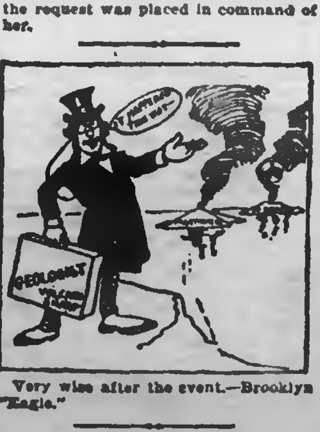
On one of his later birthday anniversaries, United States Senator Hoar wrote to William M. Evarts and congratulated him upon his length of years. In his reply, the aged lawyer said it brought to mind an old lady in New England, who had occasion to write to a friend about some matter of trifling importance, and when she had reached the end of the thirteenth page awakened to the fact that she had been rather diffuse, and added: "Please excuse my longevity."

Samuel Foote, the English actor, was one day invited for a few moments into a club where he was a stranger. Left alone a minute, he did not seem quite at ease. Lord Carmarthen, wishing to relieve his embarrassment, went up to speak to him, but became embarrassed himself and could only say: "Mr. Foote, your handkerchief is hanging out of your pocket." Whereupon Foote, looking around with playful suspicion, and hurriedly thrusting his handkerchief back into his pocket, replied: "Thank you, my lord, thank you; you know the company better than I do."

At one of the great London hospitals a cold storage chamber was being constructed in connection with the post-mortem room, and the secretary of the hospital, on going to see how the work was getting on, found that the chamber was being fitted with double doors—and those of small size—instead of one large door. He made enquiries as to the reason for this deviation from the original plan, when the chief carpenter, who was superintending the work, replied: "Oh, sir, we are putting in double doors and a wooden partition in order to keep the sexes apart!"

Two gentlemen who were playing cards at a New York club were very much annoyed by other members who stood behind their chairs and interested themselves in the game. Finally one of the players asked one of the spectators to play the hand for him until he returned. The spectator took the cards, whereupon the first player left the room. Pretty soon the second player followed the example of the first. The two substitutes played for some time, when one of them asked the waiter where the two original players were. "They are playing cards in the next room," was the waiter's reply.

President Roosevelt possesses a characteristic sense of humor. It is vigorous and sometimes almost grotesque. When he was Assistant Secretary of the Navy, during the preparation for the Spanish war, the Government was buying a number of yachts to be converted into torpedo-boats, despatch-boats, scouts, etc. Considerable intimacy existed between the family of President Roosevelt and that of one of the officers of the navy in the department. The wife of this officer got a fancy she would like to have one of these beautiful little boats bear her name. There is a prejudice in the navy against giving a woman's name to a war vessel of any type. It is believed to be unlucky. But the officer, who found it easier to face official prejudice than to resist the importunities of his better half, made the request of Mr. Roosevelt. The Assistant Secretary of the Navy hesitated. "It won't do," he said. "I would like to oblige your wife, but a woman's name won't do." Then a thought occurred to him, and he replied. "I will fix it," he said. "Tell your wife it will be all right." The next day the boat was named "The Vixen." And the officer who had made the request was placed in command of her.



Very wise after the event.—Brooklyn "Eagle."

A Difficult Question.

A story of a conversation between a traveler, visiting at a popular resort, and one of the permanent residents, is told by the "Ram's Horn:"

"I am a stranger here, sir; can you direct me to a first-rate church?"

"Oh, yes, right around the corner."

"What sort of a preacher have they?"

"A very good man."

"Interesting?"

"Intensely so."

"Eloquent?"

"Very."

"The best preaching in town, I suppose?"

"Unquestionably."

"What's his name?"

"Ah, my friend, that is a question which modesty forbids me to answer!"

One 18 inch vein of 90 per cent copper (almost the solid metal) has been opened up in Copper Queen Extension Claim, one of the six constituting our Montana property, while mining a thirty-foot vein of free milling 18 per cent copper ore, carrying thirty ounces of silver to the ton.

This is so far ahead of our expectations, brilliant as our former prospects were, that we realize the IMMEDIATE building of a mill to handle this magnificent output, equalled in richness only by the Calumet and Hecla mines, is an ABSOLUTE NECESSITY. This will make OUR OWN portion of the stock, as well as THAT ACQUIRED BY THE PUBLIC, for the purposes of this immediate development, worth an immense amount of money in an exceedingly short time.

Traders Market Now, After Election Buoyancy

New York, Oct. 28.—The heading of this letter in our opinion about sums up the situation in a very few words. It says as much as if were extended into full columns, and is we believe pretty close to being correct. If the election shows a majority in Congress for the Republican party, all will be well, as it will mean a continuance of the policies followed out by this Government since the first inauguration of McKinley. If the Democrats get the ascendency no one will know exactly what it will mean for the immediate future, and as a result there will be uncertainty, and distrust which would bring about lower prices. We are strongly of the opinion that the Republicans will be found to be in control after the fight is over. The betting in New York points that way; and as a rule money talks correctly in gauging the results of an election, as it does elsewhere. Were we as a fact approaching pretty close to the top of the hill of prosperity the enormous crops garnered this year would put back the inevitable setting in of the ebb tide for fully one year. That pessimistic and ponderous London financial sheet, The Statistic, openly admits the fact. The additional values of this years corn and wheat crop, exceeding that of last year by over $500,000,000, will be a stickler for the bearishly inclined to climb over. This is as certain in its results as is the fact that a hungry man will not starve in the midst of abundance. We note with some considerable pleasure that many houses who were recently disinclined to permit their customers to make purchases owing to the expense to them for carrying stocks, now take a more favorable view of the situation and talk of advances this fall and winter, extending from 10 to 30 points. It is much more pleasant in any walk of life to be cheerful and hopeful than pessimistic, suspicious and discouraged. It is almost a certainty that for the next week or ten days we will have more or less of a seesaw market, strong then weak, or vice versa, fluctuations being brought about principally by the room traders or scalpers, who only trade from day to day and in the immediate small results. It should be a good time to get long of the markets and thus be prepared for better times shortly after election day.

Summary—The somewhat belated T. C. I. statement is out. It had been widely advised as possibly being a bad one. Earnings for 9 months from Jan. 1st last were nearly $1,100,000 or about $300,000 more than the entire preceding year. The net earnings for the 9 months were $1,162,761. The surplus for 1901 was $243,300, whereas the surplus for the last quarter was $323,990 alone, and for the 9 months of the present year it was $826,525, or nearly three and one half times the entire surplus of last year. This statement shows that the earnings net of the company for 1902 will aggregate about $1,500,000, which is a very respectable showing upon the $26,000,000 capitalization, amounting as it does to pretty nearly 6 per cent. upon the stock. The fact that the company has this surplus would indicate that the old $4,000,000 indebtedness, created by improvements and acquisition of new property, for which the company decided to stop dividends, utilizing the earnings for payment for same, had been entirely liquidated. It should be a splendid purchase. To-day's market closed about where it did last night; there was if anything a reversal in form, the market showing a tendency to recover, while stock offerings diminished in quantity. This kind of market will probably continue until after election day. Money closed 4 per cent. Sales 210,300.

Our Common Cause of Headache

Perhaps the most general cause of headache and pain across the eyes is nasal catarrh. The simplest cure is to inhale the medicated vapor of Catarrhozone which traverses every air cell and air passage of the throat, lungs and nose. It kills myriads of germs at every breath, clears away mucous discharges, preserves and heals the membrane. Catarrhozone is just a splendid remedy for headache, and its action is certain and unfailing in diseases of the Throat and Lungs, Deafness, Bronchitis, Asthma and Catarrh. MRS. GLYNN TOOK A DOSE OF STRYCHNINE ON MONDAY LAST

The Gossip of a Neighbour Woman Said to Have Been the Cause of the Deed

Mrs. Fred. Glynn, of Havelock, a young woman about nineteen years of age, committed suicide at her home in the village on Monday afternoon by taking a dose of strychnine. Dr. Jeffs, of Havelock, reported the case to Crown Attorney Wood in a letter in which he states that he was called to attend the woman on Monday afternoon and found her dead. She had been alone in the house during the afternoon. He saw crystals of strychnine on the side of her face and also in a cup. He then went to a drug store and found that she had bought five grains of strychnine for the purpose of killing two cats. She had had a little trouble with her mother about some little gossip and Dr. Jeffs says this was the cause of the act as far as he could make out.

County Crown Attorney Wood called Mr. Mathieson, Justice of the Peace at Havelock and learned that some one had threatened to put the young woman in goal because of certain gossip she had given utterance to and that in fear she put an end to herself. Dr. Gray, went to Havelock last night to hold an inquest.

Gloomy thoughts become habitual to the dyspeptic. He looks on the dark side of things and every mole hill becomes a mountain. His condition affects his business judgment and mars his home relations.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures dyspepsia and other diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition. It gives buoyancy of mind as well as health of body because it removes the physical cause of mental depression.

It enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of food, and the body is strengthened by nutrition which is the only source of physical strength.

"I was afflicted with what the doctors called nervous indigestion. Took medicine from my family physician to no avail," writes Mr. Thos. G. Lever, of Lever, Richland Co., S. C. "At night would have cold or hot feet and hands, alternately. I was getting very nervous and suffered a great deal mentally, thinking that death would soon claim me. Always expected something unusual to take place, was irritable and impatient, and greatly reduced in flesh. I could scarcely eat any thing that would not produce a bad feeling in my stomach. After some hesitation, I decided to try a few bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pellets.' After taking several bottles of each, found I was improving. I continued for six months or more, off and on. I have to be careful yet, at times, of what I eat, in order that I may feel good and strong. I fully believe if any one suffering with indigestion or torpid liver or chronic cold would take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets' and observe a few simple hygienic rules, they would soon be greatly benefited, and with a little perseverance would be entirely cured."

Biliousness is cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

A meeting of seven members of the Fortnightly Club was held in the Y.M.C.A Hall at 8 o'clock last evening for the purpose of reorganizing the club and electing officers for 1903.

The former Sec. Mr. McWilliams explained the purpose, etc., of the meeting and said that three previous meetings had been arranged but were not attended.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Mr. Jeffreys.

1st. Vice-Pres.—Mrs. MacFarlane Wilson.

2nd Vice.-Pres—Rev. Mr. Davidson.

Secretary—Mr. McWilliams.

It was decided that each section of the club elect officers to look after its own affairs.

It was also proposed that arrangements be made with the Hon. Mr. Borden and Clifford Sifton to secure their services next week (while they are in Lindsay) for lectures.

Mr. T. A. S. Hay proposed that the club and the historical society co-operate in all meetings, lectures, etc., held during the year, that are of interest to both.

COAL $5.00 A TON WITH THE WONDERFUL
STAR HEATER

The only heater that is guaranteed to give satisfaction with soft as well as hard coal. As a fuel economizer it is unequalled, producing heat on about one-third the coal used in any other heater in existence.

The Star has a tube behind for the escape of the gas. As anyone who uses soft coal knows, the gas accumulates under the fresh coal, and if there is no escape there will be explosions and puffs of smoke. In the Star this disappears in the gas escape. The Star has a sliding damper and ornamental door of mica.

After being filled, the Star will heat for 48 hours without attention. It will hold fire and give out heat longer than any other stove.

The Star is 25 per cent more economical than any other stove.

MORE THAN 5,000 ARE IN USE IN THE LOWER PROVINCES.

PRICE LIST

No.	Height	Diameter	Price
0	24 1-2 in.	9 in	$11.20
1	30 1-2 in.	9 in	$12.00
2	34 in.	10 1-2 in	$15.00
3	37 1-2 in.	12 in	$19.20
4	41 in.	15 in	$25.00

DIRECTIONS

When filling the stove always shut the draught door at the bottom.

Keep the small opening in the back pipe closed except when cleaning.

Clean the back pipe every two weeks.

COAL CONSUMERS, ATTENTION!

We are using one No. 3 Star stove in our large rooms, where formerly we had four large wood heaters, and get more heat now than before. The wood stoves cost us $4.50 every week for fuel, and the Star stove which we are now using costs us only $1.50, making a saving of $3.00 per week in the price of fuel—which would soon pay for the stove. We can recommend this stove to any person wanting a first-class heater. We would not use any other stove that is made.

ST. PETER'S T.A.S.
M. J. Serro, Chairman Trustees.

We certify that we have in use one No. 3 Star stove in our large pool and billiard room, the size of which is 45x23 ft., with 15 ft. ceiling. We have perfect heat, and the most coal we have used on the coldest day yet has been three scuttles in 24 hours. We are so well pleased with the stove that we would not use any other.

ROCAMORA & CALLAHAN.

I have been using a No. 3 Star stove in the sitting room at the City Hotel for some time past, and it has proved so satisfactory that I have ordered two more to replace two stoves in the upstairs. The Star gives more heat than the other stoves with half the amount of coal.

MARTIN CONNORS.

We have in use in our composing room a No. 3 Star coal stove, and wish to state that it is giving eminent satisfaction. The entire absence of gas by the escape provided, the increase of heat and the saving in coal are special features of the Star, and it requires a minimum of attention.

ALWAYS THE SAME

Woman Married Four Times and Each Time to the Same Old Man

Three Times She Divorced Him Three Times She Has Forgiven Him

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 29.—Mrs. Grace Snell-Coffin-Walker-Coffin is about to marry her first husband, Frank Nixon Coffee, for the fourth time in seventeen years.

After a short period of divorced happiness she announces that she will try wedded bliss with her thrice-divorced spouse. This beats all previous records in divorce and matrimonial lines in this State.

Just why she is marrying the man she has cast aside three times she does not explain except to say that she has grown into the habit of marrying him and cannot break it.

She tried once only to be happy with another man, James C. Walker.

Seventeen years ago Grace Snell embarked on the stormy sea of matrimony. She was the daughter of Amos J. Snell, whose mysterious murder in his palace in Chicago is still quoted as one of the most remarkable crimes of the century.

She was then but a slip of a girl sixteen years old.

Coffin was a man of varied occupations. At one time he taught a dancing class. At another he had been a coachman.

The girl's father objected to the match, so they eloped to be married. They lived together ten years. A son was born to them. Then Mrs. Cuffin applied for and secured a divorce. She alleged incompatibility of temper.

Suddenly the boy was taken sick and his parents were reconciled at his deathbed. And so they married again. But newly wedded life did not bring peace.

Mrs. Coffin again sued for divorce, and again secured it on the grounds of "incompatibility of temper."

There was a handsome hotel clerk where she was stopping named James C. Walker. He had a good, but untrained voice, and Mrs. Grace Snell-Coffin-Coffin sent him to Europe to study music.

When the good-looking cerk I was back again, he was at once married to his patroness, who gave him on their wedding a present of $50,000.

In the early days of their honeymoon the wife discovered that her husband was jealous. It was no flesh and blood villain that awoke the husband's fury, but the heroes of her novels. The Return of an Expatriate and the Pre-Sanctified, which his wife had written. He kicked the novels and the manuscripts into the fire.

She applied for divorce on the ground of extreme cruelty and the courts granted her plea.

On October 17th, the very day after the decree was issued, she was married "quietly" in Chicago to her first husband for the third time.

This was last year. After another quarrel she divorced Mr. Coffin again and swore that she would have nothing to do with him.

SOLDIERS AT A WEDDING

Have to Guard a Non-Union Man and His Bride at Church and at Home

Shendanoah, Pa., Oct. 29.—A detail of soldiers from the Eighteenth Regiment escorted Joseph Patosky and Minnie Shemailer to the Polish Catholic church this morning where they were married by Father Lanarkiewisz. Patosky had been employed in the Shenandoah city colliery during the strike and yesterday morning he returned to town to claim his bride.

Before the strike he had been a boarder at the home of the girl's father on Raspberry street and when it was learned that he had returned here last night a crowd assembled about the house and were making a demonstration. Col. Rutledge sent a squad of soldiers to disperse them, after which a guard was stationed around the house.

This morning five carriages arrived at the house to convey the bridal party to the church, but the cabmen were warned that if they permitted the party to ride a boycott would be placed on them. The threat was effective and the teams were driven away. Patosky appealed to the officers of the guard for protection, and surrounded by soldiers the party walked to the church. The wedding festivities are in progress at the home of the bride to-night while a squad of soldiers guard the house on the outside.

LOCOMOTIVES FROM SCOTLAND.

Montreal, Oct. 29—The C. P.R. has placed an order in Scotland for twelve ten-wheeled locomotives. This will be the first time that the railway has imported locomotives from across the Atlantic, and the order is due to the fact that the manufacturers of Canada and the United States are overcrowded

PLAN TO PREVENT STRIKES

Employers and Employees' Union Invented

Brief Outline of the Scheme—It is Hoped it Will Put an End to Industrial Trouble

Washington, Oct. 29.—The Washington Bureau of the Employers and Employees' Union, whose plan for the prevention of strikes and the future and permanent adjustment of labor questions between operator and workman recently received the indorsement of the Association of American Advertisers at their New York meeting, is receiving hundreds of letters daily from all parts of the country and from all classes of people requesting information regarding the scheme. Briefly, the plan is as follows:

Employers and employees join and each deposit 2 per cent. of wages in bank or trust company each pay day until the total amounts to $25 on the part of employer for each member of his force, and $25 on the part of employee. This sum is to be in charge of trustee and held as a guarantee fund.

The contract agrees that employee sell his labor for six months at a fixed price and employer agrees to purchase same.

Employee reserves the right to quit if sick, incapacitated or ill treated, but shall not quit to secure higher wages, and shall not interfere in any manner with any employee.

Employer reserves right to dismiss employee if unfit or incapable or in any way unsatisfactory, but shall not discharge to secure labor at lower price than agreed upon for the contract period, and will in no way interfere with employe seeking work elsewhere.

Employees shall have unrestricted right to purchase their own supplies.

Neither employer nor employee shall be a member of any federation, union or agreement, which, by combination or otherwise, seeks to force wages wages down or up.

Three months after employee ceases work for employer, both employer and employee shall be paid the full amount of the deposit fund which applies to said employee, providing that the terms of the agreement have been kept. In case of failure to keep such agreement the party breaking shall forfeit to the other.

The plan is the invention of C. W. Post, the millionaire "health food" manufacturer of Battle Creek, Mich., whose plan providing for the adoption of postal currency is now under consideration by the Post-office Department.

Sports and Pastimes

RUGBY.

All those who have been selling membership tickets for the Rugby team are requested to make their returns to the secretary at once. The Rugby team go to Ottawa on Friday night and all the funds available will be required to send the team.

Lindsay and Norwood have organized football clubs this fall and will enter teams in the O.R.F.U. next season. An effort should be made to have Havelock and Millbrook organize fifteens and a fine district could be organized around Peterborough. Peterborough has done much to foster the game of Rugby in Ontario during the past few years. Amon g the graduates of the team are Mr. Garnet Bell, of the Argos, Mr. F. Burnham of 'Varsity, and Mr. Ben Simpson, of Queen's.

The London News says if London wins from the Torontos on Saturday they will win the western series and have Peterborough for an opponent for the championship. It adds that "at present it looks very much like London on Saturday and subsequently the championship." It may look like London on Saturday but as far as "subsequently championship" is concerned, Peterborough will have a little to say in that matter. London beat Peterborough last year but it was not our strongest team that played them and the westerners will have to go at a merry clip to beat Peterborough this year, as the locals are much stronger than last year.

After much scheming and waiting, a series of games have been arranged between Ottawa College II. and the Rough Rider Intermediates. The first will be played to-morrow afternoon at the Oval. As the Ottawa Seconds have a very important contract on their hands next Saturday, the team needs all the practice that it can possibly get, as to win the round from Peterboro' it is necessary that a victory should be attained by the very handsome majority of 20 points. Against such a team as Peterboro' this means considerable and to do it the local boys must go some. But still it is not an impossibility. Sandy Cameron, Herb, Ralph, Dr. Sanderson and Roberts are seniors that can be utilized by the boys, and as all have agreed to help the team out the fifteen will be greatly strengthened.—Ottawa Journal.

There is a prospect that the first game in the saw-off between Westmount and Quebec for the O.R.F.U. intermediate championship will be played here on Nov. 1st. Westmount has asked to play here first and Quebec has accepted under these circumstances the second game will likely be played in Montreal on the 8th, the winners meeting the Ontario champions at a later date.—Ottawa Journal.

GOLF.

Members of the Golf Club who have been asked to play in the match today between the ladies' and the gentlemen's club are requested to bear in mind that the play will begin at two o'clock.

HOCKEY.

Port Hope will have two teams in the O.H.A. this winter, intermediate and junior.

AUTUMN WEDDING BELLS

Mr. John Russel Jeffrey of Cincinnati Claims for His Bride Miss Catherine Agnes Ferguson

Pink and white with relieving background of rich green foliage were the predominating floral colors that added pleasing effects to the wedding of Miss Catherine Agnes Ferguson, only dauhgter of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Ferguson, last evening. The ceremony took place at the residence of the bride's parents, 254, Stewart Street, Rev. Dr. E. F. Torrance, of St. Paul's Presbyterian church being the officiating clergyman The groom is Mr. John Russel Jeffrey, of Cincinnati, Ohio, formerly of Toronto.

The beautiful home of the bride's parents, was most tastefully and harmoniously decorated for the occasion. Pink and white carnations combined with stately palms and feathery asparagus plumaris were used in profusion to decorate the drawing room while a wealth of yellow and white chrysanthemums gave a most graceful appearance to the dining-room.

At seven o'clock, the bride who was attired in white silk crepe de chene over white tafetta, trimmed with chantilly lace and wearing the customary veil, entered the drawing-room on th earm of the opening chords of Lohengrin's Wedding March. Miss Ada McBain who wore white de voil over yellow taffeta performed the duties of bridesmaid. Both bride and bridesmaid carried magnificent boquets of roses, the former pink and the later yellow. The groom was assisted by his brother, Mr. A. H. Jeffrey, of Toronto.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the guests who numbered about seventy partook of an elaborate dejeuner served by Long Bros., caterers.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey left on the 9.10 G.T.R. train for a trip to Montreal and other eastern points after which they leave for Cincinatti, where they will reside.

A handsome brooch of pearls and diamonds was the gift of the groom to the bride and to the bridesmaid a brooch of pearls and opals. The groom was also presented with a cabinet of silverware by his fellow associates in the Bullock Electric Mfg. Co., of Cincinnati.

The bride has been for years a most devoted worker in St. Paul's church where the loss of one so winsome and whose qualities of heart and mind are so refined will be much regretted. It is sincerely hoped that a long life of useful and happiness in the wider sphere which they are now entering, may be the portion of this happy young couple.

COCHRANE—DOBBIN.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized by Rev. W. J. Armitage last evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. F. Haskell 270 King street when their niece, Miss Sarah Cochrane was united in marriage to Mr. L. O. Dobbin, town.

The bride, who was becomingly attired in blue venetian cloth trimmed with sabl and lace medallion carried a white prayer book and was given away by her uncle, Mr. F. Haskell. Miss Evangeline Cochrane, sister of the bride, wearing a becoming gown of lady's cloth trimmed with white silk, acted as bridesmaid. The groom was supported by Mr. Roland Glover, town.

Miss Lottie Cochrane, cousin of the bride efficiently rendered Mendlesshon's wedding march.

During the ceremony the bridal party occupied the bay window which was converted into a perfect bower of beauty, for the occasion. The decorations of the various rooms were most prettily carried out in pink and green effects.

The popularity of this happy young couple is evidenced by the numerous useful and choice presents they were the recipients of.

After congratulations a bountiful wedding dinner was served in the dining room after which a very pleasant evening was spent.

A host of friends join with The Times in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Dobbin a bright and prosperous future.

CURE OF CONSUMPTION

Astonishing Progress Reported at the Berlin Congress

London, Oct. 29.—Great interest is felt throughout Europe in the first meeting of the International Tuberculosis Congress at Berlin this week. Some of the proceedings were too technical for popular discussion, but astonishing progress is already recorded in conquering the deadliest malady of the human race.

Thus, the English delegate reported that the death rate in the United Kingdom in 1838 was 38 per 1,000. This has been reduced to 13, or more than 60 per cent.

The delegates to the congress yesterday visited the great public sanatoria in the pine forests, an hour's ride from Berlin. They found there not only the finest modern equipment for the cure of the disease, but what Prof. Brouardel of Paris described as an entirely novel and momentous experiment in the realm of social policy. These great institutions provide every accomodation at public expense to working-class victims of this scourge. The delegates were very much impressed and the English representative declared his intention to induce a deputation of English workmen's friendly societies to visit the sanatoria.

PRINCE MAY COME TO AMERICA.

London, Oct. 28.—The King has, it is learned, returned a polite, non-committal reply to the presentation made to him that the Prince and Princess of Wales should visit the United States in 1904. The question of definite acceptance or declination will be dealt with in case an official invitation is received from the Government of the United States.

TWO MONTH'S AFTER DEATH

$2 Dollar Bill with Girl's Name on it Reaches Her Father

Woodstock, Oct. 29—Miss Alma E. Oliver, a young Windsor girl, whose death occurred at Hamilton two months ago, shortly before her death wrote her name across the face of a $2 bill and by strange dictate of fate it turned up among friends. A bill bearing the name "Alma E. Oliver, 226 John street, Hamilton, Ont," across its face turned up in Walkerville. Clerk Ed. Rechford laid it aside and brought it to the dead girl's father, of Windsor, the other night, with whom it will likely remain forever. Mr. Oliver identified the writing as that of his daughter.

MR. MITCHELL ANNOYED

Doesn't Like It Because Some of the Miners Remain on Strike

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Oct. 29.—Committee from the Hazelton district called upon President Mitchell today in regard to the strike situation in that region. Nine thousand men are idel because they refuse to sign the agreements not to ill-treat non-union men as requested by A. Pardee & Co., Coxe Bros. & Co. and A. Wentz & Co., and to make the promise, desired by John Markle, that they will abide by the decision of the Strike Arbitration Commission. The companies will not employ them until they sign these agreements.

President Mitchell would say no-formation of the strike at the two collerica of the Mill Creek Coal Company and the threatened strike of Lentz & Co.'s employees and of the situation in the Panther Creek Valley where many of the union men desire a strike of all the 6,000 hands employed by the Leigh Coal and Navigation Company.

PPresident Mitchell would say nothing about the situation. He is annoyed particularly by the action of the Mill Creek men for striking because they were asked to sign a agreement and the men of Lentz & Co. who threaten to go out unless some of their number who were discharged are reinstated.

VASI GOLD FIELDS FOUND IN SIBERIA

They are Said to be the Very Richest in the World

IT IS AN IDEAL WHEAT REGION

The Asiatic Possessions of Russia Rich in Gold—A Great Grain Trade—Cape Nome Now Worked Out

New York, Oct. 29.—That the greatest gold fields the world has ever known are in the Amur River country in Eastern Siberia, is the opinion of E. B. McCowan, a mining expert who has just returned from a 12,000 mile trip of exploration through the Asiatic possessions of Russia.

The Russians, he said yesterday, took out $20,000,000 of gold last year from the placer deposits and have not yet begun to work the quartz. The mining methods of the Russians are very crude, Mr. McCowan says, and do not compare with American methods.

The exhaustive trip he made through Siberia, has convinced Mr. McCowan that it is the richest undeveloped country on the globe, and from an agricultural point has greater possibilities than the wheat and corn growing sections of the United States.

IT'S A WONDERFUL COUNTRY.

"Before many years have elapsed," said Mr. McCowan, "Siberia will supply all of Europe with grain. A large number of wheat farms have already been opened, and the Government is encouraging immigration from European Russia to this great and rich country.

"The Russians have not yet learned the advantages of using American agricultural machinery, but they are quick to learn and very shrewd — much shrewder than the average Yankee. Before long their wheat farms will rival in every way those of the Northwest.

"The country is being rapidly opened up by the Trans-Siberian Railroad. This road is wonderful. It is the superior in many ways of the best of the American railroads, and shows what can be done by Government ownership when the management is efficient and free from corruption.

"I rode 4,000 miles on that railroad for $30. The car I travelled in was the equal of the Pullman sleeper in every way. There was a dining car on the train, a barber shop, and all of the very modern improvements. The emigrant rate for the 4,000-mile journey is only $9.

"The average Russian official is the best in the world. He is simply a wheel on a great machine and can turn only one way. He cannot be corrupted; he knows only his official duty and nothing can swerve him from it."

Mr. McCowan says that while agitation of the plan to bridge Behring Strait and connect Alaska and Siberia is as persistent as ever, the scheme is absolutely impossible. "There are thirty-five miles between the two points of the mainlands and two small islands, leaving about twenty miles of water," Mr. McCowan said. "The sea rushes through the strait at the rate of seven miles an hour and is so deep in places that the bottom has never been found. Aside from these obstacles to bridge building, the severity of the climate in that region would make the bridge, if it could be built, and its connecting railroads of service only during a small fraction of the year.

AN IDEAL WHEAT REGION.

"Much misconception seems to exist in the United States as to the climate of that part of Siberia through which the railroad runs. Vladivostock, the Eastern terminus, is 126 miles further south that Seattle and 3,000 miles south of Behring Strait. The climate is ideal for wheat growing."

Mr. McCowan also made an extensive trip through the mining regions of Alaska.

"The Eastern people," he said "should be warned against buying stock in any Cape Nome company. Cape Nome is absolutely worked out. When I was there I heard of plans to launch at least twenty mining companies upon the public this winter. One of them is capitalized at $10,000,000, another at $5,000,000. All of these twenty companies together couldn't dig $100 worth of gold. In 1899 and 1900 something over $2,000,000 was taken out of Cape Nome, and then $10,000,000 was spent in plants to continue the mining. These plants for the most part were a clear loss. Now the owners want to get back what they paid out from th e public, and plan to use the 1899 and 1900 records of production to fool the people."

Despair and Ill-Omened Gloom Hanging Over the Country of Russia

London, Oct. 29—The Times' St. Petesburg correspondent says the Grazdanin publishes a pessimistic article regarding the present state of affairs in Russia, referring to the political and economic despair and mysterious ill-omened gloom hanging over the country. Alluding to Western Europe and the French Revolution, the article says the French people, trodden-down as they were, won recognition for the rights of man, where of Western civilization is the outsome.

The Times' correspondent says the article created some sensation, although the ideas expressed in it are but commonplaces to educated Russians, but that it is surprising that the Grazdanin, the defender of obscurantism and bureaucratic despotism, should publish such doctrines. It is, observes the correspondent, but another sign of the times, but which are becoming frequent in Russia.

ITEMS OF NEWS BY CABLE AND LETTER

Hahigax, Oct. 27—The trial of Geo. W. Cook for the killing of his wife in their home on Albemarle street in July last, bu cutting her throat with a razor, was concluded on Saturday afternoon and the jury returned a verdict of guilty of murder.

RECEPTION TO DANISH PRINCE.

Copenhagen, Oct. 29—The Danish press notes with great satisfaction the hearty reception given to the Crown Prince in Berlin. It is pointed out that the only claim put forward by Denmark is that Germany shall abolish the restrictions upon the use of the Danish language north of Schleswig.

DELYANNI PLEADS FOR HIMSELF.

Athens, Oct. 29—M. Delyanni has returned from his political tour of Thessaly, where he has been enthusiastically received. His speeches, which were largely confined to economic questions, assured the people that Greece was on the brink of economic ruin, and that such a fate was only avoidable by his accession to power.

An Iowa husband threw cold water on his wife because she wouldn't get up and prepare his breakfast. She threw a handful of shot into his anatomy with an old fashioned shot gun and is now a widow with plenty of time to sleep while the cook in the county jail gets her breakfast for her.

And over in St. Paul an aggrieved wife has sued for divorce because her husband didn't like the breakfast she got up early to prepare for him and threw the fried potatoes at her face instead of into his own.

It is this constant disproportion in matters matrimonial that keeps the murder courts and the divorce courts busy and discourages the young man about to set up a home of his own; yet these are only the exceptions, for the thousand happy breakfast tables never get into the courts or the newspapers.

HUMBERT LAWSUIT STRVCK OFF.

Paris, Oct. 29—The sham law suit between Crawford and Humbert in Paris, which served as a decoy to the gigantic Humbert frauds of last year, has been struck off the rolls of the French Court of Appeals.

REGULATION OF CATHOLIC SCHOOLS.

Paris, Oct. 29—The French Cabinet, agreed to the bill repealing Falloux law, and regulating the conditions for the opening and working of the secondary Catholic schools. The bill renews the prohibition of teaching on the part of teaching on the part of members of unauthorized religious communities.

Chicago, Oct. 27—The corpse of Nels Anderson, said to have been one of the best known steamship men in the country, was found today in a clump of bushes on the Washington Park golf links by a passing policeman. A bullet hole is in the man's head, but no trace of any weapons can be found.

Anderson was at one time general agent of the White Star Steamship Company, and was connected also with the Atlantic Steamship Company. His home was in Chicago.

REASNOS FOR PROSPERITY.

New York, Oct. 27—The British Trade Journal in its latest issue gives the prosperity of the United States as a reason for the prosperity of Great Britain and her colonies. It states that the demand by the people of the republic for agricultural produce and cattle has exceeded the supply, and hence ther ehas been a falling off in the exports of these commodities to Europe, and a consequent rise in prices there. Another reason for the rise in there. Another reason for the rise in prices was the shortage of the corn crop in 1901.

Brussels, Oct. 29—The Independence Belge publishes a despatch from Tangier to the effect that the French colony in Morocco had decided to ask Foreign Minister Delcasse to induce the Sultan to appoint a Moroccan Ambassador to Paris. Such an Ambassador could also be accredited to Madrid. The despatch says that the appointment would help to counterbalance the British influence in Moroccan affairs, there being at present over thirty Englishmen attached to the Court of the Moroccan Sultan, and not a single Frenchman.

MR. JOHN REDMOND MAKES AN EXPLANATION

As to What Has Been Done with the Parnell Fund Money--Committee was Outbid for the Avondale Estate

New York, Oct. 29—John Redmond, Chairman of the United Irish League, and of the Irish Parliamentary party, yesterday made a statement concerning the disposition of the funds raised in this country to save Avondale, the estate of the late Charles Stewart Parnell from the hands of outsiders. In a despatch to the Evening Post from London on Saturday, it was said that Mrs. Dickinson, sister of the late Mr. Parnell, had written a letter to the Irish Times, in which she demanded a full accounting from Mr. Redmond, saying that his chanc eof success in America would be better "if he could show that as regards the funds he collected to redeem the ancestral home of his former leader he had honestly and independently carried out the plans and applied the moneys to the purposes for which they were subscribed."

Soon after the funds were collected Mr. Redmond wrote to Mrs. Dickinson, telling her that the money was to be used for the erection of a monument to Mr. Parnell, and the purchase of Avondale House and lawn which would be available as a residence for the Parnell family. At the sale of the estate, the committee in charge of the funds, tried to purchase the house alone, but their bid was set aside in favor of a Dublin butcher, who purchased the whole property.

Mr. Redmond says that the funds are safely invested, and will now be used to pay for the erection of the monument, it being no longer possible to purchase Avondale House.

REDMOND'S STATEMENT.

Mr. Redmond's statement is as follows: "The funds collected by Lord Mayor Tallon and myself never at any time passed through my hands. They were to the Parnell Monument Committee in Dublin, and have been invested in Government stock for the treasurers of that committee by the most eminent stockbroker in Dublin, Mr. James McCann. As far as I know, the only actual expenditure has been in the purchase of a bronze bust of Parnell which was required by the sculptor who is making the monument, and in the purchase of a portion of the Avondale Library. These funds were collected for the purpose of creating a memorial to Parnell. This memorial was to consist of a monument in the streets of Dublin, and, if possible, the purchase of the Mansion House of Avondale, to be held for the nation, much as Washington's birthplace is at Mt. Vernon.

OUTBID BY A BUTCHER.

"At the sale of the estate two years ago, the committee bid for the house, but was outbid by a Dublin butcher, who made one bid for the whole estate, including the house. It afterwards transpired that he was acting in union with Mr. John Parnell, and that he paid the latter $10,000 in addition to the $10,000 paid as the price of the estate.

"It being no longer possible to purchase the house, the committee made a contract with Augustin St. Gaudens to build the monument. There has been some regrettable delay, but the model is now complete and Mr. St. Gaudens is coming here today to show it to me. I hope the work will now proceed rapidly and that the monument will soon be in its place. The funds at hand are not enough to complete the payment of the monument, but there will be no difficulty in obtaining the necessary balance when required."

Douk's Army At Yorkton.

Contradictory Stories of Their Conduct—One Says They Are Wild and the Other Simply Demented

Ottawa, Oct. 29—The Department of Immigration, received a despatch from Yorkton today, stating that about 1,000 Doughobors, who are religously demented, arrived there, and the women and children are being cared for by the Department. There were only five cases of sickness, and all the party were in good condition. An effort will be made to get them to return to the villages, where there is plenty of food. There is no distress, of any kind, and the pilgrims are making no disturbance. The Superintendent of Immigration said that he will look after the party, and charge the expense to the fund which was obtained from the sale of their goods.

ANOTHER STORY.

Winnipeg, Oct. 29—Two thousand of the Doukhobors have gone insane, or if it is not insanity it is closely allied to it. Thirteen hundred of them have now arrived at Yorkton after their long march and four hundred more are encamped near Pollock's Bridge, seven miles out. There is a lowering sky and the glass shows fourteen degrees of cloth. There are men, women and children and babes in arms among the fanatics. One babe was born on Monday, but the mother marched in the procession on Tuesday. Some are sick, some are borne on litters and some are barefooted, while many wear sandals and rubber boats.

"We are looking for new light, we are looking for Jesus," is the answer given be Simen Tcjeralakow, who is one of the leaders and who shows the light of insanity in his eyes. His feet are bare, and when asked where his boots were he only answers. "Jesus' boots."

Housing Them.

After much energetic work, the Dominion immigration agent, C. W. Speers, succeeded in getting the sick, with the women and children, house in the immigration buildings. But it was much against their wills. Their prophet, a typical ascetic, with disheveiled hair and unkempt beard, had told them that their babes would be taken from them when they arrived at Yorkton, and mothers deserted their babes on his prophecy and gave them up willingly, but would not follow them to the warmth and shelter that was prepared for them. The situation is serious. The Doukhobors feel that they have a revelation from God to release the sick, the women, and children from their present quarters, and special constables are being sworn in to protect them. Nearly two hundred Italian laborers are working on railway construction nearby, and Yorkton's telephone system ran summon aid from the country about should the mania develop more accutely.

A Howling Mob on the P rairie.

The fanatics, who are encamped near Pollock's Bridge, seven miles from Yorkton, are wild with the intoxication of starvation They are shouting, singing, and whirling about the prairie as the whirling Dervish whirls when in the heights of his religious frenzy. One woman refused milk for her starving babe and had to be held while it was given to the child. Residents are badly alarmed. While the Doughobors are opposed to having blood shed, they have buried people alive, and tell without any fear of having put five Russian priests to death in this way. The babes that died during the arduous march were thrown into the bushes by the roadside.

ing creatures have arrived and Immigration Agent Speers and Corporal Nugent of the NW M.P. are arranging for their reception. They have been greeted with smiles by some of the bystanders, and recite in reply in Russian from the 22nd Psalm, "They that see me, laugh me to scorn."

Seeking Rose Food.

The exposure of the trip was awful, with the low temperature and sweeping winds. Parties have left Yorkton in search of the fruit of the rose bush, for as no labor of animals has helped to produce this fruit the Doukhobors can eat it without sin. It is significant that their prophet is protected from the wind by a long frieze cape which protects him by reaching from the shoulders to the ground, while many of his followers had not sufficient clothing to prevent their perishing in a snow storm.

IMMEDIATE DISSOLUTION?

Mr. Fielding's organ, the Halifax Chronicle, advocates the immediate dissolution of Parliament. It says it would like to see "a general election in Canada before the snow flies on the ground." It is easy to understand why Mr. Fielding wants the election to come on at once. It is certain that Sir Wilfrid would retire as soon as the election was over, and now that Mr. Tarte is out of the way, Mr. Fielding feels confident that he could obtain the leadership of the party. If the election were put off Sir Wilfrid would be urged to continue in control, and the day of Mr. Fielding's ascendency would be postponed. An incident might happen, or a strong man might come to the front in the Liberal party and Mr. Fielding's chance might be lost altogether. He has now an advantage over all other applicants, because no other member of the Cabinet is even as good as he is. Mr. Prefontaine has told us that it was Mr. Tarte's ambition for leadership that was largely responsible for the disruption we have just witnessed, and that with his only able rival temporarily out of the way, Mr. Fielding recognizes his opportunity.

A PASSING SMILE.

Written for the Times:

The smile of mother saying good-by to her only boy. He's going off to college. She knows it's the parting of the ways between him and her. How she loves him. She places his cheeks between her hands and wistfully looks into his manly face and smiles good-by. It says, that smile of hers, as tears start in her eyes and the lips tremble, "My boy, my boy, only God knows how my heart loves you and how it aches." But she only says "Good-by, my child; be mamma's good boy." He goes, and though he may not know it, that good-by smile decides for him between right and wrong many times before he learns that it's easier to be good than bad.

There's the smile of the girl you love, who doesn't love you. She's a good girl, and it's a good, candid smile that says, "I'd be perfectly delighted to meet you on friendly grounds, but please don't bore me, telling about your love. It doesn't fit into my life."

And then there's the smile of the girl that loves you. She's worth a merry-go-round full of the one that you bore, yet you'd calmly let her drown while you hunted conch shells with the other one. Her smile says, louder than the breakers against the bar, that her happiness is all pinned to your whimsical sail, that flops and bellies to the varying breezes, sometimes heading into port, but oftener out.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

"Wash the transmitter and receiver daily" is the advice of the Chicago Health Department to telephone subscribers who want to guard against the possibility of contagion through the use of the instrument. Aside from the possibility of contagion, near or remote, says the Chicago Tribune, the daily wash is a sensible sanitary precaution which can be taken with little or no trouble and expense.

The failure of storage batteries for traction purposes is one of the reasons put forward for the financial disaster to German electrical companies. The German companies in most cases secured their municipal franchises by undertaking to use the batteries, and a single undertaking in Hanover has at present in service 171 accumulator cars. But storage is confessedly costly and heavy, and will not pay. At Berlin a sort of compromise has been arrived at to use underground conductors in central parts of the city, and overhead wires in less crowded and suburban districts.

The Boer generals are illogical and so are their French friends. It cost the Transvaal $200,000,000 to fight with England, did it? War is indeed a bloody luxury for nations, but the Boers should have thought of that before they began to be sassy and belligerent. Now Botha, and the others, are crying baby, because their property has been lost in the struggle. However, the sympathetic French have contributed a collection of $1,178 to help them out, so with this sum to offset the destruction by the British generals, all is not lost.

The coloring of the leaves in autumn says a good authority, is not due to frost, as many suppose, but is caused by a ripening or oxidation of chlorophyll and other pigments inherent in the leaf. The action is not precisely the same with all shades of color, but all may be reduced to an identical principle. One never attempts to account for a golden or rosy-cheeked apple through the agency of frost. Again, each year certain plants, like red maple, Virginia creeper and tupelo, begin to color vividly in August, while even the nights are still warm.

An Iowa husband threw cold water on his wife because she wouldn't get up and prepare his breakfast. She threw a handful of shot into his anatomy with an old fashioned shot gun and is now a widow with plenty of time to sleep while the cook in the county jail gets her breakfast for her.

THE MOONSTONE SPHINX

By Mrs C N Williamson

Author of The Barn Stormers, Fortune's Spor, Miss Nobody, Her Royal Highness Lady Mary of the Dark House, etc.

long-delayed answer to the letter she had sent her mother. But when she grew calmer she realized that this could hardly be, and guessed what Hope Newcome must have done.

He had taken a liberty, perhaps, but it was not hard to forgive him, especially when, being accused, he admitted his guilt, looking shamed and unhappy, his eyes wistful as he begged her pardon.

After this Winifred grew somewhat more confidential with him, confessing that she had great need of money. She must earn some before she could try to steal quietly away from Brighton, or pay the debt which she felt was increasing with every day that she lingered at the little house in Salt street.

"Why shouldn't I go out with you and sing?" she suddenly flashed at him. "In these clothes, with this wig of Clara Purdy's and a mask like yours, it would be impossible for my own mother to know me except that she would recognise my voice in singing, which nobody here could do. And I can sing. I can really. Once I hoped to be a singer instead of an actress, but that was long ago. I haven't had time for singing lately. But I shall do well enough for the street."

She was sorry for those last words of all the instant they were uttered, lest his feelings, since he sang in the street, should be hurt. But if they were, his manner and face kept the secret. He did not seem to think of himself at all, but only of her. It would be impossible that she should do what she proposed, he said. It was not to be thought of for a moment.

But Winifred did think of it; and the more she thought the more practicable seemed the idea. She had no fear of being recognized in Clara Purdy's clothes, mask, and wig; and neither Lionel Macaire nor any member of the "Mazeppa" company had ever heard her sing. Indeed, no one whose presence she need fear in Brighton would know her singing voice.

Hope Newcome made money enough to tide him over a crisis in his financial affairs; why should not she? Surely there was no disgrace in trying to earn an honest living, and this seemed the only road open to her. She would think of it, and talk of it, and insist, despite her new friend's protestations, until at last he began to understand that she would be better in health and happier in mind if she were allowed to have her own way.

He consented to take her with him; and, quite as excited as she had ever been on a first night in a new part, she lifted up her voice to sing in the public street, accompanied by Hope Newcome's banjo.

The pair attracted quite a crowd, and when the masked man held out his banjo afterwards a shower of small silver and coppers went clinking in. At home later they counted their takings, and found that they had made six shillings. This was unusual luck, and Newcome attributed it entirely to the charm of Winifred's voice. He generally averaged two shillings, he said; and, of course, this was all hers, every penny of it.

But Winifred would not listen to such arguments. They were partners or nothing. She would not touch the money unless he would take half. Seeing anger in her eyes Newcome had to yield. And after this they went out together every day.

Winifred's eyes, shadowed by her mask, roamed hither and thither as she stood singing in the King's road or in less important thoroughfares. Once they were near a large hoarding which had displayed a poster of "Mazeppa," but everything was torn away save a bit of colored paper at the top, and half the name at the bottom.

Winifred could scarcely bear to look at this, fearing that the poster might have been one of the dreaded ones, and that Hope Newcome might have seen it in all its horror before some kind hand had torn it down.

She did not even guess whose hand had served her—not only in this one instance, but in many others. Newcome, however, could have told if he would; though he would probably have died by slow torture rather than speak at all of these vile paper desecrations, save with murmured profanity under his breath.

Winifred looked, too, for faces from the theater; but not one did she chance to see until, late one afternoon, Lionel Macaire had passed her by without a glance. Then had come the episode of the fight which had been begun to save her mask from being torn aside by rude fingers. She had rushed away, adjured by Newcome, and had not been there to see the millionaire when he returned.

She had her reasons for not wishing it known that she and Lionel Macaire were acquaintances. Hope Newcome had given a promise that his dealings with the man should remain a secret; and so it was that Fate began to play a pretty game of cross-purposes between the man and the girl who called each other "partners."

CHAPTER XXV.

The Jewel in the Toad's Head.

Hope Newcome had guessed Winifred's difficulties without being told, for his mind was sensitized by his passionate love for the girl, and her thoughts, as they passed through her brain, seemed often to print themselves upon his. If he had not engaged himself to go to London and train for the coming event, which might mean everything for his future, it would have been hard for him to bid her go. But as it was, though his bargain with Macaire was to be so profound a secret, Newcome was joyous at the prospect of Winifred's departure to London. Even if he did not see her there for many a day to come it would be something to feel that she was not far away.

Not only did he advise her to go as soon as possible to her mother, but, when he had received the fifty pounds promised in advance from Macaire, he sent half the sum anonymously to Winifred.

Just how he should do this had been a puzzle. She would not take money from him, that was certain. He could not forge a letter from the girl's mother, or from the brother of whom she had spoken rather sadly once or twice. And no friend of hers was supposed to know her present whereabouts.

But, after much thinking, he hit upon an idea, which he at once proceeded to work out. He addressed an envelope in a feigned hand to "The Young Lady Singer in the Mask," 12 Salt street, Brighton. In the same cramped writing he penned a few lines on a sheet of paper, saying:

When Buying Mining Stock Buy the Best

AN INVESTMENT IN THE

Pitkin Gold Belt Mining and Reduction Company

Which is Safe and Sure of Quick Returns, may Bring an Enormous Return at any Moment. It has the Possibilities of Rivaling the Great Mines of the Past.

This Company has a mile on a true fissure vein, in the center of the Gunniston Gold Belt, Colorado, which is the "Mother" lode or dike, which has produced 56 per cent. more gold than the total output of the Cripple Creek district.

This Mine is no Prospect. Nor is it Waiting on Your Subscription to Buy Machinery or for Development.

After a careful examination by experts, Joseph M. Bradley, M. E., and Mr. George Arbitt, A. I. M. E., Amalgamated Copper Company's expert in Chihuahua, Mexico, they advised the purchase of the property. The property had shallow development upon it, showing two ore shoots from which smelting ore had been shipped to the Buena Vista Smelter.

The Company purchased and paid for the latest improved machinery and has put a shaft down 250 feet and intend to carry it down 1000 feet. On the 150 foot level 200 feet of development has been made and an ore shoot has been encountered and blocked out for 57 feet, carrying values in gold from 2 to 9 ounces or $40 to $180 per ton. The cost of mining, hauling, freight and smelters charges will be between $12 and $16 per ton.

Ed. McCarthy & Co., bankers, guarantee a shipping mine of smelting ore running from 2 to 6 ounces in gold, or $40 to $120 per ton, by January 1st, 1903, or all funds will be returned to subscribers upon presentation of receipt issued by said bank.

Also to prospective purchasers of $600 worth of stock we are offering a free trip to Colorado and return. You investigate first and purchase afterward. Could you expect anything fairer than this?

Strong Facts as to Anthracite Coal Carriers

New York, Oct. 29.—In a recent issue of Town and Country the position of the anthracite coalers was most ably and pertinently discussed, illustrating their present and future values. The main facts which we cull from the article are as follows: Five months' cessation of anthracite mining has made clearer than ever the monopoly enjoyed by the half dozen or more of the larger producing and carrying hard coal companies, and has signalized anew the great intrinsic values of the securities of these roads, and the foresight of the eminently wealthy capitalists who for years have had investments in them. There is now a rush to mine and ship anthracite, and for over a year to come it will go on to the fullest possible physical capacity of the producers. The closest unfriendly and legal scrutiny has shown the companies to be legally unassailable. If the arbitration committee find that the miners are entitled to more pay, the expense will be borne by the consumer, the anthracite coal companies will probably earn more money the coming twelve months than any corporation engaged in business in the United States. Far greater than in their last previous year, when the Jersey Central, Delaware and Hudson, D. L. W., the three regular seven per cent. dividend payers, showed returns of any where from eleven to twenty per cent. net. Well informed financiers believe than an anthracite holding company will be a development of the near future. Coal has at present advanced fifty cents per ton to the miner. The increasing profit to the companies of thirty five cents per ton would aggregate about 20 million annually. Officials of the Reading Company say that this would mean net earnings of more than 6 per cent. upon the common stock of their company in excess of what was earned one year ago. These are telling facts well worth pondering over. There is no doubt that all the anthracite coalers are certain of increasing their money earning capacity very much in the immediate future. Even Reading common, Ontario and Western, and such will advance to the dividend basis and above the par prices, as did Delaware and Hudson, which went from 20 to 175, Delaware, Lackawana and Western, from 40 to above 200, Jersey Central, from 6 to 200, etc. The lower priced coal shares are splendid things to purchase and hang on to. Election talk was more prevalent to-day, accompanied by persistent hammering of prices. The market, as a result, declined sluggishly, while the short interest was increased proportionately. Rallies were feeble and fitful. Apparent liquidation by the western contingent in Norfolk and B. O. Some investment buying was in evidence. A rally should again be near. On any further decline we are of the opinion that purchases are advisable. Money closed 3 1-2 per cent. Sales 532,700.

One 18-inch vein of 90 per cent copper (almost the solid metal) has been opened up in Copper Queen Extension Claim, one of the six constituting our Montana property, while mining a thirty-foot vein of free milling 18 per cent copper ore, carrying thirty ounces of silver to the ton.

This is so far ahead of our expectations, brilliant as our former prospects were, that we realize the IMMEDIATE building of a mill to handle this magnificent output, equalled in richness only by the Calumet and Hecla mines, is an ABSOLUTE NECESSITY. This will make OUR OWN portion of the stock, as well as THAT ACQUIRED BY THE PUBLIC, for the purposes of this immediate development, worth an immense amount of money in an exceedingly short time.

Help us build a Mill immediately by purchasing our One Dollar Shares, which are offered this week at 30 cents a Share as a Special Inducement to insure the speedy building of the Mill, and we will make your stock yield you an inordinate profit as quickly as the Mill can be put in operation.

Now is the Last Chance to Buy the St. Paul & Sunset Oil COMPANY'S STOCK AT 35 CENTS

California Oil Stocks Have Paid Millions in Dividends

KERN COUNTY (SUNSET DISTRICT) OIL COMPANIES PAID

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS IN DIVIDENDS IN AUGUST ALONE

MORGAN IN THE OIL INDUSTRY--NEW YORK FINANCIER AT THE HEAD OF A $20,000,000 COMPANY TO EXPLOIT CALIFORNIA FIELDS

Bakersfield, Cal., Sept. 27.—J. Pierpont Morgan is about to identify himself with the oil business in California. On October 12, or a few days later, surveyors will be put into the field, and will run lines to the ocean from Sunset, Coaling, McKittrick, Midway and Kern River fields to determine by which route it is most feasible to transport oil to tide water. The surveys will run over the coast range at a number of points, and also will go down the San Joaquin valley parallel with the line of the Standard.

A company having a capitalization of $5,000,000 has been organized for the construction of lines, pumping stations, storage tanks, and the like. Mr. Morgan and his associates have also formed a separate company, capitalized at $20,000,000, half of which will be invested in proven ground and the other half turned into a reserve fund.

It is stated that the Morgan syndicate will be prepared to handle 2,000,000 barrels the first year, and will increase that amount at the rate of 1,000,000 a year until the whole demand of the market is met.

THE ST. PAUL & SUNSET OIL COMPANY own and control a large tract of absolutely oil proven asphalt land in the very heart of the best oil producing land of Kern County, California, the district where flowing wells are situated. We have a bed of Liquid Asphalt underlying a portion of our lands. Our property is situated right at Sunset Station. A new line of railway is surveyed and will be constructed in a very short time, putting us not only in touch with Eastern cities, but in touch with tide-water. This, in addition to the railroad facilities we now have. Remember that we own our land—it is paid for and entirely free from debt.

ST. PAUL & SUNSET OIL CO.'S GIGANTIC TRACT

will be developed and should prove a formidable rival for the new company.

PROFESSOR DR. RUD J. SCHIMPER, Analytical and Expert Chemist, of St. Paul, makes the following statement relative to the composition, what can be produced and the estimated profits of the Sunset Crude Oil. A copy of the original certificate can be seen at the office of the St. Paul & Sunset Oil Co., which is in substance as follows:

"This is to certify that the undersigned, Dr. Rudolph J. Schimper, Chemist expert, member of Parisian Academy, according to analysis made from the crude oil furnished me by the St. Paul & Sunset Oil Company, I find the following valuable products and with each beg to submit my estimate of its value:

1. LIQUID RUBBER—2000 lbs of this crude oil (6 bbls.) will produce 1,800 lbs. of liquid rubber, value of which is from 25c. per lb. and up. (Estimated value $450.00.)
2. SOLID RUBBER—2000 lbs of this crude oil (6 bbls) will produce 1,700 lbs. of solid rubber, value of which is from 30c. upwards. (Estimated value $450.00.)
3. FUEL BRIQUETTES—2000 lbs. of this crude oil (6 bbls.) will produce 2,000 lbs. (1 ton) of fuel briquettes, which, according to government tests made, is equivalent to two tons of best anthracite coal. (Estimated value $22.00)
4. ASPHALTUM—2,000 lbs. of this crude oil (6 bbls.) will produce ½ ton of asphaltum, value $25 to $30 per ton. 25 gal. of lubricating oil, value 50c. per gal. and upward. 40 gal. illuminating oil, value 10c per gal. and up. 60 gal. of distilled oil, value 5c. per gal. and upward. (Estimated value $64.50.)
5. SOAP—2000 lbs. (1 ton) of crude oil and filling will produce over 2,000 lbs. of soap, value 3c. per lb. and upward. (Estimated value $60.00.)

Id my opinion many other valuable products can be obtained from the oil of that famous field.

Respectfully, DR. R. J. SCHIMPER, Chemist Expert."

THIS goes to show the immense profits that will accrue from our products when refined. We expect to commence Building Our Refinery in the very near future. The sale of the next allotment of stock will be made for that purpose. The largest flowing wells in California were brought in adjoining our property and their stock was taken off the market. We employ the best drillers who report rapid progress on our wells and we expect to bring in gushers equal, if not to excel any in the Sunset field. Our General Manager, Superintendent and Drillers, all are experienced oil men. The officers of our company are all thorough, competent and efficient men who have always made a success of their undertaking in life and who will see that the welfare of the St. Paul and Sunset Oil Company is furthered, portected and promoted to the most advantageous extent possible.

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS SHOULD BE PAID STOCKHOLDERS.

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS should be paid to the stockholders of the St. Paul and Sunset Oil Company when their property is fully developed, their refinery equipped and in full operation. ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS IN DIVIDENDS was paid by Kern County Oil Companies during the month of August alone.

SIX MILLION BARRELS is the consuming capacity of the Southern Pacific Railway engines, which are now equipped for burning oil. Outside of this consider other railway lines, smelters, factories, steamships, stationery engines, which are all heavy consumers of fuel oil and last but not least, hotels and private dwellings are falling in line with the procession in the use of fuel oil.

A GOOD REASON WHY YOU Should invest in the stock of St. Paul & Sunset Oil Company. More fortunes have been made in oil than any other business. Consider the immense amount of money the Standard Oil Company has made for its fortunate stockholders, and the California oil companies have done better in proportion to their capitalization than the Standard Oil Company. Here is what $100 has accomplished for those who invested that amount in the following California companies in the beginning of their career:

Home Whittier $1,000 on an investment of $100.

Kern returned $2,200 on an investment of $100.

Peerless returned $1,800 on an investment of $100.

Dillon returned $2,500 on an investment of $100.

New York returned $30,000 on an investMent of $100.

Union returned $150,000 on an investment of $100.

Home returned $50,000 on an investment of $100.

THERE is no reason in the world why the St. Paul and Sunset Company's oil holdings and property, when developed and handled, should not bring like returns

CONTRARY to the general supposition the earth is the repository of all mineral wealth. When it is known and demonstrated beyond a question of a doubt where its wealth reposes and you put your money up to take it out, your money is invested. Hence you are an investor, not a speculator. A proven oil producing property does not draw its profits from the people but creates new wealth. It is therefore an investment.

Wonderful Increase in Value of Oil Stocks.

The rapid rise in the value of shares in some oil companies will be seen from the following table:

	Original price per share	Present Market price

The time will come in the near future when stock in St. Paul and Sunset Oil Co., should bring prices equal to the last.

WE CLAIM NOTHING WE CANNOT PROVE TO BE TRUE

BRIEFLY, OUR PROPOSITION IS THIS: THE ST. PAUL & SUNSET OIL COMPANY

owns its immense tract of proven oil land—without a penny of incumbrance. The property is located in the most wonderful and richest oil producing section in the world, in the famous Sunset District of Kern County, California. Other Oil Companies in Kern county have paid hundreds of thousands of dollars in dividends—and today their stock cannot be bought at any price. These companies in many instances have less property, and in some cases are only lessors, not owning refinery, tanks, lines, etc.

A LIMITED AMOUNT OF THIS STOCK WILL BE SOLD AT 35c. PER SHARE, PAR VALUE $1.00.

BUY NOW. THIS STOCK WILL BE ADVANCED TO 50c WITHIN THE NEXT 30 DAYS

THE ST. PAUL & SUNSET OIL COMPANY will erect their own refinery, etc. are now owners of the property they are developing, employ the best drillers in the whole State of California. The manager is an old and experienced oil man who has been connected with large California companies. The officers are all successful and reliable business men, who are investors—the same as every other stockholder. Wanted Some Change

There are people who believe in being matter of fact in church as well as anywhere else. On Sunday last in a house of worship, one of the collectors received a shock which he hasn't recovered from yet. The first person he presented the plate to, who was seated in a front seat, dropped on a five cent piece. In the next pew was situated a man with a look of irresolution on his face. But when the plate was put in front of him the look of irresolution gave place to one of stern resolve. Dropping a ten cent piece on the plate he picked up the solitary five which had been put there by the person in the front pew, and dropped it into his pocket, after which resumed the quiet air of devotion he had worn before the collectors started on their rounds.

November Canadian Magazine

The fiction in the November Canadian Magazine is exceptionally strong. There are good short stories by Jean Blewett, Albert R. King, and N. de Bertrand Lugrin, and the first instalment of Virna Sheard's new serial, entitled "Fortune's Hill." This latter is a story of student life, and describes the use of education in a country such as ours, in enabling a young man to rise to higher and better things. Among the illustrated articles, Julia W. Henshaw describes the beauties in and about Field, a little village in the Rockies; Charles Lewis Shaw gives an impressionistic sketch of "The Fire-Fighters of Toronto," which is accompanied by some striking pictures; while C. W. Nash, the Ontario naturalist, writes most engagingly of "The Ways of the Woodcock," illuminated with his own drawings. For those interested in "home study," there is an article on Shakespeare's use of Birds and another on Astronomy, both of which are quite readable. Norman Patterson reviews the situation of the Alaskan Boundary Question, and F. Blake Crofton, the Halifax librarian and litterateur, deals with some "Imperial Bugbears." The departments are as interesting as usual.

THE KING'S BIRTHDAY

Some of the Local Societies May Celebrate Nov. 9th

Sunday, the 9th of November, will be the anniversary of the birth of His Majesty King Edward VII., and in many places arrangements are being made to mark the event in a quiet way.

No doubt in Peterborough the matter will be confined mostly to special services in the churches, and probably entertainments of a patriotic nature on the evening following.

NO INDIAN SUMMER YET

Changes are to Rapid—May Have a Fine Spell in November

There has been no Indian summer this fall, but people are looking for it every day. The weather for the past few days has been varied, but is not what is known as Indian summer. The atmospheric conditions are changing with much rapidity. In fact, the changes are occurring so rapidly that the forecasters at the Observatory experience great difficulty in making reliable predictions for any length of time ahead. It is thought the weather may settle shortly, and a couple of weeks in November will answer the description all right.

C.P.R. TO MIDLAND

There is Every Prospect That the Line will be Built

As will be seen by our telegraphic despatches in this issue, Mr. W. H. Bennet, M.P., who accompanied the Conservative leader, Mr. R. L. Borden, in the recent trip through the Northwest refers to the prospect of the C.P.R. getting into Midland from Peterborough.

Mr. Bennet says that there would be a great advantage in having C.P.R. connection, as this road would then become the leading grain route from the west.

The proposal, as will be remembered, for the C.P.R. to double track the Grand Trunk between Peterborough and Midland. It is expected that work will be begun early in the spring.

SERUM OF WHOOPING COUGH

Brussels Physician Says He can Cure the Disease in Ten Days

London, Oct. 29—A young Brussels physician named Loureaux, says he has discovered the serum of whooping cough, which is injected under the skin in the abdominal region. From the experiments, which he has conducted hitherto the injection appears to be quite harmless.

The first effects are apparently about forty-eight hours after the inoculation. The serum produces an early cessation of the coughing fits and a considerable diminution of the normal period of illness. If the injection is made immediately on the manifestation of the usual symptoms the malady can be cured in eight or ten days. The usual course is from six to eight weeks.

THE TEMPERANCE PARTY ARE NOW ORGANIZING

The Whole County to be Put Into Line for the Vote

A meeting of the temperance workers to discuss the coming campaign was held in the Maccabee's Hall, Peterborough, last Tuesday evening. The Good Templars threw open their regular lodge meeting to the members of other temperance societies and friends of the cause in general. The Chief Templar, Mr. Cowan, was called to the chair and Mr. Roddis, of the Royal Templars, appointed secretary. Mr. Weeks, of Toronto, representing the Dominion Alliance, explained the general plan of organization, and said that practically all the counties of the Province were either already organized for the campaign or had taken steps to that end. The Rev. Mr. Potter explained what action had been taken by the Peterborough Ministerial Association, who had issued an invitation to their brother ministers of the county to meet them in conference on this question at the Y.M.C.A. building here next Monday Nov. 3rd at 2 p.m.

After some discussion it was unanimously resolved that the meeting through the chairman and Secretary invite all temperance workers of the county to meet next Monday at 2 p.m. at the same place to consult with the ministers and to effect the organization of the county for the coming vote on the Ontario Liquor Act.

Ringing in the Ears

There is just one cure and that is plenty of food for the blood and nerves, which is best supplied in Ferrozone, than which no blood builder, nerve tonic or strength producer is better. Ferrozone promotes healthy digestion, which results in improved nutrition. The blood grows rich and red, furnishes stability to the entire system, and the store of nerve force and energy increases daily. A rebuilding of the constitution, new spirits, health and strength, all come from the use of Ferrozone. This marvelous renovator is sold by Druggists for 50c. a box, or six boxes for $2.50. By mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

A Blaze at the Gas House

A blaze in the boiler room of the gas house caused considerable excitement last night. The flames were confined to the roof of the building, and considerable damage was done.

The annual harvest tea of the congregation of St. Mark's, will be held on Tuesday, Nov. 11th, in the Forester's Hall, Otonabee.

Mrs. H. A. Alsbrook, of Austin, Lonoke Co., Ark., writes: "After five months of great suffering with female weakness I write this for the benefit of other sufferers from the same affliction. I doctored with our family physician without any good result, so my husband urged me to try Dr. Pierce's medicines—which I did, with wonderful results. I am completely cured. Ideal.

Mrs. Van Antler—She is a fine nurse, isn't she?

Mrs. Giltpace—Splendid. Why, I never have to see the baby from one week's end to the other.

The Kind That Got Away.

"That little minnow," said the first fish, "seems to have got a big opinion of himself all of a sudden." "Yes," replied the other, "he managed to wriggle off a hook this morning, and then heard the fisherman bragging about his size."—Philadelphia "Press."

"Yo' say Mistah Johnsing am industrious?" "Yeas, sah. Why, he spent two whole days tryin' to get his wife a job." —Chicago "Daily News."

Israel Zangwill has been one of the sprightliest witnesses in the "Truth" libel case in London. Asked whether his paper, "Ariel," was still in existence, he replied: "No. It was too good to live. I can't, however, say that it is dead, for its jokes still appear."

Milly—My husband objects to this bathing dress. Tilly—Oh, I don't see much in it. Milly—Oh, it isn't that. It's what you see out of it that he objects to.

Muggins—Youngpop is going to have his baby christened Bill. Buggins—How strange. Muggins—Oh, I don't know. He came on the first of the month.

Amusing Mistakes.

Some years ago a school teacher began to keep a record of amusing mistakes made by the children in her charge. These grew so quickly to respectable dimensions that a volume of them has just been published, fortified by an introduction from Mark Twain. The author expressly states that every reply is genuine, and that in no case has there been any tampering with the originals.

One child, asked for a definition of plagiarist, replied "a writer of plays." Very good also is the definition of a demagogue as "a vessel containing beer and other liquids."

"To find the number of square feet in a room," writes a young mathematician, "you multiply the room by the number of feet."

There is a quaint truth in the statement that "Henry VIII. of England was famous for being a great widower, having lost several wives."

Perhaps, however, the best of all is one which comes under the head of "Music," and which says that "emphasis is putting more distress on one word than another."

No Need of Assistance.

The father of the family had stepped into a bookstore to buy a birthday present for his fourteen-year-old son. "What kind of book would you like?" asked the salesman, to whom he had confided his purpose.

"Something that would be useful for the boy," was his reply.

"Well, here is a very good one on 'Self-Help.'"

"Self-help!" exclaimed the father. "Son don't need anything of that kind. You ought to see him at the dinner-table!"

Has Been.

An Englishman went into a restaurant in a New England town, and was served for the first course with a delicacy unknown to him. So he asked the waiter what it was, and the waiter replied: "It's bean soup, sir," whereupon the Englishman, in high indignation, responded: "I don't care what it's been; I want to know what it is." —Philadelphia "Times."

COAL
WONDERFUL
STAR HEATER

The only heater that is guaranteed to give satisfaction with soft as well as hard coal. As a fuel economizer it is unequalled, producing heat on about one-third the coal used in any other heater in existence.

The Star has a tube behind for the escape of the gas. As anyone who uses soft coal knows, the gas accumulates under the fresh coal, and if there is no escape there will be explosions and puffs of smoke. In the Star this disappears in the gas escape. The Star has a sliding damper and ornamental door of mica.

After being filled, the Star will heat for 48 hours without attention. It will hold fire and give out heat longer than any other stove.

The Star is 25 per cent more economical than any other stove.

MORE THAN 5,000 ARE IN USE IN THE LOWER PROVINCES.

PRICE LIST

No.	Height	Diameter	Price
0	24 1-2 in.	9 in	$11.20
1	30 1-2 in.	9 in	$12.00
2	34 in.	10 1-2 in	$15.00
3	37 1-2 in.	12 in	$19.20
4	41 in.	15 in	$28.80

DIRECTIONS

When filling the stove always shut the draught door at the bottom.

Keep the small opening in the back pipe closed except when cleaning.

Clean the back pipe every two weeks.

COAL CONSUMERS, ATTENTION!

We are using one No. 3 Star stove in our large rooms, where formerly we had four large wood heaters, and get more heat now than before. The wood stoves cost us $4.50 every week for fuel, and the Star stove which we are now using costs us only $1.50, making a saving of $3.00 per week in the price of fuel—which would soon pay for the stove. We can recommend this stove to any person wanting a first-class heater. We would not use any other stove that is made.

ST. PETER'S T.A.S.
M. J. Serro, Chairman Trustees.

We certify that we have in use one No. 3 Star stove in our large pool and billiard room, the size of which is 45x30 ft., with 16 ft. ceiling. We have perfect heat, and the most coal we have used on the coldest day yet has been three scuttles in 24 hours. We are so well pleased with the stove that we would not use any other.

ROCAMORA & CALLAHAN.

I have been using a No. 3 Star stove in the sitting room at the City Hotel for some time past, and it has proved so satisfactory that I have ordered two more to replace two stoves in the upstairs. The Star gives more heat than the other stoves with half the amount of coal.

MARTIN CONNORS.

We have in use in our composing room a No. 3 Star coal stove, and wish to state that it is giving eminent satisfaction. The entire absence of gas by the escape provided, the increase of heat and the saving in coal are special features of the Star, and it requires a minimum of attention.

THE DOUKHOBOR WOMEN ARE NOW CARED FOR

The Situation In The North Much Less Disquieting Than a Few Days Ago

THE CONDITIONS AMONGST THE CRAZED PEOPLE

A Times' Representative Visits the Settlement—They are Centuries Behind the Age

Yorkton, N.W.T., October 30.—The first contingent of the Doukhobor pilgrims marched up Broadway shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday, numbering about 1,100 and was followed by a second and last detachment during the afternoon of some five hundred; altogether there are 1,600 of this race in town.

The two cavalcades had about a dozen litters, constructed of poles and ropes and blankets, on which the sick or enfeebled were carried. In one litter was an old man, blind a long period in both eyes; another contained an old woman afflicted with chronic rheumatism. Such was the variety of the helpless. Only one girl appeared to be suffering from the exposure to which the travellers must have been subjected. Other litters contained women and babies, some of whom were evidently born while on the march, the youngest being three days old. All were warmly and seasonably clad, with the exception of the three extremists, who were bareheaded and barefooted.

THE ORDER OF MARCHING

was irregular; Psalms in the peculiar Doukhobor tones being chanted whilst on the move. The first body halted in front of the immigration hall, and were met by C. W. Speers and J. C. Crerar, officials of the Interior Department.

Mr. Speers asked the leaders why they had come to Yorkton, what was their object and where were they going.

The reply was that they knew not where they were going, and were seeking "the new light."

Not being able to get a satisfactory answer to the several questions, Mr. Speers told them they would not be allowed to travel over the country accompanied with women and children as they had been.

The immigration hall was then opened, and the men invited to conduct the women and children and the ailing ones into the building, where they were assured that every care and attention would be given. The Doukhobors stood sullen and made no response.

The statement was then repeated, this time emphatically, that if the women and children were not voluntarily led into the building such a step would be taken by the officials.

Corporal Junget and one constable, assisted by willing spectators, then began the work of housing. When this work had been started, the Doukhobors began to assist carrying in the babies. One or two women refused to be separated from their husbands, but their resistance was easily overcome. The housing was eventually completed. Besides the immigration hall several other buildings were utilized.

The women of the town generously came to the help of the infants and in other ways showed tokens of sympathy to the Doukhobor females. Whilst the work of housing was progressing the men were psalm singing.

No shelter was provided for the men, who were left to look after themselves. The whole body was not by any means destitute, as each man was carrying provisions. The spectacle was one for sympathy, and other Doukhobors who stood watching the proceedings, on being interrogated, said it was a crazy act in which they would take no part.

It is uncertain what will be the future of the pilgrimage.

At present all is quiet and peaceable.

VISIT TO DISTRICT.

A Times' correspondent has just returned from an extensive trip through the Doukhobor settlement to the north and northeast of Yorkton, and has endeavored to sift out facts from the many conflicting rumors which have been going the rounds lately in regard to these people. It is extremely difficult to get at the true facts of the matter, but there is no doubt whatever that a large number of the Doukhobors left their villages and marched out toward Swan River.

VILLAGES DESERTED.

In many cases entire villages have been deserted. The vegetables and grain which they have raised this year are either stored in their houses or stand in the stack unthreshed. In nearly every village to the northeast of Yorkton some members at least have gone. In one village that I visited the grain was still standing in the stack and there appeared to be only two men remaining in the place. These men said it was not their intention to thresh their grain. At a village just a mile and one half from there it appeared that none of their members had gone. Their grain was all threshed and the people appeared to be contented. This particular village had 600 bushels of wheat and 1,500 bushels of oats stored in their granaries.

One of the brightest young fellows I met in any of the villages was here, and he told me that he did not wish to leave Canada, that was quite satisfied. Three miles from that village I came on another, where some of the residents had gone on the tramp. This village had threshed its grain, but in a long conversation I had with one of the members of this community he informed me that that the Doukhobors wished to leave the country. He said they wished to get to some warmer country than Canada; that in Canada man made too much money; that in the country where he came from all men were poor, and that we in this country did not know what poverty was. He wished to get to some idealistic spot where men held all things in common. There was no doubt whatever of the sincerity of the man's speeches, but there was also no doubt whatever that, whatever they may have intended to do when they came to this country, the large majority will be of very little use now. In many respects the Doukhobors are splendid people, but they are at least a thousand years behind our time in agriculture and everything else.

THRESHING.

The manner of their threshing shows the character of the people. This latter operation was very interesting to witness. They first cleared about an acre of ground, which they tramped hard, then laid the sheaves in circular rows from the outside until the centre was reached. Then they took a roller about four feet long, on which they had nailed cleats of wood, and hitched that to a wagon. Underneath the wagon they drew a long flat stoneboat, into the bottom of which had been set triangular pieces of iron; then a boy was put on the wagon to drive a team of horses round and round on the straw until the chaff and grain were entirely separated from the straw. During the time these curious threshing machines were travelling round the circle some of the men threw the straw up and rolled it over so as to thresh every particle. After they considered the grain threshed the straw was very carefully lifted off the chaff and wheat and the latter was brushed into a pile in the centre. to clean the grain two women held a sieve between them shaking it up, while another woman poured the wheat into the sieve. In this manner they threshed about eighty bushels a day.

Winnipeg, Oct. 30 — After a whole night of medication and prayer and chant singing the Doukhobors at Yorkton have decided not to return to their villages, but are still fixed in their determination to convert the world. The Mounted Police are guarding the women and children, and watching the males lest they do them harm. There has been no sign of violence, and many of the Doukhobors living in Yorkton have been trying to persuade the pilgrims to return to their villages.

The immigration agent at Swan River has sent Immigration Commissioner Moffatt particulars of their search for a "new life." Eight hundred from the various communities about Thunder Hill were induced to join the pilgrimage, and on Tuesday afternoon the army, eleven hundred strong, passed through Fort Pelly. They were carrying on stretchers all those who were too sick or weak to walk.

A Wild Lot of People.

Many of the men stepped out of the ranks as they passed the immigration agent to shake hands and thank him for his kindness as they said good-bye. They told Officer Harley they were leaving all to "go and meet Jesus." Markoff, the leader, told him they were going to Terpennie.

"And where then?" enquired Mr. Harley.

"We don't know." was the reply.

Many asked the officer what the Government would do, and he assured them this was a free country where, if they did not desire to sleep in warm houses and have plenty to eat, they were at liberty to sleep in the open air and go barefoot.

At Terpennie the pilgrims were met by George, the brother of Peter Veringen, a Siberian exile, who still exercises a strong influence over the people, and for whom they entertain a deep veneration.

One village has been entirely deserted, and there the department has stationed guards over their goods and grain. In another village there are five persons remaining, and in another, fifty-five.

The leaders of the movement have been notified that they will not be allowed to beg, and that the sick people and insane women will be taken from them Before leaving the Doukhobors spent considerable in the purchase of warm underclothing and are well clad. Only a few have thrown away their hats and shoes, preferring to go barefoot. The women have thrown away blankets and clothing they were unable to carry.

The department officers are satisfied the pilgrims are sincere in their religious mania, though they are beginning to expect the leaders will utilize the movement to ask for a new location

WHAT THEY ARE LIKE.

Mr. H. Hellyer, a young Russian Jew who is at present attending the Toronto Bible School, College street, knows more perhaps, about the Doukhobors than anyone in the city. He has seen them in Russia, he can speak their tongue, and he has just returned from the North-West, where he has been spending some weeks among them as representative of the Upper Canada Bible Society.

To the Star Mr. Hellyer talked on Doukhobors, and answered a number of questions.

"They come from the south-eastern part of Russia, don't they?"

"Yes, and the climate there is just about the same as the climate here."

"Where do they get their belief?"

"They say from the Spirit."

The Doukhobors, so Mr. Hellyer says is a very conscientious fellow. Should a mosquito, for instance, succeed in tapping his face or hand he would not kill him ker-slap-bang, the way an ordinary mortal would. No, no: the Doukhobor would carefully give the interfering hole-drilling insect warning that it was time to quit, and allow him to fly away. The Doukhobor opens his Bible and stakes his claim on "Thou shalt not kill." He does not kill, he will not eat what is killed, and flies, ants, insects, and the myriads of the lower world may ramble over their persons with impunity.

They do not believe in physical laws, and take no stock in the criminal code, or any other code that may be drawn up by man. They say God is the only lawgiver.

To secure a license before they can marry seems to them foolishness and sin. To register the birth or death of a babe seems to be nothing short of sacrilege. So, according to Mr. Hellyer's statements they don't fit in to the niche which was cut out for them in the great West.

However, Mr. Hellyer says he believes there is a good deal of exaggeration about the acts of these people. He takes no stock in the statement in the papers that in Russia they burned five priests alive and are now boasting of it.

The Doukhobor has his good points. He is not lazy. He will not make his wife do all the hard work. But he backs up on butter, milk and eggs. There are about 500 of these people who are not vegetarians and they are getting on in marked contrast to the others. Mr. Hellyer does not believe it is possible for them to thrive in the North-West unless they abandon their peculiar views, collect their stock together, and commence on the meat, milk butter and egg diet, the same as the other settlers. The climate demands it.

WHEN THE WEATHER BEGINS TO GET COOL

(Contributed.)

I acknowledge I'm beaten; I've nothing
[to say;
And in sympathy here is my hand.
I had thought in my weak-minded bach-
[elor way,
(But of course I did not understand),
That to travel life's road with the girl
[of one's choice.
And to listen in turn to each innocent
[voice
Of six loving children, would make one
[rejoice,
And would glorify ocean and land.

But you've kindly informed me in meta-
[phors mixed
You're in harness and also in school;
So I plainly perceive how lamentably
[fixed
You benedicts are as a rule;
And I see it is wiser to chase o'er the [hills
Allegorical maids, thus avoiding the ills
That a married man suffers from in[creasing bills
When the weather begins to get cool.

How unsightly, sometimes even disgusting, and certainly very mortifying to the sufferer. They are merely an evidence of impure, poisoned blood, and lowered vitality of the elementary organs, which can be quickly changed by taking Ferrozone after meals. Ferrozone cleanses the blood of all poisons and eruptions, makes it rich in red corpuscles that manifest themselves in a healthy, ruddy complexion. To have a pure, soft skin and good complexion simply use Ferrozone regularly. Price 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2.50, at Druggists, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Transportation Is Engaging Attention of the West

Mr. W. H. Bennett, M. P. for East Simcoe, Finds North West Farmers Intensely Interested In This Subject

Montreal, Oct. 30.—Mr. W. H. Bennett, M.P., for East Simcoe, is in the city today on business. Mr. Bennett was one of those who accompanied Mr. R. L. Borden on his recent tour of the West, and he has come back with some decided views of the western situation.

"The first thing that struck me in that country," says Mr. Bennett, "was the great rapidity with which people are making money. A person who has not seen it can have no conception of it. As to their political views they are doing a lot of thinking. They got straight talk from Mr. Borden, and they enjoyed and appreciated it.

"What they are worrying about in the West is the question of transportation. They want railways everywhere, and they want them quick. You can easily see that a man who has to team 30 miles is at a decided disadvantage as compared with the man who can load from his thresher into a waggon and take it to the station. If they get the transportation facilities I am quite convinced that they will be willing to stand for anything reasonable in the way of protection."

FUTURE OF MIDLAND.

The town of Midland, where Mr. Bennett resides, is very much interested in the transportation problem, and especially in the proposed arrangement by which the C. P. R. will secure running rights over the Grand Trunk from Midland to Peterborough. "Already," says Mr. Bennett, "some 12 million bushels of grain have passed through Midland this season, and it is expected to reach 15 millions before the season closes. There would be a very decided advantage to the C. P. R. in carrying through Midland to Peterborough and thence by their main line. It seems a much better route than their present one from Owen Sound to Toronto."

THE BOER GENERALS ARE SORELY DISAPOINTED

Botha Talks at Some Length on the Failure of Their Mission

Special to The Times.

London, Oct. 30—Regarding the failure of the Boer mission, General Botha said today: "Having come here to plead a cause which should speak eloquently enough for itself, we are sorely disappointed by the result. At last, we have every reason to consider that we have failed in our errand. It is assumed that we did not take kindly to the loan. That supposition was gratuitous as to the shape in which the material should be given. We had neither the right nor the will to pick and choose. But having seen no prospect of receiving such help we appealed for aid to all the nations of the world. That course was sharply criticised. So far as we can see, all our appeals to foreigners implied was that our people were in sore need of instant relief, and that we were willing to undergo the humiliation, no trivial ordeal, of pleading for it. Memories of help withheld, despite the pressing needs and the urgent appeal for justice and generosity, are certain to live long, die hard and inflict damage out of all proportion to their seeming importance. While the painful incidents of the war however deep the wounds they may have inflicted at the time, are forgiven, even forgotten. Those which follow peace rankle long in the minds of high-spirited people. I am stating well known facts, not uttering a covert threat. The sum required to relieve the primary needs of South Africa would not constitute a really irksome burden to this wealthy Empire, though certainly it is more than we have yet seen and disposition to grant. The number of farms destroyed is larger by far than the people of England imagine. We ourselves who know the country and its people are reduced to estimates which, laying no claim to absolute accuracy, would require to be officially verified by some impartial commission."

BOND WILL OPPOSE CHAMBERLAIN.

London, Oct. 30—The Cape Argus in an article quoted by a Cape Town correspondent, comments on the virulent editorial on Mr. Chamberlain's approaching visit to South Africa which appeared in South African News. The Argus says the members of the Afrikander Bond are afraid of Mr. Chamberlain's visit. They know they cannot hoodwink him any more than they could Lord Milner. They will do all they can to make the Colonial Secretary's trip a failure, but Mr. Chamberlain is more than a match for them all.

INDIAN CHIEFS OFFER TROOPS.

London, Oct. 30.—The Maharajah of Jodhpur, says a Simla correspondent has volunteered to send for service in Somaliland 600 Imperial service troops, mounted on camels. The Maharajah of Bikaner has offered the whole of his camel corps. The Nawab of Bahawulpur has also offered to send a camel squadron The correspondent says that the native chiefs of India are displaying the greatest eagerness to offer assistance to Great Britain.

Constantinople, Oct. 30—Turkey objects to withdrawing any of her troops from Aden hinterland until the frontier question is settled. Great Britain, on the other hand demands that the withdrawal of Turkish troops precede the frontier negotiations.

London, Oct. 30. The Times to-day prints further extracts from the "Memoirs of President Kruger," which will be published in November. Referring to the late Cecil Rhodes, Mr. Kruger says he was one of the most unscrupulous characters that ever existed. No matter how base and how contemptible, be it lying, bribery or treachery, all and every means were welcome to him if they would lead to the attainment of his ambitions and desires. Mr. Kruger describes Lord Milner as "This tool of Chamberlain's," and says the High Commissioner has carved out his mission faithfully, "and today enjoys the satisfaction of having turned South Africa into a wilderness, and robbed thousands of innocent people of their lives." Lord Milner, Mr. Kruger declares lost no opportunity go by of harassing the South African Republic and putting his foot on its neck. Of Great Britain's policy in South Africa the ex-President says: — "Lies, treachery, intrigues and secret instigations against the Government of the republic—these have always been the distinguishing marks of English politics which have found their final goal in a cruel war.

If Hon. Joseph Chamberlain visits the colonies he will receive a series of the greatest ovations ever accorded a British statesman abroad. No other British minister has ever so completely filled the eye of the public in the King's "oversea dominions," or so won their confidence and admiration. This was shown in London during the coronation when thousands of colonials were gathered there from every part of the empire. With the exception of Their Majesties, the personality that most attracted these visitors was Chamberlain.

Boer Wonder at the Fruit

Orchards of the Niagara District Took Them by Surprise

The Boer delegates left Toronto today at 8.35 a.m. for Owen Sound, where at noon they expect to take the boat for Sault Ste Marie, the fact that the hatches have had to be nailed down on the recent lake trips have no terrors for them.

They expressed themselves as being more delighted with the fruit district of Niagara than with anything else they had seen in Canada. As they drove from Hamilton to Grimsby, passing past farm after farm with nothing on it but fruit, and no mixed farming anywhere, their surprise was unbounded. They were delighted with the fine, clean orchards, without sod and without other crops than apples.

"Why don't you grow corn in your orchards, as we do in South Africa?" they asked one grower.

"If we did that," was the answer, "we would have some corn and some apples but not a great deal of either."

At the fruit farm of Mr. L. Wolverton, they found Baldwins and Spies being packed for the Glasgow market. Each apple was being wrapped separately, and packed in excelsior in quarter-barrel boxes, a method now adopted by all the best fruit exporters.

"And this has got to be the way of packing all perishable fruit in the future," said Mr. G. C. Creelman, who accompanied the Boers. "The extra expense is far more than paid for. New markets may be reached, and not only that, but the old markets are increased by the method. The city man at home will not buy a barrel of apples, but he will buy a box, and eat more apples as a result."

The fruit farm of Mr. W. M. Orr, of Fruitland; the nurseries of Mr. E. D. Smith of Winona, and the evaporating and basket factories of Grimsby were also visited by the delegation.

Niagara Falls called forth the visitors greatest wonderment.

Mr. Creelman told the Star today that of all the foreign deputations he had ever met, he never saw anyone who was more eager for information than the Boers. They never tired; were always ready to visit any new place where something might be learned. Each night they spent two hours writing a diary, and they are fastidiously particular as to accuracy, especially in names and addresses, and such like.

The ladies of the party are just as eager to learn as the men. They remarked that in South Africa it is the custom for wives to take an interest in their husbands' business, and try to know as much about it as they do, so that they can consult with them and advise.

SLEEP MYSTIFIES DOCTORS

For Ten Days a Girl Has Lain Unconscious and Barely Breathing.

ELECTRICITY FAILS TO AROUSE HER

Many Specialists Working Over New York Patient — Spell Seems Hypnotic.

New York, Oct. 29—For ten days Miss Nellie Corcoran has laid unconscious in St. Vincent's Hospital, and the best medical skill in the city has been unable to revive her or even to tell what is the cause of her condition. Every treatment known to the medical science has been resorted to in vain. The doctors are baffled by this new mystery, and in their dilemma have suggested that she is in a hypnotic sleep and are investigating along this line, but with little hope of reaching a solution.

Neurologists, physiologists, and diagnosticians, the most prominent in the [illegible], have been called in by the hospital doctors, but none of them has been able to explain the nature of the girl's malady, or to bring her back to consciousness. They have pierced her skin with needles and shocked her with electricity of a voltage up to the very limit of safety, but still she lies there peacefully sleeping.

While the doctors are puzzling their brains, helpless to aid her, the girl is wasting away.

Nellie Corcoran was a bright healthy girl up to the night of October 18, when she bade good night to Mrs. G. Hanse, with whom she lived at No. 223, East Fourteenth street and went to her bedroom. It was Saturday night, and she retired at 10.30 o'clock. She made no complaint of illness, and in fact all that day had been unusually vivacious.

Little Dog's Strange Action

That anything happened to the girl during the night is not believed, and there is nothing to bear out such a suggestion, but on Sunday morning Mrs. Hanse said she was awakened by her little dog scratching at the side of her bed.

Thinking that something unusual had occurred to frighten the dog, Mrs. Hanse arose and made an investigation, but found everything quiet in the house and nothing out of the ordinary except that Nellie was sleeping later than usual.

Mrs. Hanse called to her, and when the girl did not get up, went to her room and tried to arouse her. Finding her efforts in vain, Mrs. Hanse became alarmed. She felt the girl's pulse, and could not detect the faintest beat. Then she sent in haste for Dr. Bradenberg, who lives in the same house, and he worked over the girl from 7 a.m. till 10 a.m. on Sunday Oct. 19th. but could not arouse her.

Father Sullivan, of St. Anne's Catholic church, where the girl was an attendant was called, and at the priest's suggestion an ambulance was summoned bringing Dr Gilbert Donovan, of St. Vincent's Hospital. He worked over the strange case for a while, with no better results than Dr. Bradenberg, and then took her to the hospital where the whole staff of physicians tried various methods and means to revive her.

Her Breathing Very Faint.

First restorative of every kind were tried, but none proved effective. Powerful stimulants were forced down her throat but did not produce the slightest change in her condition or appearance. Electricity was tried again and again, the shocks being as strong as permissible without endangering her life, but still she lay on her cot barely breathing and completely unconscious.

The hospital doctors worked without success all day Sunday, and on Monday prominent specialists were called in. These tried new experiments. They pricked her with needles and she gave no sign of heeding. They touched her most sensitive nerves without effect. Only once did they observe the slightest evidence of feeling in the rigid form. While an attendant was slapping her, her eyes opened and closed again without the least sign of recognition or a spoken word or even sound.

There are no pronounced symptoms. The girl lies as though asleep, breathing faintly. Her pulse is just a little faster than normal and her temperature shows only half a degree of fever. Yet her appearance is changing rapidly. During the ten days she has aged ten years appearance, and they fear she cannot be kept alive if her coma lasts much longer.

As a last resort the doctors have begun investigating the theory that some one has put the girl in a hypnotic sleep. Yet they say is she is the victim of a hypnotist she should have responded to some of the tests they have already tried.

AN AMERICAN VIEW OF CAPE COLONY UNREST

The Proposed Visit of the Colonial Secretary to South Africa

IT WILL DO MUCH TO ALLAY DISCONTENT

The Position of South Africa Compared to That of the Southern States at Close of Civil War

Boston, Oct. 30.—The Boston Herald, in discussing the South African situation, says. The decision of Mr. Chamberlain, the English Colonial Secretary, to visit South Africa is said to be due to the unsettled, and hence unsatisfactory condition of affairs in Cape Colony and the other English possessions in that section. Apart from the wish of the Boers of the Transvaal and the Orange Free State to assert their independence, the late war constituted a struggle between the Dutch and the English nationalities. While many of the Cape Colony Dutch believed that those of common descent living in the Boer states were making a mistake in endeavoring thus to defy the great English Empire, they were none the less drawn toward them by strong ties of sympathy. These feelings were sufficiently intense to cause some of the so-called Afrikander members of the Cape Colony Parliament to actively associate themselves with the Boer cause, while others, less hopeful, or more cautious, were prepared to welcome a final Boer victory, even if they thought that such an event was quite beyond the range of the probable.

Now that the war is over, many of the representatives of the English class in Cape Colony wish to have the line clearly drawn between those who were steadfastly loyal to the English cause and those who were somewhat wavering in their allegiance. This wish is entirely natural after years of struggle and loss have been passed through. We know how impossible it was, after our own civil war, for the loyal citizens of the North to look with anything except intense disfavor upon their northern fellow-citizens who had exhibited what were termed southern proclivities. Good policy—that is, the policy that looks toward the future—dictated with us, as it does now in South Africa, that the past should be forgotten as quickly as possible; but good policy is not always in harmony with the aroused dictates of human nature, and it needs time to dissipate sectional and race animosities.

Since the close of the war it seems to us that in the advice he has given Mr. Chamberlain has shown excellent good judgment. The English element of Cape Town desired to have the constitution of the colony temporarily suspended, so that the people might be governed by an executive officer sent out from London, with no voice on their own account in the raising of taxes or the spending of public money. Mr. Chamberlain believed that this would be an exceedingly unwise step to take. He insisted that it would be better to have the Cape Town Parliament assembled and have such differences as existed discussed and determined in that assembly than have the fires of political discontent smouldering, all over the colony. In this conclusion we think he was altogether in the right.

It is said that one grievance which the loyal colonists have is found in the ostentatious way in which those who have been engaged in the Boer war as enemies of England and those who have sympathized with the Boers are permitted to show their colors and indulge in what is thought to be treasonable talk. We imagine that this grievance is more sentimental than real. It does not seem to us that there is the shadow of a possibility that an attempt will be made by the Boers to regain their lost political independence. They could not hope to make any progress in such an attempt for years to come, and by that time the growth of English population will be so great that the Boers will doubtless find themselves in a small minority. The evil which the loyalists complain of is therefore sentimental rather than real, and if it gives the Boers any comfort, if it is a solace to their defeat to be able to publicly announce that they belong to the lost cause, it is only the sensitive who will raise serious objections. Possibly Mr. Chamberlain will endeavor to make this fact evident during his stay in South Africa.

Newfoundland and Uncle Sam Will Make a Treaty

It is Stated That the Recent Negotiations Will Have a Favourable Result

Washington, D.C., October 30.—It is now quite certain that the negotiations for a reciprocity treaty with Newfoundland will have a favorable outcome within a short time. Information of a positive nature is had here that there has been no interruption of the negotiations on account of the attitude of Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts or any other reason.

The negotiations will be completed and Senator Lodge will have to decide whether the treaty suits the business needs of his constituents when the documents come before the Senator for ratification.

It is quite well understood that the treaty will grant some concessions to Newfoundland on the duty upon fish, and this will result in opposition from the Gloucester fishing interests. The fishermen, however, are apt to receive concessions from Newfoundland in the purchasing of bait which would be of great advantage to them and also in trading privileges along the coast.

A SOFT SNAP

This has been a fairly good year for J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., and when the American thanksgiving occurs, on the last Thursday in November, he and his partners may well be devoutly grateful for the few blessings they have received. In the past ten months the Morgan Company has managed to clean up $42,190,000 out of a few little business enterprises. The International Harvester Company, with a capital o f $65,000,000, was financed by the Morgan Company, for which Pierpont and his partners only received a trifle of $2,000,000. As Hamilton is largely a beneficiary from the consolidation of the harvesting and farm manufacturing companies in the United States, we feel like congratulating Mr. Morgan on his streak of good luck even though he only got $2,000,000 out of it. Besides his share in the $42,190,000 made by the company this year, Mr. Morgan is a director, trustee or officer in companies that control $4,000,280,527, out of which his yearly income will figure up high in the millions. Mr. Morgan has not yet begun to divide up with libraries and such like, for, unlike his friend Carnegie, he is not ashamed to die a billionaire.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The anthracite coal railroad companies have figured up their losses during the five months of the strike at $15,000,000. This was for hauling coal alone. The managers have put an additional 50 cents on each ton of coal, and it will not take them long to make up their losses. They have not lost anything on the coal, for it is still in the mines, and will fetch the cash as soon as the miners dig it out. The shortage on the output of coal for five months is shown to be about 20,000,000 tons. The man who burns the coal will pay the losses.

If Hon. Joseph Chamberlain visits the colonies he will receive a series of the greatest ovations ever accorded a British statesman abroad. No other British minister has ever so completely filled the eye of the public in the King's "oversea dominions," or so won their confidence and admiration. This was shown in London during the coronation when thousands of colonials were gathered there from every part of the empire. With the exception of Their Majesties, the personality that most attracted these visitors was Chamberlain.

WHEN THE WEATHER BEGINS TO GET COOL

(Contributed.)

I acknowledge I'm beaten; I've nothing [to say;
And in sympathy here is my hand.
I had thought in my weak-minded bach- [elor way,
(But of course I did not understand),
That to travel life's road with the girl [of one's choice,
And to listen in turn to each innocent [voice
Of six loving children, would make one [rejoice,
And would glorify ocean and land.

But you've kindly informed me in meta- [phors mixed
You're in harness and also in school;
So I plainly perceive how lamentably [fixed
You benedicts are as a rule;
And I see it is wiser to chase o'er the [hills
Allegorical maids, thus avoiding the ills
That a married man suffers from in- [creasing bills
When the weather begins to get cool.

NO INDIAN SUMMER YET

Changes are So Rapid—May Have a Fine Spell in November

There has been no Indian summer this fall, but people are looking for it every day. The weather for the past few days has been varied, but is not what is known as Indian summer. The atmospheric conditions are changing with much rapidity. In fact, the changes are occurring so rapidly that the forecasters at the Observatory experience great difficulty in making reliable predictions for any length of time ahead. It is thought the weather may settle shortly, and a couple of weeks in November will answer the description all right.

DISTRICT NEWS

JULIEN'S LANDING.

—The people of this locality had better use pretty good judgment in future as to who they deal with in buying agricultural implements. A "smart" agent of the Massey Harris Company received a payment on a wagon in the morning, and in the afternoon while the innocent party, who had purchased the wagon was away, hired a gang and took possession of the wagon, and being intercepted by the just party and told by him to either give up securities or wagon, he presented a loaded shot gun at his head and defied him. I want to know is this legitimate business or not?

KEENE.

—Miss Susie Campbell, of Peterborough, is visiting at Dr. Harrison's.

—Mr. Wilfred S. Jones, of Huntsville, commenced his duties as night operator at the station on Saturday.

—Quite a number from Keene left on Tuesday for the north, for the deer hunt.

—The agent for the International Correspondence School was in the village on Wednesday enroling students.

—A serious accident occurred at the station on Tuesday morning, by which a brakeman nearly lost his life. While his train was waiting at the station, he was sent out to flag a train from Peterborough. He sat down on the track to wait, and became overpowered by sleep, and the train struck him, inflicting a severe wound. He was removed to the hospital in Peterborough.

—Three men representing a patent medicine company are giving open air concerts on the corner.

—The annual meeting of the Sons of Rest, of Keene, was held in the Hall of Wisdom on Monday evening. Howden Doris occupied the chair and called the meeting to order at 7 o'clock. Secretary Nitchy Weir read the minutes of the last meeting. The officers for the year were elected, and were as follows:

President—Jonas Nelson, (re-elected by acclamation.)

1st Vice-President—Mayor John Drummond.

2nd Vice-President—Scrapping Tully.

Secretary—Cod Dungeroy Soucie.

Treasurer—Kruger English.

Corresponding Secretary—Roxy Weir.

Social committee—Tailor Gall. Andrew Weir, Faldy Wedlock.

Park committee—Pouty Burnham. Ily Hill Henderson, Lawyer Davidson.

Music committee—Ripper McCamus, Stager McIntyre, Root Laing.

Constable—Fighting Archie Weir.

Business Managers—Gummy Skinner, sr., Bushy Wallace.

After the election of officers, Wavy McFarlane proposed that the society hold a fowl supper on Halloween, seconded by Tote Robinson. Broncho Pete McFarland suggested that we corral the three wild chickens that have been eating our new dock, all summer.—Carried unanimously.

At this stage of the game Pony Moore proposed a song by Tamworth Edwards, which was very gracefully rendered.

Moved by Hoosier Roach, seconded by Mac, that a vote of condolence be sent to Brother Dixon on the loss of his valuable partridge dog, Dude.—Carried.

It was decided to organize a hockey team, from the society. The following are the members:

Goal—Rinker Jack.

Point—Sleepy McCarthy.

Cover Point—Dubby Anderson.

Forwards—Jonas Nelson, Fighting Archie, Howden Doris, Mufraw Elmhirst, sr.

Manager—Denody Kenneally.

Tobin Brown was appointed to look after the conveyance of the team.

Proposed by Hickory Campbell, seconded by Bunny Eason, that the meeting be adjourned. Then Howden stood up and declared the meeting closed.

God Save the King.

—A large black bear was seen on Sunday night last, about a mile north of our village. Two young men were driving in a buggy when bruin made his appearance. The horse became very frightened and so unmanageable that it bolted off the road into a fence corner. We surmise that the occupants of the buggy were equally as scared as the horse.

—A farmer, not far from here, while engaged in plowing, divested himself of his coat and laid it down on a stone in the field. When he unhitched his team in the evening, he carried the coat home and left it in the kitchen until he had partaken of supper. He then went to get his pipe from the pocket of his coat to have a smoke. Imagine his surprise in putting his hand into the pocket to find a green snake nicely coiled on his pipe. We are informed that he invested in a new pipe, as he did not feel inclined to smoke a pipe after a snake.

—Mr. Thomas Tully, our enterprising blacksmith, who had the misfortune to get his ankle broken and dislocated, is, we are pleased to learn, so far recovered from his injuries, under the skillful treatment of Dr. Harrison, as to be able to attend to his duties again. We wish him success in his business, and trust that he will be patronized.

—Mr. John Kane left our village on Monday morning for the North Shore to work in a lumber camp.

—Dr. and Mrs. Harrison have returned from their visit at Ridgetown.

—We are informed that a chicken buyer is to visit this neighborhood in about two weeks. Farmers and others should feed their fowls well, and have them salable when the buyer calls around.

—Cordwood is said to be scarce and the price high. We trust and hope that we will be favored with a mild winter.

THE MOONSTONE SPHINX

By Mrs C N Williamson

Author of The Barn Stormers Fortune's Spor Miss Nobody, Her Royal Highness Lady Mary of the Dark House, etc.

"This is from an invalid, blessed in this world's goods, who, being wheeled in her bath chair along the parade, has heard you sing favorite songs of her childhood in your sweet voice. The pleasure you have given her has been better than medicine; and she begs that you will accept the enclosure as a slight tribute of admiration."

To this sheet of paper Newcome had pinned bank-notes for twenty-five pounds, and had hardly been able to wait in patience until the letter had been delivered at the house by the postman.

Winifred's surprise and bewilderment were quite vivid enough to satisfy his boyish eager anticipations; but he had to put forth all his powers of argument and persuasion before she would entertain the idea of using the money. What could she do with it else? he urged. As she did not know the name of the sender she could not possibly return the present. Why not, then, consider the gift providential, believing that the thought had been put in somebody's head for the purpose of enabling her to go to the mother who needed her? It seemed to him that her course was clear; every other road was blocked.

After her bitter experiences Winifred was inclined to be fearful and easily suspicious. She did not for an instant think of her "partner" as the mysterious benefactor, because, as far as she knew, he was nearly as poor as herself. But she did think of Lionel Macaire, asking herself if he could have found out where she was hiding, and be firing another mine to explode under her feet by and by.

At last, however, the temptation to accept the goods given by the gods was too strong for her. She imagined her mother dying, calling in vain for the daughter who was kept away by a mere scruple. She remembered the debt she still owed to Sir Digby Field, and at the nursing home; and she decided that it would be worse than folly to let the money which could do so much, lie idle. If evil came from it in the future, why, the future must take care of itself.

Having once come to this resolve, she grew quite reckless, for five-and-twenty pounds seemed so much for her to own after those days when she had been looking with respect on every halfpenny. She gave Mrs. Purdy and Clara a present, and very shyly begged Hope Newcome to let her lend him a few sovereigns.

This offer had its humorous side, since the money she was pressing upon him was in reality all his; but Newcome received it with a perfectly grave face. He was on the point of telling her that he needed nothing and would take nothing, when suddenly he had an idea which struck him as brilliant.

"That's awfully good of you," he said, "and I will borrow a sovereign—I really don't want more—on one condition, and one only."

"What is that?" asked Winifred.

"Well, you see, we've been partners, and nothing I hope can ever make us feel like strangers to each other again. And so I can take this money freely from you, if you'll promise me that, in case you should be a little down on your luck at any time, and I was flush, you'd let me lend you something—something really worth while — just supposing, you know, that I could well afford it."

Such a contingency seemed at present rather remote, and so for the pleasure of lending him a pound to-day Winifred pledged herself to his condition for other days to come.

That evening she let him see her off at the station, and he stayed in Brighton for the night (instead of going straight to town to begin work with his sparring partner in preparation for the coming contest), solely for the joy of receiving a letter which Winifred had promised to write.

Next morning the letter came. She had written it before going to bed, in the flat which had once been such a dear home to her and the little mother. Mrs. Gray's relapse had been caused by some bad news about her son, so the girl wrote, though she did not tell what the nature of the news had been; but the nurses hoped for the best, and Winifred thought that the sight of her might do her mother good. She was not alone at the flat, she went on to say; her brother Dick was with her, having come to town only a few days before. And, thanks to Winifred's new riches, they should get on comfortably for a while till "something turned up." Of course, as they had had such sharp reverses of fortune, the flat was now much too expensive for them; but they had it on their hands till it could be sub-let, and so they might better live in it than go elsewhere. If Mr. Newcome came to town while Dick was with her she hoped that he would call upon his late "partner" and her brother.

Hope Newcome thought this the most delightful letter that had ever been written or received; and it went into the pocket nearest his heart, where lay certain documents of a very different character — documents which had brought him to England.

Then he wrote to Winifred, telling her that suddenly-arranged business was calling him to London, and that he should be only too happy to call upon her if she would let him. When this letter had been sent off he went to see Macaire at the Metropole, to say that he was ready for work; but Macaire was engaged, and he was kept waiting.

As a matter of fact, the millionaire was at that moment closeted with a detective in his employ. The man had received a telegram from a colleague in London, with the information that Miss Gray had returned to her flat near Bryanston square, where she had joined her brother quite openly, and had gone with him to the nursing home in Welbeck street, where the mother lay ill, to enquire after the invalid's health.

Where she had been hiding meanwhile had not yet transpired, and Macaire had some sarcastic comments to make upon his employee's methods.

When he had sent the detective away he saw Newcome, and told him that he himself was ready to return to town. He had run down to Brighton for a few days by the sea, as he didn't care to go abroad this year, but after all, London was best; and they might make the journey together, if Newcome liked.

All this seemed very good-natured and unaffected; for Newcome's clothing, although not as conspicuous as that in which he had called upon George Anderson at the Duke of Clarence's, was shabby at best; and hand-

ALMOST SOLID COPPER

One 18-inch vein of 90 per cent copper (almost the solid metal) has been opened up in Copper Queen Extension Claim, one of the six constituting our Montana property, while mining a thirty-foot vein of free milling 18 per cent copper ore, carrying thirty ounces of silver to the ton.

This is so far ahead of our expectations, brilliant as our former prospects were, that we realize the IMMEDIATE building of a mill to handle this magnificent output, equalled in richness only by the Calumet and Hecla mines, is an ABSOLUTE NECESSITY. This will make OUR OWN portion of the stock, as well as THAT ACQUIRED BY THE PUBLIC, for the purposes of this immediate development, worth an immense amount of money in an exceedingly short time.

Help us build a Mill immediately by purchasing our One Dollar Shares, which are offered this week at 30 cents a Share as a Special Inducement to insure the speedy building of the Mill, and we will make your stock yield you an inordinate profit as quickly as the Mill can be put in operation.

We furnish the rich property—you furnish the mill. In a few months it will be in operation—almost before you expect it—and we divide the immense returns.

What is Probably Ahead of the Security Markets

New York, Oct. 30.—Wall street is proverbially notorious for its short memory, and now that the coal strike is a thing of the past, and the election soon to be out of the way, with the substantial assistance the Secretary of the Treasury has recently afforded the time should be again near when a resumption of a sound and healthy appreciation in security values should occur. This is based upon the undoubted solid conditions of all lines of trade and industry in the United States. Railroad earnings continue to pile up increases, and the only immediate problem to be solved grown out of the clearly impeding congestion of freight traffic, resulting from the enormous movement of grain, and cotton, coal and general merchandise in all directions. The grain markets have reflected the recent reports of the unusual lateness of the staple European crops, and the availability of an ample fuel supply will on the one hand tend to increase our imports of pool products, and on the other hand decrease the volume of our imports of iron andsteel from Europe. The buying of St. Paul during the past lively market episode was of the very best character; the time is coming when it will command as high a price as does North West common. Its securities are becoming greater European favorites every day. The London Statist notes that the prices of St. Paul bonds are very high, as most of them mature within a comparatively short period, which will cause a further appreciable reduction in fixed charges by conversion of high interest into low interest bonds. The St. Paul annual report show. that the company at the end of June last, had a credit balance to its income account of $20,082,000, of which $15,560,000 was in cash, besides $4,000,000 in deposit with the various banks and trust companies, on account of renewal and improvement funds. This certainly is a most gratifying and magnificent statement, illustrating the ultra conservatism of the St. Paul management, and plainly demonstrates what is yet ahead for the shareholders of that great company. No wonder the Rockfellers and their associated allied interests continue to be such greedy purchasers of St. Paul stock. No wonder prominent Chicago capitalists decline to sell their immense holdings to these interests at prices materially above the highest ever recorded in the past for that stock.

Summary—What little market there was to-day leaned towards higher prices. After an opening at about last night's closing prices, some hesitancy developed; the room traders, finding that stocks were not freely offered, started in to buy, and prices advanced. After two o'clock St. Paul rose rapidly from 187 1-2 to 189 3-4, from which point it reded slowly. Its action somewhat stimulated the balance of the list. Sluggish movement and extreme market inertia continues to be the feature of trading. The time is now drawing near when market activity will be much more pronounced, then will be materially increased activity and range of fluctuations. Money closed 5 per cent. Total sales 364,000.

C.P.R. TO MIDLAND

There is Every Prospect That the Line will be Built

As will be seen by our telegraphic despatches in this issue, Mr. W. H. Bennet, M.P., who accompanied the Conservative leader, Mr. R. L. Borden, in the recent trip through the Northwest refers to the prospect of the C.P.R. getting into Midland from Peterborough.

Mr, Bennet says that there would be a great advantage in having C.P.R. connection, as this road would then become the leading grain route from the west.

The proposal, as will be remembered, for the C.P.R. to double track the Grand Trunk between Peterborough and Midland. It is expected that work will be begun early in the spring.

When Buying Mining Stock Buy the Best

AN INVESTMENT IN THE

Pitkin Gold Belt Mining and Reduction Company

Which is Safe and Sure of Quick Returns, may Bring an Enormous Return at any Moment. It has the Possibilities of Rivaling the Great Mines of the Past.

This Company has a mile on a true fissure vein, in the center of the Gunniston Gold Belt, Colorado, which is the "Mother" lode or dike, which has produced 15 per cent. more gold than the total output of the Cripple Creek district.

This Mine is no Prospect. Nor is it Waiting on Your Subscription to Buy Machinery or for Development.

After a careful examination by experts, Joseph M. Bradley, M. E., and Mr. George Arlett, A. I. M. E., Amalgamated Copper Company's expert in Chihuahua, Mexico, they advised the purchase of the property. The property had shallow development upon it, showing two ore shoots from which smelting ore had been shipped to the Buena Vista Smelter.

The Company purchased and paid for the latest improved machinery and has put a shaft down 200 feet and intend to carry it down 1000 feet. On the 150 foot level 200 feet of development has been made and an ore shoot has been encountered and blocked out for 57 feet, carrying values in gold from 2 to 9 ounces or $40 to $180 per ton. The cost of mining, hauling, freight and smelters charges will be between $12 and $15 per ton.

Ed. McCarthy & Co., bankers, guarantee a shipping mine of smelting ore running from 2 to 6 ounces in gold, or $40 to $120 per ton, by January 1st, 1903, or all funds will be returned to subscribers upon presentation of receipt issued by said bank.

Also to prospective purchasers of $100 worth of stock we are offering a free trip to Colorado and return. You investigate first and purchase afterward. Could you expect anything fairer than this?

The capital stock of this company is $1,000,000, divided into 1,000,000 shares of stock at $1 each, full paid and non-assessable. A portion of the treasury stock is now offered at

25 CENTS PER SHARE—PAR VALUE $1.00

In one payment, or 20 per cent. down and the balance in four equal monthly payments, for necessary expenditures and improvements on a shipping mine.

Death of Miss Weddell

It is with sincere regret we chronicle the death of Miss Alice Mary Weddell, daughter of Mr. John Weddell, which occurred yesterday morning after a lingering illness. The deceased was beloved by all who knew her and she will be sadly missed. She was a cheerful and active worker in connection with St. Andrew's Sunday school. She was 29 years of age. The funeral will take place to-morrow

The Victoria Hospital

The new Lindsay Hospital will be ready for business in a few days. About $10,000 had been subscribed in Lindsay, and $7,000 outside. It was hoped by the management that this would soon be made $20,000 by further subscriptions. A golden key similar in design to that of the hospital had been ordered and would be presented to Mr. Ross, who gave the hospital to the citizens. Judge Dean is preparing an address to present to Mr. Ross at the opening, and it is proposed to have it illuminated and properly bound at a cost of $100.

MEREDITH PERCY KILLED

Young Man well Known in Peterborough, Accidentally Killed

Word was received yesterday that Mr. Meredith Percy, formerly of Port Hope, only son of Mr. Charles Percy of the audit department, G.T.R. The funeral will take place in Port Hope this after noon, from the station, on the arrival of the G.T.R. flyer. The deceased was well known in Peterborough, where he was highly esteemed.

LOOKING FOR A LOCATION

Large Engine Works Want a Good Site to Build

The Times is in receipt of a letter from Brampton, stating that Mr. J. M. Ross, Sons & Co., of that place are looking for another location for their Haggart works, which manufacture plain and traction engines for Ontario and the Northwest. They propose to manufacture threshers and their farm implements and expect to about treble their business.

For this reason they will be compelled to enlarge their premises and intend to move to some suitable place. They give an estimate of what they will require, namely three or five acres of land, close to a railway, so they can get a switch in, and they purpose erecting buildings about as follows:—One solid brick building, 60 x 200 feet; building 60 x 150 feet, two storey; one metallic storage building 60 x 400 feet.

It would be well for Mayor Dumas and the council to look this matter up.

CONDUCTOR'S WATSON'S DEATH

A Former Havelock Man Killed at Michipicoten

Robert Watson, formerly of Havelock, who was a conductor on the Algoma Central Railway, was killed at Michipicoten on Tuesday, being caught between the engine and trucks while shunting. He died three hours after the accident in Helen Mine Hospital. He was 32 years of age, and leaves a wife and a young son. The body was taken to Havelock, Ont., for burial.

WINTER RACES

The Peterborough Turf Club Decide to Have a Winter Meet

A meeting of the Directors of the Peterborough Turf Club was held yesterday afternoon at the Oriental Hotel.

The lease of the Driving Park from Mr. R. A. Morrow for a term of five years was completed.

It was decided to have two days' races on Tuesday and Wednesday, January 21st and 22nd, in the park, when some handsome purses would be competed for.

The offlicers of the Club are:—Messrs J. M. Brooks, President; Arthur Rountree, Secretary; R. J. Munro, Treasurer.

The splendid success attending the Club's first meet, held last month, augurs well for the future. Under the present management even greater success is assured.

THE NEW BANK MANAGER

Mr. Baillie, Well Known in Peterborough, Head of Bank

Mr. F. W. Baillie, who was yesterday appointed general manager of the new Metropolitan Bank, is well known in Peterborough. His friends here will be delighted to hear of his appointment.

In referring to the matter, the Globe has the following:—This is the day of the young man in business. The truth of this is very well illustrated in the appointment yesterday by the directors of the Metropolitan Bank of Mr. F. W. Baillie, Assistant Manager of the Central Canada Loan Co., as Manager of the Metropolitan Bank, which will soon open for business. Mr. Baillie is just twenty-seven, but in his few years of business life he has climbed to a place of importance in Canadian finance that only the exceptionally gifted reach. Mr. Baillie is probably the youngest man ever chosen as Manager for a large Canadian bank. His friends believe that the wisdom of the appointment will be thoroughly demonstrated in the years to come.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

—Dr. Carmichael has added an X-ray apparatus to his surgery appliances.

—A few county of Peterborough maps left. Splendidly mounted on rollers, for $2.50. Times Bookstore.

—The railway gates at the two Grand Trunk crossings are now in working order.

—A couple of second hand coal stoves for sale cheap. Apply at The Times Bookstore.

Three good boys wanted at The Times office—one to learn bookbinding, one to learn press work and one as messenger in the bookstore.

—A live wire on the poles in front of the Dominion Express Company's office caused some excitement yesterday, by coming in contact with another wire and burning it through.

—The Chief has notified The Times that he will be after the boys who do any damage to-night. Hallowe'en will not be an occasion of mischeif if the police can help it.

—Get your school scribblers at the Times Bookstore. They have the best paper and are the cheapest.

—An eclipse of the sun is set down on the calendar to take place this evening. It will not be visible here, however, but other events will probably take place to-night, if the boys are allowed to do as they have done in the past.

—Campbellford Herald:—Mr. E. E. Plummer, of Campbellford, has made the purchase of a 21-foot steam launch from a party in Peterborough, which he intends to place in the waters of the Trent river, either at Percy Boom or Healey Falls next spring. He expects its arrival here this week.

—Lindsay Watchman-Warder:—Yesterday morning a man named Sisson of Manvers, appeared before Magistrate Steers charged with bigamy—or if marrying four women is known by any other name he was likely chargeable with that, for it is said that he has a quartette of helpmates. His case will be investigated a week hence.

—Once when Judge Weller was trying a case he was disturbed by a young man who kept moving about in the rear of the room, lifting chairs and looking under things. "Young man" Judge Weller called out, you are making a great deal of unnecessary noise. What are you about? "Your honor," replied the young man, "I have lost my overcoat and am trying to find it." "Well," said the jurist, "people often lose whole suits in here without making all that disturbance."

—There will be no public holiday on November 9th this year. The Government has decided to issue a proclamation fixing May 24th as the day upon which His Majesty's birthday shall be observed. In the Interpretation Act it is provided that the expression "holiday" includes among other days in the year, "the birthday or the day fixed by proclamation for the celebration of the birthday of the reigning sovereign." It is on the action of the King in selecting May this year for the celebration of his natal day that the Government proposes to act as indicated.

BIG G

CURE YOURSELF!

[illegible]

Toil and the Designer of Things.

A gray mist scudded in front of the patch of blue sky that all afternoon had been peering between the tall buildings into the studio window, and carried away most of the light with it.

The Boy was glad of this, for his faith in himself was about gone. He gathered up his brushes, throwing a few curses at the weather as he did so in a bravado sort of fashion. He was determined not to be a fool this time and seek unsatisfactory sympathy from people who could not understand. Instead, he would go down to the "Vesuvio" and allow its liquid flame to consume his mood.

"Better be drunk than foolish," he said to the Girl as he started for the door. "I'm tired of this breathless pursuit of the Ideal. After all, if I did overtake her, I don't suppose she'd be worth while. This torture of self-denial, of looking forever over the roof in vain desire for the things that may never be, while the hot blood of youth in your veins commands you to drink deep of the things that are, is insanity. To the devil with work and the dreams of doing."

"It is discouraging, isn't it?" said the Girl. "I felt that way myself until you spoke. I looked at your work this afternoon and envied you."

"Envied me? Don't laugh at a fellow because you've happened to find the way to success. Suppose you do manage to paint good canvases and win plaudits. Ten million people have had the same little reward for the same mighty struggle. Already the wear and worry is showing on you. In ten years youth will be gone from you and all you'll have for it will be the memory of heart's blood painted into canvas for trivial 'mention,' and tragic realization of your limitations. The wise man is he who refuses to do what he is able to do; our ability always seems so much greater to us until we put it to the test. Never give yourself a chance. That's the only way to escape heart-break."

The Girl was fragile in the gray light. She stood at the window looking into the twilight that fell in hopelessness among the crowding walls of unsightly buildings. The Boy took a step toward the door. Then the Girl turned.

"I wish you would not talk like that," she said. "It hurts. Have I ever said I expected to do great things? You know I haven't. I was mean to-day and half envied you for your gift. But I don't want to envy anybody. I try not to think of future or fame, for it is thinking of self-glory that brings pain and disappointment. I try to do my work as best I can because it is my work and because I must do it. I know it is delightful to win success. We can't help feeling that our effort has won approval. But I don't work for success. I put my heart into my pictures because I have to, and if by so doing I can soften, if only for an instant, some other heart; bring a look of wistfulness into a careless eye; waken a longing in a dreamless soul, I have the greatest of rewards. Work for work's sake demands no sacrifice. On the contrary, it leads our feet into the ways where perfect happiness may be gathered.

"I know how weak I am and how discouraged I grow even yet. But discouragement never lingers long. All I need do is remind myself that I am not an isolated toiler wearing out my own destiny in unsympathetic solitude, but one of many who are working to carry to completion the wonderful plan of the great Designer of things beautiful.

"There are no failures. Your discouragement helps me to catch the shadows my portion of the picture needs to-day; my rebellion shows you the glorious light of patience and sympathy your brush must depict."

"It's easy to talk hopefully when you're already in the sunlight of success," replied the Boy as he grasped the door-knob. "I'm tired of the shadows and am determined to get out of them I'll enjoy myself in idleness for a while. I'll be on hand to help hang the Picture Beautiful when it is finished. I'm done with brushes."

The Girl laid her hand lightly on the Boy's shoulder. "What great work you are going to do," she said. "Some of the wonderful touches in the picture have been reserved for you. You are not 'tired of the pursuit of the Ideal.' You are only impatient that your hand has not yet the wonderful skill your soul demands of it. Be patient; there's not only Time but Eternity for our work."

They stepped into the corridor and paused in silence. From a room opposite some divine melody drifted to them. The Boy was glad of the darkness, for his eyes were wet. He grasped the Girl's hand.

"I thank you," he said. "I guess I was only impatient."—Leavenworth MacNab.

Their Steering-Gear.

A professor of a profound subject at Harvard University has a small son who is very observant and inquisitive, and a hired man who has all the Irish wit and good humor.

The other day Albert, the small boy, was playing with a cat in the stable while Larry cleaned the harness.

"Say, Larry," he asked, "why do cats always stand on their feet?"

"They shteer themsilves wid their tail."

"Well, how do rabbits steer themselves? They haven't long tails; only a stub."

"Wid their ears. That's phwat they have their long ears for."

"Well, how does a bulldog steer himself? He doesn't have long ears or a long tail."

"Wid his bark."

The boy looked doubtful and was silent. Presently he ran in to his father's study, and in a few minutes came back to the stable.

"Larry!"

"Yis?"

"That's true what you told me about bulldogs. I asked papa, and he read something to mamma out of a book about 'barks that steer against the wind.'"

Fate.

Once there were two beautiful white eggs laid side by side in a nice new nest. A great big man gathered them up with his rough hands and sold them to a grocer. And one little egg was a good little egg, and went into an angel cake, but the other little egg was a very, very bad little egg, and got mashed on an actress.

JULIEN'S LANDING.

—The people of this locality had better use pretty good judgment in future as to who they deal with in buying agricultural implements. A "smart" agent of the Massey Harris Company received a payment on a wagon in the morning, and in the afternoon while the innocent party, who had purchased the wagon was away, hired a gang and took possession of the wagon, and being intercepted by the just party and told by him to either give up securities or wagon, he presented a loaded shot gun at his head and defied him. I want to know is this legitimate business or not?

A Strong Man

Is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from indigestion or some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs of digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man doesn't feel just right, when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous and irritable, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man needs to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, stimulates the liver, nourishes the nerves, and so gives health and strength to the whole body.

Mr. Thomas A. Swarts, of Sub. Station C, Columbus, Ohio, Box 103, writes: "I was taken very sick with severe headache, then cramps in the stomach and my food would not digest, then kidney and liver trouble and my back got weak so I could scarcely get around. The more I doctored the worse I got until six years passed. I could only walk in the house by the aid of a chair, and I had given up to die. Then one of my neighbors said, 'Take my advice and take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and make a new man out of yourself.' The first bottle helped me and after I had taken eight bottles in about six weeks I was weighed and found I had gained twenty-seven (27) pounds, and I am as stout and healthy to-day, I think, as I ever was."

COAL $5.00 A TON

WITH THE WONDERFUL

STAR HEATER

The only heater that is guaranteed to give satisfaction with soft as well as hard coal. As a fuel economizer it is unequalled, producing heat on about one-third the coal used in any other heater in existence.

The Star has a tube behind for the escape of the gas. As anyone who uses soft coal knows, the gas accumulates under the fresh coal, and if there is no escape there will be explosions and puffs of smoke. In the Star this disappears in the gas escape. The Star has a sliding damper and ornamental door of mica.

After being filled, the Star will heat for 48 hours without attention. It will hold fire and give out heat longer than any other stove.

The Star is 25 per cent more economical than any other stove.

MORE THAN 5,000 ARE IN USE IN THE LOWER PROVINCES.

PRICE LIST

3	37 1-2 in.	12 in	$19.20
4	42 in.	15 in	$23.00

DIRECTIONS

When filling the stove always shut the draught door at the bottom.

Keep the small opening in the back pipe closed except when cleaning.

Clean the back pipe every two weeks.

COAL CONSUMERS, ATTENTION!

We are using one No. 3 Star stove in our large rooms, where formerly we had four large wood heaters, and get more heat now than before. The wood stoves cost us $4.50 every week for fuel, and the Star stove which we are now using costs us only $1.50, making a saving of $3.00 per week in the price of fuel—which would soon pay for the stove. We can recommend this stove to any person wanting a first-class heater. We would not use any other stove that is made.

ST. PETER'S T.A.S.

M. J. Serre, Chairman Trustees.

We certify that we have in use one No. 3 Star stove in our large pool and billiard room, the size of which is 45x23 ft., with 15 ft. ceiling. We have perfect heat, and the most coal we have used on the coldest day yet has been three scuttles in 24 hours. We are so well pleased with the stove that we would not use any other.

ROCAMORA & CALLAHAN.

I have been using a No. 3 Star stove in the sitting room at the City Hotel for some time past, and it has proved so satisfactory that I have ordered two more to replace two stoves in the upstairs. The Star gives more heat than the other stoves with half the amount of coal.

MARTIN CONNORS.

We have in use in our composing room a No. 3 Star coal stove, and wish to state that it is giving eminent satisfaction. The entire absence of gas by the escape provided, the increase of heat and the saving in coal are special features of the Star, and it requires a minimum of attention.

RIDING OF NORTH PERTH A VERY UNCERTAIN ONE

Past History of the Constituency Just Vacated Makes It Doubtful as to Who Will Win

Toronto, Ont., October 31 —The riding of North Perth, which has recently been deprived of a representative by the resignation of the Conservative member-elect, Mr. John C. Monteith, is a riding of a rather varied political history. It is one of those constituencies which are situated within the fighting line, and it is practically impossible to credit a victory to either party until the last vote has been counted. The political battle in North Perth is generally won in the City of Stratford and the Town of Listowel, and as neither of these places are very certain of their political complexion, a keen struggle is looked for by both the political parties in the riding. North Perth would be a Conservative stronghold but for the presence of the township which belongs to the Hon. Jas. Sutherland (North Oxford) for Dominion purposes has a Liberal majority of about 700. Since 1890 the riding has gone twice Liberal and three times Conservative In 1890 Dr. Ahrens (Liberal) defeated Geo. Hess (Conservative) by 92, in the bye-election which followed Thomas Magwod (Conservative) defeated Dr. Ahrens by 46. In 1894, T. Magwod defeated Geo. McPherson, Liberal, by 108 and in 1898 Magwood was defeated by John Brown, Liberal, by 160. At the last election J. C. Montieth (Conservative) won the riding from Brown by 2 majority.

RUSSIA'S POLICY IS CONCILIATING IN DEALING WITH BALKAN TROUBLES

The Russian Bear Seeks to Be On Good Terms With Great Britain Austria and Turkey

CZAR LOOKS TO LORD ROSEBERY

Return to Power of the Liberal Government Would Facilitate Liberal Plans

London, Oct. 31.—Attention is attracted afresh to the international situation by indication of special diplomatic activity on the part of the Russian Government.

"There is good reason to believe," says the St. Petersburg correspondent of the Politsche Correspons of Vienna, an unusually well informed paper, "that Count Lamsdorff, conscious that Muscovite policy in the Balkans and in Manchuria antagonizes too many interests, has set himself to the task of consolidating Russia's position abroad by establishing better relations with Vienna, Constantinople, and London. The moves are complicated; but the Russian Foreign Minister is an adroit player."

It is with London that the greatest difficulty is found. But St. Petersburg is aware that if a re-arrangement of parties in Britain should bring in an administration under Rosebery, many obstacles now existing to an improvement of Anglo-Russian relations would be removed. Rosebery, like Salisbury, has held for years to the doctrine that there is room enough in Asia for both Britain and Russia; and when at the Foreign Office he often went more than half way to meet the Czar's advisers in Asiatic concerns.

ROSEBERY INCLINES TO RUSSIA.

In his latest parliamentary allusions to Eastern affairs he urged the British electorate not to allow their hands to be tied too tightly, by the Lansdowne Hayashi convention, taking the ground that although it was of the first importance to maintain close relations with Japan it was not less vital to avoid "Reviving the exploded fiction of antiquated diplomacy as to irreconcilable differences between Russia and England."

They watch British domestic politics closely from the Russian capital and a return of Rosebery to power would do much to allay the irritation which began with Chamberlain's declaration that "Muscovite methods bear watching and he who sups with the devil must use a long spoon."

Rosebery does not regard the Manchurian issue with the anxiety professed by leading members of the coalition government. If Britain can hold her own in the Yang-Tse valley, he is not supremely solicitous as to what happens in the North. An administration directed by him would listen to appeals for a give-and-take arrangement between London and St. Petersburg.

ROSEBERY AND DELCASSE FRIENDS.

Rosebery's relations with M. Delcasse who is likely to direct the French Foreign Office for a long time, are calculated to increase the favor in which both statesmen are held by the Russian government. Moreover, the school of able British writers who insist that the trump card for Britain in the old world is "an understanding" with Russia always point to Rosebery as the man to negotiate.

Of late there has been a tendency on the part of the Russian press to flatter Rosebery at the expense of some other British statesmen. References in the continental press, "to changes that would ensue in Britain's Asiatic policy were the Balfour cabinet to disappear," suggests that Europe would not be surprised at a marked improvement between the leading two old world powers should there be a general turn over in the United Kingdom.

Austro-Russian relations also show a change for the better. Count Goluchowski's warnings to Russia as to the effect upon the Austro-Hungary opinion of the collapse of the agreement of 1897 by which Russia and Austria undertook to maintain the status quo in the Balkans and under no condition to give military aid to Bulgaria in any effort to realize the ideal of a "Greater Bulgaria" have apparently had the desired effect.

BULGARIA GIVEN WARNING.

According to the Fremdenblatt, Russia has given the Bulgarian aspirants to a larger position in the Balkan peninsula than consorts with European peace, a timely reminder, through properly accredited channels, that Bulgaria must not expect Russia to sacrifice $250,000 in order to realize the treaty of San Stefano and extend Macedonia to the Bulgarians.

The Neue Wiener Tageblatt quotes from the Vosdi of St. Petersburg as follows:

"While Russia naturally sympathizes with the pan-Slav movement, it is no part of her programme to tolerate premature agitation and revolutionary schemes calculated to create a new and independent state in the Balkans. Such dreams are idle. So long as Francis Joseph lives this must be Russian policy if only to provide against contingencies which his removal in the course of nature would invite."

This marks a new era in Austro-Russian relations.

At Constantinople the Russian project is a treaty giving Russian warships certain exclusive privileges in Ottoman waters in a war involving either power. There is no truth in the rumor of an attempt to revive the Unkiar-Skelessi treaty, by which the Black Sea would have been converted into a Russian lake. But, short of that, there is room for concessions of enormous naval value to St. Petersburg, and the anxiety of the Sultan to get rid of the indemnity to Russia inclines him to make them if Britain can be placated.

It comes to this: Russia is seeking lines of less resistance than those she has been following so brilliantly, yet at such frightful expense, for two decades.

COAL MEN CANNOT NOW SQUEEZE ANYONE

It Has Been Demonstrated That Coal is Not Necessity

THE STRIKE HAS PROVED MUCH

Capital Will Now Be Invested in Peat Fuel and Other Mines Will Be Sought

The strike has set some people thinking, and especially has it promoted the peat industry. The works at Balsam Lake, we understand, will be put into active operation in the spring, and other peat bogs will be exploited. This is one effect of the strike.

Coal dealers in Toronto and American cities are of the opinion that it would be useless to take advantage of the strike developments to either increase the prices or even continue the present scale.

"There is practically no demand for coal," said a prominent dealer in Toronto yesterday. "This talk of making the people pay high prices for coal this winter in consequence of the situation is absurd. The majority of the people are prepared for cold weather and if they were asked unreasonable prices they would not buy any coal. They would use their gas stoves instead. So I do not think there will be any imposition of this kind. In fact, I believe that within a reasonable time the prices will return to the level at which they were before the beginning of the strike."

From another source comes the promise that there will be a plentiful supply of coal at former prices. This assurance comes from President Baer, who says that as soon as work is resumed to coal will be rushed to the cities.

There was no change made yesterday in the prevailing prices and the scale will probably continue in effect until the big shipments from the anthracite region begin to arrive.

Stirling News-Argus:—Mr. W. W. Hagerman, of Peterborough, has been spending the week here, being laid up with blood-poisoning in his hand and arm.

COAL COMMISSION BEGINS REAL WORK

Party of Fourteen Start to Look Over Mining District

WON'T TAKE EVIDENCE NOW

All The Troops Will be Ordered Home For The Begining of Next Week

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 30.—The real work of the arbitration commission appointed by President Roosevelt to adjust the differences existing between the coal operators and their employees began to-day. Briefly stated, the day's work will consist of a general inspection of the inside and outside workings of coal mines and the homes and surroundings of the workmen. All of the region lying north of here to Forest City, a stretch of 22 miles, will be gone over. This will take up the entire day. To-morrow and Saturday the mining region from here south to Wilkesbarre will be looked over.

The commission is making this tour so that the members may gain a better idea of mining in order to more intelligently understand the testimony which will be given by experts on each side of the controversy. No testimony will be taken during the inspection trips. The commission party consists of 14 persons.

The entire party, which also includes four general mining superintendents and a number of newspaper correspondents, left the Delware and Hudson Railroad station for Forest City this morning on a special train of Pullman cars, the expense of which is borne by the commission.

TROOPS WILL ALL LEAVE.

Pottsville, Oct. 31—It is expected that all the troops in the coal region will be ordered home before the beginning of next week. The first battalion of the Second Regiment stationed at St. Clair, and the first battalion of the Third Regiment at Minersville, left for Philadelphia today. General Schall said to-day that the two battalions of the Third Regiment at Audenreid will be sent home home to-morrow.

All the collaries in the Panther Creek Valley resumed operations to-day. The Park Place Colliery, in the Mahony region, resumed to-day after a week's idleness. One thousand employee had gone on strike because several union men were not reinstated. The leaders prevailed upon the men to return to work with the understanding that those who were discriminated against will be provided for by the union until they have secured employment elsewher.

St. John's Dedication Festival

The Dedication Festival will be held on Sunday next. Among the events in connection with the occasion will be a Young People's Social on Monday evening next, to be arranged for at a meeting of young men tomorrow evening. On Tuesday evening, Nov. 7th, a Turkish Social will be given, a feature of which will be an address on "Turkey," given by Rev. Mr. Brooke, formerly Chaplain to the British embassy at Constantinople.

GREAT BRITAIN'S POWER EXTENDING

The Effect of the Purchase of the Bay of Lorenzo Marquez

FOREVER WIPES THE BOERS OUT

No Munitions of War Can Ever Reach the Conquered Republics

London, Oct. 31—If Great Britain could have controlled the port of Lorenzo Marquez, on Delagoa Bay, during and just before the Boer war, her military position would have been much stronger, and the resources of the Transvaal sooner exhausted. As Lorenzo Marquez was the port of a neutral power, with its commerce open to all nations during the war, the British authorities found themselves unable to detect contraband freights and thus prevent shipment of supplies to the enemy. As it was, the seizure of German vessels nearly led to an international quarrel and explanations had to be made. Now future trouble will be obviated by Britain and Germany purchasing or leasing the whole of Portuguese East Africa and dividing it between them. The southern portion will become British. Details of the arrangement will, it is said, be discussed when the German Emperor and King of Portugal go to London soon. The advantages which will thus accrue to the British Empire in South Africa are considerable. By extending the Transvaal Colony to the coast it will place the trade of the region and the means of transportation under British control. The two principal railroads centering at Lorenzo Marquez are the Delagoa Bay Railway, which places Pretoria by rail 350 miles from the coast, and Johannesburg 400 miles, and the Beira Railway, which extends north in Rhodesia. The extension and development of these valuable lines of communication are specially important to Great Britain, and for military reasons equally necessary. The long line of railway down to Cape Town, over 1,000 miles in length was the sole effectual means of communication with the interior during the war, and its protection from the enemy imposed a great task on the military forces. If troops, munitions of war, and commercial traffic could have used Delagoa Bay as an alternative route throughout the course of hostilities, the fight would have terminated earlier. That Portugal finds herself unable to maintain the position of a great colony-owning state, is in no way discreditable to the nation. But it is becoming clearer every day that colonial territories abroad mean not merely the keeping of a large naval force, but also financial resources of immense extent. In these respects Great Britain is far superior to all her European rivals.

THE LATE MRS. JOHNSTON

A Tribute to a Woman Who was Much Esteemed and Beloved

The Millbrook Reporter has the following reference to the death of the late Mrs. Alexander Johnston, who had relatives living in Peterborough:—

"She was full of good works and alms deed which she did," was the sorrowful and sympathetic cry of the weeping ones who had shared in the beneficence of one of the mothers to old whose voice had been stilled by the fluttering wings of death's angel. And perhaps no excerpt from sacred or other story, could more fully portray the beautiful life of Mrs. Johnston, who, having served her alloted time on earth, entered into her reward on Sunday morning last. Although not strong of constitution for years she went in and out amongst her friends until about a year ago, but for the last few weeks it was known by her friends that the span of life was gradually closing up. She who had often passed under the rod of affliction, yet never murmured or complained, whose presence was a benediction, and whose life was a halo of inspiration to good works, has passed from amongst us, and while many besides her near and dear ones will drop sad tears of regret, as they recall their helpfulness, methinks the still sweet voice of the departed may be heard from the apparent darkness, singing in hope,

"But with the morn, those angel
Faces smile that we have loved long
Since and lost awhile."

With three children who died in childhood, and a daughter in budding womanhood and her husband who was laid to rest some thirteen years ago all in the better land, it was not strange that her life and words were attuned to the symphonies of heaven and now she has joined her loved ones there. To her only son, Mr. H. W. Johnston, and her sister, Miss O'Brien, whose sorrow will be most deeply felt, and to the other brothers and sisters the community will extend their sincere sympathy. In her church work and munificence she will be much missed. She loved God's house, and when able was a very regular attendant. Rev. Mr. Johnston, of the Presbyterian Church, her pastor, conducted the funeral services at the house on Tuesday afternoon and the funeral took place to Centerville cemetery followed by very many sorrowing friends.

SAYS NEGROE IS DEGENERATING

English Luthern Pastor Declares Race is Deteriorating Physically and Morally

Muscatine, Ia., Oct. 31.—A sensation was created here by the Rev. J. L. Murphy of the English Lutheran church, who said in a lecture that the study of the sociological condition of the negro to-day proved that he was deteriorating in this country, and would lapse in barbarism and finally become extinct. He said that before the war the negro was trustworthy and the honor of any woman of the South was safe without the protection of white men. To-day, however, a white woman scarcely dared to venture forth alone Mr. Murphy says the black man is becoming degraded also physically in the South.

In addition to the above named assets the bank holds notes amounting to the amount of $3000.00, which are considered to be absolutely worthless. A package of notes, to the amount of $3000.00, which had been on deposit at the Traders Bank at Port Hope, as collateral security, had been withdrawn by Mr. Benson, the late manager, a few days before the bank closed its doors, and no trace of them can be found. Even if those notes turn up the liabilities will be considerably in excess of the assets.

Mr. Linton stated that he would be able to pay the creditors 30 cents on the dollar, forthwith. In all probability if the notes can be collected and no litigation or anything unforeseen occurs, and by the most careful management, an additional dividend of 20 per cent. will be declared in a few weeks.

Mr. Linton is anxious to satisfy his creditors and will do everything in his power to do so. Orono creditors receive the same amount as the Lakefield creditors.

It appears that the late manager, Mr. T. H. Benson, had misrepresented the statement of the bank's affairs in the village for some time past, and in his statement to the head office on September 30th, he showed a considerable surplus. When the books were being audited, a deficiency of quite a large amount was shown.

On Wednesday cheques were issued to all depositors, made out of 30 per cent. of their claims, and it is likely that they will be accepted by them, and a further dividend anxiously looked for.

GRAND TRUNK IMPROVEMENTS

The Company Making Extensive Changes on the Main Line

The Grand Trunk Railway improvements at Whitby are now in full swing. The Henry street bridge is completed. It is entirely of frame, but is a very large bridge. On Sunday morning last the work of demolishing the Brock street bridge was begun, and it will not be long before a larger new bridge at this point is completed. The steam shovel has been at work during the week digging out the embankment so as to permit three tracks to be placed under the new bridge, which was used at Pickering during the recent improvements there. It is to be the one that will span Brock street for the present wooden abutments will be built beneath it, but as soon as time will permit stone abutments will be substituted. The work of the new station, too, is to be undertaken immediately and will be located just east of Byron street on the north side of the track. The past ... the old station has been raised so that the roadbed is now about on the level with the roof of the station. In going over the line east of town, one it is like climbing a mountain, owing to the elevation of the track. A large number of Italians are doing the work and things are being rushed to completion. From the present appearance the G.T.R. is completing its work at Whitby in such a manner as to be highly satisfactory. This is all the more appreciable in view of the recent agitation against the company. The company propose to take up the Peterborough and Belleville section next year.

POSITIVE CURE FOR LEPROSY NOW FOUND

Dr. Adolph Raslag, a Naturalized American, Works Wonders

A Dying Man Made Whole—News of the Discovery Creates A Sensation

Washington, Oct. 31—There will be made public by the state department in a few days a consular report that will create a sensation in the medical and scientific world. It will be the report of United States Consul Robert M. McWade, stationed at Canton, China, in which will be set forth for the first time, the wonderful results of a cure for leprosy that has been tested in Southern China.

Mr. McWade is in Washington now enjoying a leave of absence from his post, to which he was appointed a few years ago. It is his narrative of a cure for the most terrible disease known to man, leprosy. He expects it to meet with skeptical criticism, but he will lay before the public in a State Department report, the plain facts of what has been accomplished by this cure in the leper colony at Canton.

RESULTS OF TREATMENT.

"Can you tell me some of the results of this cure?" the consul was asked.

"I have no objections, as the results are of public knowledge in the Orient, but I do not care to go into the details and history of the discovery."

"Who is the discoverer of the leprosy cure?"

"Dr. Adolph Raslag, a naturalized American, a native, I believe of Austria and educated in the medical schools of Vienna."

"How did you happen to meet him?" Consul McWade was asked.

"Of course, his being an American brought us together at once," replied the consul, "and my interests and sympathies were aroused when he explained the nature of the work he was engaged in. I have always taken the keenest interest in everything that tends to allay human suffering and ameliorate the condition of the poor and lowly, and the mission of Dr. Raslag appealed to me with peculiar force. I was able to enlist the sympathy of the Viceroy of the Province, and I can now say that individual now regards Dr. Raslag as the most famous man of centuries. Not long before I left Canton the Viceroy said that he regarded Dr. Raslag's treatment of leprosy as the greatest discovery, not only of a century, but of many centuries. I firmly believe that time will prove this to be true."

SOME CURES EFFECTED.

"Have there been absolute cures effected by this treatment?" Mr. McWade was asked.

"There certainly have been cures," he answered emphatically.

"There are today in the leper colony in Canton, segregated from other cases, fourteen who show every symptom of absolute recovery from the ravages of that horrible disease. There is one case in particular which to my mind is simply marvelous. It is that of a big Chinese coolie in whom the disease had made such progress as to make it a question of a few days or weeks at the furthest when death would relieve him. From a stalwart man he had been reduced to a repulsive cripple, with bent back and twisted limbs. He could scarcely crawl along the ground.

"This was one of the cases segregated from the colony for the purpose of Dr. Raslag's experiments. How successful the remedy is can be better understood when I tell you that the coolie is today working as an angel man, is able to carry five or six hundred pounds burden all day long, and the only evidence of his leprosy is in the cicatrized wounds on his feet body and hands. The man is strong and well today. This is one case of the fourteen that have been under treatment for six or eight months."

Mr. McWade declined to go into further explanations of the new leprosy cure. He is very much delighted with his post at Canton and has introduced some Philadelphia ideas in Canton. His experience as a president of the famous Five O'clock Club has stood him in good stead and contributed in no small degree to his success as the American representative in China.

Mr. McWade has organized a "Five O'clock Club," patterned somewhat after its Philadelphia prototype. Its membership is limited to fifteen and a unanimous vote of the club is necessary to fill a vacancy caused by death. Mr. McWade is president of the club and the only foreigner who is likely ever to become a member of it. The rest of the members are Chinese officials and merchants.

THE ALASKAN BOUNDARY

Alleged Monuments Merely Ruins Of Indian Stone Huts

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 31.—Archibald Campbell, road superintendent, who is down from Porcupine, says the boundary monuments alleged to have been discovered and stated to be the demarcation of the Alaskan boundary, are merely the ruins of stone huts built by Indians.

Grover Cleveland is to make one little speech on behalf of his own party, but he does so with diffidence, lest some one ask why he goes superfluous on the stage. How soon will the progressive and business-like Americans tire of a prejudice which prevents a party from utilizing the services of its most experienced and successful leaders? If Cleveland had been beaten on the two occasions that he won the Presidency he could now be in politics; but, having succeeded, he put an end to his own political life.

THE STRIKING MINERS

Strike at Coxe, Markle and Silver Brook Mines Officially Renewed

Hazelton, Pa., Oct. 31.—The strike at the seven collieries of Coxe Brothers & Company, the four mines of G. B. Markle & Company, and the Silver Brook operation of J. S. Wentz & Company, was officially renewed to-day, on an order issued by District Secretary Gallagher, of the United Mine Workers, upon instructions from President Mitchell. The strikers at those mines were not permitted to return to work in a body. The Coxes insisted that their employes make personal application for their former positions, and G. B. Markle & Company required that employes before going back to work should promise to abide by the decision of the arbitration commission. The mine workers object that the object of these requirements is discrimination against men who were prominent in the strike.

UNION LABEL

PETERBOROUGH, NOV. 1, 1902.

CANADA AND NEWFOUNDLAND

It seems that the Bond-Blaine treaty is all right again, only it may not be the Bond-Blaine treaty, and it may not be quite all right. But the Newfoundler Bond party are vigorously threatening dire vengeance upon all and sundry who may stand in the way of its final adoption. It is likely that the Gloucester fishermen will be about the first to feel their awful wrath. As for Canada, Newfoundland may never come into Confederation if we object to having a British colony discriminate against us in favor of a foreign nation. And Newfoundland would be such a fine place for a generous Minister of Public Works to get rid of lots of our good money in! And that French Shore question would be such a comfort to us! And Newfoundland would be so apt to want confederation with us if she had commercial union with the United States, knowing that confederation with Canada would kill commercial union with our neighbor! It is an awful, awful threat.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Grover Cleveland is to make one little speech on behalf of his own party, but he does so with diffidence, lest some one ask why he lugs superfluous on the stage. How soon will the progressive and business-like Americans tire of a prejudice which prevents a party from utilizing the services of its most experienced and successful leaders? If Cleveland had been beaten on the two occasions that he won the Presidency he could now be in politics; but, having succeeded, he put an end to his own political life.

If they had only had our resourceful Government in the United States, they would have arranged for the celebration of "Mitchell's Day" by the miners, when the miners had nothing in particular to do. Over here we shift the King's birthday about to suit the holiday season.

Quebec has all the spending departments of the Dominion Government, although Ontario is the milch cow of the whole ranch.

The weather conditions in the Northwest should soon be of a character to chill the religious enthusiasm of those Doukhobors.

TO COLD TO BOIL EGGS

Uncle Bill Tells How One Klondiker Tried It—Strange Consequences

I'll bet this here coal strike must 'a caused th' durndest sort of sufferin' up in th' Klondike."

Uncle Bill shook his head at the very thought of it.

"Why, it's so pesky cold up thar even when they do have coal, that—say, did I ever tell ye th' experience old Cy Draper's boy Jake had tryin' t' cook eggs in th' Klondike?

"Wall, first mornin' he wuz thar he took his ice pick an' pried four eggs off'n th' heap of provisions he'd brought along.

"Then he built a roarin' hot fire and set th' kettle on. 'Long sometime that afternoon th' water commenced t' bile a mite, an' he dumped th' eggs in. Late that night he shoveled some more coal on th' fire an' then went tew bed.

"Next morning he thought his eggs must be nigh done an' fished one out with the ice tongs.

"You'll hardly believe it, sir, but when he split it open thet egg wuz plump raw. Why, it wuz skeercely warmed through.

"But Jake wasn't discouraged. He just shoveled on more coal an' prepared two wait a spell longer.

"At th' end of th' third day th' kettle wuz almost biled dry, an' he had to add more water. Four days after that he opened another egg. It wuz just warmed through an' that's all.

"On th' night of the twentieth day Jake fully determined tew bile them eggs at any cost, shoveled his last ton of coal on an' opened all the draughts.

"'Them eggs must be done by t'morrow,' he said tew himself.

"Next mornin' bright and early he wuz suddently awakened by a terrible squakin an' flappin'.

"He rushed intew th' kitchen an' looked in th' kettle.

"Would you believe it, sir, that kettle was biled dry again an' thar in th' bottom wuz two little chickens a dancin' 'round an' flappin' their wings acrost their chests tryin' in vain tew keep warm.

"To see, it's so durned cold in th' Klondike thet bilin' water up thar ain't no hotter'n an ordinary incubator down here.

"What became of th' chickens? Oh, th' minit Jake took 'em outer th' kettle th' poor little critters froze tew death."

THE MOONSTONE SPHINX

By Mrs C N Williamson

Author of The Barn Stormers, Fortune's Spor Miss Nobody, Her Royal Highness Lady Mary of the Dark House, etc.

some and well set up as the wearer was, many men in Macaire's position might not have cared to have him for a traveling companion.

Macaire had his own special car, made after an American model, and it was to accompany him in this gorgeous conveyance that Newcome found himself invited. The millionaire was taciturn at first, appearing to be absorbed in singularly engrossing thoughts, the gruesome, glazed skin on his forehead twitching nervously from time to time; but after a while his mood completely changed. He talked rapidly, and even picturesquely, about sporting matters in general, and boxing in particular, seeming vastly keen upon the subject. He described Joe Nash, otherwise Joey the Kid, advising and warning Newcome of the best way to "tackle" so wary and formidable a customer; and then drifted into talk of the Stock Exchange, growing almost confidential at last, describing some of his own early successes, and illustrating the maxim that "money makes money." He had had but a moderate fortune to start with, he said, scarcely thirty thousand pounds; but he had been ambitious, and he had had ideas. At the age of twenty-eight or thirty he had made up his mind exactly as to what he wanted in life, and determined to get it. He had speculated, and been phenomenally lucky, and the result had been—well, he would not say how much, but all the money was ever likely to want. Then he deigned to describe one or two of his first great coups, and Newcome listened with attention.

Only a short time ago he had not been conscious of high worldly ambitions. He had always been poor, had even known great hardships since reaching manhood, and he had expected to remain poor. If he could accomplish the one task to which a beloved woman had solemnly dedicated his life he had thought that he would be satisfied. Afterwards it would not matter so much what happened to him, though no doubt he would rub on somehow well enough when he went back to the States, where he was known and could get something decent to do.

But now all was suddenly changed. He was in love, and he wanted Winifred Gray more than he had dreamt it was possible for a man to want anything. Ambition awoke with the prospect of the strange adventure in which he was engaging. Talk of money interested him. His heart quickened at the story told by Macaire, and though his face betrayed nothing, seeming even indifferent as he listened without any particular expression to the tale of how a man, beginning at an age not much greater than his own, had grasped fortune, he missed not one detail of a single anecdote. Macaire, though he fancied himself a student of character, would have been surprised could he have seen into Hope Newcome's mind.

When the millionaire was tired of telling of his successes and how they had been made, he turned the conversation to the duties of rich men. He did not pose as a dispenser of charity, he remarked. That sort of thing he left to the fellows who wanted to get on the soft side of the princesses and work for titles. As for him, he thought knighthoods positively vulgar, they smelt of soap, beer, or groceries, and baronetcies weren't much better, unless a chap was born to them.

"I shouldn't sleep of nights if I didn't feel I was doing some good in the world," he exclaimed, with the well-executed air of frankness which those who knew him intimately recognized at once as leading up to something—something for which they had better keep their eyes open. "But I don't go in for charity in a lump—the kind that's meant to get into the papers; presents of Christmas turkeys to fifty thousand poor people, or endowing hospitals, or giving gold plate to cathedrals. I like to help individuals, not the regular 'slummers,' though it's well enough to look after them, too, but people who have had hard luck, and want just a 'hand-up' out of the slough. Now, for one instance of what I mean, among many, there's a family called Gray; a nice little woman, whom everyone likes who knows her, and a daughter who's on the stage. By the way, she was to have played here in Brighton, I think, the other day, but there was a misunderstanding of some sort—I don't know what. I suppose that's what put her and her mother in my mind at this moment. Anyhow, the family has had hard luck lately, I hear, and I'd like to do something for them—through the brother, perhaps—if I could manage it without its being known. I hate that sort of thing to be talked about. I hate to have people's thanks. Hanged if I know what to say to them, or where to look."

Hope Newcome's heart warmed to the eccentric and hideous millionaire. He had accepted his queer offer because it suited him, but he had not liked the man. Now it occurred to him that, like the toad which is supposed to hide the jewel of price in his ugly head, Lionel Macaire was better inside than out. He was certainly not snobbish; that was proved by his treatment of a shabby young stranger, even though the stranger served his purpose; and now it seemed that he had a good heart.

Newcome had had experiences in his twenty-six years which had made him reticent, slow to form opinions of people, and still slower to utter them. This habit of reserve clung to him now; he was not sure of Macaire, but he was inclined to believe him genuine, and his faint suspicions of the man were not increased by his mention of the Grays. On the contrary, his pulses leaped at the sound of the name, and he was ready to encourage further confidences on the subject without betraying any special eagerness in drawing them out.

If Macaire, remembering Newcome's championship of Winifred Gray outside the stage-door of the Duke of Clarence's, watched his face for signs of emotion, he must have been disappointed. The young man looked civilly interested, just as he had looked before.

"You must remember Miss Gray," Macaire went on. "You hauled a man off the driver's seat of her cab the night I saw you. Perhaps you knew her before?"

"No," said Newcome, calmly. "I'd never seen her till that night. The affair you speak of happened quite by accident."

"You didn't run across her at Brighton, then?"

"I wish I had," Newcome answered, with such apparent frankness that no one could have suspected evasion. "I'd

Bad Coughs

"I had a bad cough for six weeks and could find no relief until I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Only one-fourth of the bottle cured me."
L. Hawn, Newington, Ont.

Neglected colds always lead to something serious. They run into chronic bronchitis, pneumonia, asthma, or consumption. Don't wait, but take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral just as soon as your cough begins. A few doses will cure you then.

Three sizes: 25c., enough for an ordinary cold; 50c., just right for bronchitis, hoarseness, hard colds, etc.; $1, most economical for chronic cases and to keep on hand.

SERUM OF WHOOPING COUGH

Brussels Physician Says He can Cure the Disease in Ten Days

London, Oct. 29—A young Brussels physician named Leureaux, says he has discovered the serum of whooping cough, which is injected under the skin in the abdominal region. From the experiments which he has conducted hitherto the injection appears to be quite harmless.

The first effects are apparently about forty-eight hours after the inoculation. The serum produces an early cessation of the coughing fits and a considerable diminution of the normal period of illness. If the injection is made immediately on the manifestation of the usual symptoms the malady can be cured in eight or ten days. The usual course is from six to eight weeks.

THE TEMPERANCE PARTY ARE NOW ORGANIZING

The Whole County to be Put Into Line for the Vote

A meeting of the temperance workers to discuss the coming campaign was held in the Maccabee's Hall, Peterborough, last Tuesday evening. The Good Templars threw open their regular lodge meeting to the members of other temperance societies and friends of the cause in general. The Chief Templar, Mr. Cowan, was called to the chair and Mr. Roddis, of the Royal Templars, appointed secretary. Mr. Weeks, of Toronto, representing the Dominion Alliance, explained the general plan of organization, and said that practically all the counties of the Province were either already organized for the campaign or had taken steps to that end. The Rev. Mr. Potter explained what action had been taken by the Peterborough Ministerial Association, who had issued an invitation to their brother ministers of the county to meet them in conference on this question at the Y.M.C.A. building here next Monday Nov. 3rd at 3 p.m.

After some discussion it was unanimously resolved that the meeting through the chairman and Secretary invite all temperance workers of the county to meet next Monday at 2 p.m. at the same place to consult with the ministers and to effect the organization of the county for the coming vote on the Ontario Liquor Act.

THE LAKEFIELD BANK FAILURE

The Liabilities are $34,000 Dollars, and Assets of Less Than Half that Amount

Yesterday Mr. James Linton, head of the firm of James Linton & Co., proprietors of the defunct bank at Lakefield and Orono, arrived in Lakefield, and attended a meeting of the creditors in the Town Hall at 1.30 p.m. There were about 30 persons present, most of whom were creditors of the bank.

Mr. Linton submitted a statement of the assets and liabilities of the Lakefield branch, as follows:

Total liabilities		$ 34,000
Available assets	$8,224
Notes, good	6,000	14,224
Shortage		$19,776

In addition to the above there are notes to the amount of about $8,000, which are regarded as worthless. The above is approximately the position of the bank, as it was impossible to prepare an accurate statement in time for the meeting.

Mr. Linton stated that Mr. Benson, the late manager of the Lakefield office had evidently misrepresented the position of the bank in his last statement, made on September 29th.

A rather warm discussion followed and Mr. Linton was kept under a heavy cross fire of cross questions by excited creditors for a couple of hours or more.

The loss is divided amongst the villagers and farmers living near the village several cheese factories being involved.

Chief Roszel received a letter from the Chief Constable, Stratford, to the effect that the bogus checks circulated in Stratford and those here were evidently made by the same person and were identical even to the amount. The description given of the man is as follows:— Age, 25 years; height 9 or 10 inches; dark clothes, black hat, a gold filled tooth in upper jaw and ring on left hand. He will probably be run down very soon.

—Good progress is being made on the new rink.

—Merchants are getting in their holiday goods.

Sparrow Housekeeping.

Have you ever watched a pair of sparrows when first the house-hunting and building mania comes upon them? How stupendously busy they are, especially the cock, and what a tremendous lot he has to say! As a matter of fact, his missus does all the real work, and he supplies all the theory, which she consistently disregards.

Not that Mrs. Sparrow works impetuously, as though time permitted of no deliberation. On the contrary, she uses the greatest deliberation in the performance of every action, however trivial. Watch her when she is considering the eligibility of, let us say, a bit of string which she has found in the garden path, as material to be used in the building of a nest over which she is busy. First she will sit upon a gooseberry twig a yard or two away and inspect that morsel of string from the south-east.

Then she will flit over to the apple tree close by and study it from the north-west. Then she will examine it from other points of the compass. At last she will hop up to it and pull it about—apparently accepting it, but rejecting it again, still uncertain as to its suitability for some purpose exactly defined in her foolish little mind. At last she will decide to use it, and, seizing it, she will fly up to her nest with the treasure; but, vacillating once again, she drops it at the very threshold, and sits upon the roof a little while, eying it and chattering, explaining to her lord, perhaps, that it would have done well enough if it had been longer or shorter, or thicker or thinner, or heaven knows what. Finally she will flit down and carry it away to use, and behold! to-morrow she has turned it out once more, and it lies upon the garden path a rejected thing. Not for long, however, for either she herself or some other bird has removed it next time one looks for the much considered scrap.

That conceited and self-assertive little person, her lord and master, is far less deliberate in his actions. He is more certain of himself, being convinced that he knows everything, and that to consider and weigh and deliberate is a waste of time.

He is anxious to help with the nest-making, and holds forth without ceasing while his lady builds. Occasionally he lends a hand. He catches sight of a straw, it may be, or a small piece of stick, and it occurs to him that here is the very thing his foolish wife has sought for days and failed to find. What does not occur to him is that he is a garrulous old incompetent, and knows no more about nest-building than he does about the laying of eggs. His wife knows all about him, however, and the straw is turned out of the nest again as soon as his back is turned. He has probably placed it in some impossible position, and—after explaining what a marvelous fellow he is, and what a treasure he has brought up in the way of building material—departed, forgetting all about the matter in a moment or two. Even when he sees that straw lying upon the garden path, so conceited is he that he does not recognise it, because he cannot contemplate the possibility of its rejection by the missus. He thinks he has found another treasure. "There," says he, dumping it down by her side as she sits resting, perhaps laying a little egg, in the semi-completed nest; "there's another splendid straw; how is it you don't come across them? I can find them whenever I like!"—"Longman's Magazine."

Telephone Etiquette.

Just and authoritative rules are needed that will fit the caller and the called. Says "Electrician:" Mr. Smith, a busy man of business, summons his office boy, and says, "Please get Mr. Jones on the wire." The boy does as directed. It happens that neither man has attained the luxury of a desk set. Accordingly, when Jones is informed by his boy that Mr. Smith wants to talk to him over the telephone he lays aside what he is doing and walks to the instrument. There he hears the familiar "Hold the wire a minute, please," and waits patiently, or perhaps impatiently, until Smith is notified that Mr. Jones is "on the wire," and goes to the telephone in his turn. Jones has wasted some minutes of his valuable time. Smith, on the other hand, has lost no time. He could have saved Jones the waiting by directing his boy to call up Jones' office and ascertain if he were in. Receiving an affirmative answer, he could then have stepped to the telephone and called for Jones, waiting himself until Jones responded. But in that case Smith would have waited, and Smith doesn't care to stand around any more than Jones does. Little vexations, like great problems, depend so much on the point of view. What we need is a system of rules that shall be equally respected by Smith and Jones, whether either be the seeker or the sought.

The "Hen Deceiver."

A friend of mine, says "Pick-Me-Up," has invented what he calls a "hen deceiver," for the purpose of promoting industry amongst the ladies of the farmyard. The apparatus is simple, and consists of a box for a nest, with a trapdoor for the bottom, so that when the hen lays an egg it drops through into a receiver underneath, the door closing automatically. When the hen gets up to look for the egg—it has gone, and she thinks she has made a mistake, and lays another. A hen has been known in this way to lay fifteen eggs at a sitting.

Ping-pong appears to be more successful than Christianity in India. The native ladies of the Punjab have taken it up.

"What do you mean by saying she just celebrated her wooden wedding?" "She married a blockhead."—Philadelphia "Press."

"Goodness! how that railroad stock does fluctuate." "Yes, it's a wise railroad stock that knows its own par."—Philadelphia "Press."

New Woman—"Husband, I need a change. The doctor said my life is too monotonous. I need excitement." Husband—"Try staying at home."

Greene—They tell me you send a good many things to the magazines, as well as to the daily papers. Come now, is there any money in literature? Browser—If there isn't it is no fault of mine. I never took any out of it.

Severe Electric Shock

While working the elevator in Mr. Fair's store on Saturday evening, a clerk named Elliott received a severe electric shock. It appears the young man caught a live wire with one hand and named Elliott received a severe electric [illegible] in the other, thus creating a circuit. He was doubled up and his moans brought assistance. There was no serious injury, however, and the young man is now at work as usual.

Pace in Reading.

A common and trivial excuse given by those who read little is that they have no time for reading. One may have no time for eating or sleeping, but hardly no time to make love or to read. It is good will, concentration, and the habit of despatch, not leisure or unlimited opportunity, which have always performed the greatest wonders in both of these useful pursuits. Many persons in mature life are conscious of a gentle and luxurious sentiment in favor of reading, which comes to nothing because they do not know how to read. With all the good-will in the world, they lack concentration and the habit of despatch. The good-will was not applied early enough, or not applied at all to any other end than the lazy diversion of a moment. This naturally resulted in the formation of the newspaper habit, by which I do not mean simply the habit of reading newspapers, but the habit of mind which makes it possible for men to spend an evening in going through motions. There is no more reason for spending two hours in reading the newspaper than in having one's boots blacked. Some people never make their way into the great Establishment of Letters farther than the vestibule, where they spend their lives contentedly playing marbles with the hall-boys. Of course we do not call the newspaper worthless simply because some other things are worth more. The best reading is both intensive and extensive; one reads a little of everything, and a great deal of some things. The good reader takes all reading to be his province. Newspapers, periodicals, books old and new, all present themselves to him in their proper perspective; they are all grist to his mill, but they do not go into the same hopper or require the same process. On the contrary, one of the main distinctions of the clever reader is that without varying as to intensity, he varies almost indefinitely as to pace. This power of reading flexibly comes mainly, of course, with practice. For those who have lacked an early experience of books, the manipulation of them is never likely to become the perfect and instinctive process of adjustment which it should be. People often achieve a certain degree of education and refinement late in life, but seldom, I think, the power of the accomplished reading man. It is simply not to be expected. An adult who takes up the violin may get much amusement and profit from his instrument, but he cannot hope to master it. A certain increase of facility, however, the belated reader may surely expect to gain from some sort of observance of this simple principle of adjustment.

This anxious but unskilled reader is too likely to have a set gait, so many words to the minute or lines to the hour. An essay, an editorial, a chapter in a novel or in the Bible, a scientific article, a short story, if they contain the same number of words, take up just the same amount of this misguided person's time. No wonder reading becomes an incubus to him, with the appalling monotony of its procession of printed words filing endlessly before him. He really has time enough, if he knew how to make use of it. Eben Holden keeps him busy for a week or more; it should be read in a few hours. He plods methodically through Sir Walter, and finds him slow; the happy reader who can get Quentin and his Isabelle satisfactorily married in six hours does not. The trained reader readjusts his focus for each objective. Milton may be read in words or lines, Macaulay in sentences, Thackeray in paragraphs, Conan Doyle in pages. The eye, that is, readily gains the power of taking in words in groups instead of separately. How large a group the glance can manage varies with the seriousness of the subject. With the same degree of concentration, eye and mind will take care of a page of the "Prisoner of Zenda" as easily as they can absorb a line of Macbeth, or one of Fitzgerald's quatrains.

Of course this disposes of the indolent lolling style of reading—or rather makes a rare indulgence of it. When one occasionally comes upon the novel of his heart, or the poem he has waited for, he may well afford to consider it at his luxurious leisure, minimizing labor by dilatoriness. But as a rule the widely reading man is not an indolent person. Not that he is to be always keeping his nose in a book. By regulating his pace, he not only covers an astonishing amount of ground in reading, but makes room for other things. He knows how to get the most for his time, that is all. The bee does not eat the flower to get the honey out of it. The eye of the skilled reader acts like a sixth sense, directing him to the gist of the matter, in whatever form it may appear. Twenty minutes yields all that there is for him in the book which his neighbor, knowing that it would mean a week's spare hours, is careful to avoid.

This, it may be said, sounds very much like an advocacy of skimming. Skimming and rapid reading are different processes, but skimming is at times a good thing, too; even skipping becomes, on occasion, a sacred duty. We may go a step farther, for skimming implies cream, and skipping, a foothold somewhere; and many books deserve neither of these less and least complimentary modes of treatment. The eye brushes a page or two, and the mind is hardly called in to assist in a damnatory verdict which is informal, but summary. The experienced reader, in short, is an artist, and, like other artists, attains his highest powers only when he has learned what to subordinate, to slight, even to omit. The poor fellow whose conscience will not let him refuse an equally deliberate consideration to every six inches of black and white which comes in his way may be an excellent husband and father, a meritorious lawyer or merchant, and a model citizen; he is certainly not a good reader.—"Contributors' Club."

An Age of Scepticism.

"In my young days," said the Moro chief, bitterly, "everybody believed that a man who fell in battle had a passport to heaven." "And is it not so now?" "Evidently not. I have seen heretics skulking behind rocks and throwing away first-class chances of getting shot."—"Puck."

Sis Hopkins—Mis' Lummis, ma wants t' know 'f you can let her have a cup o' sugar, two eggs, 'n' a few raisins, 'n' some flour. Oh, yes!—'n' a little butter. Mrs Lummis—Well, I never! Sis Hopkins, you go home 'n' tell your mother I said if she'd wait till I had time t' make it, she could come over 'n' take the cake.—Philadelphia "Bulletin."

Interesting Items.

A Chicago playwright advertises that he has written and invented a melodrama in five acts, called "In Death's Shadow," "introducing the most absolutely startling and realistic scene in existence, the eruption of Mount Pelee and the destruction of St. Pierre. Fully protected. Western and southern rights for sale."

Perhaps we are coming to railways without rails. Several automobile owners in New York are planning to construct on Long Island fifty miles of road, to cross other roads above or below grade so that they may have a free course on which to speed their machines. From running a single motor car on such a road to attaching one or more "trailers" is a short step, and the next leads to passenger and freight service. Even if special roads are not built for their accommodation, it is probable that automobile coach lines will be run as feeders to the steam or electric lines in districts where it would not pay to lay a track.

A petition to the President and Congress of the United States asking an appropriation of $500,000,000 to assist negroes to leave the United States has been prepared by the International Immigration and Commercial Association, an organization of negroes, who were in session in Chattanooga, Tenn., a fortnight ago. The petition recites a long train of abuses to which it is asserted the negro is subjected, among which are the denial of all social and political recognition and the violation of his constitutional rights. The leading spirits in the convention are Bishop Turner of Georgia and Mr Heard, former minister to Liberia.

In spite of the opposition of his famous mother Maurice Bernhardt has applied to the state council of Paris for permission to change his name to Maurice Clairin. This is in order to conform to the usage which requires that children should bear the name of their father, not their mother. This step is said to have been taken at the instigation of Mme. Maurice Bernhardt who is about to become a mother, and does not desire to inflict the brand of illegitimacy upon her offspring. M. Clairin, whom Maurice now selects as his father, was a painter, whose infatuation for the "Divine Sarah" nearly caused a triple tragedy twenty-five years ago.

A remarkable instance of the intelligence of ants is described by Dr. Schroeder, in the "Zeitschrift fur Entomologie." Last summer a country house was so overrun by ants that the owner, after destroying a large anthill near the house and collecting the numerous pupae for poultry feed, laid sticky fly-paper before the door of the house in such a manner that the ants could not enter without crossing it. In the morning he found his poultry feed gone and the fly-paper covered with sand, dry grass and pine needles, over which the ants had passed "dry-shod." The anthill had also been rebuilt during the night. This case is well-authenticated, and a piece of the fly-paper is shown in evidence."

A well-dressed young woman entered a Boston car the other day and took a seat next to a man. Presently she leaned forward and began to tie up her shoe-lacing. It proved rather difficult to do with her gloves on, but after a while the passengers witnessing the performance saw the feat accomplished and the lady sit back calmly gazing out of the window as if "she was always tying her shoe" in electric cars. At the next stop the man beside her rose to get off, but lo! there came a struggle and then horror, mutual and general. The two were fastened, not exactly hand and foot, but shoe and shoe! So diligently had the lady tied the knots that the lacing had to be cut by a ready pocket-knife before the embarrassed couple could be separated.

Clarence Davies has bought for $200 a triangular strip of land 14 inches by 6 inches, and comprising 40 square inches, at the north-east corner of One Hundred and Forty-Ninth street and Third avenue, New York. Mr. Davis expects to derive an income of about $1,000 a year from this investment. As the parcel is a corner one, its owner has the right to occupy the sidewalk to the stoop line, which would give him a space 6 inches by 5 feet fronting in Third avenue, and 14 inches by 5 feet in One Hundred and Forty-ninth street. Mr. Davies can also get the right to build a vault under the sidewalk and the size of this vault could be 20 by 20 feet, or 400 square feet. He can use the vault as a subterranean store. The triangular plot was made by widening Third avenue and title to it has been held for some time by Samuel G. Walker as executor. It is said that a man stood on the plot for three nights some months ago, so that no one could build on it. He covered the plot almost with one foot.

Santos-Dumont Answers His Critics.

M. Santos-Dumont has at last answered his critics. He publishes in the "North American Review" for June his first article on aerial locomotion, and, despite the criticism of scientists, he makes good his case of the air-ship against the aeroplane. Most of the criticisms have been to the effect that Santos-Dumont has been on the wrong track; that no balloon—an apparatus lighter than the air, at the mercy, more or less, of the winds of heaven—could ever become a commercial success; that though he could guide it to a certain extent, he could never be sure of reaching any point; and, finally, that the birds of the air, being themselves heavier than the air, moved by means of dirigible planes—wings—and were held in space by means of locomotion, which went to prove that similar human machines could alone be successful. That was and is in the main good reasoning. But Santos-Dumont says: "Beginning with this year, I shall attempt to apply in the air the principles of aviation properly so called, in subjecting my air-ships to a continual evolution. In the same proportion that I increase the extent of the inclined planes symmetrically disposed at the right and left, I shall reduce the surface of the envelope of varnished silk, and, consequently, the volume of hydrogen relatively to the power of the motor. Thus I expect gradually to diminish the role of the hydrogen, making secondary its importance, which is now primary, and even completely doing away with the use of this gas. The air-ship will then have become an aeroplane in the absolute sense of the word, and I hope that some day we shall see it such. That day is undoubtedly not far distant, but the flying-machine will be achieved only by the way of evolution, by making the air-ship pass through a series of transformations analogous to the metamorphoses by which the chrysalis becomes the winged butterfly. My air-ship, which raises itself by pushing back the air, has already done better than the chrysalis, whose elongated form it resembles. It may be that very soon nothing will prevent it from freeing itself completely from its cocoon of silk lined with hydrogen, and from being wholly comparable to a butterfly."

In other words, he began his experiments with a large balloon and small motors and planes. Gradually from practical experience in the air he reduces the size of the balloon, the quantity of hydrogen, and enlarges the planes and motors, and he says he has carried this far enough to prove to his own satisfaction that it is only a question of time and careful study to reduce the balloon to a minimum and the aeroplane principle to a maximum. That sounds right; that is the method of the great entity which laid down the laws of evolution; that is the survival of the fittest. And meantime the great aeronaut is experimenting in the air and not in the laboratory, which in such evolution contains the essence of ultimate success.

Dowie's Crisis.

"Harper's Weekly."

"Dr. John Alexander Dowie, self-proclaimed reincarnation of the Prophet Elijah, banker and publisher, divine healer and absolute owner of a town with more than 4,000 residents, General Overseer of the Catholic Church in Zion, lace manufacturer, and founder and head of the Theocratic party, former Presbyterian preacher and present millionaire, who is said to draw regularly every week one-tenth of the total income of more than thirty thousand families in the United States and other parts of the world, has apparently reached a crisis in his career, which has so far been a remarkable demonstration of the power possible to a man who combines shrewd business methods with the audacity and fierce earnestness of a religious fanatic. The cardinal doctrine of Dowie's creed is divine healing through the prayers of himself and of his apostles. By preaching this doctrine and by denouncing physicians and all drugs as allies of the devil, he has brought about him hundreds of invalids, some of them bringing with them considerable sums of money. Two weeks ago his only daughter, Esther, was terribly burned by flames resulting from the overturning of an alcohol-lamp. Her wounds were dressed by one of Dowie's elders, after which the General Overseer and his chief men spent the whole day in prayers about her bedside. At nightfall the young woman was suffering terrible agony, and at last paternal love overcame the scruples of her father, and he sent for one of the despised physicians. The physician who responded says that from the first there could have been no hope for Miss Dowie's recovery. She died during the evening. And now the thousands who actually look upon the gray-bearded old Scotch-Australian as more than human, and who have listened to his terrible denunciations of medical men as words inspired, are asking what they shall think of his own act of heresy in the hour of personal distress. Dowie himself slipped off to his summer home, leaving behind him his apostles and a number of phonographic records of his own "inspired speech," to which 5,000 followers, gathered in the Chicago Auditorium on Sunday afternoon, listened midway between awe and incredulity. Within recent months Dowie and the great religious-business enterprises he has built up have received several other severe shocks. By a court decision he was forced to pay more than $100,000 to an English manufacturer he had persuaded to take up his residence in the holy city of "Zion," located forty miles north of Chicago, on the shore of Lake Michigan, and more recently there was a severe outbreak of smallpox in the Divine Healing College which he has established in Michigan avenue. Whatever the outcome of the present crisis, it is certain that Dowie and the strange and fanatic following he has built up in ten years are worthy of the serious study of sociologists.

"Mamma," said the fair bather, "declares that my bathing dress has not enough goods in it." "Your mamma is mistaken," asserted the young man; "it covers your shoulders completely, does [illegible]"

"When Mr. Carnegie gets his hundred poipers all running, no more will busy young gents go hiking all over de globe—by telephone, by telegraft, special trains, boats, and flying-machines—seeking news at de cannon's mout, and pictures in de fire and crash of craters. Gone will be de days when de sporting extra prints de name of de winner before de last horse passes under de wire; de standing of de league clubs before de echoes of de empire's voice dies, as he calls tree strikes on de last man to bat. Never again, loidies and gents, shall we know more dan Edward Sevent about de chances of a Marquis of Cleveden, alas! Opera stars and chorus goils will cease to suffer from publicity, end may pursue deir ways and lost diamonds in obscurity and peace.

"Joinalism will feed in de sweet pastures of Reform. Managing editors will go dance jigs to mile stones, deir places filled by Professors of Etics from de leading univoisities and de Century Club. No poker games is to be allowed on de editorial floor until de make-up editor has time to sit in."

"Who would read such a silly poiper?" says Widdy.

"Madame," says Mr. Paul, "did anyone ever suspect Mr. Carnegie of being a fool? An advertisement for more editors will be printed in every edition of each poiper. Applications for such jobs must be written on coupons printed, also, in every edition of each poiper. De man what has filled out de most coupons gets de foist job."

"What of it?" says Widdy.

Mr. Paul looks tautful at her a while, den he says, "De mystery of newspoiper coupons is for woman's poiese, not her understanding. But dis I'll tell you: De poiper mills will never come witin a mile of supplying white poiper for Mr. Carnegie's use. I has prepared a table of figures what shows dat inside a year de only people on eart, besides Mr. Carnegie and staff, who will have de price of a meal will be a few cranks who don't want a job on a Carnegie poiper, wit privileges of de cash drawer."

"I don't tink much of de plan," says Whiskers. "If I had two hundred million I would do someting more better dan dat."

The Drinking Orchid.

A plant termed by English "Public Opinion" the most extraordinary ever discovered has been brought to light by the exertions of Mr. E. A. Suverkrop of Philadelphia, who during his trips to South America has been for some years contributing to the collection of his friend, Professor N. E. Brown, of the Herbarium, Kew Gardens, London. The wonderful plant which Mr. Suverkrop has now found is an orchid that takes a drink whenever it feels thirsty by letting down a tube into the water. When not in use the tube is coiled up on top of the plant.

One hot afternoon, says Mr. Suverkrop, I sat down under some brushwood at the side of a lagoon on the Rio de la Plata. Near at hand was a forest of dead trees which had been choked to death by orchids and climbing cacti. In front of me, stretching over the waters of the lagoon and about a foot above it, was a branch of one of these dead trees. Here and there clusters of common planta del aire grew on it, and a network of green cacti twined round it.

Among the orchids I noted one different from the rest, the leaves, sharp lance-head shaped, growing all round the root and radiating from it. From the center or axis of the plant hung a long, slender stem about one-eighth of an inch thick and one-fourth of an inch wide. The lower end of this was in the water to a depth of about four inches.

I went over at once to examine my discovery, and was surprised when I touched the plant to see the center stem gradually contract and convulsively roll itself up in a spiral like a roll of tape. I found on examination that the stem was a long, slender, flat tube, open at the outer end, and connected at the inner end to the roots by a series of hairlike tubes.

By subsequent observation I found that when the plant was in need of water this tube would gradually unwind till it dipped into the water. Then it would slowly coil round and wind up, carrying with it the quantity of water that the part of the tube which had been immersed contained. When the final coil was made, the water was poured, as it were, directly into the roots of the plant. The coil remained in this position until the plant required more water. But should the plant be touched while the tube is extended, the orchid acts like the sensitive plant, and the coiling is more rapid.

I found many of these plants, all directly over the water, or over the place where he water had been. In the latter case it was almost pitiful to see how the tube would work its way over the ground in search of water that was not there.

High "Steaks."

In the great gambling hall there was breathless silence.

A poker game between two of the billionaires was in progress.

About their table were packed and jammed hundreds of curious, excited people, watching their play with astonishment.

"I'll bet you a porterhouse steak!", says one.

Murmurs of awe rise from the watchers.

Clear and stern comes the answer:

"I'll see that porterhouse steak and raise you two rib roasts, a pig's knuckle and a can of ox-tail soup."

Here the onlookers gasped.

One of them, indeed, muttered:

"It is such things as this that make anarchists."

But, pooh! What know the hoi polloi of sport?—Baltimore "American."

Now is the Last Chance to Buy the St. Paul & Sunset Oil

California Oil Stocks Have Paid Millions in Dividends
KERN COUNTY (SUNSET DISTRICT) OIL COMPANIES PAID
ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS IN DIVIDENDS IN AUGUST ALONE

MORGAN IN THE OIL INDUSTRY--NEW YORK FINANCIER AT THE HEAD OF A $20,000,000 COMPANY TO EXPLOIT CALIFORNIA FIELDS

Bakersfield, Cal., Sept. 27.—J. Pierpont Morgan is about to identify himself with the oil business in California. On October 12, or a few days later, surveyors will be put into the field, and will run lines to the ocean from Sunset, Coaling, McKittrick, Midway and Kern River fields to determine by which route it is most feasible to transport oil to tide water. The surveys will run over the coast range at a number of points, and also will go down the San Joaquin valley parallel with the line of the Standard.

A company having a capitalization of $5,000,000 has been organized for the construction of lines, pumping stations, storage tanks, and the like. Mr. Morgan and his associates have also formed a separate company, capitalized at $20,000,000, half of which will be invested in proven ground and the other half turned into a reserve fund.

It is stated that the Morgan syndicate will be prepared to handle 2,000,000 barrels the first year, and will increase that amount at the rate of 1,000,000 a year until the whole demand of the market is met.

THE ST. PAUL & SUNSET OIL COMPANY own and control a large tract of absolutely oil proven asphalt land in the very heart of the best oil producing land of Kern County, California, the district where flowing wells are situated. We have a bed of Liquid Asphalt underlying a portion of our lands. Our property is situated right at Sunset Station. A new line of railway is surveyed and will be constructed in a very short time, putting us not only in touch with Eastern cities, but in touch with tide-water. This, in addition to the railroad facilities we now have. Remember that we own our land—it is paid for and entirely free from debt.

ST. PAUL & SUNSET OIL CO.'S GIGANTIC TRACT
will be developed and should prove a formidable rival for the new company.

PROFESSOR DR. RUD J. SCHIMPER, Analytical and Expert Chemist, of St. Paul, makes the following statement relative to the composition, what can be produced and the estimated profits of the Sunset Crude Oil. A copy of the original certificate can be seen at the office of the St. Paul & Sunset Oil Co., which is in substance as follows:

"This is to certify that the undersigned, Dr. Rudolph J. Schimper, Chemist expert, member of Parisian Academy, according to analysis made from the crude oil furnished me by the St. Paul & Sunset Oil Company, I find the following valuable products and with each beg to submit my estimate of its value:

1. LIQUID RUBBER—2,000 lbs of this crude oil (6 bbls.) will produce 1,800 lbs. of liquid rubber, value of which is from 25c. per lb. and up. (Estimated value $450.00.)
2. SOLID RUBBER—2,000 lbs of this crude oil (6 bbls) will produce 1,700 lbs. of solid rubber, value of which is from 50c. upwards. (Estimated value $450.00.)
3. FUEL BRIQUETTES—2000 lbs. of this crude oil (6 bbls.) will produce 2,000 lbs. (1 ton) of fuel briquettes, which, according to government tests made, is equivalent to two tons of best anthracite coal. (Estimated value $22.00)
4. ASPHALTUM—2,000 lbs. of this crude oil (6 bbls.) will produce ½ ton of asphaltum, value $25 to $35 per ton. 25 gal. of lubricating oil, value 50c. per gal. and upward. 40 gal. illuminating oil, value 10c per gal. and up. 60 gal. of distilled oil, value 5c. per gal. and upward. (Estimated value $54.50.)
5. SOAP—2000 lbs. (1 ton) of crude oil and filling will produce over 2,000 lbs. of soap, value 3c. per lb. and upward. (Estimated value $60.00.)

In my opinion many other valuable products can be obtained from the oil of that famous field.
Respectfully, DR. R. J. SCHIMPER, Chemist Expert."

THIS goes to show the immense profits that will accrue from our products when refined. We expect to commence Building Our Refinery in the very near future. The sale of the next allotment of stock will be made for that purpose. The largest flowing wells in California were brought in adjoining our property and their stock was taken off the market. We employ the best drillers who report rapid progress on our wells and we expect to bring in gushers equal, if not to excel any in the Sunset field. Our General Manager, Superintendent and Drillers, all are experienced oil men. The officers of our company are all thorough, competent and efficient men who have always made a success of their undertaking in life and who will see that the welfare of the St. Paul and Sunset Oil Company is furthered, protected and promoted to the most advantageous extent possible.

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS SHOULD BE PAID STOCKHOLDERS.

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS should be paid to the stockholders of the St. Paul and Sunset Oil Company when their property is fully developed, their refinery equipped and in full operation ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS IN DIVIDENDS was paid by Kern County Oil Companies during the month of August alone.

SIX MILLION BARRELS is the consuming capacity of the Southern Pacific Railway engines, which are now equipped for burning oil. Outside of this consider other railway lines, smelters, factories, steamships, stationery engines, which are all heavy consumers of fuel oil and last but not least, hotels and private dwellings are falling in line with the procession in the use of fuel oil.

A GOOD REASON WHY YOU Should Invest in the stock of St. Paul & Sunset Oil Company. More fortunes have been made in oil than any other business. Consider the immense amount of money the Standard Oil Company has made for its fortunate stockholders, and the California oil companies have done better in proportion to their capitalization than the Standard Oil Company. Here is what $100 has accomplished for those who invested that amount in the following California companies in the beginning of their career:
Home Whittier $1,000 on an investment of $100.
Kern returned $2,300 on an investment of $100.
Peerless returned $1,800 on an investment of $100.
Dillon returned $2,500 on an investment of $100.
New York returned $30,000 on an investment of $100.
Union returned $150,000 on an investment of $100.
Home returned $50,000 on an investment of $100.

THERE is no reason in the world why the St. Paul and Sunset Company's oil holdings and property, when developed and handled, should not bring like returns.

CONTRARY to the general supposition the earth is the repository of all mineral wealth. When it is known and demonstrated beyond a question of a doubt where its wealth reposes and you put your money up to take it out, your money is invested. Hence you are an investor, not a speculator. A proven oil producing property does not draw its profits from the people but creates new wealth. It is therefore an investment.

Wonderful Increase in Value of Oil Stocks.

The rapid rise in the value of shares in some oil companies will be seen from the following table:	Original price per share	Present Market price
Black Mountain Oil Co	$ .05	$ 1.00
Central Oil Co	.30	1.50
Home Oil Co. Whittier	.25	2.50

The time will come in the near future when stock in St. Paul and Sunset Oil Co., should bring prices equal to the last.

ALMOST SOLID COPPER

One 18 inch vein of 90 per cent copper (almost the solid metal) has been opened up in Copper Queen Extension Claim, one of the six constituting our Montana property, while mining a thirty-foot vein of free milling 18 per cent copper ore, carrying thirty ounces of silver to the ton.

This is so far ahead of our expectations, brilliant as our former prospects were, that we realize the IMMEDIATE building of a mill to handle this magnificent output, equalled in richness only by the Calumet and Hecla mines, is an ABSOLUTE NECESSITY. This will make OUR OWN portion of the stock, as well as THAT ACQUIRED BY THE PUBLIC, for the purposes of this immediate development, worth an immense amount of money in an exceedingly short time.

Help us build a Mill immediately by purchasing our One Dollar Shares, which are offered this week at 30 cents a Share as a Special Inducement to insure the speedy building of the Mill, and we will make your stock yield you an inordinate profit as quickly as the Mill can be put in operation.

We furnish the rich property—you furnish the mill. In a few months it will be in operation—almost before you expect it—and we divide the immense returns.

The safest stock in Wall Street to purchase at present? If so, send immediately for our very "special" letter on the subject, naming the stock and setting forth exhaustively, most logical and sensible reasons for the above opinion.

If the market should decline, it should hardly sell off at all; when the market does better, it should be among the bull leaders.

STOCK MARKETS

The Market Again Reaching Bottom.

New York, Oct. 31.—After an extensive market movement in another direction it is usually followed by a most spirited turn in the opposite direction, as was the rise of 10 points week before last. In accordance with this idea we then advised our friends in these letters for the time being to hang on to some of their bargain purchases, and after the week's steady rise on the Friday of that week advised letting go of your holdings, as in all human probability they could be repurchased somewhat cheaper. To follow ordinary precedent in such markets it was fair to assume that stocks would again decline in some instances to nearly bottom prices. Then they should again be a purchase. The present range of prices is now in sequence with the above axiom, and present market indications are that the market will conform with the customary rule, consequently we quite strongly urge purchasing now. Of course rules for speculation are usually of very little account, but present instances, like the present market are valuable and therefore good to look into. Since a week ago Friday, when we advised selling long stocks, you can see in our letter of that date that stocks have declined from 2 to 9 points. They should now be bought again. Had you followed the advice of these letters the past month during the unsettled and active market that existed, you could well afford to buy now, even if stocks declined two or three points more. We have and do steadily maintain, despite the many for sale tip letters, that no man can always buy right on bottom prices and sell right at top prices. The man who can be deluded into believing such arguments is pretty certain to lose money in Wall street. Successful operators are those who can buy within 2 or 3 points of an upward turning point in the market, disposing of their holdings at any price, showing a profit, say within two or three points of the prices from which a turn comes in the opposite direction. Students of the market can more readily discern such points than the men playing for actual top and bottoms. They will be the successful operators.

Summary: To-day's market was stronger. As foreshadowed in these letters, a strategetic movement was carried out in L. N., running stock down rapidly from 138 to 133 1-2 prior to an advance in which the stock crossed 137. Splendid buying developed in U. P., B. & O., Manhattan and Chicago. Investment demand was plainly discernible in such stocks as N. Y. C., Penna. and St. Paul. Industrials were strong. The market should close the week comparatively strong, and be more lively after election. In the event of Republican success odds to buy be greater in volume and better range of prices. Money closed 5 per cent. Sales 410,000.

To-morrow's letter: "Some telling figures."

When Buying Mining Stock Buy the Best

AN INVESTMENT IN THE

Pitkin Gold Belt Mining and Reduction Company

Which is Safe and Sure of Quick Returns, may Bring an Enormous Return at any Moment. It has the Possibilities of Rivaling the Great Mines of the Past.

This Company has a mile on a true fissure vein, in the center of the Gunniston Gold Belt, Colorado, which is the "Mother" lode or dike, which has produced 55 per cent. more gold than the total output of the Cripple Creek district.

This Mine is no Prospect. Nor is it Waiting on Your Subscription to Buy Machinery or for Development.

After a careful examination by experts, Joseph M. Bradley, M. E., and Mr. George Arlett, A. I. M. E., Amalgamated Copper Company's expert in Chihuahua, Mexico, they advised the purchase of the property. The property had shallow development upon it, showing two ore shoots from which smelting ore had been shipped to the Buena Vista Smelter.

The Company purchased and paid for the latest improved machinery and has put a shaft down 250 feet and intend to carry it down 1500 feet. On the 150 foot level 200 feet of development has been made and an ore shoot has been encountered and blocked out for 57 feet, carrying values in gold from 2 to 6 ounces or $40 to $120 per ton. The cost of mining, hauling, freight and smelter charges will be between $12 and $15 per ton.

Ed. McCarthy & Co., bankers, guarantee a shipping mine of smelting ore running from 2 to 6 ounces in gold, or $40 to $120 per ton, by January 1st, 1903, or all funds will be returned to subscribers upon presentation of receipt issued by said bank.

Also to prospective purchasers of $[illegible] worth of stock we are offering a free trip to Colorado and return. You investigate first and purchase afterward. Could you expect anything fairer than this?

The capital stock of this company is $1,000,000, divided into 1,000,000 shares of stock at $1 each, full paid and non-assessable. A portion of the treasury stock is now offered at in one payment, or 20 per cent. down and the balance in four equal monthly payments, for necessary expenditures and improvements on a shipping mine.

—Lindsay Watchman-Warder—"The Boers have visited Oshawa. They would likely be more at home in Peterboro." Right you are, dear boy; Peterborough is a much better place to visit than Oshawa, or even Lindsay. If the Afrikanders are after a good quiet time, Lindsay would be their Mecca.

—Lindsay Post:—Five carloads of stock passed through to the Toronto markets today from Fenelon Falls and Kinmount. Three carloads were owned by Messrs. Thompson & Beatty, stock buyers, Carmington, one by McDougall & Austin, Fenelon Falls, and one by Mr. George Watson, Kinmount. The price paid for hogs was $6.60, butcher's cattle $3 to $3.50, expert $4 to $4.25, lambs $3, sheep $2.75, calves $5 to $6 and milch cows $35 to $50.

— —Regarding the King's birthday things are slightly mixed. The popular celebration takes place on May 24th, and the official celebration falls on November 9th, the actual anniversary of the occasion. As that falls on Sunday this year, the King's birthday, will be officially recognized on the 10th. His Majesty therefore, is so fortunate as to have three birthdays within 12 months.

—Lindsay Post:—Mr. Wm. Snowden of the Snowden House, Peterborough, passed through yesterday to Owen Sound. While at the station Mr. Snowden, who had brought two carrier pigeons with him, tied a letter on their legs and let them go. The birds headed in a north-westerly direction, but after getting up a good distance in the air they turned east. Mr. Snowden is experimenting to find exactly how long it will take these birds to make their destination.

Toronto Star: A quiet wedding took place at St. John's Church at half past two o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, when Mr. Gilbert Strattor Minty was married to Alice Capreol, second daughter of Mr. Frank Osborne Cross, of the Bank of Commerce, late of St. Catharines and now of 20 Willcocks street. The Rev. Alexander Williams, rector of the church, performed the ceremony. The bride, who was attired in white silk, was escorted by her father, who gave her away, and her sister, Miss Edith Cross and Miss Eva Paterson as bridesmaids. They wore pretty frocks of white and pink. A short reception was held at 20 Willcocks street after the ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Minty left for Detroit and other places, the bride traveling in a pretty suit of bronze broadcloth, the coat being pleated and belted, and wore over a white silk blouse, a white hat and set of sables, the gift of the groom. Mr. Cross was formerly manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce in Peterborough, and resided here with his family for some time.

WORN TO A SHADOW.

When there is a falling off in flesh in woman or man there is "something wrong." And that something wrong is generally a loss of nutrition due to disease of the stomach and the other organs of digestion and nutrition. Sometimes this loss of flesh is accompanied by variable appetite, but in many cases the appetite does not fail and there may be a constant desire to eat. Languor, nervousness, irritability, sleeplessness, are symptoms often associated with this loss of nutrition and falling off in flesh.

Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of food so that lost flesh is regained and the physical health re-established.

"I had suffered from indigestion and only those who have suffered from it know what it really is," writes Mrs. M. J. Fagan, of 1613 East Genesee St., Syracuse, N. Y. "I had had severe attacks of headache and dizziness, with cold hands and feet; everything I ate distressed me, bowels were constipated and I was growing very thin and nervous. I cannot half express the bad feelings I had when I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took nine bottles of the 'Discovery' and have taken several bottles of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. I commenced feeling better with the first bottle and kept on improving. Now I am so greatly improved in health my friends often speak of it. I most heartily recommend these medicines to all suffering as I was."

DREDGING THE RIVER

Proves a Difficult Job on Account of the Hard Bottom

The work to dredging the river above the bridge is progressing slowly. The job is somewhat difficult on account of the hard bottom, and also on account of the stiff current at this point. About 30 yards has been dredged to a depth of about seven feet.

Mr. Frank Fairen, the courteous clerk on the dredge, says that the work above the bridge will be completed this fall, when the dredge will again be dismasted and taken through under the bridge to the lower side, where it will work in the spring, making a channel down to the C.P.R. bridge.

The dredges are being dumped at the side of the river, the intention being at some future day to build docks along the river front for the accommodation of vessels that may come and go. When this time arrives of course it will be imperative that swing bridges be substituted for those which are now stationary.

After Many Years

Mr. Joseph Marks, of Marks Bros.' Dramatic Company, a few days ago received a letter from his mother's brother, Mr. Thos. K. Farrell, who resides in England. Mr. Farrell went to South Africa twenty years ago, and resided there almost ever since, being Mayor of Kimberley just before the outbreak of the war. His relatives had no idea of his whereabouts till the arrival of this letter. The elderly gentleman has become a millionaire, and has now leisure to look up his relatives. He proposes to visit Canada, and view the scenes of his childhood. He has seven sisters and three brothers, one sister having died lately.

COAL $5.00 A TON

WITH THE WONDERFUL

STAR HEATER

The only heater that is guaranteed to give satisfaction with soft as well as hard coal. As a fuel economizer it is unequalled, producing heat on about one-third the coal used in any other heater in existence.

The Star has a tube behind for the escape of the gas. As anyone who uses soft coal knows, the gas accumulates under the fresh coal, and if there is no escape there will be explosions and puffs of smoke. In the Star this disappears in the gas escape. The Star has a sliding damper and ornamental door of mica.

After being filled, the Star will heat for 48 hours without attention. It will hold fire and give out heat longer than any other stove.

The Star is 25 per cent more economical than any other stove.

MORE THAN 5,000 ARE IN USE IN THE LOWER PROVINCES.

PRICE LIST

No.	Height	Diameter	Price

3	37 1-2 in.	12 in	$19.20
4	41 in.	15 in	$22.80

DIRECTIONS

When filling the stove always shut the draught door at the bottom.

Keep the small opening in the back pipe closed except when cleaning.

Clean the back pipe every two weeks.

COAL CONSUMERS, ATTENTION!

We are using one No. 3 Star stove in our large rooms, where formerly we had four large wood heaters, and get more heat now than before. The wood stoves cost us $4.50 every week for fuel, and the Star stove which we are now using costs us only $1.50, making a saving of $3.00 per week in the price of fuel—which would soon pay for the stove. We can recommend this stove to any person wanting a first-class heater. We would not use any other stove that is made.

ST. PETER'S T.A.S.
M. J. Sorre, Chairman Trustees.

We certify that we have in use one No. 3 Star stove in our large pool and billiard room, the size of which is 65x25 ft., with 15 ft. ceiling. We have perfect heat, and the most coal we have used on the coldest day yet has been three scuttles in 24 hours. We are so well pleased with the stove that we would not use any other.

ROCAMORA & CALLAHAN.

I have been using a No. 3 Star stove in the sitting room at the City Hotel for some time past, and it has proved so satisfactory that I have ordered two more to replace two stoves in the upstairs. The Star gives more heat than the other stoves with half the amount of coal.

MARTIN CONNORS.

We have in use in our composing room a No. 3 Star coal stove, and wish to state that it is giving eminent satisfaction. The entire absence of gas by the escape provided, the increase of heat and the saving in coal are special features of the Star, and it requires a minimum of attention.

ENGLAND'S GREAT FOE IN AFRICA THE MAD MULLAH AND HIS PEOPLE

Particulars of the War Which Britain Is Now Engaged In

THE STRUGGLE A COSTLY ONE

The Mad Mullah Being Largely Reinforced by Natives

London, Nov. 3.—The New African war is now the centre of interest in this country, especially on account of the fact that the recent British reverse has sent thousands to reinforce the Mad Mullah.

Some twelve or fifteen men in Somaliland are known to the inhabitants as Mullahs. They are also called sheiks or widads. They are the religious leaders of the Somalis, all followers of Islam. Comparatively few of the Somalis have been regarded as fanatical Mohammedans; small European hunting parties have repeatedly travelled through their country in safety; and most of the white visitors have had a good word for the people, and also for the Mullahs, who have been represented to be very quiet and respectable persons, generally on the side of order and peace, and civil in their treatment of travellers.

In all inner Somaliland there are no permanent settlements, except those occupied by these Mohammedan leaders. Each Mullah has a settlement around his home. These centres of population are on an average at least seventy miles apart. The largest of them is the town of the Mullah Seyid Mohammed, in Ogaden. The next most important settlement is supposed to be that of the Mullah Hargeisa, in British Somaliland; besides these two religious leaders there are about a dozen other Mullahs of less importance scattered over several degrees of latitude and longitude.

The Mullahs have been enabled to settle down, form permanent villages and cultivate the land around them because all the people hold them in the greatest respect. The Somalis are great looters, and one tribe does not hesitate to send an armed party to rob another tribe of its horses, donkeys, camels or grain; but a looting party would be driven to the last extremity of hunger before it would attack the village of a Mullah, and even then it would take no more plunder than necessary to provide food for a few days. It is thus seen that the Mullahs have great influence; and as a rule they have not used the power they wield over the people to turn them against the whites.

One of the less important Mullahs, however, a man who was never known outside his country until he began to be heard of as "The Mad Mullah," suddenly assumed, in 1901, an attitude of hostility to the white race. He is known as Haji Mohammed Dul Abdullah. He is a religious fanatic, one of the leaders in Islam whose religion has become a frenzy, and he has exhibited magnetic and persuasive qualities sufficient to imbue those around him with his own rabid ideas. He is called by Europeans the Mad Mullah, simply because he has been preaching a war of extermination against the whites. He has rallied around him thousands of fairly well-armed natives who are devoted to his cause. The reports from Somaliland have been very meagre, and it is not known how many of the other Mullahs, if any, have joined his standard; but the Mad Mullah has become exceedingly active since he began to attract attention. Within the past year he has met the forces sent against him in British Somaliland, in Italian Somaliland further south and in the Abyssinian territory to the west. He has generally been repulsed, and has fled to a considerable distance, only to recruit his forces and take the field again. At latest accounts the British who had had a hard fight with him near the border between British and Italian Somaliland, found it necessary to retreat north to the centre of their territory.

This war is going on only 100 to 300 miles south of the Gulf of Aden where steamers are constantly passing on their way to the Suez Canal. The scene of disturbance is thus quite near one of the greatest trade routes of the world.

Most of the trouble has occurred in British Somaliland, which fronts on the Gulf of Aden, and has an area of about 68,000 square miles. Along its coast are considerable ports of Berbera, Bulhar, and Zeila, which have had important trade with the Somali, though the commerce of Berbera and Bulhar have been nearly ruined by the present troubles.

The larger part of the British Somaliland is an elevated plateau crossed by barren mountain ranges. For a part of the year the country is very dry, and water can be obtained only along the few rivers and in the wells; but in the fall and winter seasons a great deal of rain falls over most of the country. This is the time when the livestock has most feed and the people are most active. Somaliland is now in the midst of the rainy season, and this is one of the reasons why the Mad Mullah has resumed hostilities, for there is now plenty of grass to sustain the horses of his cavalry.

It is believed that not more than 250,000 natives are living in British Somaliland. The revolt has been confined almost entirely to these Somalis who live under the so-called rule of the British Government, with the Consul-General at Berbera as the chief official of the protectorate; but, though the hostile Somalis are nearly all residents of British Somaliland, they have carried on their campaign of the past year to some extent into the Italian and Abyssinian parts of the land. The fear is now expressed that the recent successes of the Mad Mullah may have the effect to induce a large number of Somalis living in the Italian and Abyssinian districts to join the hostile faction: in this case the European powers interested are likely to have a very ugly war on their hands.

Used a Shot Gun

Kingston, Nov. 2.—A man named Soper was shot and dangerously wounded in Oden township by a young man named Veley, as the result of a family squabble. Soper's wife left him recently and returned home. He followed her up, and had a quarrel with her father. Apparently he blamed Veley for some share in the trouble, and with the help of another man he waylaid Veley, ill-treated him, and finally left him tied to a tree. Last Tuesday he made another attempt to induce his wife to go with him, and in the course of a row which followed, Veley used a shotgun, shooting him in the hand and side. Veley then gave himself up to the police, at the same time making the plea that he had acted in self-defence.

MRS. MARY BAKER EDDY MAY BE INDICTED

As the Founder of a Doctrine Which Caused Death of Child

A CASE OF GREAT INTEREST

Christian Science on Trial at White Plains, New York

New York, Nov. 3.—It is likely that before the Quimby Christian Science case is over, Mrs. Baker-Eddy, the "mother" of Christian Science, will be indicted by the White Plains grand jury for propogatting the doctrines, the practive of which by the Quimbys led to the death of little Esther Quimby.

Esther Quimby had diphtheria and was only treated by Christian Science treatment. She died and now Hector Lathrop and the parents are on trial charged with her death.

The case will be one of great interest, and the grand jury dropped all its other criminal business on Saturday in order to begin its investigation, with a view of officially fixing the blame for the death of the girl. There is no Christian Scientist on the jury, most of the members being Episcopalians, Presbyterians and Methodists, and a majority of them are opposed to the Christian Science faith. The questions the jurymen will decide will be these:

"Shall Mr. and Mrs. Quimbly be indicted for a misdemeanor as set forth by subdivision 1 of Section No. 288 of the Penal Code?" or "Shall the accused be indicted for manslaughter in the second degree?"

Under subdivision 3, section 193 of the Penal Code, a conviction under the latter indictment is punishable by imprisonment of fifteen years in Sing Sing prison and a fine of $1,000.

If convicted of a misdemeanor the prisoners may be sent to the penitentiary for one year, or pay a fine of $500.

Most of the jurymen favor indicting the Scientists for manslaughter and making a test case in order to determine all other criminal proceedings against the members of the sect.

AS TO MRS. EDDY.

More than that, Mrs. Eddy, the founder of the faith, may be arraigned, and the right of Christian Scientists to endanger human life by neglecting ordinary medical precaution will be settled by law.

So far as Mrs. Eddy is concerned the grand jurymen have not decided on what action to take against her. The name of the founder of the church was frequently spoken in the room, and at the next session the jury will be provided with several of her books, in order that they may judge what bearing her works have on the proceedings pending.

CASE WILL BE FOUGHT.

If Lathrop and the Quimbys are indicted they will be defended by eminent counsel, and a $5,000 relief fund of the church will be at their command, so it is said.

Several of the jurymen may be opposed to indicting "Healer" Lathrop for manslaughter, on the ground that he was not an illegal practitioner and was not at the Quimbly home in the last twenty-four hours of the child's life.

The matter of deciding on what charge the Scientists should be indicted was left in the hands of District Attorney Young, who will make his report to the jury to-morrow.

THE CASE.

Little Esther Quimbly died on Oct. 28 of malignant diphtheria, which the physicians claim could have been cured by proper medical attention. Her parents are Christian Scientists, no doctor was called in, and she was only treated by a "healer," Mr. Lathrop, who went to White Plains and attempted to cure her by silent prayer and the laying on of hands.

For five hours the jury investigated these facts, but although it adjourned without bringing in any indictment, it is practically certain that the mother and father of the dead child, and all the Christian Scientists who are involved in the case, will be held either for misdemeanor or manslaughter.

The first witness called was Coroner Banning of Mount Vernon, who is determined to push the charge against the scientists to a speedy trial.

He told how he had investigated into the death of Esther Quimby, who had been permitted to die slowly from diphtheria without her parents making any attempt to call in a physician to help her. Instead, he was told by her parents that a "healer" had been called in from New York; that he visited the patient daily and tried to cure her by holding her hand, and by concentration of thought upon the patient's mind, made an attempt to save her life.

CALLS IT PURE FANACTISM.

He said he had held the healer and Mr. and Mrs. Quimbly for manslaughter because he believed they were guilty of culpable neglinence, and that their religious practice was pure fanaticism and a violation of the laws of the State.

HIS FAITH IS FIRM.

Before leaving the court house Mr. Quimbly made this statement:

"We do not fear the outcome. We believe in religion and not in physicians. That is the truth of the matter. Medicines kill people. Christian Science prolongs life and removes errors from the body. I am a firm believer in its teachings and would not take medicine for anything. Drugs do more harm than good.

"Physicians said my wife and two children had diphtheria. Look at them now. Everything has passed away, and they did not take any doctor's advice either. Their belief in our faith was their only relief.

"We shall stand trial willingly. It will only result in bringing out more truths."

Now that the quarantine has been raised from the Quimbly cottage, Healer Lathrop has ceased making his visits to the house.

CORONER URGES INDICTMENT.

Coroner Banning, who demanded Mrs. Eddy be indicted, said:

"I feel certain that the Scientists will be indicted for manslaughter. I told the jurymen that Mrs. Eddy should also have a charge preferred against her.

"She is the head of the Christian Science church, and, through her books and teachings, is morally responsible for the neglect and abandonment of medicine. She is the instigator of the whole sect and gave instructions to Healer Lathrop, who treated the child, and in conjuction with the parents is responsible for her death. If I had my way I would indict Mrs. Eddy with all the rest concerned.

"This Christian Science cult is a danger to humanity. It is more of a humbug than anything else. I told several jurymen to indict Mrs. Eddy and that then the district attorney could apply for requisition papers from the Governor of New York and then she could be brought on to plead to the charge. I am going to suggest the Frederick W. Peabody, a prominent lawyer of Boston, who has conducted a bitter warfare against Scientists there, be employed to prosecute the prisoners if they ever come to trial.

"I am sure a conviction can be secured if the case is pushed with vigor and determination. I shall keep on fighting until the Scientists are brought to realize the seriousness of their crime."

On Thursday the Grand Jury will bring in its indictment, and then will begin this strange battle between law and science and faith and religion—a breathless interest by the millions of Christian Scientists throughout the world.

Paris, Nov. 3.—Santos-Dumont says that he is willing to attempt to make the passage from Paris to London in an airship for a prize of £10,000, but the conditions imposed are not satisfactory.

He believes that he should be allowed to make more than three attempts, as unfavorable atmospheric conditions at the last moment might oblige him to abandon the trip.

He Receives the Cross of Officer of the Legion of Honor in Paris

Paris, Nov. 2.—James Stokes, of New York, was decorated here Saturday by a commission from President Loubet, with the cross of Officer of the Legion of Honor. The ceremony took place at the jubilee fete of Young Men's Christian Associations in Paris.

The cross was placed in position by Jules Siegfried, member of the Chamber of Deputies, and former Minister of Commerce, amid enthusiastic cheering.

Mr Stokes gave the funds necessary to erect the Paris building of the association.

SACRIFICES TO RIVER GOD

To Be Made by Chinese to Show Gratitude for Absence of Inundation

Pekin, Nov. 2.—The Dowager Empress to signalize the return of the court from the summer palace, has issued an edict ordering special services to the river god of the Hoang-Ho as a token of gratitude for the absence of inundation. The overflowing of the Hoang-Ho or Yellow River has caused the loss of thousands upon thousands of lives in past years.

The proposed pilgrimage of the Emperor to the Western tombs has been abandoned, and His Majesty will perform his ancestral worship in Pekin.

ITEMS OF NEWS BY CABLE AND LETTER

Aden, Arabia, Oct. 30—Col Swayne, the British Commissioner in Somaliland, has reached Berbera in safety. His wounded are doing well. No further movement of the British troops against the Mad Mullah, will be made until a large force is collected, which will be About two months hence. There is no doubt that the Somali levies showed the white feather in the recent fighting with the Mullah's followers.

Col. Cobbe is in command at Bogtle, Somaliland, where the guns have arrived. The garrison there is not threatened.

Montreal, Oct. 30—A unique religious service will take place in St. Martin's Church to-morrow morning. For some days there has been in progress there a series of undenominational meetings upon the lines of those inaugurated by the Keswick Brethren, in which clergymen of all denominations have taken part. The movement, so far as Montreal is concerned, has been organized By Rev. G. Osbrone Troop, rector of St. Martin's Church, and now he is to crown his work by a united communion of different Christian ministers and people. Archbishop Bond is to officiate at the communion table, and the various other parts of the service will be taken by Anglican, Presbyterian and Methodist ministers. This new departure is sure to cause a deal of discussion among those who are sticklers for the observance of the rubrice of the church.

Montreal, Oct. 30—The great result of the recent visit of the Premier of Canada to France will be that the relations between both countries from an intellectual and economic point of view will be much friendlier, and be attended by a much larger commerce. In the principal parts of France there is a very general impression that there are excellent opportunities of building up a large commerce with Canada, and that a direct line of communication would be of much benefit."

This was the statement made to a reporter at the Windsor today by M. Francois Morin, of Paris, France, who arrived in Canada today, to take up his duties as consul-general for France at Vancouver, B.C., where he will succeed M. Houssain de St. Laurent. M. Morin, who up to the time of his appointment was secretary to the Minister of Foreign Affairs, M. Delcasse, was present at the interviews held between the Prime Minister and Hon. Mr. Fielding and M. Delcase, and is, therefore, in a position to speak with regard to the policy of the French Government as to the course to be followed by the Minister of Foreign Affairs.

"As a matter of fact," M. Morin went on to say, "France like all other countries, seems to have acquired the particular spirit of the age—that of extending its relations as far as possible with foreign countries. And, naturally, as there has always been much interest manifested in Canada, the developments that will be made in this country now that the opportunities are so numerous will be greater than ever.

"Of course, this is my first visit to Canada, I cannot as yet say along what particular lines of commerce this development will be made."

"M. Delcasse, as Minister of Foreign Affairs, has showed himself one of the strongest men in the present Government. Perhaps I might even go so far as to say that he is the most able Minister of Foreign Affairs that France has ever had. His policy has already met with the entire favour of the country, and will undoubtedly benefit the country greatly.

"There has been a good deal of talk about the Combes Ministry, and it has been stated often that the Premier would be forced to resign at an early date. I do not see any reason why anything of the kind should happen. On the contrary, it looks as though he might remain in power for quite awhile."

This afternoon M. Morin called on M. Kleczkowski, the Consul-General for Canada. He is accompanied by Mme Morin, and will spend a few days in the city before starting for Vancouver.

M. Morin has already served in the Consular service in Austria and Germany.

London, Nov. 3.—Though the outlook for the coming winter in the country is far from encouraging, there are indications that the distress, speaking generally, will not be quite so acute as in London.

Accounts from different districts vary considerably. In Birmingham some of the leading trades have shown a gratifying improvement within the past few months. Cycle makers are doing well and the motor industry is developing steadily. There is, however, a slackness in the hardware and building trades. In only a few branches in Sheffield is trade really bad. Many of the large firms have Government orders that will last through the winter. At the poor law offices only the normal number of recipients of relief is anticipated. The state of the labor market in Leicester is much better than it was this time last year. At Portsmouth it anticipated that the distress will be more than normal.

A gloomy report, however, comes from Newcastle, where the trade union officials estimate that 14,000 men are out of employment. The high price of coal is seriously accentuating the depression in the iron and steel industries, and shipbuilding and engineering firms are said to be feeling the pinch severely. The shipyards are steadily paying off men, and matters are made worse by fact that several hundred Reservists have returned to find no work obtainable. The redeeming features of the situation are that large building operations and railway extensions are proceeding in and around Newcastle.

CONDITION OF ARTISANS

Artisans are declared to be in a worse position in Nottingham than at any time during the last five years. Many large contracts have recently been completed and the ranks of the unemployed have grown so considerably that bricklayers masons and plasters are leaving the district in search of work. Very few of the 3,000 hands engaged in the cycle trade are making full time. The hosiery trade, once one of Nottingham's staple industries, is suffering from marked slackness. Norwich and the district has not a pleasant tale to tell. Large calls for out relief are expected, and the increase in the price of meat is also a factor to be considered.

Without taking into account the chances of a coal strike, the prospects in South Wales are far from bright.

Mr. Harpur, the borough engineer of Cardiff, states that already there are signs of coming distress which will tax the Unemployed committee of the corporation to the utmost. "From the number of applications already in my books," he says, "I can foresee hard times for many in South Wales."

Up to the present Glasgow does not anticipate exceptional poverty this winter.

The New York Press puts the situation thus: "In the United States there are 80,000,000 of people. The members of organized labor, as embraced in the American Federation, are 100,000. The numbers of organized capital are numbered by scant thousands. The public—the eighty millions—is carrying the load of organized labor and organized capital squarely and is paying all the bills." There is something in this view. In the coal strike the workers were quite as regardless of the public's interest as the "barons." If the 79,000,000 odd "scabs" take the regulation of trusts into their hands the labor bosses may get some attention along with the capitalists.

Seeking to Usurp the Sultan

Pretender Says He Is Turkish Monarch's Elder Brother

Premier Barton to Introduce a Bill at Next Session

London, Nov. 2.—A Melbourne correspondent reports that Premier Barton has promised to introduce in the Federal Parliament, at the next session of that body, a bill granting a customs preference to England. The South Australian House of Commons has passed a bill providing for the construction of a line from Adelaide to Port Darwin and completing the overland railway on land grant system.

London, Nov. 2.—A correspondent at Tangier, Morocco, reports that the Sultan's brother will leave the capital today with 3,000 troops to quell a local uprising that has broken out near Tesa, three day's march east of Fez, where the pretender has risen, claiming the throne as Sultan's elder brother. The Pretender, it is said, is an ordinary soldier, but the Berber mountaineers of the district apparently place a good deal of credit in his pretensions. The report says that the following of the Pretender is not large, but that, in their opinion, the authorities are afraid the affair might prove serious unless crushed quickly.

London, Nov. 2.—A Paris despatch says it is reported that Minister Combes has forbidden the priests in Brittany to catechise in Breton, but that Bishop Quimper ascertained that 110 parishes of his diocese do not contain a single child capable of receiving religious instruction in the French language and in one small town only 12 out of 150 of the inhabitants understood French.

Paris, Nov. 2.—The engineering work in connection with the Metropolitan Underground Railway is very interesting, especially at Place De L'opera, under which pass three strata of underground lines running to different parts of Paris. One station almost invisible from the surface of the street will serve all three lines with stairs, arranged to make egress and ingress easy.

FOUR MORE RAILWAYS TO THE PACIFIC COAST

Western Farmers Must Build Barns for Storing Grain to Avoid Disaster

Montreal, Nov. 2.—"There is great disaster threatening the farmers of the West to-day, and they do not seem to realize it. They must change. At present they do not realize that what they ought to do is to build barns and store their grain. They all rush it right out to market. They do not realize that there will come a time when the market will be so flooded with grain that the price will fall so low that they will suffer a complete loss. The banks will not advance them any money under such conditions, and what they must learn to do is what the American farmer in the Western States has learned by bitter experience, store their grain and wait for the most favorable time to forward it to the market" Such was the exclusive statement given to a newspaper correspondent by Hon. A. G. Blair, Minister of Railways and Canals, in stating what had been the exact results of his trip through the West to the Pacific Coast.

"There cannot be any wonder," the Minister of Railways went on to say, "that the railways should find it impossible to rush the grain through and to avoid blockades. Even if there were four times as many railways as there are at present, it would be impossible to handle it at once, owing to the fact that farmers from all districts hustle all their grain right to the railway, and expect and want to get in on the market as rapidly as possible. They will have to build barns and hold on to their grain if good prices are to be maintained.

MORE RAILWAYS NEEDED.

"Then, as Minister of Railways, I was particularly interested in seeing for myself what could be done to solve the great problem of transportation. It was six years since I had been through the country, and I had never before been through in in the open season. What I was particularly anxious to find out was how do the present railways, the Canadian Pacific, the Canadian Northern, the Great Northern, and the Northern Pacific, answer to the needs of the country, and what are the chances for new railways. After looking into the question as carefully as I could, I have decided that while each one of the railways has made all the progress it could, the country has grown greatly beyond them. In fact, I am thoroughly convinced that there is room for at least four more railways right through the Northwest to the Pacific Coast today, but not only convinced of that, but even of the fact that it must have them.

"I traveled over portions of all the four present railways, and branched inland to see the condition of the country. Everywhere the soil is so rich, its possibilities so great, that I would not hesitate for a moment to say that twenty miles on either side would be amply sufficient for a railway to be run with satisfactory results.

"Then I went among the people and I found that there was a very general opinion in in favor of a Government railway right through to the coast. I had thought so for many years; I am more than ever convinced of the fact. As the farmers pointed out to me it would be the one great thing that would tend to equalize rates; the one thing that would prevent them continually being at the mercy of the railway. They have the right to such a railway, and there cannot be any doubt that such a line might be run with great profit to the country.

"But then the country has gone ahead so fast that more railways must be established or immigration will receive a severe setting back. Settlers are now obliged to go into outlying districts and and unless railway facilities are afforded them in order to get their produce to market they will become discontented and get anxious to leave the country. Everywhere you go the same cry is to be heard, more railways.

IMMIGRATION FROM STATES.

"Then I was specially interested in the big immigration from the United States. While in England last summer the objection was often made that so many Americans coming into the country would be sure to favor the cause of annexation. I wanted to go among them, and see if there was any desire for anything of the kind. I found that there was not. They are above all anxious to make Canada their home, and I am quite sure that in a generation it will be impossible to tell the American from the real Canadian. In order to see what the chances were of the movement from the Western States extending itself, I visited the chief centers. And now I am going to prophesy. From what I have seen and learned I will prophesy that next year at least 100,000 Americans will find their way into Canada to settle down. The movement has only started, and the coming of so many Americans into the country will tend to offset the disaster that now threatens the West, for they will by example show the Canadian farmer the benefits to be derived from holding on to his grain.

"Then naturally I was interested in seeing what progress had been made by the Doukhobors and the Galicians. For the most part I found that the Doukhobors had shown themselves to be good settlers. The present trouble among them is not likely to spread very much. The Galicians have certainly gone ahead very rapidly. They have adapted themselves admirably to the conditions of the country, and are very anxious to learn English.

"It is wonderful how that country has gone ahead in the past six years, and there cannot be any greater truth than that the greatness of Canada lies in the West."

GUATEMALO VOLCANO IN STATE OF ERUPTION

Natives Fleeing in Great Terror to the Interior of the Country

Managua, Nicaragua, Oct. 31. — Since Saturday morning the volcano of Santa Maria, in the departmen tof Quezaltenango, in the northwestern part of Guatemala, has been in eruption. The eruption is attended with a terrifying roar and shocks are felt all over Nicaragua, Salvador and Cost Rica. No damage has been done here, but there if great alarm.

Santa Maria has not been considered an active volcano. There are several towns and villages near it. It is ten miles from the recently ruined town of Quezaltenango and five miles from Mez-Qatenango, which has 6,000 residents. The height of the volcano is 12,467 feet, or three times as hight as Mont Pelee in Martinicue.

Guatemala suffered severely from earthquakes several days last April who nmany towns and villages along the Cordillera were either damaged or reduced to ruins. The towns of Quezaltenango and Amitetlan, capitals respectively of the departments bearing the same names, were destroyed

SHOWER OF ASHES IN MEXICO.

Mexico City, Oct. 31.—There is no little consternation felt by the inhabitants of the remote south country on account of the showers of ashes falling in the extensive region from San Juan Bautista, capital of the state of Tabasco as far north as Salina Cruz. It is believed that a hill near Palenque, where there is a great prehistoric cityin ruins has suddenly been transformed into an active volcano.

The ashes falling at Palenque have hidden the sun and also at Comitan, and a great fear has come on the people. Palenque is the center of the disturbance, as the burning mountain is said to be near there. There is some anxiety felt for the Chapas.

Indians arriving at San Christobal Las Casas say a hill in the Guadaloupe Sierra is vomiting fire and smoke. People in many towns have been running about in terror and offering prayers publicly for the safety of their wives and children. Scientific opinion is that all of this is part of the general awakening of volcanic forces in the West Indies and Central America.

Bloodhound Used to Run Down Burglar

Syracuse, Nov. 2.—In the effort to run down the trouser-pocket burglar that has been terrifying Syracusans for the past six months, detectives to-day used a blood-hound. The animal was set on the trail of a burglar who broke into the residence of F. W. Hawkinson, 108 Harrison street, early this morning, but the effort was a failure. Two or three burglaries are reported every night.

PETERBOROUGH, NOV. 3, 1902.

A VALUABLE PRECEDENT

In his decision to visit South Africa and examine on the spot the many problems that the war has left for solution, Colonial Secretary Chamberlain has established a valuable precedent. Most of the mistakes that have been made in the past in at least the self-governing colonies have been the result of ignorance on the part of successive British ministers of local conditions and feelings. Familiarity with at least the self-governing colonies would seem to be the first duty of an imperial minister, and yet it may be doubted whether more than one or two of them could pass a satisfactory examination in colonial history and geography. The United States generals who returned from England the other day were struck with the fact that few prominent Englishmen had visited the American continent. Only two members of the present government have ever done so, and of the great generals, Roberts, Kitchener, Sir John French, Kelly-Kenny and Ian Hamilton, not one. Yet a real and close understanding of America is now more important to English public men than any other part of the world, and perhaps when Lord Roberts comes next September, his example will do something to make such visits more general. Once upon a time the Grand Tour of Europe was considered necessary to every gentleman's education but it is much more necessary that at this time the leaders of English thought and action should be able to view modern progress as a whole, and this they will not be able to do until they throw off their hereditary habits of insularity and acquaint themselves by actual travel with their kindred beyond the seas.

KRUGER'S POCKET PIECE

The queer story comes from South Africa that President Kruger has been carrying around with him a 300-karat diamond as a kind of pocket piece, or lucky penny. This recalls the stories of Oriental potentates, who put their wealth in the light and portable form of precious stones, that they might carry it into exile in their pockets. Mr. Kruger did not put the Boer revenues into his diamond. That might have been difficult, even with his autocratic power. It is said to have come into his possession as a gift, and the story is romantic enough to furnish Rider Haggard with a plot for a novel.

The stone first appears to tradition in the hands of a Basuto chief, from whom it passed by force to a Zulu king, and from him to a series of chiefs, each of whom committed assassination to get it. The native custodians of the legend say that sixteen successive owners of the stone were assassinated or exiled on account of it. Finally the whites heard of it, and an attack on the village where it was resulted in the death of 300 on both sides. The chief who had the stone buried it in a flesh wound and let the wound heal over it. In the vicissitudes of native history, this chief became a captive and slave of the Boers. He got Kruger's ear, told him his story, received his liberty, and gave him the stone.

Nearly all these incidents might be borrowed from fiction and legend of South Africa, but that does not exclude the possibility of their truth. The superstitious may be convinced by the fact that the stone brought upon Kruger the same doom it attracted to former possessors. He escaped death but was deposed and exiled. This should make buyers cautious, but the general belief of those who credit the story is that he has disposed of it, either to the vatican or to the Emperor of Austria. Probably the vatican feels that it is proof against black magic, and the Emperor of Austria has had so much bad luck in his life that he may well be reckless about inviting more.

HOPE IN SUNBEAMS

Experts, or alleged experts, tell us that the coal in the anthracite mines of the United States will not last a hundred years longer, that England's coal supply will not last so long as that, and that natural gas and fuel oil will be exhausted even sooner. The duration of the soft coal supply is a more uncertain proposition, since the field of production of the bituminous varieties is so much larger. But it is safe to conclude that at some period in the future the world will be practically destitute of fuel.

What will the world do then? This query inspires Prof R. H. Thurston, of Cornell, to contribute a magazine article on possible substitutes for power and heat. He sees a recourse in the utilization of solar heat. The sun wastes heat and power enough to run a good many worlds like ours. The problem is to catch it during the hours of sunshine and store it up, and then to distribute it when and where needed. The inventive genius of man, which has accomplished so many wonderful things, ought to be adequate to this task. Prof. Thurston says that at Pasadena, Cal., there is an immense concave mirror, moved by clockwork, the reflected heat from which is utilized to run a ten-horse power engine. Whether there is any economy in this, as compared with the use of coal, oil or wood for making steam is not stated. But if there was no coal, oil or wood, and the sunbeams could be harnessed and brought into service, they would have to be utilized, no matter how much it might cost to collect them.

Each age is confronted with its own problems, and we may safely leave to the future fuelless age the problem of perfect substitutes. In the meantime invention is constantly at work to cheapen power by harnessing the natural forces in the service of man. The waterfalls and the winds are extensively used—but when a way is found of harnessing the direct rays of the sun, all the secondary forces that derive their power from the sun can be dropped.

GENERAL BOOTH

General Booth has been with us. He is a wonderful old man He is not an orator. He is not attractive. He has no grace of manner. He has no music of voice. And yet he can fill the largest halls in the country. And this is simply because he has a story to tell the most wonderful story ever imagined by fictionists. Think of the problem of making any creature the simplest organism you can conceive over in the new. Then think of making thousands and scores of thousands over in the new. This is what General Booth has done through his marvellous organization. Laugh at the methods, if you like; scorn the vulgarities, the shouting, the singing, and loud appeal to self interest, the doctrinal system, which still gives you a literal hell, unsoftened by the newer renderings, which are invitingly restful and comfortable (for surely it is a place of rest which most of us crave when the day's work is done) but there is the tremendous fact, that the Salvation Army has made the most desperate creatures who were ever the victims of heredity and environment over in the new. The drunkard has become sober. The debauchee has been transformed into the considerate, loving companion, who remembers once more the tenderness of the marriage vow. The lost woman has been restored to happiness and virtue. Nor is this all. The wastrel who could do nothing, makes boots and shoes now, makes matches and clothing, tills the fields, is a new creature. And notice this, the saved people stay saved. They are good citizens. They go to church. They pay their rates. They have comfortable homes. We have seen it; we know the story in its details. Miracle? It is a most stupendous miracle.

TO COMPEL THEM TO RETURN

Major Strickland Says Force May Be Used on Doukhobors — They Gave up Their Money — Over $17,000 of Savings in Hands of Government Agent

Winnipeg, Oct. 31.—The Mounted Police have about given up the task of compelling the Doukhobors to return to their farms as a hopeless job. The futility of the efforts of the police were duly appreciated by the fanatics themselves, and, despite the roughness, and in some cases, brutal measures of the cowboys employed by the Government officials, to Doukhobors refused to be moved.

"The Russian Government could not drive us with its thousands of Cossacks and their knouts, and this government cannot drive us with a few boys on horseback," said an English-speaking Doukhobor yesterday.

A second body numbering 800 has left Yorkton for Winnipeg, and have already reached Salt Coats. They are living on apples and their destination and purpose is indefinite.

Major Strickland, N.W.M.P., passed through Winnipeg to-day for Yorkton. He will endeavor to turn back the Doukhobors now at Salt Coats and intimated that force would be used in case they refused to return to their homes. He will superintend military operations in case the Doukhobors cause trouble.

It was feared last night that an attempt might be made to liberate the women and children, but nothing of this kind was attempted nor do they seem anxious to have them along. Many Doukhobors who are not converts to the new fanaticism followed them to-day and attempted to assuade their countrymen from their intention, but it seemed of little use.

Nearly every man is carrying either a bundle or a roll of blankets, and as long as the weather holds as it is they will not suffer. The only harm these people will do is to themselves. They are looked upon at Yorkton as a lot of harmless religious fanatics. The women are showing strong signs of wavering, and fully three-fourths of them are anxious to go back to their villages if the men will accompany them.

The Doukhobors at Yorkton have asked for a special train to take them to a warmer climate. All their funds have been given to Mr. Crerer, the local immigration agent, who has now upwards of $17,000, made up of their savings and the proceeds of the sale of their stock. One man, who had a good position in Yorkton, drew his monthly salary of $40 and immediately deposited it with Mr. Crerer and refused to work any more, saying he was going to work for Jesus. A few weeks ago letters were sent to all the States in South America by the Doukhobors asking if they could form a colony. It was stated that they would lead good lives, although they would not agree to conform strictly with the laws of the Government or with the religion of the country. Rubbers are now at a premium in Yorkton, as the Doukhobors have purchased all the supply, many of them refusing to wear leather in any form.

Commissioner Moffat does not think the Doukhobors threw the dead bodies of children into bushes without burial.

have gone to see her act if she'd been playing in 'Mazeppa.'"

"So would I. But as a well-wisher of the family—I can't say a friend, as I hardly know the Grays personally—I can't help thinking it's just as well she didn't—whatever was the reason that caused her to back out apparently at the last minute. One never knows the rights of these theatrical quarrels. 'Mazeppa,' as it was to have been played, judging from the posters, wasn't a piece I should have cared for a daughter or sister of mine to appear in."

"No," said Newcome, calmly. But there was a spark in his eye at the thought of those posters.

"A man was telling me a day or two ago that the family are in financial straits," continued Macaire. "The mother's ill, and there's a ne'er-do-well young brother who failed in Ireland with a paper he'd taken shares in." (Macaire had not needed his detective to tell him this; he had had a hand in that little transaction himself, having been a power behind the editorial throne which had toppled.) "I don't want to appear in the transaction at all; but if you come out ahead in this fight with the Kid, and make your bow in society as a young man of fashion, you might be able to help me do the trick and others of the same sort. Between us we might get young Gray a berth that would prop up the family fortunes, eh?"

"If I can help, you may count on me for all I'm worth," responded Newcome, this time not attempting to cool down the growing warmth in his breast. He liked Lionel Macaire; and now no warning thrill bade him look before he leaped—to conclusions.

CHAPTER XXVI.

The Lion's Den.

Lionel Macaire was giving a dinner to a few friends at his huge palace of a house in Park lane.

Only a dozen men were asked, and there were no women save those engaged to sing and dance strange new dances in diaphanous rainbow draperies while the guests sat over their wine and cigars. But the principal guest was a royal personage, and a rumor had gone round among those present that after dinner was over the millionaire had a surprise up his sleeve for his friends.

He was celebrated for his surprises of one kind or another. Sometimes they were of a kind to be mentioned afterwards only in whispers by those let into the secret; but they were always notable, not to be forgotten. And perhaps there was not another man in England who entertained with such eccentric magnificence as Lionel Macaire. It was because of this—and because, too, of a certain room in his town house, or under it—that he had got his nickname of Nero the Second. And the room which, though few people had actually seen it, had helped to swell his peculiar fame was called the "Lion's Den." Strange scenes were said to be enacted there sometimes.

His dining-room was built like a banqueting-hall in an ancient Roman palace. The floor was of white marble, and the domed ceiling was of blue and gold mosaic, the pillars supporting its arches were of pink granite, and there were wonderful curtains of Syrian-dyed purple silk, bordered with scroll patterns in gold. Against this purple background statues of beautiful nude figures stood out in gleaming white, for Macaire was a patron of the arts, and his tastes were distinctly French.

Under the open-work embroidery and lace insertion of the table-cover was cloth-of-gold; and the plate was gold also, glittering under the electric lights that starred the blue vault of the ceiling. In such a room, and at such a table, the men in their modern evening dress looked oddly out of keeping; but none so incongruous as the host himself.

With the cigars came a gold cigarette-case for each guest, with his own monogram in diamonds; and when the last pretty dancer had bowed her lightly-draped figure away behind one of the purple curtains and no man cared for more wine—even Lionel Macaire's wine—the host suggested to his most honored guest an adjournment to the "cellar" (as he called it), where something amusing might be expected.

A quiet smile went round the cirle at Nero's way of referring to the "Lion's Den." Every man knew that he was in for some good sport.

They left the dining-room, coming out into an immense hall, then through several passages, which led them at last to a fine billiard-room. In one wall was a great cupboard, which held all sorts of odds and ends; and at the back of this was a concealed door which opened with a spring. It's existence would have been difficult for anyone save an expert in such matters to discover unassisted; and only two of the millionaire's most trusted employees were in the secret, though there were whispers in the servants' hall concerning a mystery in the house. The architect and the builder had kept their own counsel, as had Macaire's favored guests, and if the millionaire sometimes provided illegal diversions for his friends there was little danger of an interruption from rudely raiding police.

When the concealed door had retired into the wall as magician fingers touched the hidden spring, a flight of marble stairs could be seen, illuminated by electric lights set on either side. At the bottom of the steps was an open space floored and walled with marble. Here were two closed doors of oak. One of these Lionel Macaire opened, and his guests, led by Royalty, filed into a curious room.

It was, as he had said, in the cellar, but it had no connection with the other cellars under the huge house. It could be entered by two doors only; one, through which the party had just come, and another opening into an adjoining apartment.

The room was thirty feet square at least, and as plain as the rest of the house was elaborate. Round the walls were rows of cushioned seats of walnut wood, sloping upward in tiers. They would have accommodated a hundred people, instead of the dozen here to-night. These seats walled in a conventional roped "ring"—a square about twenty feet in dimension. At each corner of this square was a big silver punch-bowl, in lieu of a basin, a silver jug filled with scented water, and a great bloated-looking sponge.

At sight of these preparations the guests at once knew what sort of entertainment was in store for them. Even those who were familiar with the Lion's Den had been uncertain till this

ALMOST SOLID COPPER

One 18 inch vein of 90 per cent copper (almost the solid metal) has been opened up in Copper Queen Extension Claim, one of the six constituting our Montana property, while mining a thirty-foot vein of free milling 18 per cent copper ore, carrying thirty ounces of silver to the ton.

This is so far ahead of our expectations, brilliant as our former prospects were, that we realize the IMMEDIATE building of a mill to handle this magnificent output, equalled in richness only by the Calumet and Hecla mines, is an ABSOLUTE NECESSITY. This will make OUR OWN portion of the stock, as well as THAT ACQUIRED BY THE PUBLIC, for the purposes of this immediate development, worth an immense amount of money in an exceedingly short time.

Help us build a Mill immediately by purchasing our One Dollar Shares, which are offered this week at 30 cents a Share as a Special Inducement to insure the speedy building of the Mill, and we will make your stock yield you an inordinate profit as quickly as the Mill can be put in operation.

We furnish the rich property—you furnish the mill. In a few months it will be in operation—almost before you expect it—and we divide the immense returns.

Montana Consolidated Mining Company

Capital Stock $500,000, divided into 500,000 shares of $1 par value.

STOCK MARKETS

Some Telling Figures.

New York, Nov. 1.—Gross earnings of the St. Paul Company for September have just been announced; they are splendid. The increase for the month over the same months for the preceding year amounted to $293,722. The net earnings increased $174,346. This road keeps up its marvellous statements of earnings, showing constantly increasing traffic on top of the enormous increases for the past two years. No wonder the stock is hovering near to the 200 mark which these letters have predicted for it ever since it sold at 140. We expect to see St. Paul stock sell as high as does North-West within twelve months. Southern Railway earnings for September have been reported also, and are simply remarkable. The gain in gross for the month was $528,915. Just think of it. Net earnings increased $106,333, making a gain from July of $297,778. The company's traffic is simply enormous. The Southern territory is steadily increasing in prosperity and industrial activity. Its earnings will increase materially for years to come. The company has spent out of its earnings in the past few years stupenduous amounts of money, and as a result the physical condition of the road is simply magnificent, while heavier loads may now be carried at much diminished cost. Southern preferred pays 5 per cent., yet sells below par. This is an increase of big intrinsic value at a cheap market price. Eventually the issue should sell well above par, while the time should be near when the common stock will be salable well above 50 dollars per share. No mistake can be made in buying both the preferred and common stocks of the Southern Railway Company. The general heaviness of the market so far this week was due largely to the operations of what is known in Wall street circles as the "Waldorf Astoria crowd," which is a corterie of prominent floor traders of the New York Stock Exchange. They have been perniciously active in hammering each stock issue down as far as they possibly could. It is a mercurial and quick changing speculative party, and when they turn it will be done as quick as a flash, and their following will be victims. The coming week is likely to see the activities of this speculative party switched to the bull side of the account.

Summary—To-day's trading showed a disposition to await the bank statement. The bulk of the trading was concentrated in Manhattan, Baltimore & Ohio, Union Pacific, and Reading common. Manhattan looks as if it were going higher; we believe it will come pretty close to reaching 146 on this movement. Good buying was discernible the past two days in Metropolitan also. The bank statement was a favorable one, showing about three and one half millions increase in reserves and eleven million increase in deposits. While specie increased over five million, circulation increased two millions. It was without material effect on prices. Manhattan, Baltimore & Ohio, Louisville & Nashville, and Union Pacific shaded off somewhat in price just before closing. Money closed at 4 per cent. Sales 161,-100.

When Buying Mining Stock Buy the Best

AN INVESTMENT IN THE

Pitkin Gold Belt Mining and Reduction Company

Which is Safe and Sure of Quick Returns, may Bring an Enormous Return at any Moment. It has the Possibilities of Rivaling the Great Mines of the Past.

This Company has a mine on a true fissure vein, in the center of the Gunniston Gold Belt, Colorado, which is the "Mother" lode or dike, which has produced 15 per cent. more gold than the total output of the Cripple Creek district.

This Mine is no Prospect. Nor is it Waiting on Your Subscription to Buy Machinery or for Development.

After a careful examination by experts, Joseph M. Bradley, M. E., and Mr. George Arlett, A. I. M. E., Amalgamated Copper Company's expert in Chihuahua, Mexico, they advised the purchase of the property. The property had shallow development upon it, showing two ore shoots from which smelting ore had been shipped to the Buena Vista Smelter.

The Company purchased and paid for the latest improved machinery and has put a shaft down 250 feet and intend to carry it down 1000 feet. On the 150 foot level 200 feet of development has been made and an ore shoot has been encountered and blocked out for 87 feet, carrying values in gold from 2 to 9 ounces or $40 to $120 per ton. The cost of mining, hauling, freight and smelter charges will be between $12 and $15 per ton.

Ed. McCarthy & Co., bankers, guarantee a shipping mine of smelting ore running from 2 to 6 ounces in gold, or $40 to $120 per ton, by January 1st, 1903, or all funds will be returned to subscribers upon presentation of receipt issued by said bank.

Also to prospective purchasers of $600 worth of stock we are offering a free trip to Colorado and return. You investigate first and purchase afterward. Could you expect anything fairer than this?

The capital stock of this company is $1,000,000, divided into 1,000,000 shares of stock at $1 each, full paid and non-assessable. A portion of the treasury stock is now offered at

A Sunday Night Burglary

On Saturday, Mrs. Syer, who lives at 212 Barnardo avenue, reported the robbery of her home while the family were at church. Entrance was obtained through the hall window by ladder, and the thieves, who are thought to be boys, ransacked everything in the search of valuables. The pockets of Mr. Syers' clothing were turned out, and in a drawer was found Mrs. Syers' purse, containing $7, and her daughter's with some small change in it. There is yet no clue to the culprits.

To Prepare for the Fight

The Ministerial Association of the town has invited the ministers of the whole country to a conference this afternoon, to be held in the Y.M.C.A. Hall at three o'clock, to discuss the line of action to be taken in the forthcoming temperance campaign during the month of November. Rev. Dr. S. D. Chown, of Toronto, will be present and address the conference.

Why Snuffle and Sneeze

Don't suffer any more with a cold in the head. Just carry a Catarrhozone inhaler in your vest pocket, use it now and again and you won't have colds. Inhale the pleasant Catarrhozone vapor five minutes four times daily and it will cure bronchitis, lung trouble, deafness, asthma and catarrh in any part of the system. Catarrhozone is the most direct, modern and scientific method, and is guaranteed to give satisfaction. Complete two months' treatment costs $1.00, trial size 25c. Druggists or N. C. THE LATE JOSEPH SPROULE

An Old and Esteemed Citizen Passes Away on Saturday

On Saturday morning last Mr. Joseph Sproule passed away, at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. John Haggart, Brock street, aged 85 years.

The deceased had been in poor health for some time, and his demise was not unexpected. Mr. Sproule was a native of Tyrone, Ireland, and came to Canada 45 years ago, settling in North Monaghan. For 25 years he was a resident of this town. He was a staunch Presbyterian, and was held in high esteem by all who knew him. The late Mr. Sproule's wife predeceased him last April, and there still survive him two sons and a daughter. The sons are Messrs. A. H. B., of Tyrone, Ireland; and G. B., of Montana. The daughter is Mrs. John Haggart, of town.

The funeral will take place from the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. John Haggart, Brock street, this afternoon at 3 o'clock, to the Little Lake cemetery.

—The steamers Water Lily, Rainbow and North Star were up from Rice Lake ports Saturday with passengers and freight.

Three good boys wanted at The Times office—one to learn bookbinding, one to learn press work and one as messenger in the bookstore.

—The large gate in the rear entrance to the Methodist church, was found in front of Dr. George Burnham's residence on Saturday morning, the result of Hallowe'en frolic.

—The ministers of the county will meet in the Y.M.C.A. at 2 o'clock this afternoon to confer on the work of the month and to arrange for representation throughout the county.

—Rev. P. K. Dayfoot, of Port Hope, will deliver a lecture this evening, in the Park street Baptist church, on "Happy, Though Married." A tea will be served at 6 o'clock, and the lecture will be punctured by vocal and instrumental music.

—Thomas Brewer, a fireman, was sentenced on Saturday last, in Toronto, to one month with hard labor for committing common assault on Lem Felcher. In passing sentence the judge remarked that the jury took a very lenient view of the case, but his Honor thought this crime altogether too common. Brewer, it will be remembered, was formerly a resident of Peterborough.

Would You Think It?

Would you think it possible that you could be disappointed in the face of a woman whose shapely shoulders, and beautiful hair suggest womanly perfection and beauty? Such disappointment comes not seldom when the face turned to you shows disfiguring blotches and blemishes. In general the cause of these eruptions is impure blood.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery purifies the blood, and removes the corrupt accumulations which cause disease. When the blood is cleansed, pimples, tetter, salt-rheum, boils, sores, and other results of impure blood, are perfectly and permanently cured.

"For three years I suffered with that dreaded disease eczema," writes Mrs. J. Koepp, of Herman, Oregon. "I was told to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which I did, and after I had taken fourteen bottles I was permanently cured. It has been a year since I stopped taking your medicine and it has never appeared since. I think your medicine a wonderful cure and hope others suffering as I did, will take it and be relieved of their suffering."

Some of the most remarkable cures effected by "Golden Medical Discovery," have been of scrofulous diseases.

"I will forever thank you for advising me to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery," writes Mrs. Jas. Murphy, of Fonda, Pocahontas Co., Iowa. "It has cured me of chronic scrofula of twelve years' standing. I had doctored for the trouble until I was completely discouraged. I also had chronic diarrhea for twelve years. I am in good health now—better than I ever was in my life, owing to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took several bottles of the 'Discovery' before I stopped."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach, blood and lungs.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure dizziness and sick headache.

COAL $5.00 A TON WITH THE WONDERFUL
STAR HEATER

The only heater that is guaranteed to give satisfaction with soft as well as hard coal. As a fuel economizer it is unequalled, producing heat on about one-third the coal used in any other heater in existence.

The Star has a tube behind for the escape of the gas. As anyone who uses soft coal knows, the gas accumulates under the fresh coal, and if there is no escape there will be explosions and puffs of smoke. In the Star this disappears in the gas escape. The Star has a sliding damper and ornamental door of mica.

After being filled, the Star will heat for 48 hours without attention. It will hold fire and give out heat longer than any other stove.

The Star is 25 per cent more economical than any other stove.

MORE THAN 5,000 ARE IN USE IN THE LOWER PROVINCES.

PRICE LIST

No.	Height	Diameter	Price
0	24 1-2 in.	9 in	$11.20
1	30 1-2 in.	9 in	$12.00
2	34 in.	10 1-2 in	$13.00
3	37 1-2 in.	13 in	$19.20
4	41 in.	15 in	$25.50

DIRECTIONS

When filling the stove always shut the draught door at the bottom.

Keep the small opening in the back pipe closed except when cleaning.

Clean the back pipe every two weeks.

COAL CONSUMERS, ATTENTION!

We are using one No. 3 Star stove in our large rooms, where formerly we had four large wood heaters, and get more heat now than before. The wood stoves cost us $4.50 every week for fuel, and the Star stove which we are now using costs us only $1.50, making a saving of $3.00 per week in the price of fuel—which would soon pay for the stove. We can recommend this stove to any person wanting a first-class heater. We would not use any other stove that is made.

ST. PETER'S T.A.S.
M. J. Serro, Chairman Trustees.

We certify that we have in use one No. 3 Star stove in our large pool and billiard room, the size of which is 45x32 ft., with 15 ft. ceiling. We have perfect heat, and the most coal we have used on the coldest day yet has been three scuttles in 24 hours. We are so well pleased with the stove that we would not use any other.

ROCAMORA & CALLAHAN.

I have been using a No. 3 Star stove in the sitting room at the City Hotel for some time past, and it has proved so satisfactory that I have ordered two more to replace two stoves in the upstairs. The Star gives more heat than the other stoves with half the amount of coal.

MARTIN CONNORS.

We have in use in our composing room a No. 3 Star coal stove, and wish to state that it is giving eminent satisfaction. The entire absence of gas by the escape provided, the increase of heat and the saving in coal are special features of the Star, and it requires a minimum of attention.

FIGHT FOR INDEPENDENCE WILL GO ON SAYS REITZ

The Late Secretary of the Transvaal Believes the Boers will Yet be Free

Philadelphia, Pa., November 4. — It was a trifle hard to determine which carried off the honors the Five O'Clock Club's first dinner of the season at the Bellevue last night—the bench of Pennsylvania and also of the city of Pennsylvania or sympathisers of the Boers. Both had able and earnest champions, the former in the persons of Judges W. W. Porter, Norris S. Barrett, Isaac Johnson, and Henry J. McCarthy; the latter in Francis W. Reitz, late Secretary of State of the Transvaal Republic, and the host of brilliant orators that his speech brought to the floor.

It was an unconscious struggle in many respects, for speech upon South Africa was followed by eulogy of the bench, and both were sandwiched between song and story of the topsy-turvy characteristic of the Five O'Clock Club which allows not a single dull moment at any of its gatherings. Nevertheless, both furnished the lines upon which the dinner progressed, and each speaker chose the one of the two that best suited his fancy.

Mr. Reitz Speaks.

At the conclusion of the menu Judge McCarthy introduced Mr. Reitz who gave an account of the struggle of the Boers that was all the more interesting for being delivered by an eye-witness.

"Many have said to me," he declared "that the cause of the Boers is defunct —that it is a dead issue, and that I waste time to talk about it. I do not think so. The war is over, but the struggle for independence is not. I am not going to stir up strife, but it will come. When it does, although I am an old man, God helping me, I and my sons will be right there.

Much applause greeted Mr. Reitz and three hearty cheers were given for the South African republic.

Liberty Needed in America.

Colonel A. Loudon Snowden created somewhat of a stir among the Five o'Clockers by his remarks. When called upon by the chair he began by saying that all were in sympathy with the many efforts of the Boers to achieve independence. "There are many of us here," he declared, "who would be glad of liberty. When in our country men are burned at the stake and are lynched, when railroad trains run over citizens and other atrocities are committed, and yet the perpetrators go unpunished, there is need for liberty. The common things of life are denied us in Pennsylvania You call it government. I call it anarchy.

"We are a great people and we are also great frauds. We talk of the suffering Hebrews in Roumania and allow atrocities to go unpunished in our own country. Let the Nation awake, and not be so blind and besotted as not to see the things that bring disrespect to the flag."

"The Boers have lost their fight, but they may remember with satisfaction that they are under the flag of England, and wherever that flag floats, it guarantees respect and protection to its subjects.

RUSSIA'S NEW MOVE IN THE MEDITERRANEAN

A New War Cloud Once More Looming Up in the East with Turkey

London, Nov 4—It has been evident for some time back that the Russian Government was preparing to take fresh steps to emancipate itself from the clauses of the Treaty of Paris in 1856, which prohibited the maintenance of a Russian war navy in the Black Sea. The bases of the new move were undoubtedly laid of the conference held during the past spring and summer between the Emperor Nicholas and the French President the King of Italy and the German Emperor, and the details are still unknown. The events of the past few weeks, however, throw some light on the situation and the reports just published of the propositions said to have been made to the Sultan by the Grand Duke Nicholas, during his recent visit to Constantinople seem to bring things to a focus.

The gist of the matter appears to be that the Sultan will sooner or later have the option presented to him of becoming a mediatized sovereign under the joint protection of certain of the European Powers, or under that of Russia alone. The statement of the Austrian Prime Minister regarding the settlement of the Dardanelles question by arbitration points to the first. Meanwhile the course of the trouble in Macedonia will afford some indication of the direction events are likely to take.

The restoration of order there and the cooperation of the Bulgarian Government with the Porte in preventing further agitation will point to the ascendency of Russia at Yildiz Kiosk; and this is all the more likely, because the Sultan cannot fail to remember his abandonment by England, France and Austria in 1877, although these powers were bound by a tripartite engagement to maintain the integrity and independence of the Ottoman Empire. Another point in Russia's favor is that though she exacted a heavy indemnity from Turkey after the war of 1877-78, which was recognized by the Berlin Congress, the Russian Government has exercised no undue pressure for its payment; and, following the policy enunciated by Prince Gortschakoff at that congress in regard to the general debt of Turkey, has taken no part in what he described as the exploitation of the Turkish people.

The situation in the Near East is becoming more interesting than that in the Far East. All eyes are turned to the Mediterranean, particularly to the shores of the Levant.

ITEMS OF NEWS BY CABLE AND LETTER

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Nov. 1.—Lawrence Fisher, George Rhodes Hugo Swanson and William Bradish, of Tonawanda, were killed last night in a gas explosion at the head of a big tunnel trunk sewer. R. Kovich, Sam Finch and M. Mulroy were seriously injured.

London, Nov. 3.—A despatch to the Express from St. Petersburg says that Doctor Mertsulewski, the foremost alienist in Russia, has been summoned to Livadia to attend the Czar, who is suffering from a nervous complaint.

If the conditions are made to suit him he will attempt the trip, taking another man with him. He will use motors of 45 horse power each, which will enable him to make ninety miles an hour.

Guelph, Nov. 3.—Mr. Robert McConachie, watchman at the Gordon street crossing, is the proud possessor of many letters from Lord Strathcona. In Scotland in their boyhood days they were schoolmates and the intimacy then formed has been maintained through all the years. Every three months Mr. McConachie receives a letter and a check for fifty dollars from his wealthy friend.

Recently a publisher in Toronto wrote would take for Strathcona's letters. If he had objections to selling them, the writer asked, would Mr. McConachie loan them for a week or two for publication purposes? Mr. McConachie answered that he would neither sell nor loan the letters; they were private.

A worthy old gentleman is Mr. McConachie. He had been thirty-four years in the service of the G.T.R., and has never lost a day. Though long past the allotted span of life he is still hale and hearty. He has twenty-one children living—eleven boys and ten girls—and nine are dead. A father of thirty children in these days of anxiety at the low birth rate is surely not the least worthy subject for the munificence of a public spirited man like Lord Strathcona.

Toledo, Nov. 3.—With the death at Detroit yesterday of Marshall O. Waggoner, there terminates a life in which some very strange events have figured. This is the man, who after a successful business career, after a life of research and study that had made him one of the best informed men in America, after years devoted to combating the Christian religion, became a convert to it through the instrumentality of a gramophone. The conversion was one of the most sensational things that came under the notice of the clergy for many years, and Mr. Waggoner was for months overwhelmed with letters from the most prominent ministers of the day asking information as to his conversion.

Mr. Waggoner was a scientist, and, as such, took a great interest in the gramophone. He purchased one of the first that was brought to this city, and one evening seated alone in his library surrounded by his parrot, his books and a fine collection of curios, he was listening to the music of the gramophone when first it gave forth "Nearer, My God, to Thee," then "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," and as the notes fell clearly, sweetly on the ears of the atheist, the man who for years had combated and reviled the Christian faith, he felt the tears roll down his cheeks and, moved by some unknown impulse, he knelt for the first time in many years. He remained on his knees until day was breaking and rose from them as strong an advocate of Christianity as he had previously been its adversary. So complete was his conversion that he publicly burned in a bonfire at the steps of the United Brethren church his library, one of the most complete collections of atheistic writings in the world.

Sunderland, England, Nov. 2—About 2,000 shipjoiners on the northeast coast have struck against a reduction of eighteen pence a week in their wages.

RUSSIAN NOBLES IN DIRE FINANCIAL STRAITS

The Czar Trying to Devise Means for Their Relief

St. Petersburg, Nov. 3—The Czar is deeply exercised over the condition of his nobles.

Before Finance Minister de Witte left St. Petersburg for Siberia and Manchuria he consented to his imperial master's wish to found a bank from which impecunious nobles could get loans at easy rates on the security of their lands. It now appears that of the land nominally owned by the Russian nobility more than nine-tenths is mortgaged as deeply as it will bear.

Sinking into Poverty.

The poor nobles—of whom there are more than half a million—are gradually sinking into abject poverty and merging with the proletariat in the big towns. The wealthier nobles are also gravitating to the cities, especially St. Petersburg, where they live in splendor and extravagance until ruin comes. The Czar has given instructions that pressure is being put on these to reside on their estates rather than in the capital.

Czar Aids Peasant.

A peasant complained at the palace that Prince Davidoff was oppressing and driving him hard for taxes. The Czar received the peasant, listened to his story and gave orders to pay him $50. He then sent for Prince Davidoff, ordered him to retire to his estate treat his people as they ought to be treated, and read him a long lecture about Count Tolstoi, whose example he bade the Prince to imitate.

"Look at Leo Tolstoi," said his imperial majesty. "See how kind he is to the poor people committed to his charge, and shares their burden with them. Go and do likewise, and when I hear that your estates are flourishing and your peasants happy I will send for you again."

Prince Davidoff had been cutting a tremendous dash in St. Petersburg.

Paine's Celery Compound Makes Permanent Cures In Chronic and Complicated Cases of Rheumatism

IT GIVES NEW LIFE TO HELPLESS AND CRIPPLED MEN AND WOMEN

Professor Edward E. Phelps, M. D. L.L.D., has given to his profession a positive and permanent cure for all forms of rheumatism now so common in the autumn season. To the rheumatic, this truth should prove encouraging and comforting. Men and women suffering intense agonies from a disease that frequently stiffens the joints, cripples the limbs and renders its victims helpless, can be restored to activity, vigor and health if Paine's Celery Compound be used for a few weeks. There is every reason why sufferers should pin their faith to this best of medicines. Your friends and neighbors have used it with success; the honest physician is prescribing it every day in cases where other means have failed, and they are delighted with the grand results. It is your only hope; your safety and life depend upon its use. Mrs. M. McKillop, Campbellford, Ont, writes about her cure as follows:

"I was a sufferer from rheumatism for a long time and endured great pain. The cords in the palms of my hands were drawn up and I despaired of getting relief. After using Paine's Celery Compound, I have banished all my pains and troubles, and find myself strengthened in every way. I think Paine's Celery Compound is the best medicine in the world for rheumatism and all nervous complaints.

Berlin, Nov. 3.—The Reichstag today adopted by considerable majorities the recommendations of the Tariff Commission in regard to the minimum duties to be imposed under the new tariff on cattle, sheep and swine. By this action the House again rejected the Government proposals on the subject.

MAD MULLAH FRIEND OF ITALY

So says Karl Inger Who is Acting as His Chief Lieutenant

Rome, Nov. 3— Karl Inger, the former Austrian officer, who is said to have acted as chief Lieutenant of the Mad Mullah in Somaliland, in a letter to the Corriere Della Sera accuses the British of endeavoring to prevent the Somalis from establishing commercial relations with Europe.

He expresses the hope that Italy will not aid England in any campaign against the Mullah, but will establish commercial relations with the rich region controlled by the Mullah, who, he says, is a friend of Italy

KING OF BELGIUM

CHINA ASKS AID

Desires The Hague Tribunal to Settle the Question of Payment of Indemnity

Washington, Oct 31—Minister Wo Ting-fang is urging the State Department to assist China in inducing the Powers to have the Hague Arbitration Tribunal settle the question of whether China will be compelled to pay the Boxer indemnity in gold instead of silver. The State Department has promised to help. The first payment of the indemnity interest was made in silver, under the condition that the Powers should reserve the right to determine later whether the difference in the value of silver and gold should not be paid. Another payment will be due on Jan. 1, and the Powers, including the United States, are discussing the question of whether it shall be made in gold or silver. Most of the Powers insist on gold payments. The United States takes the side of China in declaring that the indemnity treaty was made in the understanding that silver payments would be required. Very little hope is felt here that the effort to have the treaty placed before the Hague tribunal for arbitration will be successful. China insists that she is unable to pay gold.

They Father Consumption

Bad coughs, colds and catarrh are responsible for far more consumption than is traceable even to heredity. Catarrhozone cures more quickly than ordinary remedies because it is the only antiseptic yet discovered that is volatile enough to reach the root of the trouble in remote parts of the lungs and bronchial tubes and impregnate every particle of the air breathed with its healing, germ-killing vapor. Colds can't last ten minutes or coughs more than thirty minutes when Catarrhozone is inhaled. It clears nose, throat and air passages at once, stops dropping, headache and erradicates catarrh from any part of the system. Two months' treatment $1.00; trial size 25c. Druggists or N. C. CANADIAN TRADE WITH THE WEST INDIES

A Halifax Man Urges Our People to Exert Themselves

Halifax, N. S., November 4 — Canadians are slow about following up trade with the West Indies. This is the testimony of Mr. J. R. Wood, of Halifax, who lately returned from a business trip to Trinidad. "Since the visit of the President of the Manufacturer's Association last spring not a single Canadian traveller has set foot upon the island. A few Canadian samples have been shown by men who handle American goods, but in Mr. Wood's opinion, if Canada is to get the trade she must send down good men and keep them there all the year round. During his stay at Port of Spain he made the acquaintance of all the business men on the island, and he says they are disposed to give Canada a good deal of the trade. The reason so many orders go to New York is because the American drummer is constantly on the ground. He never gives the merchant a chance to get out of anything or send a letter offer if he can help it. Mr. Wood thinks that even though the Canadian traveller didn't pay expenses the first year, if he kept constantly on the ground, talking to the people and studying general conditions, the experiment would pay in the end. He thinks also that our manufacturers might assist travellers by advertising in the Trinidad daily papers which are largely patronized by the business houses of Port of Spain and seem to have a fair circulation throughout the island. He is very hopeful of the future of Trinidad even though the sugar market continues to prove unprofitable. The resources of the island are varied and but few of them have as yet been developed.

CABED FOR MOTHER IN AGONY

Boy Run Over by Train Said: "Don't Tell Mamma How Badly I'm Hurt"

New York, Nov. 3—James Randazzo, a bright lad of 7 years, of 1037 Pacific street, Brooklyn, was run over and so badly injured that he died, by a Long Island railroad train at Atlantic and Clason avenues yesterday morning on his way to school. Train 226 from Flatbush avenue ran over both his legs. When he was picked up his first words were a warning not to alarm his mother.

"Don't tell mamma how badly I am hurt," he said.

He was removed to St. Mary's Hospital where he died shortly before noon

TO ORGANIZE NEGROES

Movement to Prevent Lawlessness by Members of the Race

New Orleans, Nov. 3—The Executive Committee of the Southern Negro Congress in session here has elected a general and assistant general organizer, who are authorized to appoint organizers at large in every State and Territory comprising the congress. It was resolved to establish headquarters in each of the Southern States where advice will be given to all negroes desiring it, and information will be furnished to the world of illegal acts perpetrated against negroes and all unjust discriminations practised against them.

The officers at these headquarters will also investigate all reports of atrocities charged to negroes and give the facts, the congress taking the position that many persons are deceived and prejudiced by false reports o crimes said to be perpetrated by negroes. In all cases where the negroes are found to be in the wrong, the congress will express its disapproval of their acts and assist in bringing the negro criminals to justice.

It will also endeavor to induce the negro to ostracise socially and in every other way those of their race who are directly or indirectly connected with lawlessness.

The Critical Time of Life

Is between the years of fifty-six and sixty-two. Nature's power slows down, vitality becomes less, and the process of decay sets in. A means of extending old age and renewing decreasing vigor is to take Ferrozone after meals. Ferrozone keeps up the appetite, and in the formation of red, vitalizing blood, imparts clearness to the tiring brain, force, energy and spirits just when they are needed most To take Ferrozone regularly means adding from ten to twenty years to life. PEAT AT OTTAWA.

Finished Article From the Bogs at Newington A Great Demand

The Ottawa Free Press says:

It is reported that some peat will arrive in the city from Newington inside of a week. The Company had arranged to have large quantities of the fuel ready for shipment by November 1st, but were delayed for want of machinery.

It was learned at the city office on Wellington street that three cars of this machinery has just been delivered at the peat bogs. Carbonizers boilers and engines are on hand. When the complete equipment for making the peat is put in operation bricks will be turned out in 24 hours.

The Ottawa and New York railway runs through the bog which is only 40 miles from Ottawa so that there will be no delay in bringing abundance of peat in the city. Low rates have been secured from the railway company and it is the intention to supply the capital with a cheap fuel.

The representatives of the peat company in the city will not yet say what the price will be; until the many incidental expenses are estimated it will be difficult to place the price at a definite figure. Two kinds of fuel—one for stoves and one for furnaces will be produced.

Many enquiries have been made at the local office by citizens who are anxious to try the new fuel. Many also have made propositions to handle the peat. It is likely it will be sold by nearly all the coal and wood merchants in the city.

ASSESSMENT ROLL.

Ald. McGregor moved, seconded by Ald. Turner, that the assessment roll be published in pamphlet form similar to the voters' list.

Ald. Shortly thought this matter should be referred to a Committee of the Whole Council for further consideration.

Ald. McGregor did not think the question required much consideration. Every citizen should know exactly how the properties are assessed.

Ald. Best did not think it at all necessary to to go such expense. Every citizen has a right to examine the Roll, in which he would be cheerfully assisted by the Town Clerk if necessary.

Ald. McGregor replied that many citizens could not find time to come to the office and examine the roll. It should be printed so as to facilitate an easy examination in their own homes.

Valuable Advice to Mothers

If your child comes in from play coughing or showing evidence of an approaching attack of Grippe, Sore Throat, or sickness of any kind, first thing get out your bottle of Nerviline. Rub the chest and neck with Nerviline, and give internal doses of ten drops of Nerviline in sweetened water every two hours. This will prevent any serious trouble. No liniment or pain reliever equals Polson's Nerviline, which is a necessity in every household. Large bottles cost only 25c.

CANADA'S DESTINY

The New York Sun seems bound to have Canada annexed to the United States. One day the Sun intimates that Canada is to be gobbled up, on the first half-decent pretext; the next it discovers that we are ready to throw ourselves into the arms of the republic. Now it has come to the conclusion that though annexation may be delayed, annexation is Canada's manifest destiny. The Sun was started off this time by an article in the London Economist, drawing attention to the "Americanizing of the Canadian Northwest."

After admitting that a tide of emigration from the United States to Canada has set in the Sun goes on to say:

"This loss to us at the present is looked on in Canada, it seems, as possibly a future gain. 'Some Canadians' says the Economist's correspondent, 'fear that these new arrivals may some day bring about the secession of the Canadian Northwest from the rest of the Dominion.' That is the fear that the newcomers will Americanize the region in which they settle; nor is it an unreasonable conclusion. Already the new settlers are grumbling about the Canadian tariff, by reason of which they have to pay more for 'nearly all factory goods, including farm implements, than they paid in the United States.' 'so that, though they may have been protectionists at home, they are tariff reformers in Canada, in the interests of their own pockets.' Yet 'meanwhile the manufacturers of the older provinces have begun a campaign for higher duties.'

"The remedy is very simple, however, and Canadians have good reason to feel thankful that the accession of Americans to the Northwest has brought it to their attention so convincingly. Of course, it is annexation. The futility of attempting to compete with the United States, 'soon to embrace two hundred millions of the English-speaking race and capable of supplying most of the world's wants,' as Mr. Carnegie said in St. Andrew's University on Wednesday, will be made more apparent every day to the relatively feeble Canada, and it will discover and acknowledge that its own destiny is to become part of the great Americal political and economical system whose supremacy is already established.' 'America,' as Mr. Carnegie proved to his Scotch audience by abundant and undisputable statistics,' now makes more steel than all the rest of the world. In iron and coal her production is greatest and it is also so in textiles. She produces three-quarters of the world's cotton. The value of her manufactures is about triple that of your own. Her exports are greater and the Clearing House exchanges at New York are almost double those of London.'

"The mere instinct of self-preservation will lead Canada to become an integral part of this dominant world power."

Possibly, but it might be well for the Sun to know that we expect to be something of a people ourselves before long, says the Ottawa Journal, and that we hope also to be able to supply most of the things the world needs. It might be well for the Sun to know that the day is not very far distant when the United States will be dependent on Canada for iron, that when the United States supply is depleted, we will only be opening our vast deposits, that today the United States is practically dependent upon Canada for pulpwood and nickel; that the day is coming when Canada will be the granary of the empire; that the day is coming when Canada will be the only half of the continent with any timber on it; that the day is coming when the climate of Canada will be so changed that many things now ungrowable will be grown; that the day is coming when by virtue of a Hudson Bay railway, Canada will have the shortest route to Europe, with all that such an advantage will mean.

These things and many others may not be seen by the present generation, but the good day when Canada will teem with thirty millions and her merchant vessels will be on every sea is not far away.

Annexation! Well rather not. Purely from a business point of view even annexation would be a poor speculation for Canada. And besides there is a little matter of sentiment which might be mentioned.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

An important change in Roman Catholic circles in the United States is the transferring of Archbishop Ireland from St. Paul, Minnesota, to become the head of the archdiocese in Chicago. Archbishop Ireland is one of the great Catholic prelates on this continent. He has done more to soften down the asperities that, unfortunately, too often exist between Protestants and Catholics, than any other churchman in the United States. While he is an earnest and enthusiastic believer in the doctrines and polity of his own church, he has that large catholicity of heart and mind that concedes to others the liberty of conscience to guide their own beliefs. Archbishop Ireland served as a soldier during the civil war in the United States, being chaplain of a Minnesota regiment, and was one of the Catholic priests to unite with the Grand Army of the Republic. Other priests who served both as privates in the ranks or as chaplains during the war have since organized a post of the G.A.R. at the Catholic University in South Bend, Indiana.

THE ARIZONA SMELTING AND REDUCTION COMPANY

(From The Yuma Sun, Oct. 10, 1902.)

The Arizona Smelting and Reduction Company will within a short time begin the erection of a ninety-ton custom smelter in Yuma. James Rice, president, and Frank N. Rust, secretary of the company, spent the first part of the week here making preliminary arrangements for launching the enterprise. They met with satisfactory encouragement from our business men, and returned to Los Angeles yesterday morning well pleased with the outlook. While the enterprise is largely backed by Eastern capital, it has the moral and financial support of a large number of local business men, which insures its success. It is the intention of the company to first erect a fifty-ton gold and copper furnace and a forty-ton lead furnace, but the plant will be increased to meet the demands as the mines of this section are developed. This is the most important enterprise that has ever been inaugurated in Yuma, as it means the immediate development of every mining district tributary to transportation facilities in the county. There are hundreds of good prospects and small mines within a few miles of the Colorado river between here and Bill Williams Fork which at present cannot be worked profitably, owing to the prohibitive transportation rates to distant reduction works. But with facilities for reducing refractory ores in Yuma, coupled with cheap transportation on the river, these mines will at once become producers of wealth, in a small way of course at first, but with extensive development some of them will become bonanzas. The lack of transportation facilities, and reduction works have long retarded the growth of Yuma county's mining interests, but a new era is now at hand, and the toiling miners of this section will soon be in a position to reap the reward they so richly deserve.

moment, for the only permanent furnishings in the place consisted of the rows of seats along the wall. Everything else could be changed according to necessity.

Close to the ring were two chairs, and as Macaire and his friends entered two men rose from these, bowing slightly. Their faces were known to several of the guests. One was a well-known referee, the other a man appointed to act as time-keeper in the anticipated sport. The former had just come in from the next room, where the principals in the scene about to be enacted had stripped for weighing, and might soon be expected to appear.

When one of the front rows of seats had been sparsely occupied, all eyes turned towards the closed door of that next room.

Presently it opened, and three men came slouching in. One was of middle age, or near it, with closely-cropped, carrot-red hair, thick and bristly, a straight line of auburn eyebrow meeting across a pugnacious nose; fierce, deep-set little eyes, like those of an angry pig; a protruding chin that locked the lips above it tightly together when they were shut; and the chest and arms of a giant. He wore loose white drawers, canvas shoes that made no noise when he moved; and as he came forward he grinned at the audience, suggestingly clenching his hammer-like fists and swelling out his biceps so that the muscles rose like springs of iron under the dark, hairy skin.

This was Joey the Kid, and the two with him would see him through the fight.

The trio took their places at one corner of the ring, and a moment later another three came in at the door they had left open.

A tall, slim young fellow, dressed as the Kid was dressed, entered with his second and a trusted servant of Macaire's, who had performed many a queer office in this room. The newcomer looked, compared with Joey the Kid, like Antinous beside Hercules, or David with Goliath. Stripped to the waist, his face and throat bronze, his body marble, he seemed hardly more than a youth; but the eyes eagerly criticizing his form could find no fault with it. A Greek sculptor of old, in search of a model for a young athlete, would have seen in him perfection. Yet, beautiful as his body was to the eye, it appeared a monstrous injustice to match his youthful strength against the brawny bulk of the big professional prize-fighter.

Macaire himself made the necessary announcement. He told his guests that the match was to be under eleven stone ten pounds, and was between Joe Nash, whom they knew as Joey the Kid, and an amateur, who, having no name in English sporting circles, claimed the right to remain anonymous until after the fight. He (Macaire) vouched for him, and guaranteed that his record was no more than it professed to be. Nash had just now been weighed at eleven stone nine pounds in the weighing-chair in the next room, his opponent touching ten stone eight pounds. The conditions of the fight were the best of twenty three-minute rounds with two-ounce gloves. If it ran to the full length it would be decided by points.

Having given this information, he put in a flattering word for the referee, who looked pleased, and the prologue to the play was over; the act about to begin.

The slim young man and the hairy giant came forth from their respective corners and grasped each other's hands, the former's second (who had been his sparring partner) eyeing the pair furtively, his face eager.

By this time each man in the audience had his favorite. Notebooks were out, and bets had been recorded. Few believed that the unknown amateur had a chance against the Kid, and Hope Newcome felt adverse opinions hanging heavy in the air, oppressing his chest.

He was half ashamed of himself for what he was about to do, yet nothing on earth would now have induced him to draw back. It was all for Winifred. Already he had been able to help her. If he could win this fight, and winning it, step into the place which Lionel Macaire had promised him, he would tell Winifred the truth about the mission which had brought him to England, and ask her if, in spite of all it entailed upon him, she would promise to be his wife. He dared not think that she loved him, but she had been heavenly sweet, and it might be that she had learnt to care, just a little, during the days that they had been "partners." With money he could at least try his luck. For, if he got it, it would be his money, honestly though strangely earned. He was going to do all he knew to earn it now.

Newcome and Joey the Kid had never seen each other until they had walked out half stripped from the partitioned spaces which they had used as dressing-closets in the next room.

He had heard all that could be heard of the big man's record from his own sparring partner, and that all was not encouraging to him. He had expected to see a giant, but the Kid had proved even more formidable to look at than Newcome's fancy had painted him; and the younger man, having so much to gain or lose, had experienced a qualm of misgiving as his eyes and the little pig-eyes of the noted prize-fighter had met.

Now, however, with the touch of the other's hand, all nervousness went. Never in his life had Hope Newcome felt more cool, more confident in himself. Realising fully the almost desperate task to which he had pledged himself, he trusted that if he could not win the fight, at least his own splendid condition would make him no despicable foe for the hero of the ring against whom he was pitted. His muscles were like elastic and steel, his nervous energy thrilled in every fibre of his being. He had carefully trained for this fight, and his shining skin, the clear whites of his eyes, showed him to be in the height of physical condition. As he moved his arms the muscles rippled under the skin or shot out into smooth-swelling contours, hard as ivory, as he clenched his fists and fell easily and lightly into fighting position.

The first round was merely experimenting. Each man was studying the other. Joey was clearly rather disdainfully wondering why Macaire had pitted him against this slim youth, whom he thought, in the pride of the bully, that he could "fight with one hand." Yet he did not want to be led into a trap. There might be more science in the youngster than he knew

Pitkin Gold Belt Mining and Reduction Company

Which is Safe and Sure of Quick Returns, may Bring an Enormous Return at any Moment. It has the Possibilities of Rivaling the Great Mines of the Past.

This Company has a mine on a true fissure vein, in the center of the Gunnison Gold Belt, Colorado, which is the "Mother" lode or dike, which has produced 55 per cent. more gold than the total output of the Cripple Creek district.

This Mine is no Prospect. Nor is it Waiting on Your Subscription to Buy Machinery or for Development.

After a careful examination by experts, Joseph M. Bradley, M. E. and Mr. George Arlott, A. I. M. E., Amalgamated Copper Company's expert in Chihuahua, Mexico, they advised the purchase of the property. The property had shallow development upon it, showing two ore shoots from which smelting ore had been shipped to the Buena Vista Smelter.

The Company purchased and paid for the latest improved machinery and has put a shaft down 200 feet and intend to carry it down 1000 feet. On the 150 foot level 200 feet of development has been made and an ore shoot has been encountered and blocked out for 57 feet, carrying values in gold from 2 to 9 ounces or $40 to $180 per ton. The cost of mining, hauling, freight and smelters charges will be between $12 and $15 per ton.

Ed. McCarthy & Co., bankers, guarantee a shipping mine of smelting ore running from 2 to 6 ounces in gold, or $40 to $120 per ton, by January 1st, 1903, or all funds will be returned to subscribers upon presentation of receipt issued by said bank.

Also to prospective purchasers of $1000 worth of stock we are offering a free trip to Colorado and return. You investigate first and purchase afterward. Could you expect anything fairer than this?

The capital stock of this company is $1,000,000, divided into 1,000,000 shares of stock at $1 each, full-paid and non-assessable. A portion of the treasury stock is now offered at

25 CENTS PER SHARE—PAR VALUE $1.00

Rapidly Growing Value of Union Pacific

New York, Nov. 3—Intrinsically this stock is one of the very cheapest most substantial and rapidly developing railway properties in the United States. It looms into prominence as one of the most important railways in the west. It is rapidly allying itself with the great and powerful companies running west from Chicago, affording them transit over its own lines, thereby tying them and their interests up directly with those of itself. The party in control of the company are of an investment nature. They ceaselessly work to develop the property so as to get the greatest amount of earning capacity built up—the kind that will be permanent and of such character as will protect the company against the inroads and ravages of competition. It is heavily interested in the affairs of the Great Northern, Burlington and Northern Pacific, thereby protecting its interests in that direction. Its alliance with the Chicago and North Western and the St. Paul Railway afford it the two strongest roads running west out of Chicago as allies. The interests of the Union Pacific are their interests; the three therefore will work in thorough unison to the accomplishment of the same end. It is more than likely that the Rock Island interests will also become associated with the Union Pacific party. Union Pacific's control of Southern Pacific will in comparatively a very short time add enormously to the Union Pacific income. It will prove to be an untold mine of wealth for the Union Pacific. Some of the greatest banking houses in Wall Street are closely identified with the market affairs of Union Pacific. Their money is invested in it very heavily. It is invested in it also permanently.

A Sunday Night Burglary

On Saturday, Mrs. Syer, who lives at 212 Barnardo avenue, reported the robbery of her home while the family were at church. Entrance was obtained through the hall window by ladder, and the thieves, who are thought to be boys, ransacked everything in the search of valuables. The pockets of Mr. Syers' clothing were turned out, and in a drawer was found Mrs. Syers' purse, containing $7, and her daughter's with some small change in it. There is yet no clue to the culprits.

ALMOST SOLID COPPER

One 18 inch vein of 90 per cent copper (almost the solid metal) has been opened up in Copper Queen Extension Claim, one of the six constituting our Montana property, while mining a thirty-foot vein of free milling 18 per cent copper ore, carrying thirty ounces of silver to the ton.

This is so far ahead of our expectations, brilliant as our former prospects were, that we realise the IMMEDIATE building of a mill to handle this magnificent output, equalled in richness only by the Calumet and Hecla mines, is an ABSOLUTE NECESSITY. This will make OUR OWN portion of the stock, as well as THAT ACQUIRED BY THE PUBLIC, for the purposes of this immediate development, worth an immense amount of money in an exceedingly short time.

Help us build a Mill immediately by purchasing our One Dollar Shares, which are offered this week at 30 cents a Share as a Special Inducement to insure the speedy building of the Mill, and we will make your stock yield you an inordinate profit as quickly as the Mill can be put in operation.

We furnish the rich property—you furnish the mill. In a few months it will be in operation—almost before you expect it—and we divide the immense returns.

California Oil Stocks Have Paid Millions in Dividends

KERN COUNTY (SUNSET DISTRICT) OIL COMPANIES PAID

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS IN DIVIDENDS IN AUGUST ALONE

MORGAN IN THE OIL INDUSTRY--NEW YORK FINANCIER AT THE HEAD OF A $20,000,000 COMPANY TO EXPLOIT CALIFORNIA FIELDS

Bakersfield, Cal., Sept. 27.—J. Pierpont Morgan is about to identify himself with the oil business in California. On October 12, or a few days later, surveyors will be put into the field, and will run lines to the ocean from Sunset, Coaling, McKittrick, Midway and Kern River fields to determine by which route it is most feasible to transport oil to tide water. The surveys will run over the coast range at a number of points, and also will go down the San Joaquin valley parallel with the line of the Standard.

A company having a capitalization of $5,000,000 has been organized for the construction of lines, pumping stations, storage tanks, and the like. Mr. Morgan and his associates have also formed a separate company, capitalized at $20,000,000, half of which will be invested in proven ground and the other half turned into a reserve fund.

It is stated that the Morgan syndicate will be prepared to handle 2,000,000 barrels the first year, and will increase that amount at the rate of 1,000,000 a year until the whole demand of the market is met.

THE ST. PAUL & SUNSET OIL COMPANY own and control a large tract of absolutely oil proven asphalt land in the very heart of the best oil producing land of Kern County, California, the district where flowing wells are situated. We have a bed of Liquid Asphalt underlying a portion of our lands. Our property is situated right at Sunset Station. A new line of railway is surveyed and will be constructed in a very short time, putting us not only in touch with Eastern cities, but in touch with tide-water. This, in addition to the railroad facilities we now have. Remember that we own our land—it is paid for and entirely free from debt.

ST. PAUL & SUNSET OIL CO.'S GIGANTIC TRACT

will be developed and should prove a formidable rival for the new company.

PROFESSOR DR. RUD J. SCHIMPER, Analytical and Expert Chemist, of St. Paul, makes the following statement relative to the composition, what can be produced and the estimated profits of the Sunset Crude Oil. A copy of the original certificate can be seen at the office of the St. Paul & Sunset Oil Co., which is in substance as follows:

"This is to certify that the undersigned, Dr. Rudolph J. Schimper, Chemist expert, member of Parisian Academy, according to analysis made from the crude oil furnished me by the St. Paul & Sunset Oil Company, I find the following valuable products and with each beg to submit my estimate of its value:

1. LIQUID RUBBER—2000 lbs of this crude oil (6 bbls.) will produce 1,200 lbs. of liquid rubber, value of which is from 25c. per lb. and up. (Estimated value $450.00.)
2. SOLID RUBBER—2000 lbs of this crude oil (6 bbls) will produce 1,700 lbs. of solid rubber, value of which is from 50c. upwards. (Estimated value $450.00.)
3. FUEL BRIQUETTES—2000 lbs. of this crude oil (6 bbls.) will produce 2,000 lbs. (1 ton) of fuel briquettes, which, according to government tests made, is equivalent to two tons of best anthracite coal. (Estimated value $22.00)
4. ASPHALTUM—2,000 lbs. of this crude oil (6 bbls.) will produce ¼ ton of asphaltum, value $25 to $35 per ton. 25 gal. of lubricating oil, value 50c. per gal. and upward. 40 gal. illuminating oil, value 10c per gal. and up. 60 gal. of distilled oil, value 5c. per gal. and upward. (Estimated value $64.50.)
5. SOAP—2000 lbs. (1 ton) of crude oil and filling will produce over 2,000 lbs. of soap, value 3c. per lb. and upward. (Estimated value $60.00.)

Id my opiniou many other valuable products can be obtained from the oil of that famous field.

Respectfully, DR. R. J. SCHIMPER, Chemist Expert."

THIS goes to show the immense profits that will accrue from our products when refined. We expect to commence Building Our Refinery in the very near future. The sale of the next allotment of stock will be made for that purpose. The largest flowing wells in California were brought in adjoining our property and their stock was taken off the market. We employ the best drillers who report rapid progress on our wells and we expect to bring in gushers equal, if not to excel any in the Sunset field. Our General Manager, Superintendent and Drillers, all are experienced oil men. The officers of our company are all thorough, competent and efficient men who have always made a success of their undertaking in life and who will see that the welfare of the St. Paul and Sunset Oil Company is furthered, portected and promoted to the most advantageous extent possible.

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS SHOULD BE PAID STOCKHOLDERS.

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS should be paid to the stockholders of the St. Paul and Sunset Oil Company when their property is fully developed, their refinery equipped and in full operation. ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS IN DIVIDENDS was paid by Kern County Oil Companies during the month of August alone.

SIX MILLION BARRELS is the consuming capacity of the Southern Pacific Railway engines, which are now equipped for burning oil. Outside of this consider other railway lines, smelters, factories, steamships, stationery engines, which are all heavy consumers of fuel oil and last but not least, hotels and private dwellings are falling in line with the procession in the use of fuel oil.

A GOOD REASON WHY YOU Should Invest in the stock of St. Paul & Sunset Oil Company. More fortunes have been made in oil than any other business. Consider the immense amount of money the Standard Oil Company has made for its fortunate stockholders, and the California oil companies have done better in proportion to their capitalization than the Standard Oil Company. Here is what $100 has accomplished for those who invested that amount in the following California companies in the beginning of their career:

Home Whittier $1,000 on an investment of $100.
Kern returned $2,200 on an investment of $100.
Peerless returned $1,800 on an investment of $100.
Dillon returned $2,500 on an investment of $100.
New York returned $30,000 on an investment of $100.
Union returned $150,000 on an investment of $100.
Home returned $50,000 on an investment of $100.

THERE is no reason in the world why the St. Paul and Sunset Company's oil holdings and property, when developed and handled, should not bring like returns.

CONTRARY to the general supposition the earth is the repository of all mineral wealth. When it is known and demonstrated beyond a question of a doubt where its wealth reposes and you put your money up to take it out, your money is invested. Hence you are an investor, not a speculator. A proven oil producing property does not draw its profits from the people but creates new wealth. It is therefore an investment.

Wonderful Increase in Value of Oil Stocks.

The rapid rise in the value of shares in some oil companies will be seen from the following table:

	Original price per share	Present Market price
Black Mountain Oil Co	$ .05	$ 1.50
Central Oil Co	.30	1.50
Home Oil Co. Whittier	.25	2.50

The time will come in the near future when stock in St. Paul and Sunset Oil Co., should bring prices equal to the last.

Cement Industries

Toronto News: The increased demand for Portland cement in Ontario will likely result in the establishment of several cement industries in the province. A gentleman called on the Bureau of Mines on Saturday morning and made enquiries about securing a lake in Peterborough County, which contains a great quantity of marl. He desires to drain the lake, in order to take out the marl. He claims that there is plenty of splendid clay in the vicinity and a good water power near which he could locate his industry.

Christian Science and Disease

The people of Port Hope have been having trouble with a family named Long, who follow Christian Science principles. It seems that diphtheria attacked one of the children, a boy of about seven years, and instead of notifying the Board of Health or calling in a local physician the parents summoned the local leader of their sect, who wrestled with the "claim" for a few days the result being that the child died of the disease. An inquest was held, the people being mightily indignant, and the following verdict was returned: The teaching of the sect known as Christian Science and as brought out in the evidence, is a danger to the public generally, and this jury would strongly urge that the Legislature enact a law which would make it a criminal offence for the demonstrator of this belief to attend or treat a case which is not being attended to by a duly qualified medical practitioner."

A SPLENDID INVESTMENT

The Empire Mica Company a Sure Dividend Payer

We direct the special attention of Canadian investors to the advertisement of the Empire Mica Company, which will be found elsewhere in to-day's issue.

The supply of mica is insufficient for the needs of the people, 80 per cent. of the mica consumed in the United States having to be imported from India, on which a tariff of 150 per cent. is paid. Therefore, every pound that is produced in America has the advantage of 150 per cent added profit.

So far does the demand for mica exceed the supply that there is an immediate market for every ounce that can be produced. The price of sheet mica ranges from 85 cents to $13 a pound, according to size and purity. The mica wasted in trimming the sheets is ground and sold at from $20 to $50 a ton, while powdered mica brings from $80 to $120 per ton. These are the prices fixed on a basis so solid that no power on earth can reduce them.

Mica is a staple commercial commodity—a public necessity for which there is a greater demand every day. When the Creator made mica he made nothing else that can ever take its place. It has no rival.

The stock now being offered should be rapidly taken up. It is well worth the attention of investors.

PROHIBITION MEETING

In George Street Church — Address by Rev Dr. Chown

A meeting was held last night in the George street church for the purpose of discussing the liquor traffic.

The meeting was opened with prayer and hymns, after which the Rev. Dr. Chowan gave a very interesting address on the liquor question.

On taking the platform Dr. Chowan said that he was greatly encouraged by the sentiment and movement of the Temperance people in Peterborough, he is of the opinion that the public has the right to protect itself against this kind of trade.

He explained that the former obstacles to prohibition were removed and that the anti-temperance people were ashamed to appear on the public platform and defend the liquor trade.

The state of affairs in Canada is coming to a most disgraceful issue, which was well proven by several instances that were quoted by him.

Mr. Chowan compares the liquor traffic to the Tammany Institute, which is despised by all temperance and respectable people. He says that after twenty elections in Toronto only two drunks resulted on election day.

In conclusion of his address, Mr. Chowan said that even if the vote failed to carry he would again enter the contest with the firm belief that right would conquer and he has the firmest hopes the saloon will be abolished at the coming election on December 4th.

It was then moved by the Rev. Dr. Torrance, seconded by Rev. Mr. Bastow, that a vote of thanks be extended to Rev. Dr. Chowan for his interesting address.—Carried.

SUGGESTIONS FOR FUEL

The Junior Reporter Gets His Work in on New Ideas

The Junior reporter on the staff of this great family journal, evidently has been doing some hard thinking, no doubt being driven to it by the sight of a coalless stove in his domicile. The following suggestions for fuel were found on his desk yesterday morning:

Storing the heat from warm debates in the Town Council." "The seasoned timber from which cabinets are selected." "Planks from political platforms;" "Some of the dried old fossils in the senate;" "Logs which are rolled by aldermen." "The protected cradles of our infant industries;" and the "Steps which are always taken to remedy all matters."

SCIENTIFIC FOOD

That Cures Patients Quickly

"My experience with food has been considerable.

For 20 years I suffered with chronic indigestion and bowel complaint which brought on general debility," says a gentleman of Danville, Ills. "I was poor in flesh and everyone thought I had consumption. I was treated by the best doctors of several cities but to no benefit.

At last I went to a hospital and while there began using Grape-Nuts, the physician giving me permission, and from that day I commenced to gain. By careful diet, and using judgement, I gained in flesh and strength, my lungs got better, and today I consider myself as well as men in general at my age of 60 years.

The other patients noticed that I gained faster under the same treatment and care and I told them to add GGrape-Nuts to their diet and be careful not to eat meat, nor warm bread, and starchy food. I can now eat anything in reason; I sleep well; bowels are regular and I have gained 22 pounds of flesh. Grape-Nuts food saved my life.

It adds to the health and comfortable living; makes the mind clear and prolongs life." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

ASHBURNHAM COUNCIL

A Short but Busy Session of the Village Councillors Last Night

Ashburnham Council met last night at eight o'clock, with all the members present as follows: Reeve Smith and Councillors Sheridan, Pollock, Adams and Johnston.

At the opening of the meeting the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Accounts.

Moved by Mr. Johnston, seconded by Mr. Sheridan that the following accounts be paid:

Dickson Co.	$172 55
Peterboro Examiner	60
Peterboro Examiner	8 30
J. B. Manicce	7 00
House of Providence	12 50
Wm. R. S. Huggins	2 80
Pay sheet No. 20	30 00
Pay Sheet No. 21	32 30

—Carried.

Communications.

A communication was read from the Mother Superior of the House of Providence asking that the fuel which had been granted to Mrs. McAulife before the latter went to that institution should be taken to the place.—Laid over until next meeting.

Another communication was received from Mrs. Newel complaining of annoyance from young boys, who were in the habit of breaking the windows of her house and making a disturbance in the neighborhood.

An effort will be made by Mr. Fitzgerald, to whom the matter was referred to put a stop to this kind of thing in the village.

Councillor Sheridan brought up the question of renting the store occupied by Mr. King as a picture store to Mr. Wheeler, for use as a butcher shop, on the latter agreeing to rent the same for a period of five years at a rental of $6 per month.

The offer of Mr. Wheeler was accepted and Mr. Peck was instructed to notify the present occupants of the action taken by the Council.

A by-law was laid before the Council to exempt the Canadian Ultimator Co., from taxes for ten years on the approval of the same by the legislature. This company is manufacturing milling machinery in their premises on Elizabeth street, and are at present employing about ten men. As full information had not been obtained the bylaw was laid over till the next regular meeting.

Councillor Sheridan next brought before the Council the matter of tenders for snowploughing for the coming winter and as it was thought it was time now to make arrangements for this, and the following motion was passed:

Moved by Councillor Johnston and seconded by Councillor Sheridan that the clerk be authorized to advertise for tenders for snowploughing all sidewalks and walkways in the village. Tenders to be received up to the 27th of November.—Carried.

Reeve Smith reported that as the dredge was operating very close to the water mains in the river he had written to the authorities regarding the same.

The Reeve also reported that he had attended the joint meeting of the Town Council and that of Ashburnham with regard to the Dan Spence Memorial Fund. It had been decided to purchase an ambulance at a cost of $800, $437 of which had been already subscribed and it would cost about $150 per year for maintenance. Of this it was expected that the village would pay a proportionate amount. As no definite proposition was before the Council regarding the matter, it was laid over for future consideration.

The Council adjourned about 9.15, to meet again in two weeks' time for the purpose of opening the tenders for snowploughing.

Fortune Telling

does not take into consideration the one essential to woman's happiness—womanly health. There is many a woman whose future seems absolutely unclouded who is marked by her own condition for future disappointment and distress.

The woman who neglects her health is neglecting the very foundation of all good fortune. For without health love loses its lustre and gold is but dross.

Womanly health may be retained or regained by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, dries the drains which weaken women, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong, sick women well.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter free. All correspondence held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"I have taken six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Miss M. Fyfe, of Orilla, Simcoe Co., Ontario, "and two bottles of the 'Pleasant Pellets' as you advised for congestion of uterus, ovaries, and weakness, and can safely say that your medicine has been the means of restoring me to good health again, which I had not had for over three years, until taking your medicine. I thank you very much for your kind and prompt attention to my letter asking advice."

"Favorite Prescription" has the testimony of thousands of women to its complete cure of womanly diseases. Do not accept an unknown and unproved substitute in its place.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets clear the complexion and sweeten the breath.

—Miss S. Pilling, who, for the past five or six weeks has been visiting with relatives and friends in Port Hope and Dundas, returned to her home in Peterborough Friday, having had a most pleasant time.—Port Hope Guide.

—Mrs. Kerr, of San Francisco, is visiting with her sister, Mrs. Robert Reid. It is eleven years since Mrs. Kerr was here. The climate of San Francisco rather takes the nerve out of one for facing the more bracing atmosphere of this region, when a nor-west breeze insinuates itself through your clothes, and at such times she is inclined to think somewhat favorably of 'Frisco. She will probably spend some little time in Peterborough, before returning to the Coast.

MORGAN'S GREATEST MONEY-MAKING PROJECT

Cannot Compare With The Profit-making Possibilities of the "Keyless Clock"

So said a well informed banker a few days ago. This remark made in the hearing of a special correspondent of Banker and Investor, caused an investigation of which the following is the result and report:

"This wonderful invention bids sure to revolutionize timekeeping. In the last 100 years few great improvements have been made in Clock building. The clock on your parlor mantel or your office wall is the same today as it was a century ago. It has been improved in appearance and automatic machinery enabling its production at a greatly reduced price. But the old time, time worn, key-wound clock is unreliable and as liable to stop as to go. Inventive ingenuity to improve it seemed almost at a standstill, until the world was electrified by the reports of a new clock. A complete departure from the old method of clock building. This mechanical wonder was most appropriately named the "KEYLESS CLOCK."

The builders should add the designation, the automatic clock and the perpetual clock. The simplicity of this clock is truly wonderful. Experienced clock experts call it the acme of perfection.

The inventors of this clock worked patiently for many years and in the face of great discouragement labored successfully to overcome one difficulty after another. Special machinery was constructed to make the delicate parts. The clock trust—the $40,000,000 octupus, said to control clock making in the United States, making millions upon millions yearly, producing clocks, two out of every five of which the public know are little more than worthless, attempted all kinds of intimidating methods to discourage the inventors and the company of New York business men who had the foresight and courage to supply the capital to perfect this marvelous timepiece.

Gradually, one difficulty after another was overcome. Each part was simplified and reconstructed to impart lightness, strength, durability and easy running. Then this improved, completed success was placed on trial for one year One hundred clocks of different sizes were placed under all possible conditions daily a record of their work was taken and the average deflections of these 100 clocks was less than was ever made by any other clock, a result hardly believable—and up to the time of the advent of a record hardly possible. After producing the clock fully up to the wishes of the inventors and the directors of the company, a corps of the greatest experts and attorneys were instructed to examine and strengthen the patents of the "Keyless Clock."

Thus a clock that is mechanically perfect, machinery to produce it economically, patents almost incontestible, was the result. With this property, successful in every way, the directors were ready to start public operations, to manufacture the clock, offer it for sale, and to invite the investing public to subscribe for the capital stock of.

"THE UNITED STATES CLOCK COMPANY OF NEW YORK."

Conservatism, care and caution is the keystone of the company's successful management. No stock was sold until the company was in successful operation "The Keyless Clock" caught public favor —orders came pouring in. The first factory department was at No. 407 Broome street. It was soon too small. A second and third at No. 230 Center street, were added to fill the demand.

Add factory space and machinery to increase the production of "Keyless Clocks" as they would, the company could not increase fast enough, and now the directors contemplate the erection of a large, perfectly equipped factory, probably in the Bronx or Long Island City, where they will make every part from the tiny screw to the artistic case for the daintiest "Keyless' parlor clock, to the massive "Keyless" tower clock.

With such a record it is easy to understand why the "United States Clock Company," has been a phenomenal success. The stock was subscribed for rapidly. The original price of $6 per share par value $10, was raised to $7.50, and probably will soon be increased to par. The company does not issue certificates for less than 10 shares. The treasurer of the company reports only 4,000 shares unsold. Thereafter no further stock offerings will be made.

Seldom has so safe and so profitable a proposition been offered for public consideration, and while the editor of the Banker and Investor is loth to advise or even to suggest any investment, he would not fail to counsel the readers of these columns to investigate the "Keyless Clock," as a clock, and the shares of the "United States Clock Company" as an investment which seems to be absolutely safe and promises to pay hundreds of dividends.

The company now reports orders on hand sufficient to make good profits, What will it be with largely increased manufacturing facilities?

"Keyless Clocks" are not sold by the trade, but by agencies of the "United States Clock Company," which are being started in all large cities. Amount of capital can find a business chance second to none.

Where the Summer Girl Goes in the Fall

The following lines were sent to The Times for publication and go for what they are worth

The summer girls are back in town
From Bobcaygeon to Oshkosh:
Fair Kathryne's dainty arms so brown
Are helping mother wash,
And debonlar Lucille, who wore
Some stones as big as panels,
Is back at work in dry goods store
Dispensing Canton flannels.

And gentle Jane and Claribel,
Teresa and Irene,
Nina, Ethel and Estelle,—
All girls of gracious mein,
Who turned down foreign noblemen (?)
And titled royal fighters,—
Are getting each four dollars per
For pounding on typewriters.

And Tessie Penhyn-Astor-Brooks,
Who was of royal stock,
Is canvassing subscription books
On "How to Darn a Sock."
And paste-bejewled Genevieve,
Who said she snubbed a rich lord,
No longer hears the billows heave—
She's working at her switch-board!

They are now having a good many "dull" days in the New York stock market. It is usually dull when the time comes to settle.

Jim Dumps invited friends to dine;
He gave them salad, birds and wine;
And for dessert, a novel course,
He gave them ice cream served with "Force."
"Delicious," cried his guests to him;
"This dish is perfect, 'Sunny Jim.'"
"FORCE"
The Ready-to-Serve Cereal rounds out the dinner—rounds up the diner.
Sweet, crisp flakes of wheat and malt.
Overjoyed at His Cure.
"Tuesday evening I sat down to a wedding feast. Next morning I felt wretched beyond description. Ate 'Force' for breakfast, lunch and dinner. This morning had 'Force' again for breakfast. Now, after my usual and hearty lunch, I feel as fine as usual. Am overjoyed at this cure.

SHANGHAI NOW TO BE EVACUATED BY THE ALLIED FORCE OF EUROPE

Agreement Proposed Between England France and Germany

To Withdraw Their Forces From The Chinese Territory

London, November 4.—It has been announced that France, Great Britain and Germany have come to an agreement with regard to the withdrawal from Shanghai of the troops which those countries are still maintaining there but that the precise conditions upon which the withdrawal is to be consummated are still under consideration. It was France which made the first move the government of that country wishing to be freed from the expense of maintaining at Shanghai a military establishment for which there was no longer any need.

After the negotiations had been instituted an agreement was quickly reached upon two points. The first was that the evacuation take place. The second was that if any power sent back its troops the other powers should be entitled to do the same. Then Germany proposed that China be requested to pledge itself not to grant to one power any preferential advantages over another in the region effected by the evacuation, that is in the Yangtse Valley and right here there has occurred a hitch. The British Government in not willing that China should give any pledges of this description which exclusively apply to the Yangtse Valley, which, it may be remembered, is the region which was at one time set apart as being within the British sphere of influence.

England contends that the pledge against the grant of preferential advantages should be made of general application instead of being restricted to a particular region, whereas Germany for some reason wishes the pledge to stand as it has been given. It is likely that the dispute will be settled shortly and it ought to be settled by the acceptance of the British position, which is unquestionably the right and reasonable one. It may be remarked that in whatever concession is finally secured the United States will be a sharer.

CHINESE SMUGGLER IS FIRST MANDARIN

Special to The Times.

London, Nov. 4—The following, says the Pekin correspondent, is an instance of the Chinese way of fulfilling treaty obligations. An Imperial edict of August, 1901, issued in obedience to the terms of settlement of the protocol, ordered all the exalted provincial officials to forbid the importation of arms and war material and their manufacture for a period of two years. Far from the prohibition having been effective, nearly every arsenal in the Chinese Empire has since been working at full pressure in the manufacture of arms of all kinds, and now China openly repudiates the prohibition. In a memorial published in the Pekin Gazette (the official journal,) the Governor of Kwang Si brings to the favorable notice of the throne a certain fourth grade official "who is showing," says the memorial, "a true spirit of patriotism." This official recently successfully transported in Kwang-Si thousands of Mauser rifles and 300,000 cartridges, which were placed at the service of the Governor to aid him in suppressing the rebels in the province. The memorialist says the difficulty is greater than it used to be, because of Imperial prohibition. He therefore, requests that the services of the new official in question be rewarded by his elevation to rank of mandarin of the first grade. An Imperial rescript grants this honor to the successful smuggler.

BROUGHT THE PORTE TO TIME.

London, Nov. 4.—The French Government, says a Constantinople correspondent, threatened to stop the quotation of the Turkish loan of 1896 on the Paris Bourse, unless the Porte gave to M. Lorando and Tubini a written engagement to pay them out of the proceeds of the Turkish debt conversion. The Porte hesitated, but the matter was settled yesterday.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From a number of ratepayers, complaining of the dipilidated condition of the fences surrounding the Central school and Collegiate Institute. The fence on College street is almost half gone with age and decay, and the board fence around the rest of the grounds is not in keeping with the trim appearance of the front lawn of the school, or of the lawns and fences of other property in the neighborhood. The communication also drew attention to the wretched appearance of the old closet buildings in the rear of the lot, and suggested that the Board might easily take into consideration their removal altogether. This matter was referred to the Property committee to report at the next meeting.

THE NEW LIFE BOAT CANNOT BE CAPSIZED

Latest Form Given to a Device for Saving Shipwrecked Persons

NOW NO FEAR OF SHIPWRECK

Supplies of Food and Water Can Be Carried And Fresh Air Obtained

London, Nov. 2—Captain Doenvig, the Norwegian inventor of the new spherical life-saving boat gave a demonstration of his globe's capabilities off Dover harbor today before the British board of trade officials and representatives of shipping companies, who expressed themselves highly satisfied with the results.

The apparatus is made of light steel plates, is globular in shape, and is surrounded by a cork fender. It has a double bottom, containing cork banks which can be filled with fresh water to be used as a ballast, and as this is consumed salt water can be pumped to keep the balance of the craft. There are also compartments for preserved stores et cetera.

The globe is entered through three water-tight manholes. It has a ventilating shaft, and a sail can be set upon it. It is only eight feet in diameter, and would occupy 64 square feet of deck space, compared with 143 feet necessary for the ordinary ship's lifeboat. Owing to the construction it is impossible to capsize it. It can comfortably hold sixteen persons.

Doenvig said: "To show my faith in my life-saving globe a friend and myself were put adrift in it off Havre last Tuesday, when a heavy sea was running. We drifted about 24 hours. Then we were picked up four miles off Folkestone and towed into Dover on Wednesday. We suffered no inconvenience, and could have remained out a week or a fortnight just as well. This was not my first experience. Under the auspices of the Norwegian Life-Saving Society I gave a similar experiment off the Norwegian coast. These experiments have simply shown the entire seaworthiness of the little craft, and have justified everything I claim for it.

"Next time there is a big storm here I will have the globe taken out to Goodwin Sands and have it put overboard with myself and any friends who care to go with me. I would trust myself anywhere in it. Nothing could capsize or sink it unless it were battered to pieces, and, owing to its shape the waves have be force against it.

The only thing against it is its shape, which some sailors don't like because they never went to sea in a ball. But it will live down that prejudice. I was shipwrecked once off the American coast and understand what it means."

A Sure Cure For Constipation

Some remedies cure this distressing complaint in a day, some in a month, but Nerviline never fails to cure in a few minutes. Just ten drops of Nerviline in sweetened water—that's enough, and away goes the dysentery, cured to stay cured. Nerviline also cures Cramps, Colic, Pain in the Stomach and Sick Head ache. It has five times the strength and curative properties of ordinary remedies and should be in every household. Better buy a 25c bottle and try it. Nerviline is all right.

Hamilton's Pills for the Liver.

There are probably not less than fifty statesmen each of whom before long will be claiming the credit of the settlement which President Roosevelt effected in the coal strike.

King Edward is plainly imbued with the correct idea that to be a popular monarch he must keep close to the people.

The tenor of the official dispatches in Somaliland is that the British forces came, saw, and found themselves up against it.

DROPPED OUT OF SCHEME

Canadians Quit When They Found Out the Sort of Game It Was

London, Nov. 4.—The Pall Mall Gazette, in a column article criticising the exposure of Promoter Hooley's Sapphire Corundum Company, points out that there are one or two names in the prospectus, the owners of which may be glad of an opportunity of explaining how they got there. Some of the names are Hon. J. R. Stratton, Provincial Secretary of Ontario, Canada; Hon. Mr. Brodeur, Speaker of the House, Ottawa; Mr. C. D. Warren, the president of the Traders' Bank of Canada; and Mr. Justice Garrow of Ontario. The paper adds that it has reason to believe that when the real position was explained to Mr. Stratton, he declared his intention of severing his connection with the concern

When seen by a reporter this morning Mr. Warren did not wish to make any statement without at first consulting Mr. Stratton. But finally he went to the safe, and producing documents bearing on the question, said: "The fact of the matter is, some time ago I was approached by certain parties interested in the formation of the company, and asked if I would allow my name to be on the Canadian Board of Directors. I was informed that I was wanted on this board with a view to looking after the expenditure of the money in the development of the property. I replied that under these circumstances I would allow my name to appear, providing that the directorate was entirely satisfactory to me, and if not I reserved the right to withdraw.

"For some time I heard nothing from the company, and fancied the project had fallen through. Later I received notice to attend a meeting of the Board of Directors in Ottawa, which I did, and I immediately became satisfied that things were not just as they should be, and I sent in my resignation."

Here Mr. Warren handed out the letter of resignation, which was dated October 2nd, and addressed to Wansley Thompson, secretary of the Sapphire Corundum Company, a copy of which was also sent to the London office. In his letter Mr. Warren expresses regret that he was ever induced to allow his name on the board.

This morning the acknowledgment of the resignation was received from Ottawa.

Mr. Warren states that the Hon. Mr. Stratton took the same action as himself in the matter. Mr. Stratton is out of the city to-day.

Mr. Justice Garrow, when shown the cable from London, expressed surprise and wonder how such a report could have gained publicity.

"I knew nothing whatever about the matter, he said, "I was never connected with the company in any shape or form."

THE AFTERMATH OF MASCAGNI'S VISIT

The visit of Pietro Mascagni to Toronto and Montreal is recognized as the most significant musical event of passing years, and it goes down into history as an epoch in the world of music which will be remembered by the peoples of the American continent in the cycles of time to come. Mascagni proves as he moves from place to place, not only the great gift of his genius, but genius backed by the vim of a determinate active nature, together with the attribute of a physique uniquely commanding in itself alone. Nobody can challenge Mascagni's position as the father of the modern school of opera. He holds this distinction easily, because he has always breathed forth the native atmosphere of Italian music, which is melody first and above everything, while he has always been for progress.

It would be impossible in a brief article such as this to try and embody the various criticisms pro and con which always greet a star of magnitude in no matter what realm it first appears; suffice it to say, that no human being, is perfect, no human presentation altogether without hitch or flaw. The results are only truly judged according to the vivid impression made and the direct warmth and depth of emotions aroused upon humanity. Mascagni is master of his art in these respects and minute critiques are unnecessary save as they may influence this wonderful leader into recognizing all those conventional perfections, which because he is for progress always, he will be willing to adopt and adapt. Though it is a moot point whether one would exchange rigid perfection for the naive irregularities, although coupled with technical minorities, which give an amusing zest by reason of the delight which often accompanies the unsuspected and brings into view the sweetness and vivacity of the children of sunny Italy.

Mascagni has gathered his complement together with tact, perspicacity and liberality. It would be impossible to notice severally the many principals who contribute to his success but each and every one plays a selected role with grace and thoroughness that speaks well for the individual and the director too. The soul of each artist is thrown into his presentment and the audience appreciates and recognizes this fact. To see is to remember—from general reminiscence first one and then another gem of actor and voice, and number brings with it its peculiar aftermath of sweet aroma.

The immense hall was admirably adapted to the necessities required; the stage was large, well-lighted, draped effectively and with a handsome flanking of palms on either side; the scenery which Mascagni brings with him, gave emphasis by its appropriateness and execution to the tout ensemble of the opera. Acclamations of universal enjoyment were afforded with hearty vigor from time to time by the audience. A most gratifying incident was the presentation of a magnificent trophy of flowers by the Italian Workingman's Association to Mascagni. This was unique in beauty of blossom and design and was decorated with the Italian tri-color. Mascagni received for a few moments also the representatives of the society with mutual pleasure.

Mascagni may well be proud of his achievements as he surveys his immense audiences of which Toronto's was only one unit out of hundreds at home and abroad, and one can well understand that other emotions than pride must swell his heart, as he looks backward from the coign of success, himself comtless and moneyless, to an ill-appointed garret where the voices of wife and child sank into his soul, plaintive with the needs of life, which he knew so well and could not supply, because in his obscurity fame had not reached him nor vox populi hailed him. May Mascagni return to us with fresh attainments and his laurels never grow sere and brown.

QUEBEC AND MR. TARTE

Considerable speculation has been indulged in as to the political effect of Mr. Tarte's retirement from the cabinet by those who think that Mr. Tarte is certain, by the logic of circumstances, to find himself sooner or later in the Conservative party. Mr. Tarte shows no desire to hastily join the Conservatives. He has stated his wish to remain if possible in the Liberal ranks while advocating a higher tariff. But unless the Liberals do make a plain move in the direction of higher tariff, which looks very unlikely, Mr. Tarte's convictions in favor of that policy seem inevitably bound to drive him over to the Conservatives. The tariff is really the only issue between the parties. That a sincere and ardent protectionist who is also a keen politician should remain opposed to a political party whose main plank is protection and in whose other principles there is nothing he need object to, seems hardly possible.

Unless, therefore, in the remote contingency of a direct protectionist bid, by the Liberal leaders, Mr. Tarte is tolerably sure to find himself, despite his own feelings at present, fighting before long a Conservative battle, says the Ottawa Journal. What will be the effect? Some think that the effect will be very serious to the Liberals. They say that Mr. Tarte will produce a strong revolt in Quebec, where the Liberals have been strongest. His energy, his ability and above all his notable organizing powers will, they say, give to the Conservatives a Quebec leader who at last will do something to offset Laurier. And if Laurier's big majority in Quebec can be split, the argument runs, the Conservatives can beat him elsewhere.

A main factor in the logic of the argument is whether Mr. Tarte could, if he wished, break up the Laurier majority in Quebec. In support of the theory that he can, the assertion is made that to Mr. Tarte and his splendid organizing powers was due the overwhelming victory of the Liberals in the Montreal district in the last general election, the district that was directly under Mr. Tarte's direction. Very true; but it is remembered that the victory of the Liberals was overwhelming everywhere in the province of Quebec. The Montreal district was no different from others. In the whole province of Quebec only seven Conservatives were elected, out of sixty-five constituencies. One of these was in Montreal, and another next to Montreal (Jacques Cartier), where the largest Conservative majority in the province was recorded, barring one other. The greatest majority given in the Dominion was to Laurier in Quebec East. Under the circumstances it looks as though precious little depended in Quebec province on who was organizing the Liberals anywhere in particular in 1900. The view is reasonable that the trouble for the Conservatives in Quebec was not that Mr. Tarte was behind Sir Wilfrid Laurier but that Sir Wilfrid Laurier was behind Mr. Tarte and all the rest of the Liberal organizers. Organization is an extremely useful thing in politics, but organization does not win fifty-eight seats out of sixty-five under any possible circumstances short of a strong cause and a great chief. If Mr. Tarte were to be gained by the Conservatives and provided with these factors, an arduous struggle would be ahead of the Liberals in Quebec; but the only cause the Conservatives can give Mr. Tarte is the one that was beaten in Quebec and the Dominion in 1896 and 1900 by the aid of Mr. Tarte himself, and while Mr. Borden, the Conservative leader, is a man of ability, integrity and high character, he has yet to win his spurs as a great leader. Mr. Tarte therefore, if he is to conjure for the Conservatives at all, must do so with a beaten cause, and an almost untried and unknown leader. The hopeful feature would be that the manufacturers would provide plenty of money.

ITEMS OF NEWS BY CABLE AND LETTER

London, Oct. 31.—A despatch to the Times from Brussels says that King Leopold has accepted the invitation to attend the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis, in the spring of 1904. This means that he will also see Niagara Falls, and possibly go to see the Governor-General at Ottawa.

New York, Nov. 3—James Randazzo, a bright lad of 7 years, of 1037 Pacific street, Brooklyn, was run over and so badly injured that he died, by a Long Island railroad train at Atlantic and Clason avenues yesterday morning on his way to school. Train 226 from Flatbush avenue ran over both his legs. When he was picked up his first words were a warning not to alarm his mother.

"Don't tell mamma how badly I am hurt," he said.

He was removed to St. Mary's Hospital where he died shortly before noon

Rome, Nov. 3— Karl Inger, the former Austrian officer, who is said to have acted as chief Lieutenant of the Mad Mullah in Somaliland, in a letter to the Corriere Della Sera accuses the British of endeavoring to prevent the Somalis from establishing commercial relations with Europe.

He expresses the hope that Italy will not aid England in any campaign against the Mullah, but will establish commercial relations with the rich region controlled by the Mullah, who, he says, is a friend of Italy of. So he stood at first mainly on the defensive, letting Newcome begin the attack; then suddenly made one of the rushes that had often brought disaster to his antagonist. The young man saw his danger; dodged like lightning, ducking quickly under the other's arm, breaking to the left, breaking to the right; then, just as time was called, he got in a smacking blow on the Kid's low forehead, which made him shake his head like an angry bull. It was a case of honors divided, but the dashing round of three minutes was enough to prove to Newcome that he must call on all his science, all his strength, if he were to even hold his own with this formidable antagonist.

The next few rounds were keenly, warily fought. There was a quick pattering of feet on the sawdust, an occasional vicious grunt from the Kid as he struck a heavier blow than usual, the sullen thud of the gloves.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Baron Von Zellheim.

So far Newcome had been successful in the game of strategy he had set himself to play. He began to think that his task might be easier than he had supposed it. He had broken with his guard, or avoided by his quickness the most dangerous blows that had been aimed at him, and he had got home several slapping knocks on Joey's face. For an instant he lost his head and, enticed by his opponent's apparent listlessness, he rushed in recklessly.

Next moment he repented, for he received a terrific uppercut that jarred his spine, and sent him reeling across the ring. Joey was after him in a flash, trying to pin him in a corner and settle him; but Newcome had still strength to dodge this way and that, escaping with another sounding blow upon the ribs. It was almost a disaster, and when time was called he could barely stagger to his stool, gasping like a newly-landed fish.

The flood of cold, pungently-scented water squeezed over his head from the great sponge brought his faculties more under control. He took a sip of brandy; his legs lost their numbness. As he rose for the next round, game still, though tottering a little, there was a murmur of encouragement from the spectators, hushed to breathlessness as Joey rushed joyously in to finish his victim.

But Newcome was not to be easily caught again. He dodged and ducked, dexterously avoiding the dangerous corners into which his antagonist would have driven him, and came scatheless but dizzy through the round. Another minute's rest, another sponging of the head and sip of brandy, and he was able to face his man again. But he was weak from the tremendous battering he had received, and the prize-fighter seemed determined to finish the fight there and then. The pace was getting too hot; the Kid's breaths came and went in hissing gasps. He wanted to knock out his man before the latter's youth, better condition, and extreme quickness could turn the scale against his own greater strength. Grinning viciously, he rushed on his haggard opponent, and Newcome needed all his agility to save himself from the mad fury of the attack. Just at the end of the round the prize-fighter landed a straight right-hander on Newcome's throat, and the young man, lifted from his feet and hurled across the ring, seemed to the excited spectators to have received the knock-out blow which they all had feared must come sooner or later.

Actually the impact of the blow was less severe than it seemed, and Newcome, while appearing to fall like a log, had really practised something like a stage fall. He let it seem that he was badly hurt, allowed his seconds to support him to his chair, and lay back panting, with his eyes closed. No one who looked at him believed that he could go through another round. Macaire, was sulkily disappointed, and Macaire's guests considered the fight practically over.

Newcome was thinking to himself much the same. He knew that he was over-matched in strength, in mere brute hitting power, if not in skill and science; and he bitterly realized that at any instant the end might come. One device only was left to him, and that he resolved to put into practice at once. When time was called he rose languidly, and staggered towards the center of the ring. A pang of pity for a victim pluckily determined to fight it out to the last against desperate odds softened the eyes of the spectators. The Kid's attack seemed irresistible. Exasperated at the long resistance, furious that so many rounds had been fought without victory declaring herself in his favor, he rushed at his young antagonist like an angry bull. But in the passion of the assault the prize-fighter, counting now on certain triumph, relaxed his caution. It was the chance for which Newcome had watched and waited and schemed. Calling on his final reserve of energy, summoning his last ounce of strength, he shot out a clean, tremendous blow, the full weight of the body behind it, and it caught the giant full on the point of his square, resolute jaw. The Kid's hands whirled up helplessly, he fell crashing down, full on his back, his limbs twitching, a low moaning coming from his parted lips. Newcome stood over him, wondering at what he had done, fearing that the giant would rise again to renew the fight, but the time-keeper's monotonous voice crying the seconds from one to ten, while still the prize-fighter lay helpless and unconscious, told his benumbed brain that the victory was his—a victory jealously snatched from the jaws of defeat.

He hardly saw the limp body of his unconscious opponent carried away to the next room. Voices drummed in his ears like the buzzing of bees. Half-dazed still, he realized that Macaire was shaking his hand, that others were crowding near.

"After such a triumph you can be anonymous no longer," the millionaire was saying. "Gentlemen, I want to introduce to you my friend Baron von Zellheim, a name you must all have heard, a man you will all be glad to meet."

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Hope Newcome's Luck.

The bad news which had prostrated Mrs. Gray just as she had been pronounced out of danger was from Dick. In a reckless moment he had staked most of the money sent by Winifred to buy himself out of the army on a horse concerning which he had had a "sure tip." The horse had disappointed expectations—Dick swore he had been drugged—the money was lost; and Dick was still a wearer of His Majesty's livery instead of being the happy possessor of ten times the original sum sent him as he had hoped.

When Buying Mining Stock Buy the Best
AN INVESTMENT IN THE
Pitkin Gold Belt Mining and Reduction Company
Which is Safe and Sure of Quick Returns, may Bring an Enormous Return at any Moment. It has the Possibilities of Rivaling the Great Mines of the Past.

This Company has a mile on a true fissure vein, in the center of the Gunniston Gold Belt, Colorado, which is the "Mother" lode or dike, which has produced 56 per cent. more gold than the total output of the Cripple Creek district.

This Mine is no Prospect. Nor is it Waiting on Your Subscription to Buy Machinery or for Development.

After a careful examination by experts, Joseph M. Bradley, M. E., and Mr. George Arlett, A. I. M. E., Amalgamated Copper Company's expert in Chihuahua, Mexico, they advised the purchase of the property. The property had shallow development upon it, showing two ore shoots from which smelting ore had been shipped to the Buena Vista Smelter.

The Company purchased and paid for the latest improved machinery and has put a shaft down 250 feet and intend to carry it down 1000 feet. On the 150 foot level 200 feet of development has been made and an ore shoot has been encountered and blocked out for 57 feet, carrying values in gold from 2 to 9 ounces or $40 to $180 per ton. The cost of mining, hauling, freight and smelters charges will be between $12 and $15 per ton.

Ed. McCarthy & Co., bankers, guarantee a shipping mine of smelting ore running from 2 to 6 ounces in gold, or $40 to $120 per ton, by January 1st, 1903, or all funds will be returned to subscribers upon presentation of receipt issued by said bank.

Also to prospective purchasers of $500 worth of stock we are offering a free trip to Colorado and return. You investigate first and purchase afterward. Could you expect anything fairer than this?

The capital stock of this company is $1,000,000, divided into 1,000,000 shares of stock at $1 each, full paid and non-assessable. A portion of the treasury stock is now offered at

ALMOST SOLID COPPER

One 18 inch vein of 90 per cent copper (almost the solid metal) has been opened up in Copper Queen Extension Claim, one of the six constituting our Montana property, while mining a thirty-foot vein of free milling 18 per cent copper ore, carrying thirty ounces of silver to the ton.

This is so far ahead of our expectations, brilliant as our former prospects were, that we realise the IMMEDIATE building of a mill to handle this magnificent output, equalled in richness only by the Calumet and Hecla mines, is an ABSOLUTE NECESSITY. This will make OUR OWN portion of the stock, as well as THAT ACQUIRED BY THE PUBLIC, for the purposes of this immediate development, worth an immense amount of money in an exceedingly short time.

Help us build a Mill immediately by purchasing our One Dollar Shares, which are offered this week at 30 cents a Share as a Special Inducement to insure the speedy building of the Mill, and we will make your stock yield you an inordinate profit as quickly as the Mill can be put in operation.

We furnish the rich property—you furnish the mill. In a few months it will be in operation—almost before you expect it—and we divide the immense returns.

A Photographic Introduction.

Many years ago, when tintypes first came into general use, the booth where pictures were made "while you wait" was the center of a large crowd at every county fair and popular resort. An old-time photographer tells an experience he had long ago, before the secrets of the camera were known to everybody.

He had set up a tent at a county fair, and was trying to drum trade. He stood outside his tent, calling in true hawker fashion the merits of his pictures. The people who gathered around were interested and curious, but somewhat in awe of the little black box inside the tent. Finally the photographer thought he might set the sheep to running by singling out one of the crowd and taking his picture free. Standing near each other were a young man and a young woman. Thinking that they would like to be taken together, and that the two would have more courage to face the camera than a lone victim, the photographer called out:

"That gentleman right there and that lady, come inside and I'll give you pictures in two minutes, free of charge!"

The two looked at each other, grinned, and finally came inside the tent.

"Stand right there," said the photographer. "That's it. Now hold still a minute. There you are. Now wait till I finish 'em up."

In a few minutes he handed them each a tintype in a pink paper frame. They looked at the pictures curiously. Then the young woman blushed and her companion grinned and tittered.

"Like 'em?" asked the photographer, briskly, thinking of possible customers in the crowd outside.

"Waal," said the man, slowly, "it looks like her, and I guess it looks like me, but ye see, I didn't know and I guess she didn't know we was goin' to be in the same picture."

"Thought you'd like 'em that way," answered the photographer. "Pleasant souvenir of your visit to the fair together."

"Waal, yes, but you see we didn't come together. I never seen her before."

Then the two snickered, and the photographer bowed them out as quickly as he could.

That year he did a good business, and at the next fair he set up his booth again. One day a young couple came in and greeted him with smiles of doubtful recognition. It was the young man and woman of the year before.

"How do you do?" cried the photographer. "I—I see you know each other now."

"Yes," answered the man, looking sheepishly at the girl. "My folks know some folks of hers over to Hopkins, and when they seen her picture they reco'nised it. An' that's how we got acquainted."

"I'm very glad," said the photographer.

"So'm I; ain't you, Lizzie?"

"Yes," said Lizzie, shyly.

Flower Legends and Other Poems

Editor of The Times:

Dear Sir.—"Where an author has many beauties consistent with virtue, piety and truth, let not little critics exalt themselves."—Watts.

The fledgeling of the Toronto Evening News with the hermaphrodic name of Frank Lillie Pollock undertakes in that sheet to criticise "Flower legends and other poems" by Miss Alma Frances McCollum, of this town, which have been so favorably commented upon by Dr. Drummond and other famous poets. I do not know whether I should refer to the News caviller as he, she or it, owing to the uncertainty implied by the name, but for the sake of convenience I shall assume that he belongs to the masculine gender, although, no doubt, he thinks he is "it." He certainly is no gentleman, nor does he betray the instincts of a lady in his savage and brutal attack upon the refined and talented author. Once upon a time there lived in this town a colored gentleman who was known as "Black Frank." When he got into a spat with his wife which was of daily occurrence, he would say to her "You're a h—ll of a feller." Does not this would be critic of the News reveal the shadowy form of the late lamented Mrs. "Black Frank?" He is what Artemus Ward called of largebore but of small calibre. His genius takes on the form of an untabulated nervous disease—not exactly hydrophobia—and perhaps after all, he is only a victim of indigestion or some other malady, and is a fair subject for charitable consideration. His murmurs are fitly described by Lord Beaconsfield, when he said, "Tis with feelings as with waters, the shallow murmurs while the deep are dumb." The vaporings of this disgruntled he, she or it, when contrasted with the favorable comments of the best critics, can only serve to accentuate the worth of the poems and to enhance the sale of the book, for no one with any literary taste can fail to detect in these beautiful poems a delicacy of sentiment and beauty of diction unsurpassed in the whole range of Canadian poetry.

PETERBOROUGH.

ARE YOU AMBITIOUS?

Coffee Makes Some People Helpless

We inherit our temperaments. Some children are happy and bright, while others are nervous and cross. Care should be taken that the child is given proper food and drink so as not to increase natural nervousness or to bring it on; but this is often overlooked by mothers who permit their children to drink coffee without check.

The wife of a groceryman living in Siloam, Mo., says, "I was born with a nervous temperament, and this was increased by my parents giving me coffee when a child, unconscious of its bad effect on my nervous system. In time, a cup of coffee in the morning invariably soured on my stomach, and a single cup at night would make me nervous and wakeful and often cause a distressing heart-burn. Last year I laid in bed all summer with nervous prostration, a complete wreck from coffee drinking. I craved a good, nourishing, hot drink and commenced to use Postum Coffee.

There was a gradual improvement in my health almost from the commencement of using Postum. I could sleep well, the heart-burn and nervousness disappeared, my stomach trouble stopped, and now (a year later) I have gone from the sick-bed into the store behind the counter day after day, from a helpless to a stirring business woman, with new life and strength, new hopes and ambition; from the pale, weak, 105-pound woman to my present weight of 120 pounds. Thanks to Postum.

We carry Postum in stock and recommend it to our customers; we love to sell it and often give a trial quantity to the faltering to induce them to use this health-giving drink." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

CORPSE IN CARD GAME

Gruesome Guest Present For Two Hours While Game Goes on

Quincy Ill., Nov. 3—Wednesday night a dead man sat in a game of cards for two hours in the saloon of James F. Hedrich, at Eighth and Locust streets.

He had taken a seat as a spectator between two of the players, and while the cards were circling about the table he was dealt the cold hand of death. His head sunk forward on his chest and he seemed to be dozing. Once the corpse swayed against one of the players, who pushed it back to an upright posture, with the remark:

"'Brace up, comrade, and have a look at the game."

The man was Fred. W. Reinke, aged 64, a veteran of the civil war, and a resident of the Soldiers' home. As he sat at the table with his white head bowed, his companions thought that he was sleeping.

Two hours after he had taken a seat at the table one of the card players attempted to arouse him to show him an unusually good hand of cards.

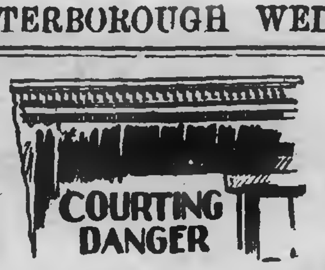
"Wake up! Look at this!" exclaimed the card player.

The player pushed back Reinke's head and held the cards before his face. The open, vacant, staring eyes of a corpse were revealed to the men about the table. They pushed back their chairs horrified.

"Great God!" exclaimed the man with the good hand. "He's dead!"

Chairs were overturned. The cards were scattered upon the floor, and the corpse sank forward against the table.

When Reinke walked into the resort about 5.30 o'clock he told the proprietor's wife that he was sick, and asked her to make him a cup of coffee, and then sat down at a table where a number of men were playing cards. It was his last request on this earth. Mrs. Hedrich told him she would have to boil the coffee first. About a half hour later she sent her 15-year-old daughter Florence, into the room with the coffee. The young woman noticed that his head had dropped to one side, and he had assumed an attitude of one fallen asleep. His comrades brushed against him, and now and then one of them asked him not to crowd. Reinke made no reply. The game went on until 7.30 when Joseph R. Barnaby, one of the men who had been sitting beside him at the table and engaged in cards, attempted to awaken him.



It is courting danger to stand under icy eaves. Not a few have learned this to their cost. Every winter injury and even death are reported as the result of this carelessness. But there is a far more popular way of courting danger. Every man or woman who neglects a cough is inviting sickness, and many a fatal sickness has its beginning in a slight cough.

The timely use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure the cough. Even when the cough is obstinate and there is hemorrhage with emaciation and weakness, "Golden Medical Discovery" always helps and almost always cures.

"I was troubled with a bad cold, which settled on my lungs and left me with a miserable cough," writes Mr. Joseph D. Burns, of 318 Huestis Street, Ithaca, New York. "I used two bottles of your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' after which my cough disappeared entirely. I cannot recommend your medicine too highly."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach, blood, and lungs. Substitution means a little more profit to the dealer but a loss to you.

The Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 large pages, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

The Old Man Yearns to Return to His Native Country

He Will be Obliged to Take the Oath of Allegiance

Before he is Permitted to Enter South Africa

London, Nov. 4—The Post says that Paul Kruger has decided to return to South Africa.

It has been well said that Paul Kruger today presents the most pathetic picture in world politics. Even though he may have been ignorant and avaricious, and untruthful, he had courage, and what no man can deny to have been patriotism. He was badly advised when he left Africa for Europe. But it is hard to advise a man of strong will, who is nearly, if not quite, illiterate.

It is said that the old man is going back to South Africa, and that he will take the oath of allegiance. That he will ever be anything again but a splendid ruin is impossible. He is too old.

But when Kruger accuses Mr. Chamberlain of having been the accomplice of Cecil Rhodes and Jamieson in the raid he is allowing antipathy to darken judgement. A Select Committee of the House of Commons composed of Unionists and Liberals examined into this allegation when it was first made and reported that Mr. Chamberlain—to use the exact words of the committee's report—"had done nothing injurious to his personal honor."

But Paul Kruger will not be blamed for his anger. The friends of lost causes are never especially tolerant of former enemies. It is to be hoped that in South Africa the former President will pass the evening of his days in comfort as a citizen of a prosperous and happy British country.

Was Sentenced by Paris Court But Isn't There

Paris, Nov. 6—William K. Vanderbilt has been sentenced in default to two days' imprisonment and a fine of 16 francs for recklessly driving his automobile on the Champs Elysees on Sept. 13. Mr. Vanderbilt was informed on that day that he would be prosecuted, but he returned to the United States without noticing the warning, and he was not represented at the trial.

It is stated that his solicitor, who vainly tried to get the case postponed, to enable him to consult with his client will appeal with the view to obtaining the suppression of the imprisonment part of the sentence. If he does not succeed, Mr. Vanderbilt will be liable to arrest on his first appearance in France.

GERMANY'S WAR FLEET AND ITS PURPOSES

To Break Down the Sea Panic of Great Britain the Object

THE UNITED STATES AND ENGLAND ARE ONE

And Will Resent the Efforts of Germany to Control the Seas—Dr Schiemann's Views

New York Nov. 5— The Sun says: A good deal of light on the ultimate aim of the immense additions now making to the German Navy is derivable from a lately published book Deutschland und die Grosse Politik (Germany and International Policy). The author, Prof. Theodor Schiemann is the writer of the articles on foreign politics which distinguish the Kreuz Zeitung, well known as the organ of military and bureaucratic opinion in the German Empire. His articles are not only invested with authority, as representing the beliefs entertained in the most influential German circles, but they are commended by exceptional sobriety and moderation. He commands, therefore, attention and respect when he says frankly that the expansion of the German war fleet which will reach great proportions in 1906, and will have been completed in 1917, is directed, not against the Dual Alliance, much less against the United States, but primarily and mainly against Great Britain.

Before marking what Dr. Schelmann says let us recall the German programme of naval expansion relying for our facts on the Navy Act approved by the Reichstag in 1900 and on statistics subsequently published. It appears from these date that in 1906 Germany will have eighteen battleships of over 10,000 tons apiece, as against fifty-two credited to England, and forty-two belonging at the same date to the Dual Alliance. In 1917, Germany will have in her home fleet, thirty four battleships, all within twenty-five years of age, and eight large cruisers as to which the age limit will be twenty years. She will also have three large cruisers for foreign service, besides four battleships and three large cruisers in reserve We pass over the small cruisers and torpedo boats. We note further, that the Reichstag cut out six large cruisers from the original programme but that it is believed to be the intention of the Imperial Government to demand a reinsertion of these vessels in the programme at an early date. The significance of these figures is that Germany four years hence will be able to hold the balance of naval power between Great Britain and the Dual Alliance and that by 1917 she will have attained a far more formidible position as a sea power.

Now, the official explanation of the the German Navy is that it is needed to the German Navy is that it is needed in order to protect Germany's colonial possessions. Let us see whether the value of these possessions justifies the vast expenditure contemplated. According to official statistics published in 1902, the total number of Germans residing in German transmarine possessions is 4,068 out of a total white population of 6,067. The total exports to Germany from German East Africa, German Southwest Africa, the Cameroons and Togoland in 1900 were about $380,000 and their imports from Germany were less than $1,400,000. The estimated cost of administration in these dependencies in 1902 exceeded $6,250,000. The imports from New Guinea, the Carolines, the Marianne, Marshall and Pelew Islands are computed at less than $670,000 and the exports at less than $400,000. For Samoa the imports are $536,500 and the exports $324,500. The trade figures for Kiao-Chou are not before us, but the expenditure on the harbor and other works for 1902 is computed at upward of $2,000,000. The insignificance of these colonial possessions from a commercial viewpoint is so obvious that the creation of an enormous navy for their defence will be at once recognised as ridiculous.

Dr Schiemann wastes no time on the official explanation of the purpose of Germany's new navy. In an article published in 1899 when the Kaiser's naval programme was under discussion, an article now reprinted, he took the same ground which was occupied by Dr. Lieber, the leader of the Centrist party who advocated the new naval programme in the cause of a "solid continent" (Feste Europa) against the Anglo-Saxon race. After pointing out that England has driven the Spaniards and the French out of America, the French, the Portugese and the Dutch out of India and the Dutch out of South Africa and Australia, Dr. Schiemann insisted that she obstructs the colonial designs of Germany in Afrika and Asia. For this reason he held that the German Government had only discharged its imperative duty in bringing forward a naval programme which should "make it possible in the future for Germany to protect her national honor against the ill will of her neighbors, whether by thrust or parry." The context shows that by "neighbors" the writer means England alone, and the phrase "thrust or parry" manifestly suggests offensive, as well as defensive, operations.

The whole purport of the book 'Deutschland und die Grosse Politik,' is that just as Germany joined hands with Russia and France to rob Japan of the Liao Tung peninsula so she is likely to join the Dual Alliance whenever she sees a fair chance of breaking down the sea power of Great Britain. What Dr. Schiemann does not perceive, however, is the effect of the disclosure of Germany's intentions on the United States. He should have foreseen that the revelation must tend powerfully to impel it toward a friendly understanding with Great Britain. Now, let us admit, for the sake of argument, that the primary purpose of Emperor William's naval programme is to overthrow England's preponderance at sea, and that Germany, by a combination with France and Russia, might carry that purpose to fulfillment It is patent that, in such an event, we should be powerless to avert the conquest of South America by the Powers of Continental Europe, even if we could manage to protect our own seaports from attack.

Forewarned is forearmed. It would be folly for us to remain impassive spectators of an attempt on hte part of Continental Europe to annihilate England's naval preponderance, since such annihilation would be quickly followed by a refusal to recognize the Munro Doctrine as a shield of South American independence. The formulation of that doctrine was due almost as much to George Canning as to James Monroe, and, alone of the European Powers, Great Britain has never opposed the enforcement of the principle of the policy; nay, has submitted to it when her own interests seemed threatened in the Venezuela boundary dispute.

LIVING IN SOUTH AFRICA

Rents and Food Have Steadily Increased In Last Twenty Years

London, Nov. 4.—The high cost of living in South Africa, and more particularly at the Cape, is a much discussed question at the present moment. During the last twenty years rents and the price of all necessities of life in Cape Colony have steadily increased, and the same may be said, mutatis mutandis of every other part of South Africa According to some authorities the change is chiefly due to the operation of an unscientific tariff, and the proof of this statement is found in the fact that the cost of living in Durban, which was comparatively small before Natal entered the Customs Union, is now nearly as high as in Cape Town. Others believe that the high prices are due to the fact the meat trade is a monopoly (a monopoly only partially broken down by the efforts of the late Mr. Rhodes to bring about free competition), and, by way of providing truth of their assertion, point out that the suspension of the meat duty did not lower the prices either of the imported or the home-grawn commodity. Others, again, refuse to accept either of these explanations, seeing that the prices of local products, such as Cape wine and Table Bay or Kalk Bay fish, have steadily advanced since the diamonds of Kimberley and the gold of the Rand were discovered. Time was when snoek (the standby of the poor Cape Colonist, who was known generally as a "snoek eater" by the meat-eating Natalian) were sold for a penny apiece; now two or three shillings is not an uncommon price for a specimen of these fish. Cape wines which cost sixpence a bottle now cost eighteenpence, and all sorts of farm and garden produce have gone up in price to a still greater extent. When it is considered that the development of South Africa's mineral resources has proceeded more rapidly than that of her agricultural possibilities the solution of the general economic problem is evident. But it is not easy to say how it comes about that prices in the Cape peninsula are as high as they were in 1901, despite the return of thousands of refugees to the Rand and of thousands of British and Colonial soldiers to their homes.

The Douks in a Blizzard

Cold Win and Fall of Snow Catches the Pilgrims on Their March

Winnipeg, Nov. 4.—The Free Press has the following this morning from its special correspondent with the Doukhobors:

Fort Warren, Man., Nov. 4.—A new factor has entered into the Doukhobor problem. Nature, which since the commencement of the pilgrimage has smiled on the fanatics, has now changed its mood. Many times the searchers for the Son of God have asserted that He would give them sunny skies under which to travel during their quest. There would be no winter, they said, while they were on the march. The superb weather of the past two months, during which the preliminary visits were made from one Doukhobor community to another, and for the past week, during which they have commenced their lifelong journey, has certainly seemed to bear out their prediction. Last night nature executed a volte-face. After a perfect morning heavy clouds banked up from the west. The wind grew hourly more bitter and keen, and by five o'clock was a nipping north-easter. A little before six snow began to fall, and by nine o'clock the earth lay white under three inches of snow. It is falling more heavily than ever as I send this despatch, and gives every indication of continuing all night. This sudden contradiction of all their predictions and the acute discomfort which the pilgrims must be enduring, may do what reason and persuasion have failed to accomplish.

The pilgrims' condition, lying unprotected on the snowy waste, exposed to all the inclemency of a November storm in Manitoba, would move the pity of the most [illegible]. The main body, some 460 strong, are huddled in a willow scrub at the bottom of Stony Creek. Fires have been lighted. The steep sides of the deep gulch can be dimly seen through driving snow mist. The mourning chanting of their marching song rises weakly from one little group. Away towards Snake Creek can be heard the long drawn yelp of the coyote. The wailing of the storm, and the thin rustling of the drifting snow, are the only other sounds heard. One shudders to think of the consequences to the eleven hundred women and children to-night warmly sheltered in Yorkton, if exposed to the same rigors as are being endured by their fathers, husbands and brothers.

One of the most picturesque spectacles to be seen along the line of march is the meals of the pilgrims. Today I watched them as they took their midday meal at Binscarth. They unpacked their blankets and spread them on the ground in three continuous and parallel lines. The donations of food made by the Binscarth citizens were given to several men to distribute. The whole concourse stood reverently bareheaded and bowed while a prayer was recited and a short chant sung. Then the companies sat on the prarie. The meal would not have tempted the appetite of an epicurean. Dry oatmeal was the staple article of diet. It was poured by the attendant pilgrims in little heaps about four feet apart on the blankets that served as tablecloths. Salt, also given by the citizens, was sprinkled on the heaps of oatmeal, and the pilgrims helped themselves therefrom.

A few carried little cloths of the size of handkerchiefs, which they had filled when en route with prarie rosebuds. There were passed around and partaken of by all. The meal lasted about an hour, and the amount of oatmeal had to be twice replenished by the generosity of the Binscarth merchants. When hunger had been satisfied, the whole concourse repaired to the back-yards of the residences, and the pumps were kept busy for fifteen minutes quenching the thirst of the throng.

Half a mile east of Binscarth is Silver Creek, a wide and deep valley trenching through the prarie. It is one of the most beautiful spots in the Province, and the view of the advancing host winding its slow way down its steep tree-clad side was a spectacle worth going far to see. At the little stream the pilgrims halted. Many bathed their faces. Then the party divided itself in two nearly equal portions, about fifteen feet apart. One of them started a psalm, in which all joined fervently. Then another stepped forward and commenced the chanting of a creed, or some verse from Scripture, all, as before, repeating them with the leader. Then the party bowed three times, the foreheads touching the dust with each salutation, the other party doing likewise. This concluded their mid-day devotions.

Marks Bros. At the Opera House

Marks' Bros. No. A 1 Company presented the sensational comedy drama, "Larry Brogan's Promotion," to standing room only at opera house last night, when the clever young comedian, Ernie Marks, in the title role, sustained his character in a creditable manner. Miss Katherine Standish, the new leading lady of Marks' Bros. Company, appeared to good advantage in the part of Grace Dinsmore, while the balance of the cast were all good.

THE DRYING OF PEAT FUEL

Some Processes Which are Employed in Germany

Mr Frank H Mason, Consul-General of the United States at Berlin, Germany, has recently made a report on the manufacture of briquettes from brown coal, carbonized peat, coal dust, etc., used as domestic and steam fuel in Berlin and other German cities. The following from the report in reference to the drying of peat will be of interest here, that being one of the chief difficulties encountered in the manufacture of that substance into fuel:

"The Stauber process of drying moist substance was first brought into prominent notice in connection with peat coal manufacturing in 1901, when the imperial testing station at Charlottenburg announced as the result of experiments made with peat briquettes made by the Stauber system that they contained 45.14 per cent. of fixed carbon 4.51 per cent. hydrogen, 29.34 per cent. oxygen and 9.09 per cent. ash, and had a thermal value of 3,806 calories. The Stauber system as thus applied includes a process for rapidly drying the moist peat by means of heated and compressed air within a closed chamber or channel, communicating with the conduit pipes in such a manner that heated air can be forced through the drying channel and cold air through the outlet pipe, the effect being that the cold air quickly absorbed the hot saturated air out of the drying chamber and condenses it in the conduit pipes, thus greatly stimulating the process of evaporation by which the peat is dried. Peat in its raw state contains from 70 to 85 per cent. of water and in the humid climate of northern Europe is usually a very difficult material to dry. It is claimed for the Stauber method that it reduces the moisture to 18 to 20 per cent. quickly, effectively and, what is more important, without changing the chemical composition of the peat or in any way adding to it. The drying machine is in the boiler form (cylindrical) and of a size to conveniently produce five tons of dried peat per day. In a large plant this unit would be simply repeated, as a number of machines can be worked with air currents generated by the same engine. The peat coal can be used for locomotive or other fuel raw, or it can be coked and produces coke wholly free from sulphur and as valuable as charcoal for certain industrial purposes.

"Estimates furnished by the company give the cost of a plant capable of turning out fifty tons of peat briquettes per day, as follows:

Buildings	$14,280
Machinery	17,850
Steam engine and fixtures	3,500
Means of transporting material and product	3,570
Total	$35,270

"A second process is that invented by F Schulke, of Bachstrasse, Hamburg, the salient feature of which is that the turf or peat used is cleaned of roots stones, etc., then liquified by water and pumped through a pipe several miles to the works, where, as claimed by the inventor, it is leached and converted by heat and pressure into briquettes at a net cost of $2 per ton, or into artificial coal having a thermal value of 6,250 calorics at a cost of $2.50 per ton. It is understood that a large plant is in process of erection on the northern coast of Germany for the utilization of this method, but as to the actual condition of the enterprise or the practical value of the process on an industrial scale, no exact information is at hand."

STATEMENT PRESENTED

The Linton Bank Financiers Explained

No Audit Made but the Representatives of the Cheese Factories Report the Result of their Examinations

The representatives of the different cheese factories interested in the Linton Bank failure, have presented the following report.

Everything done has been entirely without prejudice to the claims of any creditor and with a view to obtain for the creditors, all available assets without law costs.

No audit of the books has been made, but from verified and accepted balances of accounts we find the liabilities of the Lakefield branch are $24,334.31, while the assets are $1,224.63 cash and about $12,833.20 in notes, of which about $5,000.00 are said to be utterly worthless.

In addition to this it is said that about $5,000 worth of notes which had been held by the Traders' Bank in Port Hope, as collateral security, was withdrawn from said bank by Mr. Benson, the late manager, a few days before he left and no trace of them has been found.

The books of the Orono branch are not presented, but a statement submitted by Mr. Linton, showed the liabilities at Orono, to be $3,730, while the assets are $4,300 cash and $6,151.90 in notes said to be good.

The total liabilities are therefore $28,061.31, while the total assets supposed to be good are $16,500.13.

Mr Linton deposited assets in the Traders' Bank, Lakefield, in trust for his creditors. The creditors receive at once 30 per cent. of their claims, and it is expected that in about three weeks they will receive a further dividend of 20 per cent. or such sum as may then be available, and the balance of assets as soon as they can be realized upon.

It will then be in order for Mr. Linton and his creditors to arrange for the balance of their claims.

We think it but fair to say that while we feel that Mr. Linton seriously erred in exposing his creditors to such serious loss, by not verifying his late manager's bank statement by proper monthly audits of his books, we have neither seen nor found anything, so far, which would in the least degree reflect upon Mr. Linton's honor or honesty, and he seems to be doing all in his power to satisfy his creditors. We beg to express the hope that they continue to exercise patience until something may be ascertained re those missing notes or until Mr. Linton is able to make a statement regarding his ability to meet the balance of their claims.

We desire also to say that we feel the thanks and the gratitude of the creditors are due to Messrs. W. H. Casement and J. M. Kilbourn, whose assistance has been of great value in the settlement of this matter, but who certainly receive neither more nor less out of the concern than the rest of us.

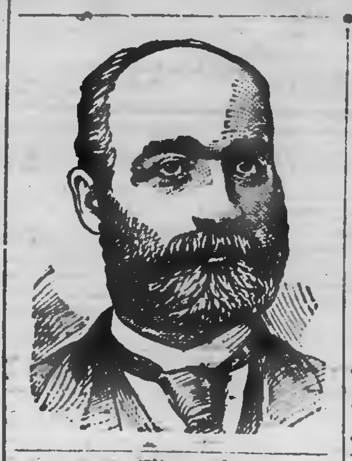
HON. JAMES SUTHERLAND MINISTER PUBLIC WORKS



The Popular Ontario Minister gets the Vacant Portfolio

While Mr. Prefontaine is to Become Minister of Marine and Fisheries

Ottawa, Nov. 5.—Hon. James Sutherland, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, is to succeed the Hon. Mr. Tarte as Minister of Public Works, his present portfolio going to Mr. Prefontaine, of Montreal. Mr. Sutherland is now regarded as one of the strong men of the Cabinet, and no more popular appointment was ever made by the Government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Mr. Sutherland is no stranger to the Public Works Department, having been acting Minister while Mr. Tarte was in Europe.

Mr. Sutherland is a man of the people, understanding their wants and wishes thoroughly, and having a splendid grasp of the public affairs. His whole official life and his private one as well, has been characterized by stability, honor and hard work

Ontario, and the whole Dominion, we believe, will hail with delight the appointment of Hon. James Sutherland as Minister of Public Works.

THE MINE WORKERS AND THE COMMISSION

Investigation as to the Conditions Going Steadily on

MITCHELL MAKES A STATEMENT

And Turns Over the Miners' Side of the Strike to the Commissioners

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Nov. 6— President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers delivered his report to the Strike Arbitration Commissioners at 6 o'clock this evening. It was taken to Scranton by Walter E. Weyl, acting as special messenger for Mr. Mitchell. Mr. Weyl aided in compiling the report on which he and Mr. Mitchell have been working for some days. Mr. Mitchell was asked what the nature of the report is,

"I cannot say that," he answered. "It is now the property of the commission and if the gentlemen desire to make it public they may do so."

The commission will hold a meeting to-morrow in Hazelton to decide whether the report shall be published. Mr. Mitchell said he would be present when the commission meets in Scranton on Nov. 14, to take testimony. With him will be associated Mr. Weyl's attorney Clarence Darrow, of Chicago. He will be present at each session of the commission thereafter where testimony is heard or argument made.

The commission will reach Hazelton this morning early, going there during the night in sleeping cars. They will be met by President Duffy, of the Mine Workers and by the operators of the regions and will be escorted to the various mines and strippings which are selected by the operators and Mine Workers as representative of the region. Owing to the fact that 9,000 of the Mine Workers of that region are still on strike the commission will investigate closely the conditions and causes of the strike. The Mine Workers' officials are very hopeful that with the new evidence they have to present the commissioners will be impressed with the belief that the operators are blacklisting the men who are prominent during the strike and refusing to take them to work, although they need hands.

One of the locals attached to the Hazel No. 40 colliery will ask for a special ruling in the case of sixty members of the local whom the operators have refused to reinstate. The commissioners have not yet passed upon the questions of what they will do. It is the intention this week to follow the same line of investigation as last week, spending two days in the Hazleton region and two days in the southern region, this time being considered enough to warrant an examination of those mines which are typical of the region.

The 2,000 Mine Workers employed by the Kingston Coal Company are awaiting anxiously the action of the company regarding the two check-weighmen who were discharged yesterday and for whose re-instatement to-morrow they have asked. Unless they are taken back the local will meet to consider the advisability of striking.

CHEERED THE SOLDIERS.

Mount Carmel, Pa., Nov. 5.—A big crowd collected at the Northern Central station to-night and gave the Sixteenth Regiment a cordial good-by. There are now no troops on guard in any part of this region, and the authorities feel there will be no collisions between union and non-union men.

REPUBLICANS VICTORIOUS

Democrats Made Large Gains—Slumps in New York City

New York, Nov. 5.—The result of the elections held yesterday in forty-two States of the Union assure the Republicans of a majority of from ten to sixteen in the House of Representatives being somewhat of a gain for the Democrats. The Democrats made tremendous gains in Greater New York, carrying the city by 119,000, but Odell (Republican), increased his majority above the the Bronx sufficient to allow him to carry the State.

The Republicans have carried Ohio, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey, Washington and Wisconsin. In the South the Democrats have made their usual run, electing their entire ticket in practically over state below the Mason and Dixon line. Kentucky and Missouri also going Democrat. Bryan's State, Nebraska, is still uncertain, with the chances of a Democratic Governor being elected.

A True Nerve Tonic

Will act, not so much directly upon the nerves as upon the digestive functions and the abundant formation of red, vitalizing blood. Nerves can't be fed on medicine. They can, however, be restored and strengthened by assimilated food. The marvelous action of Ferrozone arises from its action over the digestive and assimilative processes. When you take Ferrozone the blood is purified, strengthened, and grows rich and red. Then you grow vigorous, healthy and beautiful, ready for work, because you have the strength to do it. No tonic for the brain, blood or nerves compares with Ferrozone. Price 50c., at Druggists.

DEFEATED FOUR TIMES BUT NOT DISMAYED

Sir J. Gordon Spigg's Colonial Defence Scheme Rejected

London, Nov. 5.—A correspondent at Cape Town telegraphs that Sir Gordon Sprigg, Premier, made a pitiful but futile appeal for the passage of his scheme for colonial defence. His defeat, the fourth and most serious this session, would under ordinary circumstances, mean the resignation of the Government. Sir John, however, says the correspondent, is too fond of office to take this step, though even his supporters think it shameful that he should not resign after this last vote.

London, Nov. 5.—It is understood says a Paris correspondent, that the French Government will deal with religious orders by separate bills for each order, but there will be a general introduction for each class, such as teaching, preaching, and other orders, so as to enable the Chamber of Deputies to group classes in debate. The correspondent adds that the Bishop of Autun has gratefully declined the offer of his priests to pay out of their own pockets his stipend which has been suspended by the Government. He says he is unwilling to draw on their scanty resources, and trusts that Providence will not allow him to lack the necessaries of life.

London, Nov. 5.—A Rome correspondent says that the Vatican has instituted a commission of cardinals as expert advisers for the promotion of Biblical studies in a manner free from error and rashness. The commission must be guided by the church, which alone is declared competent to deal with such questions, and must examine all available ancient texts.

GERMANY AT SEA

Some of the comments in the German press upon the Anglo-American shipping combine and the British Government's subsidy to the Cunard Line are both instructive and interesting. Thus the Kreuz Zeitung, of Berlin, points out that Germany is in no financial position to pursue a policy of rival subsidies. "We have more immediate and more pressing obligations," it says, "that the maintenance for the North Atlantic, of a standard of freights which secures for shareholders a dividend of from 6 to 8 per cent." The Kolnische Volkszeitung also discusses the difficulties of the situation. It maintains, indeed, that the subventions which the Hamburg-American Line receives are not for the North Atlantic traffic, but for carrying the German mails, and for the support of its steamship services to South Africa, and East Asia, which do not pay Nevertheless, it remarks, the German Atlantic Company would gladly accept Government subsidies if they could get them. But a generous policy of subsidies is quite out of the question. The Kolnische Volkszeitung then proceeds to say:—"The question arises whether we have not too loudly and too pompously proclaimed the objects of our ambition. Many publications of the German Navy League and of the Pan-Germans, and, in fact, declarations which have been made in authoritative quarters, have led the English and the Americans to believe, or have, at least, given them occasion to assert, that it is our ambition to achieve naval supremacy on the Atlantic Ocean. In our opinion it would be very desirable that we should act prudently when we have to do with such rich rivals as John Bull and Uncle Sam.

INVESTIGATING THE COAL PROBLEM

The Anthracite Coal Commission—that is the official title of the investigating and arbitrating committee appointed by the President—is going to begin operations on Thursday by going through the the mines and understanding the conditions as they prevail there.

This is a very sensible thing to do. Before intricate questions are raised—and they will be raised on both sides—it is positively necessary that the investigators should have an intimate knowledge of their ground. They can get it only by personal and painstaking inquiries.

The general public knows very little about the merits of the controversy, which resulted in the long strike. They have read that the men want more wages shorter hours, a change in the method of weighing coal for the mining of which they are paid, and so on. On the other hand, the companies have given out elaborate statements to show that the companies cannot afford to raise the rates; that the corporatons are not making large profits—indeed, that some are making little or nothing, and that various operators have been forced into bankruptcy in the recent past.

What the public does know is that coal is a commodity which it must have; that strikes are disastrous. And what it wants is that there shall be such a community of interests between employer and employe as will make those too-frequently recurring disagreements impossible in the future.

The commission is giving evidence at the outset of an intention to go into the whole coal problem in a thorough manner. That is well. It is also gratifying that there no longer exists any misunderstanding between the miners and the operators as to the course of procedure of the commission. The operators will testify and Mr. Mitchell will plead the cause of the men. But beyond the arguments, facts must be obtained from original sources. These the commission will procure in its own way we have no doubt, nor do we doubt that the arbitrators will settle the great question before them according to strict justice to all, as they see it. Meanwhile the people, through the daily reports of the proceedings will be able to study the coal problem for themselves.

THE MOONSTONE SPHINX

By Mrs C N Williamson

Author of The Barn Stormers Fortune's Spor. Miss Nobody, Her Royal Highness Lady Mary of the Dark House, etc.

This disaster had been kept from Winifred, "lest it should worry her;" and because the poor little invalid had had to worry all alone she had slipped back almost to death's door. Had she dreamt of her daughter's new trouble in Brighton she would probably have died outright; but she had not been well enough even to read the cautious letter sent by the girl from Mrs. Purdy's. And meanwhile things had mended with Dick, though exactly why a certain piece of luck had come his way remained a mystery.

A lieutenant in his regiment, indifferent, even overbearing, before, had suddenly appeared to take a fancy to him; and on learning through questions that Dick was the brother of Miss Gray, the actress, invited further confidences, and finally lent the young private the money necessary to procure his freedom.

All this had happened before Winifred ventured out of her hiding-place to boldly return home, where she found Dick already established, and very little ashamed to tell the tale of his folly, his misfortune, and his rescue.

The end of the story alarmed Winifred. Not only was her pride hurt that the brother for whom she had worked so hard in vain should be under obligations to a stranger impossible at present to repay, but she was pricked with fear lest Macaire's hand had been in the business. For the officer who had come to Dick's aid was said not to be rich; indeed, Dick informed her as part of the mystery that the young man was supposed to be deeply in debt.

The girl could do nothing, however, towards repaying the loan. The money she had left from her anonymous present must be used for her mother and for current expenses, which were increased by Dick's presence at home. Again the weary struggle to find an engagement began; but, though the law suit she feared was not begun, the affair in Brighton, from the enemy's point of view, was known far and wide in theatrical circles, and the few managers wishing to engage actresses did not want Miss Winifred Gray.

She had been exactly a fortnight in London when a new blow fell. The officer who had lent Dick the money for his discharge wrote that he must ask for immediate repayment, as he found himself in unexpected difficulties. Previously he had assured the young fellow that he might pay when he liked, or not at all—it mattered nothing to him.

Winifred, to whom Dick instantly came with the letter, was at her wits' end. There was no one whose advice or help she could ask. Her mother must not be told, and Dick had shown himself worse than a child in business affairs. She thought of Hope Newcome, as she had thought many times during the past two weeks, with a grieved pang because, though in London, he had never called or even written. She did not want material help from him, but poor and shabby and down on his luck as he was, her feeling for him was such as a damsel of old might have cherished for a knight who has ridden up and rescued her from murderous thieves in the forest. He had none of this world's goods; but of courage, and strength, and chivalry he had more than any man she had ever known; and just to talk with him of her troubles as they had talked when they were "partners," under their masks, would have been like having a strong staff to lean upon in her weariness.

It was late one afternoon that she sat thinking of Hope Newcome, wondering why he had kept away, and whether he had already forgotten. She had Dick's letter from the officer in her hand, and had been trying to concoct an answer, until the image of Hope Newcome had beckoned her thoughts to a distance. Darkness was falling, but gas cost money, which Winifred had not to spend. When Dick came in they would have a lamp; but Dick had gone down to Fleet street directly after their luncheon of bread and milk, hoping to place a story he had written and had not yet come home.

Suddenly the sound of the door-bell broke into her thoughts. It did not ring very often now, for the girl who had been billed so brazenly for Mazeppa was in disgrace with her friends. Since she had returned from Brighton no one had called to see her.

Winifred's nerves were now in such a state that when anything unexpected happened she was frightened, and her heart beat fast. Suppose a man with a "summons" against her for breach of contract had come at last? Suppose Dick had got himself into some new dilemma, and she were to hear of it now? She had been with her mother in Welbeck street that morning, staying as long as the nurse allowed; but supposing word had come of another relapse?

There was no servant in the little flat in these days. Winifred did all the work herself; and it was part of her work to answer the bell. She went to the door now, in the half-darkness, quivering and throbbing with vague terrors of what she might have to see or hear.

But there on the threshold stood Hope Newcome, and her relief was so intense that she gave a little cry of joy and held out both hands.

"Oh, partner, it's you!" she exclaimed. "I'm so glad!"

He caught her hands and gripped them tightly—so tightly that it hurt; but Winifred was in a mood to be glad of such a hurt as this.

"You've been a long time in remembering your promise," she said, suddenly, feeling confused, and thankful for the darkness that hid her eyes and cheeks. "But come in. I'm sorry my brother's out. Perhaps, though, he will be here presently."

With such conventional words she led him into the drawing-room—a very different room from that in which they had had their talks at Mrs. Purdy's, yet only a mockery in its dainty grace to the emptiness of the family purse.

"Did you really believe I hadn't remembered?" Newcome asked, in an odd, tense voice, as if he were keeping back an army of words eager to press forward.

"What else could I believe? Unless that you were too busy." She had her back to him, and was busily lighting a lamp on the table. It was so dark that they had hardly seen each other yet; still, she did not appear to be hurrying over her task.

"Busy! As if being busy would have kept me away from you, after you had said I might come. No, it wasn't that. Mayn't I light the lamp for you?"

In a moment the room was full of light. She must look at him now, and meet his eyes; which she turned to do, with the begining of a smile; but the smile changed to surprise before it had reached perfection.

"Why, you—you—I hardly know you. But how rude of me! I——"

This Mine is no Prospect. Nor is it Waiting on Your Subscription to Buy Machinery or for Development.
After a careful examination by experts, Joseph M. Bradley, M. E., and Mr. George Arlett, A. I. M. E., Amalgamated Copper Company's expert in Chihuahua, Mexico, they advised the purchase of the property. The property had shallow development upon it, showing two ore shoots from which smelting ore had been shipped to the Buena Vista Smelter.
The Company purchased and paid for the latest improved machinery and has put a shaft down 250 feet and intend to carry it down 1000 feet. On the 150 foot level 200 feet of development has been made and an ore shoot has been encountered and blocked out for 57 feet, carrying values in gold from 2 to 9 ounces or [illegible] to [illegible] per ton. The cost of mining, hauling, freight and smelters charges will be between [illegible] and [illegible] per ton.

ALMOST SOLID COPPER

One 18 inch vein of 90 per cent copper (almost the solid metal) has been opened up in Copper Queen Extension Claim, one of the six constituting our Montana property, while mining a thirty-foot vein of free milling 18 per cent copper ore, carrying thirty ounces of silver to the ton.

This is so far ahead of our expectations, brilliant as our former prospects were, that we realise the IMMEDIATE building of a mill to handle this magnificent output, equalled in richness only by the Calumet and Hecla mines, is an ABSOLUTE NECESSITY. This will make OUR OWN portion of the stock, as well as THAT ACQUIRED BY THE PUBLIC, for the purposes of this immediate development, worth an immense amount of money in an exceedingly short time.

Help us build a Mill immediately by purchasing our One Dollar Shares, which are offered this week at 30 cents a Share as a Special Inducement to insure the speedy building of the Mill, and we will make your stock yield you an inordinate profit as quickly as the Mill can be put in operation.

We furnish the rich property—you furnish the mill. In a few months it will be in operation—almost before you expect it—and we divide the immense returns.

More About Earnings

New York, Nov. 6—If earnings are any indication of the future of prices the outlook for the future is decidedly encouraging it has been the history of speculation that earning power ultimately fixed prices; manipulation only makes them for the time being. We last week called your attention to the magnificent figures presented by the Southern Railway, Union Pacific, T. C. I. B.R.T., U.S.S, and P R S These were all taken at random, representing diverse interests, situated in various parts of our country. They all reflected one story, the continuance and breadth of prosperity. We notate more today, equally calculated to afford encouragement and confidence in the future. For September L. N. reports a gain in gross earnings of $441,701 and in net $158,155 showing a gain in expenses of $283,546, and operating 149 miles more road than in 1901. The operating ratio is, however, 67.56 per cent. against 68.17 per cent last year. For the year ending June 30th last, L. & N. officially earned 7.97 per cent upon its capitalization. The statement for quarter ending Sept. 30th last indicates net earnings for twelve months of $ 2.4 per cent. If the succeeding quarters equal the last one, and indications are that they will excel it, the company will show net earnings of over 11 per cent. The American car and foundry statement for the period ending August 31st reflects the activity of company's summer business. Operations of the current quarter will show even better results, so say the company's officials. The company is earning over 15 per cent. upon its common stock, which fact makes it one of the cheapest industries in Wall Street. The B. R. T. system at present shows a daily gross increase of $1453. To come down to Oct., as late as is reported, fifty-three roads for the third week in October report a total increase in earnings of 1796,069 or 7.81 per cent. Of these forty-one show increases of $920,297, while the other twelve report decreases aggregating $125,208. The indications for the coming three months warrant the prediction that all records for high water mark earnings will be broken; excess in many instances will prove simply astounding The conclusion to be drawn from these facts indicate the uselessness of anticipating any material or permanent set back in the average of prices of stocks at least for some time yet to come.

COMPANY'S STOCK AT 35 CENTS

California Oil Stocks Have Paid Millions in Dividends

KERN COUNTY (SUNSET DISTRICT) OIL COMPANIES PAID

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS IN DIVIDENDS IN AUGUST ALONE

MORGAN IN THE OIL INDUSTRY--NEW YORK FINANCIER AT THE HEAD OF A $20,000,000 COMPANY TO EXPLOIT CALIFORNIA FIELDS

Bakersfield, Cal., Sept. 27.—J. Pierpont Morgan is about to identify himself with the oil business in California. On October 12, or a few days later, surveyors will be put into the field, and will run lines to the ocean from Sunset, Coaling, McKittrick, Midway and Kern River fields to determine by which route it is most feasible to transport oil to tide water. The surveys will run over the coast range at a number of points, and also will go down the San Joaquin valley parallel with the line of the Standard.

A company having a capitalization of $5,000,000 has been organized for the construction of lines, pumping stations, storage tanks, and the like. Mr. Morgan and his associates have also formed a separate company, capitalized at $20,000,000, half of which will be invested in proven ground and the other half turned into a reserve fund.

It is stated that the Morgan syndicate will be prepared to handle 2,000,000 barrels the first year, and will increase that amount at the rate of 1,000,000 a year until the whole demand of the market is met.

THE ST. PAUL & SUNSET OIL COMPANY own and control a large tract of absolutely oil proven asphalt land in the very heart of the best oil producing land of Kern County, California, the district where flowing wells are situated. We have a bed of Liquid Asphalt underlying a portion of our lands. Our property is situated right at Sunset Station. A new line of railway is surveyed and will be constructed in a very short time, putting us not only in touch with Eastern cities, but in touch with tide-water. This, in addition to the railroad facilities we now have. Remember that we own our land—it is paid for and entirely free from debt.

ST. PAUL & SUNSET OIL CO.'S GIGANTIC TRACT

will be developed and should prove a formidable rival for the new company.

PROFESSOR DR. RUD J. SCHIMPER, Analytical and Expert Chemist, of St. Paul, makes the following statement relative to the composition, what can be produced and the estimated profits of the Sunset Crude Oil. A copy of the original certificate can be seen at the office of the St. Paul & Sunset Oil Co., which is in substance as follows:

"This is to certify that the undersigned, Dr. Rudolph J. Schimper, Chemist expert, member of Parisian Academy, according to analysis made from the crude oil furnished me by the St. Paul & Sunset Oil Company, I find the following valuable products and with each beg to submit my estimate of its value:

1. LIQUID RUBBER—2000 lbs of this crude oil (6 bbls.) will produce 1,200 lbs. of liquid rubber, value of which is from 25c. per lb. and up. (Estimated value $450.00.)
2. SOLID RUBBER—2000 lbs of this crude oil (6 bbls) will produce 1,700 lbs. of solid rubber, value of which is from 50c. upwards. (Estimated value $450.00.)
3. FUEL BRIQUETTES—2000 lbs. of this crude oil (6 bbls.) will produce 2,000 lbs. (1 ton) of fuel briquettes, which, according to government tests made, is equivalent to two tons of best anthracite coal. (Estimated value $22.00)
4. ASPHALTUM—2,000 lbs. of this crude oil (6 bbls.) will produce ½ ton of asphaltum, value $25 to $35 per ton. 25 gal. of lubricating oil, value 50c. per gal. and upward. 40 gal. illuminating oil, value 10c per gal. and up. 60 gal. of distilled oil, value 5c. per gal. and upward. (Estimated value $64.50.)
5. SOAP—2000 lbs. (1 ton) of crude oil and filling will produce over 2,000 lbs. of soap, value 3c. per lb. and upward. (Estimated value $60.00.)

Id my opinion many other valuable products can be obtained from the oil of that famous field.

Respectfully, DR. R. J. SCHIMPER, Chemist Expert."

THIS goes to show the immense profits that will accrue from our products when refined. We expect to commence Building Our Refinery in the very near future. The sale of the next allotment of stock will be made for that purpose. The largest flowing wells in California were brought in adjoining our property and their stock was taken off the market. We employ the best drillers who report rapid progress on our wells and we expect to bring in gushers equal, if not to excel any in the Sunset field. Our General Manager, Superintendent and Drillers, all are experienced oil men. The officers of our company are all thorough, competent and efficient men who have always made a success of their undertaking in life and who will see that the welfare of the St. Paul and Sunset Oil Company is furthered, portected and promoted to the most advantageous extent possible.

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS SHOULD BE PAID STOCKHOLDERS.

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS should be paid to the stockholders of the St. Paul and Sunset Oil Company when their property is fully developed, their refinery equipped and in full operation. ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS IN DIVIDENDS was paid by Kern County Oil Companies during the month of August alone.

SIX MILLION BARRELS is the consuming capacity of the Southern Pacific Railway engines, which are now equipped for burning oil. Outside of this consider other railway lines, smelters, factories, steamships, stationery engines, which are all heavy consumers of fuel oil and last but not least, hotels and private dwellings are falling in line with the procession in the use of fuel oil.

A GOOD REASON WHY YOU Should Invest in the stock of St. Paul & Sunset Oil Company. More fortunes have been made in oil than any other business. Consider the immense amount of money the Standard Oil Company has made for its fortunate stockholders, and the California oil companies have done better in proportion to their capitalization than the Standard Oil Company. Here is what $100 has accomplished for those who invested that amount in the following California companies in the beginning of their career:

Home Whittier $1,000 on an investment of $100.
Kern returned $2,200 on an investment of $100.
Peerless returned $1,800 on an investment of $100.
Dillon returned $2,500 on an investment of $100.
New York returned $30,000 on an investMent of $100.
Union returned $150,000 on an investment of $100.
Home returned $60,000 on an investment of $100.

THERE is no reason in the world why the St. Paul and Sunset Company's oil holdings and property, when developed and handled, should not bring like returns

CONTRARY to the general supposition the earth is the repository of all mineral wealth. When it is known and demonstrated beyond a question of a doubt where its wealth reposes and you put your money up to take it out, your money is invested. Hence you are an investor, not a speculator. A proven oil producing property does not draw its profits from the people but creates new wealth. It is therefore an investment.

Wonderful Increase in Value of Oil Stocks.

The rapid rise in the value of shares in some oil companies will be seen from the following table:	Original price per share	Present Market price
Black Mountain Oil Co.	$ .05	$ 1.50
Central Oil Co.	.30	1.50
Home Oil Co. Whittier	.25	2.50

The time will come in the near future when stock in St. Paul and Sunset Oil Co., should bring prices equal to the last.

WE CLAIM NOTHING WE CANNOT PROVE TO BE TRUE

BRIEFLY, OUR PROPOSITION IS THIS: THE ST. PAUL & SUNSET OIL COMPANY

owns its immense tract of proven Oil Land—without a penny of incumbrance. The property is located in the most wonderful and richest oil producing section in the world, in the famous Sunset District of Kern County, California. Other Oil Companies in Kern county have paid hundreds of thousands of dollars in dividends—and today their stock cannot be bought at any price. These companies in many instances have less property, and in some cases are only lessors, not owning refinery, tanks, lines, etc.

A LIMITED AMOUNT OF THIS STOCK WILL BE SOLD AT 35c. PER SHARE, PAR VALUE $1.00.

BUY NOW. THIS STOCK WILL BE ADVANCED TO 50c WITHIN THE NEXT 30 DAYS

THE ST. PAUL & SUNSET OIL COMPANY

will erect their own refinery, etc. are now owners of the property they are developing, employ the best drillers in the whole State of California. The manager is an old and experienced oil man who has been connected with large California companies. The officers are all successful and reliable business men, who are investors—the same as every other stockholder. And the company, with plenty of ready capital, proposes to make the St. Paul & Sunset Oil Co. a leader in the field and to develop their property to the fullest extent that money and brains will permit.

The first orders received will be the first ones to be filled. In case we are unable to fill your orders at 35c. your money will be refunded. Send Orders and Remittances to —Pedestrians found it difficult to wade through the numerous baby carriages and dogs on George street yesterday afternoon, and many accidents were narrowly averted.

—St. Paul's church Young Men's Guild will meet on Friday evening, Nov. 14th, when Mr. A. C. McCallum will read a very interesting essay on "How to draw a straight line."

—Mr. E. M. Best, who came to town from Brantford about six months ago, has a large range of stoves and tinware in his store on Hunter street. Although only a young man, he appears to be business from the word go.

The Peterborough Rugby Club will hold a ball in the Opera House on Tuesday evening, December 2nd. Of course it is sure to be a grand success, as everything else is that the Club takes in hand.

—A number of large trees in the Court house park are being cut down, as they have become too numerous and interfere with the growth of the grass in springtime.

—Mrs. Lang, an elderly resident of Water street, received a severe blow on the side of the head yesterday from a football kicked by a young lad. The same day a gentleman on the same street had his nice lawn all tramped up by boys playing football. Surely there are enough public places for amusement without trespassing on private property.

HILL CLIMBING

Food That Makes It a Pleasure

"I have a large amount of laborious brain-fatiguing work to do," writes a young lady from Richmond, Va. "After returning from the office, I have found myself so completely exhausted that I was unable to engage in any recreation or amusement.

"I tried several expensive tonics without effect and finally noticing an advertisement of Grape-Nuts as a food recommended to brain workers, I purchased a package and tried it. I found it extremely palatable and after a week's use (two meals of it a day,) I noticed a general improvement in my condition, the feeling of extreme exhaustion was growing less, and strength visibly increased.

I began to put on flesh and felt ready to enter into the amusements of the other members of the family and now, after using the food for eleven months, I am like a new person. I have absolutely no sensation of fatigue; my brain is clear; eyes bright; skin rosy and healthy and my muscles have strengthened to a marked degree. I am now able to walk from the office home, a distance of 3 1-2 miles, up one of the steepest hills for which our city is famous, and to engage in any amusements that may come in my way, without any sensation of extra fatigue.

I am also using your Postum Food Coffee with excellent results. My sister-in-law, who lives in Norwalk, Conn., writes me that she uses it also, and has not suffered from the distressing sick headaches she formerly had." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

ITEMS OF NEWS BY CABLE AND LETTER

It is evident that part of the population of the earth survived before anthracite coal was known or used at all, and possibly in this fact there is some suggestion of a way to get even with the monopoly of that article.

Dublin, Nov. 4.—Wm. Redmond was arrested on his arrival at Kingstown to-day, and was taken to Kilmainham jail. Mr. Redmond several months ago made a speech at Wexford, which was said to be incendiary. He was ordered by the Court of the King's Bench to give bail for $1,000 for his good behavior. This he refused to do, and the court sentenced him to six month's imprisonment.

Aden, Arabia, Nov. 4.—It is rumored in native quarters that the Mullah has raided an advance British outpost in the vicinity of Bohotle, Somaliland, capuring a large camel transport.

Col. Swayne has been recalled to England temporarily, where he will act as adviser to the Foreign Office. Gen. Manning has assumed command of the British Somaliland expedition.

Three thousand men will begin to advance against the Mullah about November 27. This delay is due to the fact that Gen Manning is dispensing with the Indian troops, in the belief that the native levies are more effective.

Simcoe, Ont., Nov. 4.—Justice MacMachon declared the election of Dr Snider, Conservative candidate for North Norfold, void at 1.45 p.m. to-day, after the examination of one or two witnesses.

Mr. E. J. Jarvis swore that he paid for the tickets for four electors residing in Brantford out of his own pocket, and as the agency of Mr. Jarvis was admitted, the court was asked to declare the election void, without proceeding farther with investigations. The cost of continuing the investigation would be considerable, as there were a large number of cases in the bill of particulars. The petitioner agreed not to press for cost of trial.

Honorable fame may be won in many ways; and all sorts of feet may hobble up the stairs to the proud temple. The glory of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Wilson, of Rolling Prairie, Ind., is not the dimmest or the least among the constellations of renown. They have eaten pancakes for breakfast every day for twenty-five years. A Chicago statistician estimates that they have eaten 228,125 breakfast pancakes, and they are still in the prime of life and many years of happiness and pancakes lie before them. They may hope to reach the 500,000 mark, an event to celebrate grandly. If you have the constitution much may be done in the pancake punishing line; and it is rather more intellectual than most writing or reading.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 5.—Owing to the fifteen murderous assault cases which have occurred at Cambridge, Brookline, and Somerville, within the past few months, two of which have resulted fatally, the State Police to-day arrested Alan G Mason of Boston, a well-known and wealthy business man, member of the piano manufacturing firm of Mason & Hamlin, a prominent club man, and a Harvard graduate. The police suspect, from evidence in their hands, that Mason has been involved in nearly all the cases referred to, because the circumstances in each have been similar. Mr. Mason, who is a middle-aged man, has been the victim of mental trouble, for which he was treated at the McLean Asylum at Waverly. About a year ago he was permitted to leave the institution. Since that time, it is said, he has been permitted to go and come at will. The fact that he had been frequently seen about the localities in which the assaults occurred led to suspicion against him.

The peculiar assault cases which have terrorized Cambridge and vicinity, as well as other suburban sections, began last June. During the summer there were half a dozen victims of an unknown assailant, each of which was struck down and beaten with a blunt instrument. Early in October Miss Agnes McPhee was assailed in Somerville, and she dies from her injuries. During the month there were eight other cases. Last Saturday night Clara A. Morton, a laundress at the McLean Asylum, was accosted on the grounds of that institution and beaten with a blunt instrument. Miss Morton died Sunday night. She came from Nova Scotia.

Hazleton, Nov. 4—The statement of the anthracite mine worker's case filed with the Strike Commission on Sunday night was made public to-day:

It recites that a demand of 20 per cent. increase upon prices for 1901 is made by employes performing contract or piece work, shorter hours, a weighing system, and an agreement as to wages and conditions of work.

The reasons given are: Correspondingly higher wages in bituminous coal fields, and in occupations requiring equal skill, wage insufficient in view of dangerous nature of occupation and inadequate to keep up American standard of living, increased cost of living, low wages for children prematurely to work, wages unfair and unjust.

Ten-hour day detrimental to health and safety, shorter hours improve miners' physical, mental and moral condition and increase efficiency of labor, modern tendency in favor of a shorter hours, eight-hour day long enough for best interests of labor.

Measurement by legal ton the only honest and just method, operators sell on basis of legal ton of 2,240 pounds, new system would remove incentive to cheating and dishonesty on part of both operators and miners and allay jealousy, suspicion and discontent.

Miners should have right to organize and act collectively, agreement between employers and employes beneficial in bituminous fields and other industries, unionism tends to better discipline and amelioration of conditions of men and better relations with employers trade agreement only effective method of regulating questions in dispute and doing away with possibility of further troubles.

I Advise Suffering Women Strongly, to Take Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

This advice comes from a woman who had suffered all the miseries women can suffer from disease, and had been perfectly and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

This great medicine for women establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

Read Mrs. Kempson's letter and, if you are sick, follow her advice.

"Although it has been quite a time since I wrote you," says Mrs. Fred Kempson, of Cambria, Hillsdale Co., Mich., Box 57, "still your name is a blessing in our house, and I think it my duty to let you know that I am still enjoying good health, thanks to you and your 'Favorite Prescription.' When I think how I was five years ago, and then see how I am now, I say, God bless Dr. Pierce's works, and may he live long to help poor suffering women. I have never had any return of my weakness and am well and hearty. Can do all my own work without any pain. You saved me from the grave when all others failed. I advise suffering women strongly, to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, as I know it will cure in all cases, if indeed there is a cure."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are an excellent laxative, suited to the use of delicate women.

PROSPECTUS

LARDEAU MINES

LIMITED

(NON-PERSONAL LIABILITY)

Property in Lardeau Mining Division, West Kootenay District of British Columbia

Represented in the United States by the MINING SECURITIES COMPANY Temple Court, N.Y.

Your attention is called to a comparatively new section of the World's surface, and at the same time to our own enterprise there, regarding which we invite the strictest inquiry and investigation.

During the past five years British Columbia has been brought, through the development of its remarkable mineral resources, from the condition of a comparatively unknown region to a place in the front rank as a field for the profitable investment of capital.

The political conditions are of the most stable character, and the mining and company laws fully equal to, if not more favorable to operate under than exist in any State or Province, either in the United States or Canada.

The total value of the mineral output of the Province of British Columbia during 1900 was $16,344,751. During 1901 it rose to $20,713,501, an increase last year of 25 per cent. It is estimated that the output for the present year will reach a total value of at least $50,000,000, and that within five years the production will equal that of any country in existance.

Our object in presenting these statements is to convince everyone of the high character of the country in which we are operating and at the same time, advertise our own business.

We are at present developing an extensive property in the Lardeau mining division of British Columbia. This property is owned by the "Lardeau Mines, Limited," a company having a total capital of $100,000.

The property owned by this Company consists of three full claims, embracing an extent of 156 acres—mineral claims in British Columbia are 1,500x1,500 feet—equal to 52 acres each in extent.

Three strong, parallel ore veins run through this property from end to end, a distance of 4,500 feet. If placed end to end this would give 13,500 feet equal to a continuous ore body over two and a half miles in length. The values are in gold, silver, copper and lead, and range from $25.00 to $150 per ton of 2,000 pounds. These results are from surface ore only, "grass root values," and are indications of permanent values of the most convincing kind.

We feel that such a proposition ought to recommend itself to any one who want to better their position and who may desire to invest with reliable people a small or large amount of money where it will earn permanent profits.

The gross value of shipments of ore aggregating 6,193,694 pounds from twelve mines in the Lardeau, all situated near the property owned by this Company was $453,410.51. Equal to a return per ton of over $146.00. The property owned by this Company shows up equally as well as any of these more fully developed mines, and will, we are convinced, shortly rank among the best in the Lardeau division.

In order to show why we are confident we are right, we will estimate our ore values at $50.00 per ton, a little over one-third of the average ore values of the entire Lardeau mining division. We will also base our calculations on a daily output of 30 tons—a small amount compared with the extent of our property and the size of its ore bodies. We will allow $10.00 per ton for mining, transportation (a few miles only) and smelting charges. The profits, after making a reasonable deduction for incidentals, and surplus work out as follows:

30 tons at $50.00 per ton		$1,500 00
Less $10.00 per ton mining, transportation and reduc. chgs		300 00
Net daily income		1,200 00
Say for 300 days per year		300
Total net yearly income		$360,000 00
Deduct for incidental expenses, 15 per ton	45,000
Deduct for Company's surplus account, 15 per ton	$45,000	90,000 00
Total yearly net earnings		$270,000 00

which sum is equal to 270 per cent per annum on our capital stock of $100,000.

This estimate is made on the basis of a small output compared to the extent of our property, and the splendid facilities it affords for economical mining and on the operation of the mine for 300 days per year only, so that anyone can see at a glance that we are not over-estimating in any particular, especially when the output of mines similarly situated, and with ore bodies of less extent than ours, ship hundreds of tons a day. There is no good reason why our property, when fully developed—and that is what we are working for now—should not ship several hundred tons of ore per day, but we are basing our calculations on the immediate future in presenting the above estimate.

The property is now being developed by a cross-cut tunnel which is in nearly 100 feet and when driven a few feet further will intersect a large ore body in Vein No. 2 at a depth of 85 feet, when drifting on the lead and stoping ore will be commenced, and the price of shares advanced accordingly.

The capitalization of this company is low—only $100,000—so that the enterprise is free from all suspicion of stock jobbing which has too often ruined many otherwise honest companies.

In conclusion we wish to say that this is a good mining stock which you can buy low, and which you can either keep as an investment or re-sell when it advances in price, for it will be but a short time until this stock cannot be bought for less than many times its par value.

To persons of small means who cannot afford to purchase high priced shares this presents an opportunity that will enable them to get an interest in a business that has paid more clean profits, made more millionaires and is today paying greater dividends than any otherbusiness in existence.

Engineer's Report

THE DIRECTORS,
THE LARDEAU MINES, LIMITED, ROSSLAND, B. C.

Gentlemen:—I beg to hand you my report on the three claims in the Lardeau District, owned by your Company, on work done on the "Lardeau Queen" and on results attained during the past few months. This claim, with the "Lardeau King" and "Lardeau Prince," all abutting end on end, through which the hereinafter mentioned leads pass the entire length, from the Royal Group, situated at the head of Lexington Creek, in the Lardeau Mining Division of West Kootenay, British Columbia.

These three claims are located on the western slope of Goat Mountain, the lines being north-westerly and south-easterly, and form one complete portion of mineral land of about 154 acres. They lie east, less than four miles up, from Fish River (to where both the C.P.R. and K. & S. Railway are now in course of construction) and twelve miles by level road to Comaplix or Upper Arrow Lake deep water landing. A spur up Lexington Creek to the "Royal" and other numerous mining properties will no doubt afterwards be built.

In addition to the two separate and distinct parallel ledges, of which you are already aware, I recently discovered about 650 feet from No. 1 vein, another ledge within the southwest boundary of the "Lardeau Queen," which we will call No. 3 vein.

The Royal Group lies in the "Sitting Bull" and "Wide West" Belts, two of the strongest and best known leads in that district, and what work has already been done on adjacent extensions has given most satisfactory results as to the extent of ore bodies and increased values with depth. Several claims on this lead have already hundreds of tons of shipping ore ready for transportation to the smelter.

The formation is slate and schist, lying in an immense lime dyke and the croppings of the leads are generally topped with heavy iron capping and quartz, which gives assays of from $8.00 up on surface.

Buildings, Etc.

A good horse trail to the mines has been built and all necessary buildings for general mining purposes have been erected adjacent to the creek and workings.

Veins and Work Done

Exploitation of No. 1 vein consists of two open cuts along the surface for a distance of 40 feet, which exposed a body of argentiferous galena over 8 inches in width. The value of this ore body was $25.00 on the surface, but at a depth of less than three feet it had increased to $40.00. To tap this ore showing and the massive iron-capped ledge close to which it lies the present tunnel was commenced, and is now in a distance of 60 feet. Another 25 feet of cross-cutting should reach this ledge at a depth of about 85 feet. When 61 feet had been driven an almost solid body of iron ore 3 feet thick was encountered in the tunnel lying against a wall of slate. A sample at this point assayed $77.00 in gold, silver, copper and lead. Before opening out on this ore body it is, I think, advisable to drive a further 25 feet, when I believe the main lead will be reached.

No. 2 vein which occurs about 250 feet above No. 1 vein, is an iron-capped ledge about 8 feet wide, showing an occasional seam of mineralized quartz with galena. The surface assays gave $5 and $13 in gold, respectively. Although not so strongly defined as No. 1 vein, it is easily traceable at intervals, throughout the full length of the property, 4,500 feet.

No. 3 vein is in strong evidence about 650 feet below the centre line of the "Lardeau Queen," and appears to be directly within its area and dipping directly (north) into the hill towards this claim. The width is from 10 to 12 feet of very heavy iron capping and quartz with bunches of galena occurring under the surface in the talc at intervals of from 4 to 6 inches. The assay results of the quartz ($18) samples I brought you is decidedly encouraging, and I am satisfied that the clean ore will prove to be of a high grade.

Transportation Etc.

The certainty of an early advent of a railway into Fish River section is acting as an incentive to the numerous mining companies there, who are employing large gangs of men in development work more especially in the vicinity of Lexington Creek, where the "ore from the grass roots" proposition preponderates.

The property has an excellent surface showing. The average assays are most encouraging, considering the great width and continuancy of the leads across the country with such great width and prominence of the surface and judging from other properties in the near vicinity, some of which are on the same lead and have developed very rich ore bodies.

In conclusion I would like to say the Lardeau Mines are as good as any, if not the best in the vicinity, and I verily believe, with a nominal expenditure, they should be made dividend-paying in a short time, and I would strongly recommend extensive developments towards that end.

Signed,

J. O. McCLYMONT, Mining Engineer.

DOUKHOBORS NOW LOOK FOR DIVINE REVELATION

They Think Messiah Will Appear when They Arrive at Winnipeg

HORRIBLE SCENES WITNESSED ON THE MARCH

Many Deaths Reported—The Crazy People are Still Undismayed and Hope for Divine Aid

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 6—A special despatch from Solsgirth, Manitoba, at which point the Doukhobor army was camped last night, states than three more pilgrims have gone insane. Many are exhausted and have to be carried on litters, but still the mad Russians continue their march in search of a Messiah and are even getting recruits.

They now expect to reach Winnipeg next Tuesday. The leaders say there will be a revelation for them here, and that Christ will appear to them and lead them into the country to the south—that is the United States.

Latest reports say that the army is marching over the snow-covered plains, making fair progress. The women to the number of 1,000 were sent back to the villages to-night.

The scenes along the route are horrible and increasingly so. So far several deaths have occurred, and many are sinking with weakness. To a press representative the crazy people said that there would be no cold weather this winter.

They have, as is often the case with extreme religionists, taken the exactly opposite view, and now rejoice in the very hardships they effected to believe non-existent a few days ago.

Expect to Die of Cold.

"Yes, very cold," said one of them today; "when very cold; no sleep for cold; but Jesus see us bear cold for Him. We His people."

"But it will keep getting colder all the time," I said, "and then how can you go on with your walk for Jesus?"

"Yes, yes; I see," he said. He thought a while, till a slow, sweet smile transformed his dull, slavonic face almost to beauty, and his eyes brightened as if he had seen a beatific vision.

"Yes, then we die. Yes, and we see Jesus and will live with Him."

Evidently the mortal life is by them regarded as a probationary chrysalis period, to be through with as soon as possible, to expand into a fuller, more perfect, happy existence above.

The inclemency of Monday night's storm has increased the number of sick. Three of the pilgrims had to be supported partially or wholly along the trail. Had not this been done they must have retired from the procession and fallen by the roadside. With rolling head and vacant eye, unsteady and weak they lagged behind their comrades, despite the friendly help continually given.

One was a man nearly sixty years of age, short of stature and steady of frame. Insufficient nourishment and constant exposure had done the work that years of healthy labor could not accomplish. The man was a physical wreck. I walked alongside of him for a quarter of a mile, and found that, weakened to the extreme limit of human endurance, as plainly he was, his determination to go on as long as he had the strength to crawl, was inflexible.

Were Photographed.

Wasyl Kinkof and Abratis Petroff promised me they would be photographed, and they twice reminded me of it before we arrived at Birtle. After dinner was over, therefore, I secured my tripod and camera, the pilgrims taking the keenest interest in my proceedings. The chorus as they looked at the view-finder and saw pictures of their comrades on the ground glass, can only be compared with a baby's delight when first it hears the ticking of a watch.

"John the Baptist" was at first unwilling to pose, but a little persuasion and representation that the publication of his picture might convince some Canadian people of their error, induced him for a short season to withdraw his mind from the contemplation of eternal verities to the more common things of earth. When the button had been pressed, and he was told that the operation was completed he asked me when the pictures would be finished. I told him on Friday. Wasyl Kinkof asked the same question concerning his. Then consulted among themselves for awhile and then said:

"'You send us pictures?"

I promised to do so. They consulted futher and then Kinkoff said:

"Send all the pictures to me. I see Petroff and all get them. Send them to Portage la Prarie. How far is that?"

Indicates Their Route.

I told him about sixty miles. He made a mental calculation. "when Sunday, Monday, perhaps," he said, "get them at post office," and it was arranged accordingly. This is important as indicating the route to be taken by the pilgrims. They will go on to Portage from Winnipeg, where they should arrive by the latter end of next week.

By some mysterious means they seemed to have acquired much knowledge of the plans of the department concerning them. For instance, I was greatly surprised to hear Kinkoff speak of the projected deportation of the Swan River women and children to their villages, three hours before the despatch containing the news was sent to the village. The plans of the department were known to but five. Yet these pilgrims seemed perfectly cognizant that a special train was to be sent up. The rapidity and secrecy of their means of communication, is one of the puzzles of this people.

Last night the air was mild, but snow was falling. The pilgrims put in another uncomfortable night.

A CALL TO ARMS LABOUR VS. CAPITAL

Labour Men Stirred by an Attack of American National Association

THE TWO GREAT FORCES MUST NOW SEPARATE

Says the Manufacturers Association of the United States—Conditions Very Serious

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 7—Organized labor has accepted the challenge of the National Association of Manufacturers which Association of Manufacturers has declared in a circular letter that union labor and capital have reached a parting of the ways.

The Association has urged the defeat of the so-called anti-conspiracy and eight hour bills, pending before congress, and organized labor proposes to exert every energy in behalf of these measures.

The fight is to be national in its scope, and is to be taken up by all organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

The first labor organization to act is the National Building Trades council, which controls the unions engaged in structural work. This action was taken recently by H. W. Steinbiss, general secretary and treasurer, after a conference of members of the executive board. A "call to arms" was sent broadcast, urging immediate aggressiveness by organized labor.

"Wage earners of America, let not the more energetic employers catch you napping," is the warning of Mr. Steinbiss. "Take this matter up at once in your several meeting halls and adopt resolutions reaffirming your stand on the eight hour day.

"Write to the United States senators of your respective states, urging upon them the interest you take in the eight hour principle and write to the representatives-elect of all parties in your respective districts, asking them to pledge their support to the eight hour bill. There are senators to be elected also. Write to the avowed candidate of all parties to these offices and show them that your intention is to put them on record.

"Do this at once! Don't wait until these officers are elected; take up the question at once and pledge yourselves, your best efforts and your energies to defeat the aspirations of any candidate for congress or the senate who refuses to pledge his support to a bill making eight hours the maximum legal day on all government work of whatever kind or description."

The following resolution was prepared:

Whereas, An attempt is being made by associated employers in the United States to defeat the proposed law making the maximum legal day's work upon contracts in which the United States, any territory, or the District of Columbia is a party, and stipulating a $5 penalty for each infraction thereto; therefore be it

Resolved, That we, the undersigned organization, do hereby emphatically declare our fealty to the eight hour principle and earnestly protest against any movement intended to abridge that principle in the slightest degree.

Resolved, That as the success of the nation depends upon the happiness and prosperity of its wealth producers, this attempt to defeat a measure calculated to reduce the burdens and increase the happiness and earning power of producers is a blow against the best interest of the whole people and a block in the way of national progress and welfare.

The movement for shorter hours has been taken up by two of the most powerful of the iron working trades within the last month. These organizations, the iron moulders and the machinists, have had little trouble in inducing their employers to grant the shorter day, yet most of these employers are members of the manufacturers' association.

When the Gould estate passed into the hands of the trustees named by Jay Gould, nearly eight years ago, it was valued at about $75,000,000. Now it is reckoned to be about $150,000,000. George Gould has thus duplicated the achievement of William H. Vanderbilt in doubling the estate left by his father in less than a decade. However, he has had remarkably flush times to help him do it.

THE BIGGEST MERGER IN THE UNITED STATES

The Billion Dollar Steel Trust will not be in for a Minute

Cincinnati, Nov. 7— A Philadelphia special to the Post states that there is more than common rumor to warrant this assertion that there are now being formulated plans for a trust of even greater magnitude than the billion dollar steel organization. The plan contemplates the consolidation of all traction electric lighting, elevated railway, underground railway and was franchises of the states of Pennsylvania, New York, and Ohio. The financiers ~~said to be~~ interested are P. A. B Widner, W L Elkins, John Mack of the newly-formed Philadelphia Rapid Transit company, the Whitney-Ryan syndicate, New York; Thomas Dolan, President of the United Improvement company, and Ohio and Minnesota capitalists interested in the North American Company and represented by Senator Foraker. It is claimed that the "omnibus charter" owned by the North American company, provides the necessary scope for the proposition.

COLOMBIAN REBELS RETREAT

Government Troops Now Trying to Clear the Isthmus

Colon, Nov. 16—The Government yesterday sent 2,700 men out alongg the line of the Panama Railroad to dislodge the insurgents. When they approached the rebel stronghold at San Pablo the insurgents retired.

No fighting has yet occurred. Twelve hundred more troops are expected today from Barranquilla.

London, Nov. 6.—A despatch to the Telegraph from Kingston, Jamaica, states that the steamer Trust which has arrived there, reports that the Colombian Government is massing troops at Colon for a general advance across the isthmus.

A fight occurred on Wednesday at Panama between American marines and some Colombian troops while the later were receiving ammunition that had been received from England. A Colombian officer was wounded. The troops were driven off. The Government will ask for the withdrawal of the American guard.

The rebels hold a number of the railway stations.

The Colombian steamer Presidente Marroquin, formerly the Han Righ, is going to Jamaica for repairs.

The British cruiser retribution, is now at Santa Marta.

The rate of exchange in some parts of Colombia is 1,200 por cent. Trade is crippled.

HIS MAJESTY, THE KING AND IRISH AFFAIRS

The King Has Complained to Ministers of Existing Conditions

London, November 7— The King has been generally credited with taking an active part in the negotiations for bringing the Boer war to an end, and it is now asserted that he has been complaining to the Ministers of the condition of Ireland, and that the appointment of a new permanent Secretary an official of unusual ability and experience in the Indian service, has been made in deference to his wishes.

The rumors are accompanied by forecasts of a complete revision of Mr. Wyndham's Land bill, and the semi-official announcement that the King will visit Ireland in semi-State during the spring. The King's activity in political affairs is a great surprise to the Ministers accustomed to the precedents and habits of Victorian reign. He takes the business of reigning as seriously as the German Emperor, scrutinises appointments in the Church, and Civil Service, and has definite ideas respecting the policies which the responsible ministers ought to adopt.

His review of a batallion of the Scots Guards, which returned last week from South Africa, was closed with a remarkably hearty speech of appreciation.

THE FIRST CANADIAN SUGAR

Berlin, Ont. Nov. 6.—For the first time in Canada sugar was manufactured from sugar beets today and the town of Berlin has the honor of being the first centre at which it was made. The first barrel represents the expenditure of a vast amount of money, energy, labor and anxious care and now that sugar has been made, the community and the company have cause of self-congratulation.

ACCUSED OF BLACKMAIL

Baron Burchard Von Muenchhausens Relations with the So Called "Marriage Syndicate"

Berlin, Germany, Nov. 6.—The relations of Baron Von Muenchhausen, with the so-called "Marriage Syndicate" which financed his journey to the United States in 1898, to obtain a rich wife, has been made public through a prosecution for blackmail, brought by the Baron against Hermann Pincus, Moritz Mendelsohn, and Adolf Mendelsohn, three tradesmen who were members of the syndicate. The trial has just come to its close. Baron Von Muenchhausen is a member of the famous German family which dates from 1160.

The testimony showed that an ex-convict named Eissler, living in Stuttgart, telegraphed to Frau Von Quitzow, a noblewoman, residing in Berlin, who undertakes to obtain wealthy wives for army officers, saying that if she had a titled officer on active service for an American fortune of $7,500,000, to let him know. Frau Von Quitzow put Eissler in communication with Baron Von Menchhausen, who is a lieutenant in the Prussian artillery. The Baron made arrangements with Eissler to give him five percent. of the money of the heiress if he was fortunate in his suit, and also signed conditional bills for $375,000. On these bills Eissler raised a large amount of money in Berlin from a numerous group of persons, which included Picus and the two Mendelsohns, and Baron Von Muenchhausen was provided with which he had to pay the expenses of his journey to the United States. Eissler's partner in this venture, was a lady's maid, who had been formerly in the services of the rich American woman referred to by Eissler. She preceded the Baron to the United States to negotiate the marriage, but her efforts were not successful. The name of the heiress in question was not disclosed in court. Baron Von Muenchhausen did make the acquaintance when in the United States, of Martha Washington Becket, a widow of moderate fortune, who, according to all accounts, he married on Dec. 23, 1898. Since his marriage, the Baron has been living with his wife on his estate near Schwebler, Hanover. On his return to Germany, the Baron Von Muenchhausen had to arrange with the holders of his bills. A compromise was negotiated with Pincus and the Mendlesohns, who surrendered his paper on the payment of comparatively small sums. Baron Von Muenchhausen afterwards accused these men of blackmail, and the trial was thus brought into court. Mendelsohns and Pincus were acquitted on the charges.

YELOW YARN ABOUT BEEF

London Papers Dig Up an Ancient Lie and Serves It Up as News to Injure Canabian Produce

London, Nov. 6.—Lord Strathcona has quite recovered from the scraping of his foot when alighting from a cab, and is daily at his office.

The Daily Mail makes a great spread today, with scare headlines, of another war scandal in which a great Canadian beef consignment is wrongly condemned. The reference is to a large shipment of Canadian tinned beef, which was condemned as putrid at Cape Town, but was subsequently, at the instance of the Canadian Government, found quite good, and was re-issued to the troops.

Official enquiry by your correspondent to-day elicits this reply. The facts are highly colored by the Mail:

"If you ask my private advice," said the official, "I would say, tell Canadians to shut up if they want more orders. Canada has done, and will do, very well with army contracts."

Sir Alfred Jones, chairman of the Elder-Dempster Company, informed me that he did not think it worth while to contradict the report of the United States Treasury Inspector that the Beaver Line accepts for the States via Canada any passengers able to walk, regardless of mental, moral, physical, and financial disqualifications.

RICH DISCOVERY OF GOLD

Men Flock to Black Hornet District Idaho

Boise, Idaho, Nov. 7—A rich discovery of gold in the Black Hornet district has caused a stampede comparable to the mining rushes of the early days.

Knowledge of the find got out Saturday evening and men started out at once to secure claims. They kept going all night and yesterday several hundred men rushed to the scene of the discovery.

At one point 600 feet from the original discovery, very rich ore was met with and in all the others good ore shows.

Sports and Pastimes

RUGBY.

The Rugby Club will meet at the Oriental hotel Saturday next at 7.30 p.m.

Toronto, Nov. 6.—At a meeting of the O.R.F.U. executive at the Rossin House last night, Bert Morrison of the Toronto Rugby Club was suspended on suspicion of professionalism, the charge being made by the London club in the shape of a protest.

Morrison's suspension is pending a satisfactory declaration stating that he did not receive money, and that he did not play hockey with or against Peel or Hern in Pittsburg, or did not play with or against any person, knowing such person to be receiving money for his services as a hockey player. The London-Toronto game stands until this declaration is made or refused to be made, and the matter will be further considered at a meeting of the executive to be held next Wednesday night.

Last night Morrison put in an affidavit denying charges of professionalism during his sojourn in Pittsburg. A declaration was produced by the London representatives purporting to be signed by Harry Peel, but which was not sworn to before a commissioner, and the signature was in lead pencil. The executive decided that the declaration was of no value as evidence on account of not being properly executed.

HOCKEY.

Paris, Nov. 6.—The Paris club, which decided to enter the O.H.A. intermediate series, will put the strongest team of "home-brews" on the ice that has ever played in Paris, or Western Ontario, for that matter. With Peebles and Fraser to look after the goal, Howell and Stewart on defence, and Brown, Taylor, Munn, and Cline on the forward line, the boys in green and black ought to bring the intermediate championship for 1902-3 to Paris.

There will be a second team, but it will not be entered in any series, but will depend on exhibition games. The teams will commence exercise at once by playing basketball in the rink.

A strong effort will be made to have T. Howell reinstated, as it is felt that four seasons' suspension is punishment enough for Howell's transgression of the laws of the O.H.A.

Aylmer, Nov. 6.—The meeting in the interest of a hockey team held at the Central Hotel last evening was well attended. The following officers were elected. Hon. president, W. White; president, K. A. Miller; vice-president, J. G. Helter; secretary, J. G. Johnston; Managing committee, Messrs. Moore, Hill and Peckman.

Ottawa, Nov. 9.—The hockeyists of Almonte are enthusiastic as to the prospects for the coming season and with the advantage of having a covered rink to practice on they hope to show that they can get together as fast a septette as any of the other towns in the Ottawa Valley. The new rink in Almonte will be completed before the snow flies, and the sport will receive an impetus as a result of its erection. The Almonte boys are anxious that if a hockey league if formed of the Ottawa Valley clubs they should be included, as they are confident of giving the other sevens a good run for championship honors. Perth and Smith's Falls will have speedy puck-chasers to uphold their athletic honor, and they with Almonte and a couple of other neighboring towns should form a league that would be a success financially and so far as the sport itself in concerned.

The Beavers of Ottawa would like to be included in the proposed league, and the latter, according to present plans, is to become connected with the Ontario Hockey Association. From present indications it would appear that hockey will boom during the coming winter as never before.

Stratford, Nov. 6.—The Beacon said last night: "Clifford of last year's junior Alliston team has secured a position in Stratford, and will be here this winter. He is a forward man, and is as speedy as reputed he will be readily given a place on the Indians' line-up. He will have to go a few to travel with Hern, Fraser and Edmunds."

Plattsville, Nov. 6.—Albert Grieve left for Woodstock on Monday morning where he has secured a situation, and also for the purpose of playing hockey. Ab. will be missed, as he is a good all-round athlete.

Port Hope, Nov. 6.—All doubts of Port Hope having a new covered rink are now swept away. Every day you pass down Queen street you can notice a difference in the building. The curling rink is now ready for the sheeting, and this will be started at once. Both sides of the skating rink are nearly completed, and five of the rafters are up. There are five more to be put up, and this will be done before the end of the week. It is stated that the whole thing will be completed by the first of December.

Markham, Nov. 6.—Once again Markham has a hockey club, composed of seasoned players, who should bring honor to themselves and to their supporters. From the following available men to pick from an extra fast team should be the result: Em. Maxwell, H. Gee, G. Sullivan, H. Robinson, Archer, La Bee, Whitoak, Stubbs, A. Maxwell, F. Gould, and Wm. Cowie. Everything is being done in a thorough manner this year, meetings being held on Wednesday evening of each week in the club rooms. Satisfactory arrangements have been made with the management for the use of the club this winter. Besides a senior club, an intermediate and junior team are a certainty. The aim of the senior team is to be associated with a city league and the intermediate with a district formed from Aurora, Richmond Hill, Claremont, and others, is desirable.

MR. WILLIAM H. HALL KILLED AT BUCKHORN

He was Accidently Shot While Out Duck Shooting Yesterday Afternoon

Body Brought to Town Last Night — The Deceased was a Well Known Citizen

Yesterday a very sad accident occurred at Buckhorn, which resulted in the death of Mr. William A. Hall, an old and highly esteemed gentleman of that place. Full particulars cannot be obtained, but we learn that he and his son had been out duck shooting in a canoe, and in the act of landing the son's gun caught in some way, one barrel discharging a charge of buckshot into the father's abdomen, causing death.

The remains were received at Comstock's undertaking establishment last night, and prepared for burial which will likely take place on Saturday. He was about 70 years of age.

Deceased lived many years in Buckhorn, and conducted a saw-mill. He was well known to the citizens of Peterborough. Sometime ago his family took up their residence here and the funeral will take place from their home, Reid street.

The late Mr. Hall was a man of upright character and enjoyed the confidence of all who knew him. He leaves a widow, three daughters and one son, to whom the sympathy of the entire community will be extended in their great affliction.

No less Than Eight Drowned

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 6.—No less than eight were drowned, three vessels driven ashore, and practically every lighter on the Nome beach was wrecked in a storm that commenced on Tuesday, October 14th, and continued throughout the day. The facts are supplied by Purser Robertson, of the Ohio, who arrived today. The known dead are: Frank Kelly, M. Robertson, Geo. Fletch and Samuel Josephson. A dozen or more people thrown into the surf, were rescued by the life saving crew. The schooner Louise, the steamer Elk, and the launch Fleetwing, were among the large craft that were left on the beach. In each instance the crews were rescued or managed to reach the shore. It caused the water to back up in the Snake River and every creek, and every creek bridge was washed away.

EUROPE FEARS CUSTOMS UNION BY GREAT BRITAIN

A Central European or Customs Union would Lead to Similar Action by England and Colonies

Comment on Colonial Conference—Great Britain is Able to Strike Back If She Is Attacked Commercially

London, Nov. 7— The Vienna correspondent of The Standard makes this comment on the colonial conference: "The people realize the fact that if England is attacked she is fully able to strike back. Political economists who, like the German Professor, Herr Wolf, of the University of Breslau, have been advocating a Central European or Continental Customs union against England, may find that their efforts merely lay a further steppingstone towards a Customs union within the British Empire, of which the colonial conference may have laid the foundation."

German papers say Canada's example where by the preferential treatment England costs Canada the forfeiture of the most favored nation treatment in the German market, will likely warn other colonies and England herself against a preferential policy. All the same, the Continental press find in the proceedings of the conference fresh cause to watch anxiously Chamberlain's next move.

Fought a Duel Over Election

Grandin, Miss., Nov. 6.—Joseph Farrow and Marcon Dunn, engaged in a duel with pistols on the street here today, as the result of which, both men were killed. Eleven shots were exchanged at short range, eight taking effect, each man being hit four times. The immediate cause of the duel was the difference over election matters, but there had been bad blood between the men for several years.

ITEMS OF NEWS BY CABLE AND LETTER

Winnipeg, Nov. 6.—Rev. C. N. F. Jeffery, secretary of Synod and of Home Missions of the Church of England, has returned from Binscarth. He was a witness of the spectacle of six hundred Doukhobors marching to death. Many of them were becoming weak for lack of nourishment, though the settlers were giving them food to prevent speedy starvation. One man collapsed from hunger. Mr. Jeffery says he had no illness, but was simply famished.

ARGUMENT WASTED.

Mr. Jeffery tried to reason with them, and to show them that it was their duty to return home and care for their wives and children, but his words had absolutely no effect. They insisted that they were following Jesus, and following His commandment by forsaking all that they had. They believed that Jesus would take care of them, but said if they died it would be all right; they were ready to die for him. They had no complaint to make against anybody, expressed no dissatisfaction with the country, but said that the Government had been good to them, and the people had been kind.

Mr. Jeffrey saw no way of doing anything with them, but thought they would have to be let alone to suffer the consequences of their infatuation until some influence should bring them back to sanity.

SUFFERING IN THE COLD.

The special correspondent of the Free Press wires from Fox warren, Man.; The Doukhobor's camp was a scene of activity yesterday morning. The shivering pilgrims were blue with cold. Hundreds had lain on the snowy gound all night. The appearance of the pilgrims before the morning sun shed its warmth was pitiful in the extreme. Many could not articulate, they were so cold. At a little before 8 o'clock the procession was formed, and the march resumed. At Fox Warren they stayed for nearly half an hour singing chants and talking to the few residents who went out in the cold. They told the resident minister that he did not love Jesus or he would march to find Him, saying it more in sorrow than in anger.

A STRAGGLING PROCESSION.

At about 9 o'clock they marched away. Two of them are barefoot; several of them have not sufficient head covering one man having only a cotton handkerchief. Their heads were mostly wrapped in long wollen scarfs. They marched away in a straggling procession, nearly two miles long, some of them, however, remaining to beg food. The Fox Warren people have been most generous in their gifts, one Doukhobor, Pete Peteroff with whom I talked yesterday afternoon, telling me that he thought they must be getting nearer Jesus—"People so much more good more." In almost every kitchen in this little hamlet could be seen a party of Doukhobors using the housewives' domestic utensils to boil their potatoes. Many bags of oatmeal, potatoes, and carrots have been given.

London, Nov. 6.—Referring to Emperor William's approaching visit to England, the Berlin correspondent of the Times says certain German journals which chronicle with manifest satisfaction any evidence of friction between Great Britain and France or Russia, speak as if Germany were the only power which must not be criticized by the British press, and as if Germany's policy must never be considered at all in the light of its present and future bearings on British interests. These papers, says the correspondent, would apparently like to see in England a spirit of jovial good fellowship and compliance towards all things German more characteristic of after-dinner conversation than the business portion of the day. If there were any possibility of the realization of this idea, and foreign politics could once more be treated by Englishmen in the easy-going way which facilitated many of Bismarck's plans, this complaisance would not be reciprocated by Germany, where public opinion, like the Government, is "toujours en vedette."

SOME SIGNS OF FAILURE

The London Times has had an expert studying the municipal ownership question in Glasgow and he has reached the conclusion that the tram-way system does not pay. This is the more surprising because the traffic of the city is very great, and there should be money in it, a profit that is growing from year to year. It is a revelation now that failure has marked the enterprise, as the information which has been handed out heretofore has been of a very different kind.

Following the shock about the tramway comes the announcement that the municipal telephone system in the same city has not been satisfactory, that it does not really pay, that there is not in the receipts and expenditure a sum sufficient to meet the depreciation, wear and tear, and the cost of repairs and improvements. The rate for telephone service was originally made too low. The benefits of ordinary connections are not only secured, and certain trunk facilities added at the city's expense, but the telephone subscribers are benefitted largely by trunk facilities at the public expense. There must, of necessity, be an increase of rates, and that without delay.

Municipal ownership involves considerations of the highest import. Behind every venture there must be the managerial ability and constructive genius, the care and economy which are not sometimes to be found in the public service. Perhaps Glasgow has in its employ the experts who can direct its public affairs as skilfully as the employees of the private syndicate corporation, but it is very doubtful. Public bodies get hold of good officials at times, but this is not the general experience. The complaint has been that capital, so aggressive in recent years, has been monopolistic of the talent as well as treasure of the people.

MAY A STARVING MAN STEAL?

An interesting discussion has been raised by the proposition of Dr. Parkhurst, of New York, that it is right for a starving man to steal bread to keep him alive. Dr. Dana, of this city, objects to this theory, says it is never right to steal, and that if it is right for a starving man to steal there is no right to any kind of personal property. It is quite likely that Dr. Parkhurst will have something to say in reply, and the subject is certain to give rise to much discussion.

It seems to us that the question is so purely academic that it is hardly worth the while. It depends a good deal on what is meant by stealing. It is evidently taking that which belongs to another maliciously and without consent. There is a moral element in stealing just as there is in murder. The man who accidentally is not guilty of murder any more than the one who accidentally takes what belongs to another man is guilty of theft. The case of the starving man in question seems hardly to be a practical one. It is almost unthinkable that a man actually starving should need to steal. There is none so base or so heartless as to refuse the loaf that is needful to sustain life.

But if it be insisted on that there is or may be an instance where the life of a man actually depended on a loaf of bread not his own and which he must either take or die, it still remains a question of ethics and morals whether such act is theft. If so, it puts property on a higher moral plain than the life of a human being. There is no man probably who would not take the loaf rather than die, and it is difficult to believe that such universal appreciation of a condition is based on wrong considerations. The law of the State will take from a man the property he does not want to part with if it benefits the general good. Will not the moral law permit the taking of a loaf of bread to sustain life if there be no direct monetary compensation?

As before remarked, the question is not a practical one, since there is no absolute necessity to starve. It would seem that the two reverend gentlemen have been discussing it from different standpoints, so that their apparent contradiction is not a real one. It revives the memory of those debates so common during the Civil War as to whether it was permissible to lie to the enemy. That discussion wandered off into many side issues and perhaps was not profitable in the end. The loaf of bread controversy should be confined to the exact point in question and not to a thousand side issues or hypotheses that are usually introduced to befog such a question.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

A Russo-Japanese Society is in course of formation in Moscow with the object of facilitating the development of commercial relations between Russia and Japan. The society will begin its work by establishing in the market town of Slonim, in the province of Minsk, a mill for weaving and finishing Japanese raw silk.

It is now said that the last batch of boundary monuments which the Americans have found on the Alaskan boundary are ruined Indian huts. It is exposures like these which render our neighbors reluctant to submit the case to arbitration. They are always buoyed up by some new evidence that they are all right in their contention, when along comes a telegram which knocks the discovered proof to pieces, and that is the end of it. This makes them naturally suspicious of the soundness of the balance of their case; so they do not want to go into court. It is much easier to presume on John Bull's patient good will and bully little Canada. But they may find one of these days that they have carefully sown and cultivated a spirit of hostility toward their big aggregation in this Dominion which will prove mighty inconvenient to them at a critical moment.

The rear end was curtained off, and the cooking operations went on behind the scenes. Buck Saw Carter did the cooking and served up an elegant repast—considering the limited supply of fowl provided. Each member was supposed to bring as many fowl as possible. Pouty marched bravely in with the three decrepit chickens he very bravely captured on the wharf. They were received with very doubtful thanks by the cook. Pony Moore brought a large, fat goose. As Pony does not raise geese it caused quite an excitement. Faidy Wedlock brought six wild ducks. Of course it well known at once that Faidy paid the market price for them. Other members brought various other necessaries, and before long the table groaned beneath the load of good things dished up by the waiters Ripper McCamus and Hoosier and Mac. Twenty members sat around the festive board. There was very little heard but the rattle of knives and forks and the champ of teeth as every man wanted to make up for lost time, as some had starved themselves for 24 hours before hand. It was reported that President Jonas Nelson hadn't eaten anything for two days, but of course that wasn't believed. The toast list was started by Broncho Pete proposing "The Ladies," which was answered by Babe Kenneally who of course is well posted on this subject. Cod Soucie, who was sitting in his tricycle accidentally run over Mafraw Elmhirst's sore foot, which was resented. Several members then got scrapping. Wazy McFarlane jumped up and said he had licked the best man in Lanark County and he could wipe the floor with any man in the room. Pouty was doubtful about this, but before he had time to say anything Lanky Howson had bluffed Wazy and Pouty took his seat in disgust and tusseled with his lean chicken instead. Then Kringer English made a rush at Scrapping Tully who knocked him up against Singer McIntyre, who, thinking it was Fenty, spoiled Kringer's fun for the rest of the night. Then Fighting Archie said that he must have order and used his club freely. When order was restored inquisitive Davidson wanted to know what started the row. Mr. Kirby said the crowd was too disorderly and must get another meeting place. Howden said he had a shop that would do nicely, but Bushy Wallace objected on behalf of the law abiding citizens. They decided to use the Strathcona for the future. Sloppy McCarthy, the tenant, gave it to the society on condition that they pay the rent and also his arrears for the past six months. Mafraw Elmhirst's hired boy finished the beer, and the rest thought it was time to break up the show.

THE MOONSTONE SPHINX

Hope Newcome laughed out boyishly. "You mean that from a 'busker' I've turned into a 'swell.' Please don't think you oughtn't to have shown that you were astonished. I should have been disappointed if you hadn't. Is it an improvement?"

It certainly was. A Bond street tailor had done his best for the splendid, youthful figure. What Newcome had lost in picturesqueness by his transformation he had more than gained in distinction. But, remembering him so vividly as he had been at Brighton, it was certainly a shock to behold him in the smartest of frock coats, with a tall, shining hat in his hand.

"I—hardly know yet," stammered Winifred. "You're quite like the prince in a fairy story——"

"If I'm not a prince, at least I pass as a baron," he answered, still laughing. "May I introduce Baron von Zellheim, at your service? I don't hold out this hat for silver. Luckily, there's no need. I'm a sort of male Cinderella; only my clock won't strike the fatal hour of midnight, for—well, I hope for some time to come. But, dear Miss Gray—dear 'partner,' if you'll let me call you that still—joking apart, I've been waiting until I knew whether I was going to be a poor, seedy beggar such as I was when I knew you first or—almost a rich man before I would permit myself to come and see you. The reason of that was, I wanted so very much to say certain things to you which I had no business to say if I were to be unfortunate, that I dared not trust myself near you till my affairs were more settled. But, oh! the struggle it's been to keep away."

Winifred did not answer. She could not if she would. A flame seemed to run through her veins. She knew what were the things that he wanted so much to say to her—she thought that she knew. And she was sure—suddenly very, very sure—that she knew what she would wish to say in return.

They had been standing, but the girl sank down on the sofa which had been sacred to her mother.

"May I sit by you and tell you all about everything that I can tell?" he said.

A look answered him, and he took the vacant place on the sofa.

"I've come into some money," he began to explain, hesitating a little. "Perhaps, if you knew how I'd got it, you wouldn't approve. It isn't—well, it isn't quite ideal, certainly. But I don't think it's dishonorable."

"Of course not, or you wouldn't have taken the money," said Winifred.

"Do you trust me for that—not knowing?"

"Yes, absolutely, partner."

"Thank you, a thousand times. I should like you to know the whole story, but I'm bound for a time not to tell that to anybody. Still, there's the money; it's mine to do what I like with. If I keep my head I need never be poor again, and I mean to keep it. Just at present I'm being rather extravagant, but that's part of the plan. I only knew that everything was going to be all right for me a few days ago; and already I've taken rooms at Walsingham House, and have bought a horse, and done all sorts of things that would have seemed as far out of reach as the moon a few weeks ago. You remember I told you that I'd come to England a few months ago on a mission? Well, now I'm in a fair way to accomplish it—if it's to be done at all."

CHAPTER XXIX.

The Burden of Revenge.

Winifred listened with excitement and deep interest; yet there was a queer little pain in her heart. He had said nothing yet of what she had guessed that he meant to say. Perhaps she had been mistaken. Perhaps he had intended something quite different.

"Before I can talk of what is nearest my heart, far nearer now than the mission for which I was brought up," he went on, "I must confess to you what the work is I came here to do. It was to bring a murderer to justice—to revenge the ruin he wrought in two lives. It is that for which I have lived, until lately. But now another interest has pushed it aside—perhaps it's a sin to let it do that—but I can't help it. The new interest is too strong for me—stronger than my soul. Has a man a right to love a woman and tell her so while there is such a burden on his life?"

"A burden of revenge?" Winifred asked, slowly. "Must the man bear it? Can revenge ever be ennobled?"

"Yes a thousand times, yes!" he cried, almost fiercely. "Even for love it couldn't be given up, for that would be a wrong to the dead."

"It isn't revenge for the man's own wrongs, then?"

"For those who gave him his life—his father and his mother. Do you say that he must not tell a woman of his love while he has such a mission to work out? If you do say so I shall know that you are right."

"No—I don't say that; I can't say it," whispered Winifred.

"Then—you know, don't you, what I long to ask? You're all the world to me, and heaven, too. Is it possible that you could learn to care for me a little, that you could forgive me the dark things I must keep in my mind——"

"I have learnt already," the girl broke in, "to care—not a little, but more than I can tell. I learnt when we were partners. Since we first saw each other you have been my knight. Even at the very first I thought differently of you from any other man."

"It seems impossible," cried Newcome. "That you—such a girl as you—should even think of a shabby beggar——"

"You were a gentleman. What can a man be more? Oh, I wish you'd told me that—you liked me in Brighton."

"What a brute I should have been if I had! It's bad enough now. You ought to marry a millionaire."

Winifred shuddered, and drew away a little from the arms that held her tight. "Oh—don't speak to me of millionaires!"

Newcome was quite willing not to. There were only two persons in the world worth talking of at that moment—herself and himself—and they talked of those two unceasingly, until Dick was heard at the door, and they began hastily to speak of the weather, or the first subject that came into their heads.

Newcome and Dick were somehow introduced to each other, though it was clear that Dick did not at all understand who Baron von Zellheim was. They had not had many words together when Winifred's lover turned to her with a look that only she could read. "There was so much to talk of at first," he said, "that I forgot something important. But as it concerns your brother, perhaps it's just as well I waited till he came. Now he can answer for himself. Mr. Gray, I've heard from your sister that you write.

When Buying Mining Stock Buy the Best

AN INVESTMENT IN THE

Pitkin Gold Belt Mining and Reduction Company

Which is Safe and Sure of Quick Returns, may Bring an Enormous Return at any Moment. It has the Possibilities of Rivaling the Great Mines of the Past.

This Company has a mine on a true fissure vein, in the center of the Gunniston Gold Belt, Colorado, which is the "Mother" lode or dike, which has produced 55 per cent. more gold than the total output of the Cripple Creek district.

This Mine is no Prospect. Nor is it Waiting on Your Subscription to Buy Machinery or for Development.

After a careful examination by experts, Joseph M. Bradley, M. E., and Mr. George Arlett, A. I. M. E., Amalgamated Copper Company's expert in Chihuahua, Mexico, they advised the purchase of the property. The property had shallow development upon it, showing two ore shoots from which smelting ore had been shipped to the Buena Vista Smelter.

The Company purchased and paid for the latest improved machinery and has put a shaft down 250 feet and intend to carry it down 1000 feet. On the 150 foot level 300 feet of development has been made and an ore shoot has been encountered and blocked out for 57 feet, carrying values in gold from 2 to 9 ounces or $40 to $180 per ton. The cost of mining, hauling, freight and smelter charges will be between $12 and $15 per ton.

Ed. McCarthy & Co., bankers, guarantee a shipping mine of smelting ore running from 2 to 6 ounces in gold, or $40 to $120 per ton, by January 1st, 1903, or all funds will be returned to subscribers upon presentation of receipt issued by said bank.

Also to prospective purchasers of $100 worth of stock we are offering a free trip to Colorado and return. You investigate first and purchase afterward. Could you expect anything fairer than this?

The capital stock of this company is $1,000,000, divided into 1,000,000 shares of stock at $1 each, full paid and non-assessable. A portion of the treasury stock is now offered at

25 CENTS PER SHARE—PAR VALUE $1.00

ALMOST SOLID COPPER

One 18 inch vein of 90 per cent copper (almost the solid metal) has been opened up in Copper Queen Extension Claim, one of the six constituting our Montana property, while mining a thirty-foot vein of free milling 18 per cent copper ore, carrying thirty ounces of silver to the ton.

This is so far ahead of our expectations, brilliant as our former prospects were, that we realize the IMMEDIATE building of a mill to handle this magnificent output, equalled in richness only by the Calumet and Hecla mines, is an ABSOLUTE NECESSITY. This will make OUR OWN portion of the stock, as well as THAT ACQUIRED BY THE PUBLIC, for the purposes of this immediate development, worth an immense amount of money in an exceedingly short time.

Help us build a Mill immediately by purchasing our One Dollar Shares, which are offered this week at 30 cents a Share as a Special Inducement to insure the speedy building of the Mill, and we will make your stock yield you an inordinate profit as quickly as the Mill can be put in operation.

We furnish the rich property—you furnish the mill. In a few months it will be in operation—almost before you expect it—and we divide the immense returns.

STOCK MARKETS

Now For Business.

New York, Oct. 6th—The election and its uncertainties are now out of the way. The party of business has held its own, electing the major Governors, and what is more to the point, controlling Congress which will insure harmonious action there and proper legislation for the further facilitation of business. No "hold up" fencing for position in 1904 can now take place. Interests will again revert to business and Wall street will come in for its share. The removal of uncertainty is alot indeed; uncertainty is usually worse than actual adverse reality. It won't be sixty days before the facilities of the railways will be taxed to their utmost capacity to handle the moving crops together with the general regular business that is offering. The reports for September, as we have shown in these letters the past week, are most glowing. They are yet to be greatly exceeded, and it will be strange indeed, if they do not have an important and bullish bearing upon the share markets. The cotton situation is most bullish also. Owing to the low price level, we are strongly of the opinion that before Christmas cotton will be selling by many points higher than it is at present. It is in our opinion one of the very best purchases in Wall street at present. It costs no interest for carrying, being dealt in the future options For the benefit of those of our readers and those who are unfamiliar with the fluctations of cotton, we will briefly explain it. Cotton can be purchased upon margin speculation in 100 bale lots. A proper and acceptable margin upon one hundred bales is $100, larger amount in proportion. The recorded prices of cotton quote the cent price per pound and the decimal thereof. These decimals are termed points. A point on 100 bales of cotton amounts to $5, consequently $100 as margin upon 100 bales amounts to 20 points margin. Cotton is say 8.50; if you bought 100 bales at that price with $100 points margin thereon, you would have 20 pts. margin less your commission of one point each way for buying and selling, leaving you a net margin of 18 points which would mark your cotton down to 8.33. Each point advance means five dollars profit upon each 100 bales you are carrying. It always has an excellent market and is exceedingly active making it attractive to speculators. If you become interested in cotton it would be advisable to send for our weekly letter which is devoted to that staple exclusively. It is ably edited by an expert cotton man and will keep you posted as to the trend of the cotton market.

Summary—Failure to shake out any great quantity of stock, yesterday's decline caused the bearish fraternity today to cease their vigorous pounding of values; stocks generally improved save sugar, which was heavy upon the announcement of a cut in sugar prices. Good support was forthcoming in the railway list, though the buying at no time during the day assumed aggressiveness. Stocks however, that were purchased today went largely into hands where they will stay unless they are again brought into the the market by sharp bidding. The standard issues all ought to buy moderately, if they go off a point to a point and one half we suggest doubling your holdings. Money closed last loan 5 per cent.

Ancient Egypt at Y. A. S.

The lecture on "Ancient Egypt," to be delivered by Mr. Burnham, on Monday evening next, will begin at 8 o'clock sharp.

"The Parson's Nephew"

"The Parson's Nephew" was the play placed on the boards at the Opera House last night by the Marks' Brothers, and it was well enjoyed by those present. All the characters in the cast were well sustained. Several new and very pleasing specialties were introduced.

Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary

The following are the officers of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. for the ensuing term: Hon. president, Mrs. Sheriff Hall; president, Mrs. (Dr.) Hunter; 1st vice-president, Mrs. F. Mason; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Wm. Davidson; secretary, Mrs. Frost; assistant secretary, Mrs. G. Whiten; convenors of committees, social, Mrs. W. H. Hamilton; membership, Mrs. W. H. Hill; rooms, Mrs. J. Nugent.

Commendable Energy

After the rain yesterday morning, Mr. Henry Best, chairman of the Street and Bridge committee, lost no time in putting civic laborers to work to clean the crossings, and he also had the holes where water had lodged filled in with crushed stones. This promptness of action on Mr. Best's part will be appreciated by citizens and visitors to our town.

Potatoes High

Yesterday Messrs. Mason & Co. received a large consignment of potatoes bought at Rimouski, Quebec. They are an excellent sample and free from rot. Potatoes are now retailing at $1.25 per bag, rather a high price, but the crop has been almost a complete failure in the greater part of Ontario, and merchants are obliged to go outside the province to secure a sufficient supply for their customers.

Bunton's ticket office Peterborough, for tickets, Pullmans and further particulars.

Annual Military Camps

It is said that the experiment tried this year of concentrating in annual camp only the officers and non-coms. of the rural corps, instead of calling out the full regimental strength of the various units, has worked well. It is reported that the new G. O. C., Lord Dundonald, approves the skeleton camp idea, after seeing how it works, and that the same arrangements will be followed a year hence.

Property Improvements

Mr. Geo. Schneider, watchmaker and jeweller, has a large number of men employed in making improvements to his vacant store, No. 466, George street. It is the intention of Mr. Schneider to repair, renovate, embellish and fit the interior in such a manner as to make it one of the most desirable business stands in town. When the improvements contemplated are completed, Mr. Schneider should have no trouble in securing a very desirable lessee.

Accident at the Opera

During the last act in the play at the Opera House last night an accident occurred. In the fire scene three of the actors disappeared through a trapdoor, and the hole being too small, Mr. Joe Marks was crowded into the fire, burning his hand and the side of his face also singing his hair and mustache. The audience knew nothing about the affair and the play went on to a finish. It is hoped Mr. Marks will not be incapacitated from taking part in the play to-night.

Timber License Law

A case of general interest to lumbermen was decided this week by Mr. Justice Osler at the Sault Ste. Marie Assizes in an action by one Lockerby against the Mond Nickel Company. Lockerby was the patentee under the mines act of certain lands near Victoria Mines, the patent containing the usual reservation of the pine timber. The Mond Nickel Company holds a timber license covering the lands in question. The main question was as to whether the licensee had the right to cut the dry pine. The plaintiff claimed that only green pine suitable for merchantable timber was covered by the license. The licensee claimed the right to cut all pine. The action, which involved other minor points, was dismissed with costs. J. M. Clark, K.C., of Toronto, represented the Mond Nickel Company, and Mr. Clary, of Sudbury, acted for Lockerby.

THE REFERENDUM

The Probabilities are That a Large Vote will be Polled

It looks as though a very large vote in connection with the referendum will be polled on the 14th of December. The Globe says it will be larger than that cast at the Provincial elections.

In Peterborough the executive of the Prohibition party are putting in overtime in getting the country organized.

Yesterday the formal proclamations of the returning officers for East and West Peterborough were given to the printer, and will be issued early in the week. The polling places are all designated. The ballots are being printed in Toronto and will be distributed amongst the returning officers this week.

AN EXPENSIVE TRIP

And the Air of Old England Failed Him

The brain is composed of thousands of little cells and these contain a vital substance which is used up during active work and can only be replaced by the right kind of food and drink.

With many people, coffee drinking excites the brain and prevents it from getting the necessary rest, and breaks down and destroys the cells, and the soft, gray matter therein, nor does coffee supply the food to replace these cells and this naturally leads to mental exhaustion, and nervous prostration.

"Some two years ago, I was laid low with a very severe attack of nervous prostration, and had to resign my position with a large mercantile house of this city," writes a gentleman from Brooklyn.

"The doctors said my complaint was due to over-work, long hours and insufficient exercise, and recommended a trip to Europe. More dead than alive, I followed their advice and went to England for a short visit but came back very little improved, and unable to work, sick and disheartened.

On my return my wife and I went to boarding and a gentleman living in the house told me of the beneficial results he had experienced by leaving off coffee and using Postum Food Coffee.

I at once stopped drinking tea or coffee, and used Postum drinking it three times a day, and in a short time found a decided improvement in my condition, and now, I am glad to say, am following my profession again. I do not feel the slightest effects of my old complaint, and I am confident that I owe my present good health to the use of Postum.

We have two children and our little girl who is now two years of age, has been brought up on Postum and Grape-Nuts, and today weighs 40 pounds. Pretty good for a child only two years of age." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

THE MAN IN ARMOR

Was no match for the microbe. Giants he might slay but this microscopic organism defied him, and in many a campaign more men were destroyed by camp diseases than by the enemy's sword.

The one way to arm against microbic disease is to keep the blood pure. Impure blood both breeds and feeds disease.

The signs of impure blood are easy to read. Pimples, boils and eruptions generally proclaim the blood to be impure. Scrofulous sores and swellings, salt-rheum, eczema, etc., are other signs of a corrupt condition of the blood.

Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery purifies the blood and cures diseases caused by the blood's impurity. It cures scrofulous sores, boils, pimples, eczema and other defiling and disfiguring diseases.

"It gives me great pleasure to express my faith in the virtue of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery," writes Mr. Ezekiel Floro, of Graytown, Ottawa Co., Ohio. "I suffered everything for two years with humor on my face, which baffled the skill of some of the most noted physicians. Was at once advised to go to the hospital; was doctored there for three months without success. Came home discouraged. Then began to doctor with a 'chemist.' He also failed to help me. Then I began Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, with no faith whatever in it. Did it only to please my wife; but I am happy to tell you that after taking five bottles I am entirely cured."

FREE. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 50 stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

—Yesterday afternoon a young couple from the rural districts, with two minds with but a single thought, arrived in town armed with the necessary papers and in search of a minister to complete the work of forming an entangling alliance. THE YOUNG GIANT OF THE NORTH AN AMERICAN OPINION OF CANADA

Remarkable Expansion in all Departments of Canadian Trade

THE LARGE INFLUX OF SETTLERS TO THE NORTHWEST

A Country Whose Future is Rosy And Hopeful

New York, Nov. 7—Bradstreets, of New York, has the following:

Canada has made giant strides of late years. This fact has been apparent to the most casual observer, while to the student taking an interest in the economic development of a people there is abundant evidence of material progress which augurs well for the immediate future of the country. Comparatively young business men in Canada have a recollection of geography lessons at school in which it was set forth that the two chief items of export in Canadian trade were fish and lumber. It is interesting now to note that in the list of exports for the first quarter of the present fiscal year fish stood sixth and lumber seventh, animals and their produce and products of the mines in first and second places respectively, replacing fish and lumber, which were formerly the only two really important staple exports of the Dominion.

Although there has been a remarkable expansion in nearly all departments of Canadian trade the past year or two, the greatest development has been in connection with the iron and steel industries and in agriculture. When the end of the current half year is reached it will be found that the results of the operations in these branches of industry have caused very substantial additions to the domestic trade of the country.

In agriculture Canadians have been far from idle. There has been a large increase this year in the cereal production. In Manitoba and the Northwest, which are inclined to claim to be "the future granary of the Empire," the production of all grains this year exceeded for the first time the 100,000,000 bushel mark. Of this 60,000,000 bushels was spring wheat of a higher average grade than the country ever yielded before.

The large influx of settlers to the west the past ten months, has with the increased production of grain this year, greatly stimulated the demands of the west for staple goods from eastern Canadian centres of manufacture. Supply has in many cases failed to keep pace with the increased demand, and factories and mills are now being taxed to their fullest capacity, in meeting the requirements of the mercantile trade. The settlers who went into the west the past ten months did not break ground for crops this year, and they, with the many others now going into the country, will cause a still further increase in the grain production next year. It is believed that Western Canada, with favorable conditions, will in 1903 produce 100,000,000 bushels of spring wheat. There were in the west this year less than 3,000,000 acres of land under wheat. There are in that part of the country 40,000,000 to 50,000,000 acres of land, as good for the production of wheat as those already under cultivation. This gives some idea of the possibilities offered by the west for the growing of wheat.

The future of the west is full of promise. Leading business houses in Canada are establishing branches in anticipation of the large business that will accrue there a year or two hence manufacturers are raising capital to invest in industrial enterprises, and the chartered banks have been steadily increasing their capital to provide for the extension of business in that part of the Dominion by the opening of branches. Two years ago the total paid-up capital of the Canadian chartered banks was $364,246,9[illegible]7; now it is $70,270,408, and arrangements are being made for a still further expansion in the banking capital of the country.

In Ontario there has also been a marked expansion in industrial operations this year. The increase in agricultural operations of this province the present crop year has been large. The total crops of wheat, barley, rye. This, with the increased activity in buckwheat, oats, peas and corn amount to 100,000,000 bushels, which is the largest production of grain in Ontario so far recorded for one harvest lumbering operations, mineral lands, and manufactures, will cause a further expansion in mercantile trade, and insure another year of prosperity There never was a time in the history of Canada, when labor was so fully employed and so well paid as at the present time. In a good many lines of manufacture the demand for skilled labor cannot be supplied, and the output is limited only by this difficulty.

—Bears are quite plentiful this fall and come quite close to the settlements in search of food, as beech and oak nuts are a very poor crop. Walter Wigg trapped a fine large one at Jack's Lake lately.

COL. SAM HUGHES

Returned from the Northwest and Likes the Country

Ottawa, Ont., November, 7.—Col. Sam Hughes, of Lindsay, reached the city last night. He has just returned from an extended visit to Edmonton, where he has large interests.

Col. Hughes is a believer in the Canadian Northwest, and speaks in glowing terms of the country.

"A phase of affairs that is particularly pleasing to Canadians," he said "is the enormous extent of immigration from the western states. I have been all around the Edmonton district and was greatly impressed with the number of American settlers. They are coming in in thousands and are one of the very finest classes of citizens."

A VALUABLE MINERAL

A Rich Find in the Country North of Peterborough

The mineral riches stored in the rocks of Ontario are becoming better known every day as a result of the impetus which has been imparted to prospecting and development in every part of the Province. The latest discovery reported the Crown Lands Department is of great value from an economic standpoint. It is a deposit of molybdenite, which occurs in the northeast corner of Haliburton, and which, from all the information that could be obtained by sinking a few test pits, is quite extensive. The veins are several feet wide in some places and are very rich in large crystals of the precious article, some of which are from three to four inches across and one inch in thickness. Molybdenite, producing from 50 to 55 per cent. of molybdenum is worth about $400 per ton and the product is worth $1.55 to $2.0,0 per pound. Molybdenum is used mainly as an alloy of the finer qualities of steel, to which it imparts an especial hardness, thereby considerably improving its quality and value.

STOLEN FOR TWENTY YEARS

Jewels Returned to Owner from Prescott, Ontario

Rochester, N.Y. Nov. 7 — Twenty years ago to a day the residence of Mrs. Cora M. Elliott, in Ogdensburg, was robbed of jewels worth $1,000. No trace of the missing jewels was found, and a few years later Mr. Elliott moved to Rochester. Yesterday the postman delivered to Mrs. Elliott, a little oblong box made up of cardboard, patched together roughly, and when it was opened, she found, carefully rolled up in cotton, the missing jewels. The box bore the postmark of Prescott, Ont. Among the jewels returned was a unique long heavy gold chain, made by Mrs. Elliott's husband who took the gold from a mine himself. Each link had a gold dollar attached.

OUR TOWN COUNCIL.

The Times Invites Votes for the Best Man

WHO WILL BE OUR MAYOR?

The People are Now Interested in the Matter

The Morning Times Makes the Start—The Plan Likely to Awaken the Interest—Some Really Good Men are Talked of—Send your Votes in at Once by Letter or Leave Them at Our Office

In order to induce people to take a greater interest in municipal matters The Times has decided to adopt a plan which has become so popular with many of the leading newspapers in United States and Canada.

Who will be our next Mayor?

Who is to represent us in the Town Council?

Probably never before has Peterborough been in greater need of careful, prudent legislation than at present. She has arrived at the period in her history when the movement will be either forward or backward; when retrenchments and a careful overhauling of our civic expenditure is an absolute necessity with a view to greater economy. The ratepayers must be made to realize that if Peterborough is ever to amount to anything our taxes must be reduced. Half-way measures are utterly useless. The evil must be met in a careful, thorough, practical manner, and this can only be done by the selection of men who sit at our council board who will be pledged to cut down our civic expenditure to the lowest possible amount consistent with the dignity of the town, and a proper administration of our civic affairs.

The Times speaks its mind freely on all matters that concern the people, we should be sorry to offend anyone, and our purpose is not do so. If however, we have to speak plainly to accomplish the end we have in view and our language is not what some think it should be, we hope that they will appreciate our position, and give us credit for what we try to do fearlessly in advocating what we believe is for the best interests of the people. The result of each day's voting will appear in The Times from time to time.

As before indicated, the object of the whole thing is to excite interest in municipal matters. Everyone will have a chance to name the men they think best fitted for a position at the council board

HOW TO VOTE.

Each coupon will have the value of five votes. Cut the coupons out and either mail it addressed to The Times or leave it at our office.

THE SHAH OF PERSIA ANGRY WITH ENGLAND

And Is Preparing to Make Serious Trouble in the Far East

The Object Which Russia has Aimed at for Years May Now Probably Be Attained

London, November 8 — The Shah of Persia, it is said by cable left England after his visit in a pet because of some supposed slight put upon him; and his Imperial Majesty's resentment is believed to be about to find expression in a way that he expects will make Great Britain wish that he had been used with greater distinction. There are various matters afoot in Persia and on its frontiers in which Britain has a leading interest, which is they cannot be acommodated by joint and equitable agreement on business and political grounds, will not be set aside arbitrarily at the Shah's whim — we may be sure of that. The Quetta-Nushki Railway is one of these interests now well on its way, or so far advanced at least that Russian aims and aspirations to which it has stood somewhat in the path, cannot be used by the Shah to prevent its accomplishment. This is the commencement of the all-rail route from the Persian Gulf to the Yangtze River in China. The Novoe Vremya lately took alarm at this bold project, and predicted that the railway will be continued to Seistan, the border Province of the Persian Empire, and thus hurl the English on the flank of "the probable path of Russian advance in India. To avert these dangers it called upon Russia to "paralyze her rivals" by building railways of her own in Persia towards the Indian Ocean, and it declared that Persia "was the only position which Russia could occupy peacefully, and whose possession will bring it on the flank of the Germans in Mesopotamia and the British in Baluchistan and India."

In the House of Commons debates regarding this question the real nature of the British policy in Persia was explained. Sir Edward Grey and Lord Cranborne spoke firmly and clearly as to the duty of maintaining the British position and promoting its trade in South Persia. "We ought," said the former, "to consolidate our influence by the extension of our trade interests; and these, after all, become a great vested right," and he warned against the danger of allowing "our trade in Southern Persia to dwindle and of taking no practical steps to acquire new political rights." The Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs declared that our interests in Persia "are of the highest political order— vast commercial interests which it is our wish and our duty to maintain." Neither Sir Edward Grey nor Lord Cranborne saw any reason why the policy thus indicated should lead unto unfriendly relations with Russia; but Lord Cranborne expressly laid down that friendly relations in this matter "are not to be sought at the cost of any treaty rights we possess." British policy, he affirmed, is the integrity of Persia—a policy to which England and Russia mutually pledged themselves pin 1888. "But," he significantly added, "there are limits to that policy. That policy cannot be pursued independently of the action of other powers. We are anxious for the integrity of Persia, but we are anxious far more for the balance of power." After stating that this is "especially true of the Persian Gulf," he continued to point out that it is not less true "of the southern provinces on Persia and those provinces which border on our Indian Empire. Our rights there and our position of ascendancy we cannot abandon." That policy has the thorough support of the British nation. Whatever else she may do, Great Britain cannot afford to trifle with her interests in regions which adjoin her Indian possessions or flank her highway to the Far East.

The Political Outlook

The Government Has Now a Majority of Three Which is a Gain of Two

If the Government can elect three supporters for the three vacant seats it will have a majority of six. As it now stands Mr. Ross has three to the good.

The coming contest between the parties in the bye-elections, is is said be fought in North Perth, North Norfolk, now open, and in East Middlesex, North Grey, and Lennox which will be opened.

More evidence and the argument is yet to be heard in South Oxford but only the argument is yet to be heard in the East Middlesex case against Dr. Routledge, the Liberal M.P.P.

North Grey, against A. G. McKay, Liberal, the Tories say of a certainty will be opened.

In Lennox against T. G. Carscallen, Conservative. There is a motion pending to set aside the petition. It will be heard in Toronto this week.

Four of the remaining election protests, two against Liberals and two against Conservatives, have been practically dropped by the transfer of their "trials" to Toronto.

The four are—Hon. J. M. Gibson, in East Wellington; John R. Barber, in Halton, and these Conservatives—Dr. Lackner, in North Waterloo, and W. D. McLeod in Glengarry.

Marconi Soon Ready to Talk

The Inventor is Satisfied with the Progress of His Wireless Telegraphy Experiments in Cape Breton

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 7.—A despatch from Glace Bay says: A number of workmen are busily engaged at Table Head station, completing the installation of the machinery and apparatus. On two of the towers have been placed poles about thirty feet in length, inclining slightly towards the east. Wires connect these with the wire which enters the receiving room. These are used in conductile service of the important experiments in which Marconi is now engaged. Marconi, when asked, stated that thus far the experiments are giving complete satisfaction. He would neither deny nor affirm that a message had been received from Poldhu by the Carlo Alberta, but stated that an important announcement would be made in a few days. Admiral Douglas, R.N., was here yesterday for some time to view progress of the experiments.

WIRELESS MESSAGE OVER SEA

Marconi Said to Have Got One At Sydney From England

Sydney, N.S., Nove. 7—The success of wireless telegraphy as a means for trans-Atlantic communication is now practically assured according to the statement on Commander Martin of the Italian cruiser Carlo Alberto, which Marconi is using in his experiments. Commander Martin stated in an interview this morning that a wireless message was received off Sydney Harbor on Saturday on board the warship from the station at Cornwall, England.

This message is by far the longest yet transmitted by wireless telegraphy. The distance from the Harbor to Cornwall is greater than that from Table Head to Cornwall, where the station is being built.

On board the warship are several messages received from the Cornwall station, most of them being messages of congratulation to Marconi from the Czar of Russia and King Humbert. The Carlo Alberto can send messages only 150 miles, but she receives any distance. The messages were all received in the Morse code and without exception were fully taken.

A PROPOSAL TO PAY MEMBERS OF REICHSTAG

Method of Securing Constant Attendance of Majority in Parliament

Appeal May be Made to the Hague Arbitration Tribunal—Facts About the Pretender to the Moroccan Throne

London, Nov. 7.—It would appear, says a Berlin correspondent, that for the present all diplomatic negotiations between the Government and the Agrarian majority in the Reichstag to prevent the collapse of the tariff scheme have ended in smoke. There is, the correspondent says, a general feeling that the tariff scheme is doomed, but Agrarians are anxious to avoid the appearance of being blamable for the disaster, and are therefore making unprecedented efforts to secure a quorum in the Reichstag, so that the country may not be shocked by the repeated spectacle of a count out. Each day it is becoming more difficult to induce an adequate number of Agrarian Deputies from the provinces of Southern Germany to attend the Reichstag. Many members, particularly among the Clericals, cannot afford to reside in Berlin, and the only method of securing the constant attendance of a majority in Parliament would be to pass a measure providing for the payment of members. The Imperial Chancellor, Count Von Bulow, is said to favor such a measure, but apparently he has not the courage to propose it. Well-informed persons anticipate if the tariff bill ends in a fiasco that the Social Democrats will return to the Reichstag after the autumn elections, between 90 and 100 strong. Their number is now 58, but they expect large gains from the Moderates.

SMALL FOLLOWING.

London, Nov. 7.—A correspondent at Fez says the Pretender to the Moroccan throne, against whom an expedition has been sent, is a middle aged man. He began his mission among the most ignorant and superstitious of the Berber tribes. He at first confined himself to a few conjuring tricks, but his success encouraged him to attempt bigger things. The Pretender is proclaimed a brother of the Sultan. He is nicknamed "Bu Hamare," meaning "father of She-ass," because he never rides anything but a small donkey, carrying a prayer rug and a servant rides behind him on a horse. The correspondent says the Pretender does not appear to have a large following.

REBELS IN CUBA.

Havana, Nov. 7.—It is reported that a strong revolutionary party has been organized and that an appeal will be made to the Hague Arbitration Commission against the enforcement of the Platt amendment by the United States.

ITEMS OF NEWS BY CABLE AND LETTER

London, Nov. 6.—A statement made by an Afghan merchant, who has just arrived in Calcutta from Kabul, is contained in a despatch to the Times from the former city. The merchant says a letter from the Russian Government asking for closer commercial relations with Afghanistan, was read by the Ameer in Durbar.

Opinions were called for, and one nobleman suggested that the bearer of the letter be beaten. The Ameer caused a reply to be written, in which it was stated that he was willing to discuss the matter, but it was impossible to change in a moment the whole tenor of Afghan policy. All future communications must be addressed through the Government of India, according to the precedent set by the late Ameer, Abdur Rahman.

Saltcoats, N.W.T., Nov. 6.—The Immigration Department's determination to convey to their former homes the women and children of the Doukhobor pilgrims who were detained at Yorkton was successfully carried out yesterday. Not the least difficulty was experienced The kindness and humanity with which the wanders had been treated by the officials and citizens convinced them fully that their best interests would be served by returning to theirs homes.

The train that left Yorkton had 200 women had 152 children between the ages of five and twelve years. The women seemed rather pleased with the change in the situation, and one or two of them expressed the hope that the "lords and masters" would soon return.

The male pilgrims continued the march through slush and snow in the vicinity of Shoal Lake yesterday. They expect to reach Winnipeg in about ten days. The main body entered Shoal Lake last night, four or five hundred in a compact square about twenty abreast, chanting a hymn. They were received in the middle of the town by the townspeople. The pilgrims stopped, and one of the leaders, who could speak fairly good English, turned to some wags who were poking fun at them, and, addressing everybody, said: "Brothers and sisters, we are traveling for Jesus. Jesus died for us all. Please accept Jesus. Our mission is peace.

A village wag was blaspheming Christianity, and several of the pilgrims noticing he was enjoying a cigar, told him that "Jesus no smoke, Jesus no drink wiskey, Jesus no kill, no steal."

All questions put to the pilgrims were similarly answered. The pilgrims are all fairly well clad, and most of them have rubbers. After their arrival they moved to a vacant piece of land near the skating rink at the east of the town, where all took a hearty supper of bread, oatmeal, apples, and onions. Although several of the pilgrims seemed hungry, no selfishness on the part of any of them was noticeable, each gladly sharing what he had with his neighbor.

During supper the special train of eight coaches came in, taking the women and children. Mr. C. W. Speers and other officials, accompanied by interpreters, came off the train and tried to persuade the pilgrims to go home. A heavy snow began to fall, but the weather prospects, the appeals and warnings of Mr. Speers and others, had no effect. They said they were bound to conquer the world for Jesus by peaceful methods. The immigration officials particularly urged and entreated the leaders and warned them of the folly of their movement, which was sure to bring disaster with the approaching weather, but all was of no avail.

Shoal Lake, Man., Nov. 7.—The Doukhobors left here yesterday morning on their march eastward. There were about fifteen deserters from their ranks besides a few who had to stay behind through sickness. They were all comfortably housed during the night by the residents of the village. The main portion of them still are firm in their craze, and seem perfectly satisfied with the progress they are making. Strathclair was reached at noon, and the pilgrims spend the night at Newdale.

Mr. C. W. Speers, colonization agent, who has been in charge of the Government arrangement for the care of the women and children of the Doukhobors, said: "The women at Yorkton are all anxious to go back to their homes, and it will not take long, I am convinced, for their influence to bring their husbands back to a proper way of thinking."

Niagara Falls, Nov. 7.—A most peculiar fire is in progress in the Grand Trunk Railway yards. It is in the coal piles of 10,000 tons, and has been burning for two weeks, but the men who are fighting it are beginning now to get the upper hand.

For some cause, probably spontaneous combustion from excessive rain, one of these piles took fire. The fire ate steadily into the pile, and clouds of gas and smoke began to drift through the yards and over the town. Pipe lines were laid, and vast quantities of water were poured into the burning mass, with little effect.

The fight to save the coal is now being carried on by a big gang of Italians and white navvies, under the superintendency of several foremen. Several streams of water are kept playing on the fire, and the men stand in clouds of steam shoveling the wet coal into cars, which are drawn away as fast as filled.

A cut was made through the pile to cut off the burning end, but the fire got across, and is again eating into the main pile.

THE STUDENT RIOTS IN TORONTO

Toronto is greatly disturbed over the occurrence on Hallowe'en of a clash between the students and the police in which the students got the worst of it.

President Loudon thinks the police are wrong, because, apparently, a few innocent students were hit in the melee. From what we know, however, of the history of the actions of students and boys generally on Hallowe'en in these modern times, we have to say that till the contrary is shown, we believe the police are in the right. There is no wit in wanton destruction of property, and students ought to understand by this time that they will be judged by the company they keep. In Peterborough active measures are being taken to discover those who have exceeded the bounds of decency in their misconduct wrongly called "pranks" and we trust that gradually this system of modern hoodlumism will be done away with thoroughly.

AN AFFAIR OF THE EYES

Comes a medical man discoursing on the pathology of sea sickness. Against the generally accepted theory that the cause is elsewhere, he declares that it is "all in your eye." In the current issue of the Medical Record Dr. A. L. Ranney goes over the whole subject, and says:—"The eyes first give information to the sufferer of the changing of horizons produced by the movement of the vessel. The sufferer immediately begins unconsciously to adjust both his eyes and his body to varying planes to which he is being subjected. He struggles, in consequence, to adapt himself to conditions which he cannot anticipate and prepare for, until at last he loses the normal control over his nervous mechanism, and experiences the reflex nervous conditions manifested by dizziness and nausea. Even when lying down with closed eyes, the effort at adjustment goes on until the victim becomes too weak to make it or the motions of the vessel cease. Then the nervous equilibrium is gradually reestablished. For the prevention of sea sickness Dr. Ranney suggests not dieting or drugs, but a careful examination of the eyes for errors of refraction and muscular unbalance, and the correction of these errors. "Patients who are particularly susceptible," he adds, "to sea sickness or car sickness should be instructed to make no efforts of visual adjustment or of a body adjustment that they can possibly avoid for the first part of their trip. They should not look out of windows or portholes. They should school themselves to assume the condition as closely as possible of absolute passiveness to all surroundings. This applies to the body as well as to efforts of vision.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

In 1888 Sir Richard Cartwright explained the Liberal doctrine of Canada for the Canadians," as follows:—

"To say the least of it enormous stores of raw material of great value to the United States are stored up in Canada, and it should be our pride and our work to get our raw products out as quickly as possible, and send them down to be put into manufactured products by the skill and labor of the United States."

Is this where they are to-day?

In the railroad world the great trouble at present is the lack of locomotives. There are, it is said, freight cars enough or nearly enough; motive power is what is wanted. What to do when the big corn crop begins to move is bothering the railroad men of the south west, as the moving of the wheat crop bothers the northwest.

A Kansas political manager is of the opinion that the rural mail delivery system with its daily newspaper, is largely responsible for the political apathy in that State. He points out that the political rally has heretofore given the farmer an opportunity to drive to town and meet his neighbors; it has been one of the remedies for the loneliness of farm life, but the daily newspaper now delivered at his door removes this feeling of loneliness and serves to occupy agreeably his leisure hour. If this convenience can be given to 'the lonely farmer in Kansas, why not to the less lonely farmer of Ontario? Is not this country also ripe for rural free delivery?

—Bears are quite plentiful this fall and come quite close to the settlements in search of food, as beech and oak nuts are a very poor crop. Walter Wigg trapped a fine large one at Jack's Lake lately.

THE MOONSTONE SPHINX

By Mrs C N Williamson

Author of The Barn Stormers Fortune's Spor Miss Nobody, Her Royal Highness Lady Mary of the Dark House, etc.

I don't know whether it's in your line, or whether you haven't something you like better to do; but, anyway, I can offer you a secretaryship if you'll have it, with a salary of seven guineas a week."

"By Jove, that is good of you!" exclaimed Dick, who had a hearty and pleasant manner, which endeared him to strangers. "I'll be only too thankful to make it 'in my line,' and do the very best I can, for I've had beastly luck lately, as maybe Winnie has told you. Is it you who offer me the position?"

"No," said Newcome, flushing a little, as Winifred remembered afterwards. "It's a friend of mine, a richer man than I am—a very good fellow, not young. He's engaged to-night," continued Newcome. "But will you dine with me tomorrow evening at the Savoy Hotel at eight, and go round with me to my rooms afterwards to meet him?"

"Delighted!" cried Dick, thankful that he had not pawned his evening clothes, as he had been tempted to do lately.

"And I wonder if you would both dine with me somewhere to-night," went on Newcome, "just we three alone? Do say 'yes,' Miss Gray."

Winifred did say 'yes' with joy. It was so wonderful, so almost unnatural to feel joy. She basked in it, she revelled in it, thrusting all the old troubles aside as if they had ceased to exist. Presently Dick left them alone together, and Newcome ventured to say something which had stuck in his throat before. Wouldn't Winifred let him lend her money—heaps of money? It was for that he had rejoiced in his luck. If she would not take it what he had would be worthless to him. She had given herself to him now, and surely he had some rights over her. Besides, she must remember their compact. He had borrowed from her because she had promised to do the same from him when he should be in a position to lend. That time had come now; he had thousands, and he would claim her promise.

Of course Winifred said no; but Newcome would not accept her refusal. He was urging his point when Dick came back, and had succeeded so far as to make the girl consent to think it over.

They dined together at a quiet place, and even the presence of a third person could not damp their hapiness. They looked into each other's eyes while Dick ate the first good dinner which, he announced, he had tasted for an age.

Next morning came flowers for Winifred. She had never loved flowers so well before. Some she took to her mother, kissing their sweet faces before she parted with them; but others she wore when Hope Newcome came to her again in the afternoon. She was alone, as on the day before, and her lover helped cut bread and butter for tea; and they called each other "partner," as they had in the strange days at Brighton.

That night Winifred sat up to wait for Dick when he should come home from his dinner at the Savoy and the engagement at Newcome's rooms afterwards. She longed to hear all about what had happened, and what sort of man her brother's employer had turned out to be.

CHAPTER XXX.

Macaire's Secretary.

Half-past eleven came and still no Dick. But just as the clock of St. Mary's Church struck twelve the door was flung open, and Dick entered, whistling the latest music-hall air. Winifred ran to meet him.

"Oh, Dick, you'll wake everybody in the house," she said warningly.

"Well," he echoed. "My appointment's all right. And I'm to live in the handsomest house in this old village."

"What—you won't be at home? Oh, mother will be disappointed. Still, it can't be helped. Anyhow, you'll be in London."

"For a while. And then I'm going abroad with—him. Guess who. You've heard his name a thousand times. Think of one of the most important men in England. By Jove! von Zellheim has some swell friends."

"No; financier; sporting-man — all round good fellow, I'll bet. And by Jove, he may do something for you. Seems he's interested in theaters. Got so much money he doesn't know where to put it all. But guess, Winnie."

The girl had grown suddenly pale. "I—can't" she faltered. "For Heaven's sake, tell me—quickly."

"Well, I'm private secretary, if you please, to nobody less than Mr. Lionel Macaire."

With a cry Winifred sprang to her feet. "No, Dick—no!" she gasped. "Say you're only joking."

"Then I should tell a lie. I'm in dead earnest. What makes you look so queer?"

The girl stood still, pressing a hand against each temple, her bright hair pushed back.

"Did you say that—Lionel Macaire was Hope Newcome's—Baron von Zellheim's friend?" she asked.

"Rather. They're no end of chums. Macaire calls Von Zellheim 'my dear boy,' and pats him on the shoulder. He thanked Von Zellheim for bringing us together, which it seems had all been arranged between them for some time before it came off. And I can tell you I have to thank young Zellheim, too. This will be the making of me, Win."

"It will be the undoing of us all," she moaned. "Oh, Heavens to think that he should be false, too."

Dick stopped in his walk and stared at her. "I don't know what you're driving at, Sis," he said.

She seemed to be looking at him, though her eyes, dark with pain, saw nothing save Hope Newcome's face, which rose before them as if to mock her with its sham nobility, its sham truth, its sham love. But it was not for Dick to know the bitter anguish, the shame that made her writhe.

"It doesn't matter," she answered him dully, almost sullenly. "You can't possibly be Mr. Macaire's secretary, Dick—that's all."

"Can't!" he repeated. "My dear girl, you must be mad. The thing's settled. I go to work early to-morrow morning. Some time this winter he and I are off to the Riviera and Monte Carlo together; think of that!"

"I can't think of it. It won't bear thinking of. For Heaven's sake sit down and write a letter saying that—that you accepted the offer under a misapprehension—anything—only make it dignified and firm. Oh, Dick, listen to me! The worst trouble I have ever known has come from this man. He has persecuted me. You weren't told because, though you're older than I am, you're very young in many ways, and it seemed best not. Even mother doesn't know nearly all. Because I wouldn't listen to his hateful love-making——"

"What!" broke in Dick. "He made love to you? I didn't know you'd ever

STOCK MARKETS

Trend of After-Election Market

New York, Oct 7—Surprising inertia and indefiniteness of purpose appears to remain as the characteristic feature of the stock market. Wednesday following election day concentrated and energetic efforts were brought to bear against quotations under leadership of the Waldorf Astoria clique, followed by the stock exchange floor trading fraternity. Stocks were sold merrily and indiscriminately, while the selling was accompanied by all kinds of direful stories. Houses with western connections were given selling orders also. On Thursday it looked as if the market had been sold to a standstill and stocks began to recuperate. Great stress was laid upon the uncertain positions of the Empire State for 1904, demonstrated by Coler's large vote, while ultra bears even had him elected on Wednesday. Little, if any, attention is being given to the numerous facts favorable to the markets. Future Southern Railway has reported an increase for the third week in October amounting to $69,986. Louisville for the same week improved $92,000. Penna and M. K. & T. also made extremely favorable showings for the same period. Too much company upon either side of an extremely dull market in danger. There is rapidly becoming too much company on the bear side at present. The little bears and traders as well as sold our shareholders, will probably in a few days awaken to the fact that they have supplied the stocks with which the larger fellows covered their present short commitments. Timely warning is therefore advisable. A dull period cannot be pushed in either direction. The preponderance of factors upon either side will eventually govern prices. They always do, and at present writing the preponderance leans strongly to the bull side of the account. Stocks are now at a low level compared to very recent prices. Consequently with no impairment of earnings, a large crop ahead to be marketed, with good prices ruling for same it would appear extremely injudicious to sell anything at present. The change from inactivity and indecisiveness of market movement to activity will more than likely be as sudden as marked. Put yourself speculatively in shape therefore for the impending change.

California Oil Stocks Have Paid Millions in Dividends

KERN COUNTY (SUNSET DISTRICT) OIL COMPANIES PAID

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS IN DIVIDENDS IN AUGUST ALONE

MORGAN IN THE OIL INDUSTRY--NEW YORK FINANCIER AT THE HEAD OF A $20,000,000 COMPANY TO EXPLOIT CALIFORNIA FIELDS

Bakersfield, Cal., Sept. 27.—J. Pierpont Morgan is about to identify himself with the oil business in California. On October 12, or a few days later, surveyors will be put into the field, and will run lines to the ocean from Sunset, Coaling, McKittrick, Midway and Kern River fields to determine by which route it is most feasible to transport oil to tide water. The surveys will run over the coast range at a number of points, and also will go down the San Joaquin valley parallel with the line of the Standard.

A company having a capitalization of $5,000,000 has been organized for the construction of lines, pumping stations, storage tanks, and the like. Mr. Morgan and his associates have also formed a separate company, capitalized at $20,000,000, half of which will be invested in proven ground and the other half turned into a reserve fund.

It is stated that the Morgan syndicate will be prepared to handle 2,000,000 barrels the first year, and will increase that amount at the rate of 1,000,000 a year until the whole demand of the market is met.

THE ST. PAUL & SUNSET OIL COMPANY own and control a large tract of absolutely oil proven asphalt land in the very heart of the best oil producing land of Kern County, California, the district where flowing wells are situated. We have a bed of Liquid Asphalt underlying a portion of our lands. Our property is situated right at Sunset Station. A new line of railway is surveyed and will be constructed in a very short time, putting us not only in touch with Eastern cities, but in touch with tide-water. This, in addition to the railroad facilities we now have. Remember that we own our land—it is paid for and entirely free from debt.

ST. PAUL & SUNSET OIL CO.'S GIGANTIC TRACT

will be developed and should prove a formidable rival for the new company.

PROFESSOR DR. RUD J. SCHIMPER, Analytical and Expert Chemist, of St. Paul, makes the following statement relative to the composition, what can be produced and the estimated profits of the Sunset Crude Oil. A copy of the original certificate can be seen at the office of the St. Paul & Sunset Oil Co., which is in substance as follows:

"This is to certify that the undersigned, Dr. Rudolph J. Schimper, Chemist expert, member of Parisian Academy, according to analysis made from the crude oil furnished me by the St. Paul & Sunset Oil Company, I find the following valuable products and with each beg to submit my estimate of its value:

1. LIQUID RUBBER—2000 lbs of this crude oil (6 bbls.) will produce 1,800 lbs. of liquid rubber, value of which is from 25c. per lb. and up. (Estimated value $450.00.)
2. SOLID RUBBER—2000 lbs of this crude oil (6 bbls) will produce 1,700 lbs. of solid rubber, value of which is from 50c. upwards. (Estimated value $450.00.)
3. FUEL BRIQUETTES—2000 lbs. of this crude oil (6 bbls.) will produce 2,000 lbs. (1 ton) of fuel briquettes, which, according to government tests made, is equivalent to two tons of best anthracite coal. (Estimated value $22.00)
4. ASPHALTUM—2,000 lbs. of this crude oil (6 bbls.) will produce ½ ton of asphaltum, value $25 to $35 per ton. 25 gal. of lubricating oil, value 50c. per gal. and upward. 40 gal. illuminating oil, value 10c per gal. and up. 60 gal. of distilled oil, value 5c. per gal. and upward. (Estimated value $54.50.)
5. SOAP—2000 lbs. (1 ton) of crude oil and filling will produce over 2,000 lbs. of soap, value 3c. per lb. and upward. (Estimated value $60.00.)

In my opinion many other valuable products can be obtained from the oil of that famous field.

Respectfully, DR. R. J. SCHIMPER, Chemist Expert."

THIS goes to show the immense profits that will accrue from our products when refined. We expect to commence Building Our Refinery in the very near future. The sale of the next allotment of stock will be made for that purpose. The largest flowing wells in California were brought in adjoining our property and their stock was taken off the market. We employ the best drillers who report rapid progress on our wells and we expect to bring in gushers equal, if not to excel any in the Sunset field. Our General Manager, Superintendent and Drillers, all are experienced oil men. The officers of our company are all thorough, competent and efficient men who have always made a success of their undertaking in life and who will see that the welfare of the St. Paul and Sunset Oil Company is furthered, portected and promoted to the most advantageous extent possible.

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS SHOULD BE PAID STOCKHOLDERS.

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS should be paid to the stockholders of the St. Paul and Sunset Oil Company when their property is fully developed, their refinery equipped and in full operation. ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS IN DIVIDENDS was paid by Kern County Oil Companies during the month of August alone.

SIX MILLION BARRELS is the consuming capacity of the Southern Pacific Railway engines, which are now equipped for burning oil. Outside of this consider other railway lines, smelters, factories, steamships, stationery engines, which are all heavy consumers of fuel oil and last but not least, hotels and private dwellings are falling in line with the procession in the use of fuel oil.

A GOOD REASON WHY YOU Should Invest in the stock of St. Paul & Sunset Oil Company. More fortunes have been made in oil than any other business. Consider the immense amount of money the Standard Oil Company has made for its fortunate stockholders, and the California oil companies have done better in proportion to their capitalization than the Standard Oil Company. Here is what $100 has accomplished for those who invested that amount in the following California companies in the beginning of their career:

Home Whittier $1,000 on an investment of $100.

Kern returned $2,200 on an investment of $100.

Peerless returned $1,800 on an investment of $100.

Dillon returned $2,500 on an investment of $100.

New York returned $30,000 on an investment of $100.

Union returned $150,000 on an investment of $100.

Home returned $50,000 on an investment of $100.

THERE is no reason in the world why the St. Paul and Sunset Company's oil holdings and property, when developed and handled, should not bring like returns

CONTRARY to the general supposition the earth is the repository of all mineral wealth. When it is known and demonstrated beyond a question of a doubt where its wealth reposes and you put your money up to take it out, your money is invested. Hence you are an investor, not a speculator. A proven oil producing property does not draw its profits from the people but creates new wealth. It is therefore an investment.

Wonderful Increase in Value of Oil Stocks.

The rapid rise in the value of shares in some oil companies will be seen from the following table:	Original price per share	Present Market price

When You Think

Of the periodic pain which many women experience with every month it makes the gentleness and kindness always associated with womanhood seem to be almost a miracle. While in general no woman rebels against what she regards as a natural necessity there is no woman who would not gladly be free from this recurring period of pain.

Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well, and gives them freedom from disease. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence strictly private and sacredly confidential. Write without fear and without fee to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Mrs. T. Dolan, of Madrid, Perkins Co., Nebr., writes: "I was cured of painful periods by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and his Compound Extract of Smart-Weed. I think Dr. Pierce's medicines the best in the world."

"Favorite Prescription" has the testimony of thousands of women to its complete cure of womanly diseases. Do not accept an unknown and unproved substitute in its place.

Coffee Stock Canes

Professor W. G. Fleming, the baloonist, returned to town yesterday. He brought two unique canes from Houston, Texas, and presented one to Mr. D. McCabe and the other to Mr. Chris. Graham. The canes are coffee stocks, nicely painted and embellished, and highly prized by the two gentlemen to whom they were presented by the Professor.

East Lynne

This old, but ever popular English drama, by special request, was presented to a very large audience in the Opera House last night by the Marks' Brothers. It is a story full of touching incidents, and many tears were shed as the misled and cruelly wronged Lady Isabel knelt by the cot of her dying child. It is a drama that will never grow old, and Marks' Brothers gave it such a realistic effect that the audience seemed to feel that the real characters of the novel were before them.

Beet Sugar Factories

Mr. W. B. Bamford, Travelling Freight Agent for the C.P.R., and a former resident of Peterborough, was renewing acquaintances in town yesterday. Mr. Bamford is a great enthusiast in beet sugar factories. Having visited some of those already in operation in Ontario, he is very pronounced in his opinion that the proposed factory in Peterborough will prove to be a source of much revenue to the farmers of the surrounding country, as well as a great industrial concern for the town.

In Colic, Summer Complaint, Diarrhoea, Indigestion and Nausea Nerviline is a remedy of remarkable potency, and acts promptly and satisfactorily at all times. The composition of Polson's Nerviline expresses the highest medical progress of the age, which accounts for its superior merit. Price 25c.

Hamilton's Pills are Good Pills.

Going to Toronto Junction

Dr. Jeffs, who represents the Fourth Division, comprising the Townships of Asphodel, Belmont and Methuen, with the villages of Norwood and Havelock, for the County Council of the County of Peterborough, has, we understand, bought a practice at Toronto Junction and will present his resignation to the County Council at its next meeting on Nov. 19th. Dr. Jeffs made an energetic and hard-working County Councillor, and his removal from the County will be generally regretted.

Need not Go to the Klondyke

The Marks' Brothers, who are occupying the Opera House this week, received a letter yesterday from an absent brother, who has staked a claim in the Klondike. He says that he has a log cabin and a dog for a companion, and although he has only been there for a few years he has already been offered $5,000 for his possessions, but he is holding them at $15,000. The Marks' Brothers who are here need not go to the Klondyke to make their fortunes, so long as they can put up such good shows and draw the crowds they are doing in Peterborough.

Was Not Re-Elected

We notice from the returns as published of the United States elections that Dr. Pendry's name does not appear in the list of successful candidates for the State Legislature. Dr. Pendry is an old Peterborough boy, and has been a leading member of the assembly at Albany, having been elected by a district in Brooklyn city, where he resides. When he lived in Peterborough he was on the Times staff. His defeat at the polls will be regretted by his many Peterborough friends. But it will be impossible to keep a good man down, and Dr. Pendry is sure to bob up somewhere very soon.

The proposal to have the assessment roll published is regarded by many as a good idea. On all sides one hears of assessment inequalities, and this, it is asserted, would be an excellent way to dispose of the grumbling, and also rectify any evils that exist.

—The Archdeaconry of Peterborough will meet in Port Hope on Nov. 18th and 19th.

FOOD CHANGES PEOPLE

Both Adult, and Babies

Babies can eat and thrive on the same kind of food that their elders do, when that food happens to be Grape-Nuts.

"Our little baby girl had spasms," writes Mrs. Geo. B Noble, of West Union, Ia., "caused, the physician said, by improper food. He advised a diet of milk but she did not gain in either health weight or brightness, and we had to continually use physic.

We were simply wild, hopeless and miserable over our little one. For a long time I had been reading of Grape-Nuts, and perhaps by inspiration I bought a package and began feeding them to her After the second meal we used no more physic, and have never used any since. It was wonderful to see her improve. Her weight was 17 1-2 pounds at 2 years; now it is 27 pounds at two years and four months. The doctor had fear for her brain, the spasms having come from her spine but the continued use of Grape-Nuts, has made her perfectly well and there is not a brighter child in the State today than our little girl.

Everybody remarks about her beautiful complexion, and her bright, witty speeches. We are never now without Grape-Nuts and often think of the awful period when we were in such desperate straits. If I can in any way interest others I am more than willing to tell them all I can about Grape-Nuts.

Wm. H. Hall Lived Three or Four Hours After Being Shot

It is now known that death did not immediately follow to Wm. H. Hall after the gunshot, but that he lived for three or four hours. His son Wesley, paddled his canoe seven miles to Lakefield and summoned a physician, but the father had expired before Dr. Fraser arrived on the scene. Deceased was a son of the late Dr. Wm. Hall, who met his death by drowning some years ago. Wm. H. Hall came to Peterborough about the year 1846. He was married to his cousin, sister of the late Judge Hall, and his widow is now an invalid, and the sad affliction brought home to her has increased her sufferings very much. The funeral will leave the family residence, No. 227 Reid street, at 3 o'clock this afternoon for Little Lake cemetery.

A Live Raccoon

While Mr. Fred A. Clarke was hunting in the North, he captured a live Raccoon, and yesterday he placed it in the front window of his hat and fur store on George street. It attracted considerable attention, especially of children. The animal is a fine specimen of its class, possessing a beautiful fur, and a few more like it would make a splendid overcoat. Mr. Clarke also brought back a deer, so did Mr. N. R. Jackson, who accompanied Mr. Clarke on the hunt.

A STRONG, VIGOROUS MAN

Is Liable to Break Down—Pe-ru-na is Sure to Restore.

ALDERMAN FRANK DUNN

Hon. Frank Dunn, Alderman Twenty-Fourth District, writes from 232 East Fifty-Eighth Street, New York City:

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen: "There is no remedy for a broken-down system that I know of which will so effectually restore health as Peruna.

"Whenever I am overworked or suffer from the consequences of a cold a few doses of Peruna builds me up again more quickly than anything I ever tried. I find it especially valuable for catarrh. Three bottles cured me three years ago of catarrh of the stomach and I have never had the least symptoms of it since."

Very truly,

FRANK DUNN, Alderman 24th Dist., N. Y. City.

A TONIC is a medicine that gives tone to some part of the system. There are different kinds of tonics, but the tonic most needed in this country, where catarrh is so prevalent, is a tonic that operates on the mucous membranes.

Peruna is a tonic to the mucous membranes of the whole body. It gives tone to the capillary circulation which constitutes these delicate membranes.

Peruna is a specific in its operation upon the mucous membrane. It is a tonic that strikes at the root of all catarrhal affections. It gives tone to the minute blood vessels and the terminal nerve fibres. Catarrh cannot exist long where Peruna is used intelligently. Peruna seeks out catarrh in all the hidden parts of the body.

Paul Landrum writing from Atlanta, Ga., says:

"In January last I began the use of your Peruna and Manalin for what was termed organic heart trouble. At that time I could scarcely walk to my place of business without stopping to rest and on arrival felt completely exhausted. Had severe pains in my heart and general dizziness. After using the first bottle of Peruna I began to improve and today I feel that I am a sound man and I work fourteen hours a day without any bad feeling."—Paul Landrum.

A. M. Ikerd, an employee of the C. B. & Q. R. R., West Burlington, Ia., writes:

"I had catarrh of the stomach and small intestines for a number of years. I went to a number of doctors and got no relief. Finally one of my doctors sent me to Chicago and I met the same fate. They said they could do nothing for me, that I had cancer of the stomach and there was no cure. I almost thought the same, for my breath was something awful. I could hardly stand it, it was so offensive. I could not eat anything without great misery, and I gradually grew worse.

"Finally I got one of your books, and concluded I would try Peruna, and thank God, I found a relief and a cure for that dreadful disease. I took five bottles of Peruna and two of Manalin, and I now feel like a new man. There is nothing better than Peruna, and I keep a bottle in my house all the time."—A. M. Ikerd.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

A DEFENCE FUND FOR CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Will be Raised to Defend Parents Accused of Causing Child's Death

White Plains, N.Y., Nov. 9.—"Not guilty" was the plea of Mr. and Mrs. John Quimbly, Christian Scientists, and John Carroll Lathrop, a so-called "healer," when they were called to answer to the charge of manslaughter in the second degree, in connection with the death of little Esther Quimbly, before Judge Platt, in the Westchester County Court yesterday.

They were represented by Samuel M. Gardenshire, a lawyer of New York, who entered objections. This is taken as an indication that the Scientists intend to make a fight against their persecution in Westchester County. The accused were accompanied to court by their sureties, John C. Rockwell, a grocer, of Mount Vernon; Charles W. Hartmann, and Mrs. Joanna Williamson, who are on their respective bonds for $2,000 each. Mr. Lathrop, before pleading, said to the reporters:

"We shall stand by our principle. We believe we are right, and have done nothing illegal. I don't know what more I can say that would be interesting to the public."

"Have you heard from Mrs. Eddy expressing her views about your case?" Mr. Lathrop was asked.

"Really I cannot tell you that; I do not know, however, what her views are."

District Attorney Young then turned to the three prisoners arraigned before the court, and, looking at Mrs. Quimbly, said:

"You have been indicted for manslaughter in the second degree for being responsible for the death of Esther Quimbly on October 30. How do you plea?"

The mother of the child, who was attired in deep mourning, said, with a quiver of her lower lip: "Not guilty." Her husband and Mr. Lathrop made the same response.

It is said that Mary Baker G. Eddy, "Mother of the Christian Science Church," is taking a great interest in the Westchester proceedings, and has engaged a firm of lawyers to look after the interest of the Church. It is also reported that a fund of $10,000 has been raised for its mutual protection and legal services.

ITEMS OF NEWS BY CABLE AND LETTER

London, Nov. 10—Ex-President Kruger's ox-wagon, the gift of Lord Kitchener to the city of London, has arrived at the City green ward, Whitecross street. The interior of the wagon which is stored in a spare stable, is much as it was when it was captured. The roof is lined with a light, soft-colored kind of felt, and across part of it an ordinary cross-ironed folding-up arrangement for a mattress. The ex-president's chair has disappeared, but there are various small empty barrels about, in which he was wont to carry things.

Sydney, N.S., Nov. 10.—There is a great danger of a strike at the mines of the Nova Scotia Steel and Iron company. The miners gave the company notice a short time ago that unless the demand for an average increase of 10 per cent was acceded to they would go out on the 15th. Thomas Brown, general superintendent of the company, has been at Sydney mines during the past two days trying to arrange a settlement, but so far the company and the men have come to no arrangemnt.

Boston, Nov. 8.—A very small market was noted in copper to-day, and if anything, the prices had a downward tendency. Copper Range was 61 1-2, United States mining 20 1-4, and Centennial 19 1-4, these being the only stocks handled.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 8.—The gold watch of Clara Mrton, the McLean Hospital domestic who was killed Saturday evening, and with whose murder A. G. Mason of Boston is charged, has been found in a Boston pawn shop, and the Boston police are searching for a negro, who is said to have sold the article. The man wanted is described as a negro about 21 years old. Chief Watts of Boston does not conceal his belief that the negro murdered Miss Mason and that Mason, who is now held in Middlesex County jail without bail, is innocent.

Ottawa, Nov. 10.—The Department of Justice have under consideration the report in the trial of the British Columbian murderer, Ross, who is under sentence of death for the 21st inst. Ross and his victims were both miners, and in company with other miners were indulging in a debauch when the crime was committed. From British Columbia it is learned that representations will be made by the man's friends asking for a new trial on the ground that the trial judge interfered in the trial proceedings unduly Victoria, B.C., Nov. 8.—The brigadine Blakely, which was used in the recent treasure hunt to Cocos Islands, was sold to-day by the Marshall of the Admiralty Court to satisfy claims made by the crew for wages. E. W. MacLean, of Vancouver, purchased the vessel for $1,500. She will be dispatched to the Behring Sea to fish for cod.

London, November 10.—The statement made by an Afghan merchant who has just arrived in Calcutta from Kabul is contained in a despatch to The Times from the former city. The merchant says a letter from the Russian Government, asking for closer commercial relations with Afghanistan was read by the Ameer in Durbar. Opinions were called for and one nobleman suggested that the bearer of the letter be beaten.

The Ameer caused a reply to be written in which it was stated he was willing to discuss the matter, but it was impossible to change in a moment the whole tenor of Afghan policy. All future communications must be sent addressed through the Government of India, according to the precedent set by the late Ameer.

London Nov. 10—A despatch to the Exchange Telegram Company from Paris says that reports have been received from Odessa that the Czarina is suffering from profound melancholia.

Paris, Nov. 10—The Venezuelan agent in Paris has received the following cable despatch from the secretary of President Castro:

"Caracas, Nov. 6—Victory complete. Matos is a fugitive. Army closely pursuing him."

Ithaca, N.Y., Nov. 10—David Thompson, a wealthy farmer of Perry City, near Ithaca, died today of pneumonia, without having called in a physician. He relied entirely on the exhortations of a sect called the "Church of the Living God," or "The Holy Ghost and Us Society." His son, also, is a believer in the doctrines of the "Holy Ghost and Us Society."

He was treated by healers from Ithaca who refused his wife admittance to his room. His daughter and sister were shut out, too.

Coroner Terry of Trumansburg, will investigate the case.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 7.—During the day the attention of Chief Wade was called to a hurried interview between Nemser and a reporter, in which Nemser said he was paid to stick to his story that a Mulatto sold the watch. The chief said, "It is perfectly outrageous, the story is all bosh." Nemser was told that he would be paid for closing his shop and for going about with the officers to help the chase along. He will be reimbursed also for what he gave on the watches. He is a poor Jew and very much excited. He told me he was besieged by so many reporters that he did not know what he was saying or what he had said.

Cape Town, Nov. 10—Since the campaign of Spion Kop a beautiful spring of water has been discovered lying within the sphere of the historic operations. Had its existence been known at the time of the campaign an entirely different story might have come to be written about the relief of Ladysmith.

At the summit of Spion Kop there is a vast trench, in which lie the remains of the British soldiers killed in the action, but this is beautifully kept by a league of ladies residing in the various neighboring farms. The bits of cover constructed of stones and clay, by our men are also to be seen.

YOU TAKE NO RISK

The "Cecil R" Mine Guarantees a Dividend to shareholders from the Start

Men with capital, and men of moderate circumstances of a speculative mind even, who desire to invest their money in mining operations cannot do better than read the advertisement of the "Cecil R" Gold Mining and Milling Company in our advertising columns. The company is organized under the laws of Arizona with a paid up capital stock of 1,000,000 shares which are non-assessable. The officers and directors are all men well known as successful promoters of mines, and there can be no risk in purchasing the stock of the "Cecil R," as the company guarantees to pay a dividend of one per cent. on the first of every month, per share, to shareholders and this dividend will be increased as soon as increased facilities are secured for milling a greater amount of ore. The evidence of the wealth of this mine are such that experts believe the mine equal to the Great Yellow Astor, so says the editor of the Oil, Mining and Finance, a journal published at Los Angeles, California. Of the 1,000,000 shares, 250,000 shares are set aside for treasury stock which affords an additional guarantee that the company will pay the dividend as promised. As dividend-paying stock is aways in demand investors should lose no time in purchasing a block of stock in "Cecil R." Mr. C. H. J. Mitchell is the fiscal agent at Peterborough, and will be pleased to furnish information to intending investors.

THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL

Report Presented at the Meeting of Orillia Board of Trade

The following report was presented at a meeting of the Orillia Board of Trade by J. P. Secord, chairman of the Trent Canal Committee:—

"Your Committee on Trent Valley Canal beg to report that the work on the various sections under contract, and in course of construction is progressing in a moderately satisfactory manner, and it is expected that their contract will be completed in about three years. This will open the canal between Lake Simcoe and Healey Falls, about 160 miles. There are 45 steamers already plying the now navigable portions of the route. The Dominion Government is also doing some dredging at the Narrows between Lakes Simcoe and Couchiching, which may be said to form a part of the canal besides being a work highly appreciated by the navigators of the lakes. When those sections under contract, are completed there will only remain a couple of short sections at the extreme east end to be undertaken in order to open up communication between our town and Lake Ontario. We regret to inform you that a controversy has arisen on the part of the people of Port Hope, Cobourg and Trenton, as to where the canal will enter Lake Ontario, each of these towns having set up claims thereto. The town of Orillia is not specially interested in the controversy except that we hope it will not be allowed to delay the work of the canal, and we suggest that the Government be urged to select the terminal and push the work with all possible vigor."

Sir William Gordon Macgregor Accepts Charity

London, Nov. 10.—A striking illustration of the vicissitudes which sometimes attend the bearers of well known names is to be found in the statement that a few days since the list of those accepting hospitality from the Guardians of the West Ham Union included the name of Sir William Gordon Macgregor, Bart.

For some time past Sir William has been a familiar figure in Leyton and Walthamstow. He was especially fond of cricket, and was a regular attendant at the county ground in Leyton, taking a keen interest in the national game. He suffers from partial paralysis which affects his speech as well as his hands.

Sir William Gordon Macgregor is the fourth baronet. He is the son of the late Reverend Sir Charles Macgregor, and was born at Bothamsall, Notts, in 1846. He was educated in Haileybury College and succeeded his father in 1879, the baronetcy dating from 1828.

Sir William has a younger brother, Colonel Charles Reginald Macgregor who distinguished himself in the army and took part in the famous march from Cabul to Candahar.

Milo Aliger Dead

Port Arthur, Nov. 8.—Milo Aliger, the brakeman who was injured here a day or so ago, died this morning. It appears that while assisting in making up a train on the Canadian Northern Railway, he was seated on the draw-head of a car while making a flying shunt, when he slipped and fell under the moving car. His legs and hip were terribly mangled, and he was immediately removed to the general hospital. Notwithstanding the fact that hopes were entertained for his recovery, he gradually sank till death released him. His body will be sent to Aylmer, Que., where his parents reside.

A WASHINGTON HOME IS SOLD

An English Member of Parliament Buys the Danbury Place

Manchester, November 10—The Dispatch today announces that Samuel Scott M.P., has purchased the ancestral home of George Washington, near Danbury. It was recently stated that the home had been purchased by Americans and would be taken to St. Louis.

LOVES THE KING'S DAUGHTER

Austin Chamberlain Would Marry the Princess Victoria

London, Nov. 10—The clubs today are discussing a story to the effect that Austin Chamberlain, the newly appointed postmaster general, is in love with Princess Victoria, King Edward's second daughter. The princess, it is said, returns the affection and the engagement of the two is possible. Their difference in social position is probably insurmountable but it is pointed out that the king's well known democratic ideas might lead him to obviate this difficulty. Princess Victoria is the only unmarried child of the king and was born in 1868.

MICHAEL RYAN REMANDED

Charged with the Brutal Assault of J. B. Renaud

Ottawa, Nov. 8.—J. B. Renaud, the victim of the assault in Hull yesterday, is a very critical condition. He is suffering from severe hemmorhage of the brain, and has not recovered consciousness since he received the blow. The doctors in attendance state that his case is so desperate that it will be miraculous if he recovers.

Michael Ryan, who is charged with the cowardly assault, was arranged before the district magistrate yesterday and was remanded for a week. It is said things will go hard with Ryan in the event of Renaud dying.

IRISH APPEAL FOR MONEY

It Will Be Used to Drive Mr. Balfour From Power

Boston, Mass. Nov. 10— An appeal to the Irish people of America asking for money for a new fund to "destroy Balfour politically," has been issued here by the National Committee of the United Irish League. It says: "The English minister in the plenitude of his power and the cruelty of his arrogance has put an insult unparalleled even in the annals of the Anglo-Irish relations upon Ireland. He must be hurled from his political power as Parnell alternately hurled both Lord Salisbury and Mr. Gladstone. Mr. Balfour has gone much further in official brutality than any of his predecessors in refusing to give to Ireland even one day during the present parliamentary session for the discussion of exclusively Irish affairs. This privilege was never denied to other parts of the alleged United Kingdom. We can destroy Balfour politically, if we unite against the English ruling classes as they have united against Ireland."

DO NOT LIKE CRITICISM

Germans Think John Bull Should be Good Natured

London, November, 10— Referring to Emperor William's approaching visit to England, the Berlin correspondent of the Times says that certain German journals which chronicle with manifest satisfaction any evidence of friction between Great Britain and France or Russia, speak as if Germany were the only power which must not be criticized by the British press, and as if Germany's policy must never be considered at all in the light of its present and future bearings on the British interests.

These papers, says the correspondent, would apparently like to see England in a spirit of jovial good fellowship and complaisance towards all things German, more characteristic of after dinner conversation than the business portion of the day. If there were any possibility of a realization of this idea, if foreign politics could once more be treated by Englishmen in the easy-going way which facilitated many of Bismarck's plans, this complaisance would not be reciprocated by Germany, where public opinion, like Government, is "tour jours en vedette."

Permanent Cure for Neuralgia

Experienced sufferers state that no remedy relieves neuralgia so quickly as a hot application of Polson's Nerviline, the strongest liniment made. Nerviline is certainly very penetrating and has a powerful influence over neuralgic pains which it destroys almost at once. Nerviline is highly recommended for Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, and Toothache. Better try a 25c Bottle. It's all right.

BIG MANDARIN STRANGLED

An Elephant of the Barnum and Bailey Show Executed

New York, Nov. 8.—Big Mandarin, an elephant of the Barnum and Bailey show, was executed by strangulation to-night in his cage on the main deck of the steamship Minneapolis, of the Atlantic Transport Line. A two inch hawser was placed in a loop around Mandarin's neck, and the other end of the hawser was fastened to the drum of a "wench" engine, which started at the same time and ran slowly at first until the hawser was taut, when the speed was increased and the hawser quickly tightened around the animal's neck. In a minute and a half, the hind legs sank to the floor of the cage, and he was unconscious. Just eighteen minutes after the engine had been started Mandarin was pronounced dead. The cage containing the body was then hoisted from the ship, by a crane, and loaded in a barge, which was towed about twenty miles to sea and sunk, the cage being weighted with about 5,000 pounds of old railroad iron.

Mandarin was the largest elephant in captivity at the time of his death, and has been with the Barnum and Bailey Circus for twenty-four years. He weighed five tons and stood nine feet ten inches high.

The elephant had become unmanageable, rendering his destruction necessary.

C. P. R. CHANGES

The Local Agent Goes to Pontypool and Havelock Agent Comes Here

Mr. Harrison, the local agent of the C. P. R., has been transferred to Pontypool and will be succeeded by Mr. Wesley Dodds, agent at Havelock. Mr. Harrison, during his residence in Peterborough has made many friends, who will regret his departure.

Mr. Dodds, who succeeds Mr. Harrison, has for many years been the agent at Havelock, and is therefore well known to many of our citizens. Courteous and obliging he will make an excellent agent for Peterborough.

A BAD WRECK

A Runaway Which Did Considerable Damage at Lakefield

Yesterday morning four young men employed on the new dam, hired Mr. R. H. Leary's fine team of chesnuts and rubber tired carriage and rode to Lakefield. They drove into the shed in the rear of the Craig House, and got out, all alighting on the left hand side of the rig. The young men were no sooner on the terra firma, than the horses, without a moment's warning, skewed around to the right and ran out of the shed, tearing a wheel off against a post. The rig was overturned, and broke almost into splinters. Every spoke was taken out of two of the wheels, and the seats and box was also badly broken up. The horses were caught in a couple of minutes, after tearing furiously around the yard.

The young men hired a rig in the village and drove to town. They disclaim any carelessness, and say it was purely an accident. They told Mr. Leary, however, they would pay for having the rig repaired.

COAL STILL HIGH

The Fuel Situation is Still Unsettled in Peterborough

Coal still keeps at $15 a ton in Peterborough, although almost every other town sells it for less money. Toronto has had its first consignment of coal, as also has nearly all the larger cities of Canada. Peterborough will likely be getting some in soon.

Here are a few points about economizing in the burning of coal that may be worthy of note.

When it is understood that the same amount of fuel is consumed in producing either gas or heat it is readily seen why one person will use four times as much coal as another without producing any more heat, if as much. When feeding coal, after the fire is made only a small quantity should be fed at a time and that spread evenly over the surface of the fire, for when fresh coal is added it for a time lowers the temperature of the fire box—just as pouring cold water into a pot of boiling water stops the boiling by lowering the temperature—until the added coal is heated up to the igniting point, when it first begins to burn and adds its heat to the mass. When but little coal is added this lowering of the temperature will be hardly noticed, but add a large quantity and it can be plainly seen.

CHILDREN'S HOME

A Well Run Place

At a children's home in Fort Wayne, Ind. they have entirely abandoned coffee because of the bad effect of it.

Mrs. M. B. Gorsline, who is the matron, is meeting with grand success. She was compelled four years ago to discontinue the use of coffee and after making several experiments concluded that Postum filled the bill and has used it ever since.

She has charge of a family of children numbering from 23 to 30 and writes us, "I give Postum Coffee freely, using no coffee at all. The children are always well; we have had no sickness for two years, except such as they contract at school like whooping cough, measles, etc. No bilious attacks, no fevers, no skin diseases. The children are all plump and in good condition. Clear complexions, no sallow or muddy looking faces, such as result from the use of coffee. We always make Postum strictly according to directions, and it gives pleasure and health to all."

THREE TRICKY SHANTYMEN

They Secured Advances on Unearned Wages and Then Skipped Out

A few days ago, Mr. Wm. Cresswell, representing the Mossom Boyd, Co., of Bobcaygeon, took a gang of men numbering about fifteen, whom he had picked up in Toronto and points west, to the firm's camps, about five miles from Irondale, says the Lindsay Post. The party were in town a few hours, and three of them, after hard coaxing, secured advances on their wages from Mr. Cresswell. They were landed at the camps Saturday and on the following Sunday took their departure and have not been seen or heard of since. A warrant for their arrest has been issued, and Chief Nevison has been on the lookout, but has been unable to locate them so far.

"Men who are experienced in the lumber camps are hard to get nowadays, at one time we could get any number of them, but there is such a demand for laboring men at the present time that it is difficult to get them at any price," remarked Mr. Cresswell to our representive today. "Another trouble we have is that when hiring men some recommend themselves to be first-class axemen and of course are hired at good wages, but when they get to work they turn out to be no good. Then there is always trouble because the skilled axeman will be sure to complain about doing his own work and the work of the unskilled man also. If lumber firms would agree to pay men according to their merits, we would have no trouble of that kind. The North Shore Companies have an advantage over the local firms because they can hire men at Lindsay at a certain wage, and when they get them to the limits, hundreds of miles from a railway, can pay them a much lower wage.

BRITAIN WARNED TO BE ON GUARD AGAINST KAISER

The London Times Urges the English Government to Beware of Any Alliance with the German Nation

London, Nov. 8.—The Times, discussing the visit of the German Emperor to King Edward, says: "He may be our good friend, as we are his, but no complaisance can describe Germany's attitude as friendly, and Englishmen can hardly be expected to forget the German press' campaign of scurrility, which the Government did not attempt to check."

The editorial concludes as follows: "No sense of courteous greetings due an imperial visitor, and no admiration of his vigorous and attractive personality, must be allowed to lead us into paths wherein the true interests of the nation forbid us to go. Of the past we shall remember such lessons as for prudential reasons it is well to remember.'

London, Nov. 8.—The German yacht Hohenzollern, with Emperor William on board, accompanied by the escorting German cruisers and a flotilla of British torpedo boats, reached Port Victoria at 8 o'clock this morning.

The arrival of King Edward's nephew was made to occasion of an imposing naval display. All the warships at Sheerness were dressed, their crews manned the decks, and the usual salutes welcomed the Imperial visitor, who was perambulating the promenade deck of the Hohenzollern.

The Emperor wore the undress uniform of a British admiral. The German Ambassador, Count Wolff-Metternich, soon joined his Majesty, who subsequently received the British court officials sent to attend him and the other members of the German Embassy.

After breakfast Emperor William landed. The crew of the Hohenzollern manned ship and cheered lustily, and the British warships fired another salute as the Emperor boarded a train for Dover, on the way to Shorncliffe Camp, where he will review the First Royal Dragoons, of which regiment he is honorary colonel-in-chief.

Unusual precautions were taken by the railroad officials. All traffic was stopped along the route to Dover half an hour before the Imperial special train was due, large British and German detective staffs were on duty, and the junctions and the approaches to the stations were closely watched and cleared of spectators during the passage of the train.

It was raining heavily when Emperor William left the train at Dover, whence, mounted on one of his own chargers, he rode to Shorncliffe Camp, accompanied by Lord Roberts and a brilliant staff.

Vienna, Nov. 8.—Herr Karl Inger, or the Emir Soliman Ibn Inger Abdullah, the European who was a leader with the Mad Mullah's forces, has allowed himself to be interviewed by the Buda-Pesth correspondent of the Neues Wiener Tagblatt, to whom he made the following statement:

"The Mahdi, anxious to make the Soudan accessible to civilization, and being cut off from the coast to the north and south, whilst a vast desert lay to the west, found no other outlet for a connection with Europe than over the Somali coast. He, therefore, commissioned me to go there to collect the scattered independent Somali tribes and to establish the desired connection with Europe. I am a convinced Mohammedan, but, when I started on this mission, I considered myself only a pioneer of civilization. As a European, it was in my favor that I could take my stand on the provisions of the Berlin Treaty and of the Brussels Convention, which secure the possession of any part of uncivilized Africa to the country to which the European belongs who first sets foot on such territory.

"I established union among the various tribes, and then concluded a treaty with an Italian society, which is in occupation of the east coast of Somaliland, in order to gain access to the coast. As an Austro-Hungarian subject, I naturally felt bound to secure the economic advantages which were awaiting my colonizing efforts for country alone. To this end I returned home to organize an expedition; but the promises made me were only partially kept. The inadequacy of my means compelled me to land at English ports in the Red Sea against my will.

UNION OF THE TRIBES.

"I was denounced to the British Government as a Turkish secret emissary. The expedition came to grief. I went alone and disguised into Somaliland, where I completed the organization of the tribal union, and, true to my principles, I gave the order that the Somalis should restrict themselves to the defensive against England. You see my orders were obeyed.

"As all support from Austria-Hungary was denied me, I went to London to further my intentions by direct intercourse with persons in authority at the Foreign Office; but all my attempts to come to a friendly agreement with the Foreign Office were frustrated by the prejudice that existed against me. My great idea is to win the uncivilized tribes of Africa for civilization, and this can only be done if the State which undertakes the noble mission grants full internal autonomy to the tribes and merely act as a representative of the interests of its protegés in international affairs. The war with the Somali tribes may last very long; longer, perhaps, than the Boer war."

There is also a letter from Emir Soliman Inger in to-day's Pester Lloyd, which begins; "Greetings and the blessing of God to you and to all my English friends, and to the Somalis now in the field." These letters and interviews may be regarded, perhaps, more as a practical joke than anything else. The "Emir's" statements, however, show that he is not merely a harmless political adventurer. He is prepared, given an opportunity, to do all the mischief he can.

Rome, Nov. 8.—Commenting on the alarm felt in some quarters at the threatened inundation of Italy by American goods, the Tribuna today points out that the trade returns for September show that Italy's exports to the United States have exceeded the imports therefrom by $800,000, and concludes that Italy has less to fear from the competition of the United States than other countries in Europe.

The Tribuna considers that even Italian wines can "find promising markets in America, notwithstanding the California vineyards."

Berlin, Nov. 8.—An international musical festival will be ehld in Berlin from October 1 to October 7, 1903, accompanying the dedication of the Richard Wagner monument. One day will be devoted to American and English music.

The committee expects Mmes. Emma Eames and Nordica and Walter Damrosch, Sousa, and perhaps Dudley Buck to take part in it.

All the great military bands of the world are expected here for the occasion, and among them the Turkish Janissaries' music corps. An auditorium seating 7,000 persons will be erected on Government grounds. Emperor William has been invited to become protector of the festival. Prince Henry will probably be honorary president.

Winnipeg, Nov. 9.—A Newdale despatch says: The Doukhobor pilgrims arrived here Thursday night about eight o'clock. Some of them were weary and footsore, while others were looking fresh and in good spirits. At about 7.30 Friday morning they started their march again, but the weather being cold and snow falling fast from 7.30 until 9 o'clock, four or five of their number expressed themselves as being hungry and cold, and started homeward at about 9 o'clock. They were all comfortably housed here last night, and were very orderly, praying and singing as they started out of town this morning. They expect to reach Minnedosa to-night. The weather has now cleared and is fine.

Berbera, East Africa, Nov. 9.—General Manning is pushing the preparations for an advance against the Mad Mullah, but he is hampered in his efforts by the fact that the country has so few resources, and the necessity of waiting for supplies.

The Mullah is profiting by the delay in the start of the British expedition. He has advanced to within a few miles of Bothom. He is known to have 2,000 rifles, one Maxim gun, with ammunition, 15,000 spearmen, and immense reserves of camel and sheep at his command.

Bothole is well garrisoned and has ample defences. It is impossible to prevent the running of guns to the Mullah through French territory, which is in constant progress.

WILL SEARCH TIBER

Professor Expects to Recover Many Rare Articles

Rome Nov. 10. Professor Ciro Nispiandi has obtained leave from the authorities thoroughly to search the bed of the Tiber River. He is confident that the mud over which the sluggish stream flows contains objects which, on account of their artistic and intrinsic value, are almost priceless, because for ages the Romans cast their most valuable possessions into the bosom of Father Tiber, as offerings to the god. Beside these, the professor expects to find an extraordinary variety of curious things in the way of armor worn by many soldiers who at different times were killed in battles on the banks and bridges of the Tiber.

The professor also hopes to find valuables cast into the stream by early Christian fanatics who considered it good work to destroy the symbols of heathen idolatry. The professor's views are strengthened by the fact that whenever bridges have been built and the banks of the Tiber strengthened treasures, often of great value have been discovered.

Sports and Pastimes

New York, Nov. 8.—The Inter-Collegiate Association of Amateur Gymnastics of America, held a meeting to-day at the Murray Hill Hotel, and re-organized for the coming season. C. B. Benny, of Princeton, was elected president, Carlos DeBrafra, of New York University, secretary, and O. B. Duerr, of Haverford, treasurer. It was decided to hold the annual inter-collegiate contest in the gymnasium of the New York University on March 27th, 1903.

RUGBY.

London, Nov. 7.—It is expected here that Bart Morrison of Toronto will be unable to make the declaration as to his amateur standing, as required by the O.R.F.U.

As to the affidavit submitted by the London representative, Mr. Gordon Crawford stated that it had been placed before the Executive under a misunderstanding. Mr. Crawford says that the affidavit was drawn up by Mr. O'Neil, lawyer, of this city, to be submitted to Mr. Peel for his signature. The pencilled signature was placed in by the lawyer himself as a guide where Peel should place his name. When the affidavit was presented to Mr. Peel it is claimed that he was not going to throw Morrison down. Hearn, also, to whom an affidavit was sent, is alleged to have refused to sign the document, he making a similar excuse. It is further alleged by the locals that Morrison was in communication with Peel and Hearn over the telephone, and by this means made himself solid in these quarters. The affidavit was submitted to the meeting purely in an error. Mr. Crawford notified the secretary of the O.R.F.U. to that effect to-day.

Shooting Accident

Ottawa, Nov. 8.—Alphonse Cusson, who keeps a hotel at Hurdman's Bridge, was the victim of a shooting accident to-day. Cusson traded a dog for a gun and was examining the latter, not knowing it was loaded. It suddenly exploded, a portion of the charge going through his hand, while the rest of it grazed his forehead. There has been an unusual number of such accidents around here this fall.

THE POLAR SEARCH

Millionaire Ziegler, who sent E. B. Baldwin to find the North Pole, is disappointed that he did not succeed. He will not send Baldwin again, but is resolved to find an explorer who will reach the Pole if it takes him ten years to do it. The new man is not to return without it. Baldwin's failure is ascribed to various causes, the death of his dogs, the scarcity of coal, the lack of sufficient provisions, and the mutiny of his crew; all of which every polar explorer has more or less to contend with. Peary's last voyage ended in a quarrel, and the desertion of of the ship's doctor. The fact is, human nature, born of the temperate zone, is unfitted to cope with the rigors of the long Arctic nights for more than two years at a stretch. Nerves get on the rack, tempers are soured, discontent breaks out on short notice, and all on board get tired and homesick. A grand "dash for the pole" appeals to the imagination, and many a rich man would be gratified to be associated with the feat by paying the bill. But the grand dash means a sledging party over the icy waste for some hundreds of miles. For years at a time there is open water. The explorer must wait indefinitely for the ice to form, and then in starting out he cannot be sure that it has formed all the way. If the pole were reached the party must return, which depends on the dogs' fitness. The dash back would be more desperate than the dash forward, both amid furious gales, biting blizzards and blinding snows. If the pole marked a gold mine, the quest would have more significance for the adventurer than the alleged claims of science. But about this there is too much uncertainty.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Magician Francis Clergue off the Soo says there will be 50,000 population there inside of three years, drawn by the wonderful water power which he has developed and hitched to the whiffletree of the car of western progress.

Americans are pouring into our North-West. They have already poured into British Columbia. Both these regions are in a fair way to become American, as might without the gift of prophecy have been foreseen. We are now told that an American syndicate is going to buy up New Ontario and turn it into an American settlement, Americans are investing largely in Canada and getting our commerce and industry into their hands. All this, but especially the influx into the North-West is received with satisfaction. British statesmanship is assiduously cultivating American friendship and even throwing out hints of a more intimate alliance. Meantime, Canadian protectionists are appealing to our patriotism for the adoption of an anti-American tariff, and the Public schools of Toronto are ordered to revive anti-American feeling in the breasts of children by hoisting their flags on the anniversary of the battle of Chateauguay. It is a curious study in the cross-currents of policy and sentiment.

Was Not Re-elected

We notice from the returns as published of the United States elections that Dr. Pendry's name does not appear in the list of successful candidates for the State Legislature. Dr. Pendry is an old Peterborough boy, and has been a leading member of the assembly at Albany, having been elected by a district in Brooklyn city, where he resides. When he lived in Peterborough he was on the Times staff. His defeat at the polls will be regretted by his many Peterborough friends. But it will be impossible to keep a good man down, and Dr. Pendry is sure to bob up somewhere very soon.

The proposal to have the assessment roll published is regarded by many as a good idea. On all sides one hears of assessment inequalities, and this, it is asserted, would be an excellent way to dispose of the grumbling, and also rectify any evils that exist.

THE NEW LIFE BOAT CANNOT BE CAPSIZED

Latest Form Given to a Device for Saving Shipwrecked Persons

NOW NO FEAR OF SHIPWRECK

Supplies of Food and Water Can Be Carried And Fresh Air Obtained

London, Nov. 3—Captain Doenvig, the Norwegian inventor of the new spherical life-saving boat gave a demonstration of his globe's capabilities off Dover harbor today before the British board of trade officials and representatives of shipping companies, who expressed themselves highly satisfied with the results.

The apparatus is made of light steel plates, is globular in shape, and is surrounded by a cork fender. It has a double bottom, containing cork banks which can be filled with fresh water to be used as a ballast, and as this is consumed salt water can be pumped to keep the balance of the craft. There are also compartments for preserved stores et cetera.

The globe is entered through three water-tight manholes. It has a ventilating shaft, and a sail can be set upon it. It is only eight feet in diameter, and would occupy 64 square feet of deck space, compared with 143 feet necessary for the ordinary ship's lifeboat. Owing to the construction it is impossible to capsize it. It can comfortably hold sixteen persons.

Doenvig said: "To show my faith in my life-saving globe a friend and myself were put adrift in it off Havre last Tuesday, when a heavy sea was running. We drifted about 24 hours. Then we were picked up four miles off Folkestone and towed into Dover on Wednesday. We suffered no inconvenience, and could have remained out a week or a fortnight just as well. This was not my first experience. Under the auspices of the Norwegian Life-Saving Society I gave a similar experiment off the Norwegian coast. These experiments have simply shown the entire seaworthiness of the little craft, and have justified everything I claim for it.

"Next time there is a big storm here I will have the globe taken out to Goodwin Sands and have it put overboard with myself and any friends who care to go with me. I would trust myself anywhere in it. Nothing could capsize or sink it unless it were battered to pieces, and, owing to its shape the waves have no force against it.

The only thing against it is its shape, which some sailors don't like because they never went to sea in a ball. But it will live down that prejudice. I was shipwrecked once off the American coast and understand what it means."

met him. For goodness' sake, why couldn't you take him? He's no beauty, but, by Jove! I shouldn't have thought there was a girl in England who wouldn't have snapped at the chance of being Mrs. Lionel Macaire."

"I would not have taken that chance," said Winifred. "He is a horrible man. But it was not offered to me. Rumor says there is a Mrs. Macaire—a woman he married long ago for her money, and perhaps drove mad, for she's said to be in an asylum."

"You mean, then——"

"Oh, Dick, don't ask me what I mean!"

Dick began walking up and down again, but his face was very grave, even sulky. He looked as he felt, personally injured by his sister's explosion.

"I'll bet anything you were mistaken," he said. "Girls are so morbid, they're always imagining queer things—especially girls on the stage. They're always thinking men want to insult them. I don't believe poor old Macaire meant anything of the sort. He's old—must be nearly sixty—not a bit of that kind. And why should he pick you out, anyhow, when there are such a lot of girls in the world?"

"Why, indeed!" echoed Winifred. "But whether you defend him or not, you certainly won't put me and yourself into his power by ——"

"Now you're talking like the heroine of a melodrama," exclaimed Dick, flushed with vexation, and looking very boyish, very handsome. "Tell me straight out how he injured you."

"He was furious because I spoke my mind to him, if you must know. I told him I loathed him—that he was horrible. He induced Mr. Anderson to discharge me——"

"How do you know that? Did Mr. Anderson or anyone else tell you so?"

"No. But I'm sure——"

"Ah, there it is. Just as I thought. What's the next indictment?"

"He—I believe now that he tried to kidnap me by hiring a man to bribe the driver of my cab one night, and——"

Dick burst into scornful laughter. "That's good enough for the Surrey side, but it won't do for West End drama!" he sneered. "Next, please."

"What is the good of telling you things if you won't believe me? Oh, Dick, I swear to you I'm not mistaken. Lionel Macaire is cruel as the grave. If he ever cared for me he hates me now, and he will never rest till he has had revenge. He said he would 'bring me to my knees.' For weeks he has been plotting against me. That company I joined in Brighton—so pleased because I was to have such a splendid salary and a lot in advance—was really his——"

"How did you know that? Did he tell you so?"

"No. But the manager did. He told me that Mr. Macaire was the backer. And it was all got up on purpose to humiliate me. If you were anyone but my brother you would have heard the gossip, you would have known about the wicked posters pretending to be pictures of me. It would have killed mother if she had seen them. I ran away because I would not play the part—and now that way has failed Lionel Macaire is trying another. Just what he means I can't see yet, but somehow he expects to hurt through you."

"You seem to think yourself a young person of some importance, my dear," retorted Dick, "that one of the biggest millionaires in the country should be fretting himself sick to get you 'in his power,' as you call it. If this is all a plot against you, and I'm a mere figurehead, why, your Hope Newcome Von Zellheim is in it pretty thick, too."

The taunt was a sword in Winifred's heart. With a moan, like a dove wounded to the death, she covered her face with her hands and sobbed.

CHAPTER XXXI.

Dick Gray in Clover.

Dick honestly believed that his sister was making a tremendous fuss about nothing; and, being a young man with a very good opinion of himself, he was nettled that she should put him aside as a mere dummy, a cat's-paw by which a chestnut was to be dragged out of the fire. Besides, he had been half frantic with delight at the thought of so splendid an engagement, and he simply could not give up the radiant prospect which for the last few hours had dazzled his youthful eyes.

He thought Winifred a pretty girl, and clever enough, but, being her brother, he was unable to realize the fascination she might possess for other men, and he was sure that she flattered herself far too much in fancy that a man like Lionel Macaire should be at such desperate pains either to win or punish her.

"I'll ask von Zellheim to come here, and you can talk to him," he said when Winifred continued to cry.

"No!" she ejaculated quickly. "He must not come here. I never wish to see him again. I shall write to him myself to-night and—tell him so."

"And the reason, too?"

"He will understand that well enough, without explanation. Dick, you will write to Mr. Macaire, won't you? Even if you think I'm mistaken, do this for love of me. Oh, you could not go to him—you could not shame me by living in his house, taking his money!"

"By Jove, what it is to talk business with a girl!" groaned Dick. "They fly into hysterics. I've given my word to Macaire to begin his work to-morrow. He's written to lots of chaps who were dying for it to say the matter's settled. I must have money somehow, for mother's sake and yours, as well as my own ——"

"Do you think I'd touch what you had from that man, or let mother touch it?" the girl flung at him.

Dick let the question pass. "I've debts to pay—more than you know of. I shall never get such another chance. Macaire hinted that if I did well he might think of me as editor of one of the papers he owns——"

"The one that told lies about your sister, perhaps!" cried Winifred, desperately. Never had she been really angry with Dick before through all the trying episodes of their youth together, but she was trembling and white with anger now.

"Maybe, if there were lies, that's the reason he'll get rid of the present editor, retorted Dick. "Anyway, my whole career's at stake, and I'd be a fool to give it up for a girl's morbid prejudice. I don't believe——"

"Don't repeat that again," she commanded, her eyes blazing. "I have told you the truth. You do not believe me. You do believe my worst enemy. I can say no more as to that. But I do say, Dick, that if you go to his house you must not come back here—not while you are in his pay. And you may tell him

AN INVESTMENT IN THE

Pitkin Gold Belt Mining and Reduction Company

Which is Safe and Sure of Quick Returns, may Bring an Enormous Return at any Moment. It has the Possibilities of Rivaling the Great Mines of the Past.

This Company has a mine on a true fissure vein, in the center of the Gunniston Gold Belt, Colorado, which is the "Mother" lode or dike, which has produced 55 per cent. more gold than the total output of the Cripple Creek district.

This Mine is no Prospect. Nor is it Waiting on Your Subscription to Buy Machinery or for Development.

After a careful examination by experts, Joseph M. Bradley, M. E. and Mr. George Arlett, A. I. M. E., Amalgamated Copper Company's expert in Chihuahua, Mexico, they advised the purchase of the property. The property had shallow development upon it, showing two ore shoots from which smelting ore had been shipped to the Buena Vista Smelter.

The Company purchased and paid for the latest improved machinery and has put a shaft down 250 feet and intend to carry it down 1000 feet. On the 150 foot level 200 feet of development has been made and an ore shoot has been encountered and blocked out for 57 feet, carrying values in gold from 2 to 9 ounces or $40 to $180 per ton. The cost of mining, hauling, freight and smelters charges will be between $12 and $15 per ton.

Ed. McCarthy & Co., bankers, guarantee a shipping mine of smelting ore running from 2 to 6 ounces in gold, or $40 to $120 per ton, by January 1st, 1903, or all funds will be returned to subscribers upon presentation of receipt issued by said bank.

Also to prospective purchasers of $1000 worth of stock we are offering a free trip to Colorado and return. You investigate first and purchase afterward. Could you expect anything fairer than this?

The capital stock of this company is $1,000,000, divided into 1,000,000 shares of stock at $1 each, full paid and non-assessable. A portion of the treasury stock is now offered at

25 CENTS PER SHARE—PAR VALUE $1.00

In one payment, or 20 per cent. down and the balance in four equal monthly payments, for necessary expenditures and improvements on a shipping mine.

PROSPECTUS

OF THE

LARDEAU MINES

LIMITED

(NON-PERSONAL LIABILITY)

Property in Lardeau Mining Division, West Kootenay District of British Columbia

Represented in the United States by the MINING SECURITIES COMPANY
Temple Court, N.Y.

Your attention is called to a comparatively new section of the World's surface, and at the same time to our own enterprise there, regarding which we invite the strictest inquiry and investigation.

During the past five years British Columbia has been brought, through the development of its remarkable mineral resources, from the condition of a comparatively unknown region to a place in the front rank as a field for the profitable investment of capital.

The political conditions are of the most stable character, and the mining and company laws fully equal to, if not more favorable to operate under than exist in any State or Province, either in the United States or Canada.

The total value of the mineral output of the Province of British Columbia during 1900 was $16,344,751. During 1901 it rose to $20,713,501, an increase last year of 25 per cent. It is estimated that the output for the present year will reach a total value of at least $30,000,000, and that within five years the production will equal that of any country in existance.

Our object in presenting these statements is to convince everyone of the high character of the country in which we are operating and at the same time, advertise our own business.

We are at present developing an extensive property in the Lardeau mining division of British Columbia. This property is owned by the "Lardeau Mines, Limited," a company having a total capital of $100,000.

The property owned by this Company consists of three full claims, embracing an extent of 156 acres—mineral claims in British Columbia are 1,500x1,500 feet—equal to 52 acres each in extent.

Three strong, parallel ore veins run through this property from end to end, a distance of 4,500 feet. If placed end to end this would give 13,500 feet equal to a continuous ore body over two and a half miles in length. The values are in gold, silver, copper and lead, and run from $25.00 to 77.00 per ton of 2,000 pounds. These results are from surface ore only, "grass root values," and are indications of permanent values of the most convincing kind.

We feel that such a property ought to recommend itself to any one who want to better their position and who may desire to invest with reliable people a small or large amount of money where it will earn permanent profits.

The gross value of shipments of ore aggregating 6,193,094 pounds from twelve mines in the Lardeau, all situated near the property owned by this Company was $453,410.81. Equal to a return per ton of over $146.00. The property owned by this Company shows up equally as well as any of these more fully developed mines, and will, we are convinced, shortly rank among the best in the Lardeau division.

In order to show why we are confident we are right, we will estimate our ore values at $50.00 per ton, a little over one-third of the average ore values of the entire Lardeau mining division. We will also base our calculations on a daily output of 30 tons—a small amount compared with the extent of our property and the size of its ore bodies. We will allow $10.00 per ton for mining, transportation (a few miles only) and smelting charges. The profits, after making a reasonable deduction for incidentals, and surplus work out as follows:

30 tons at $50.00 per ton		$1,500 00
Less $10.00 per ton mining, transportation and reduc. chgs		300 00
Net daily income		1,200 00

Total yearly net earnings		$270,000 00

which sum is equal to 270 per cent per annum on our capital stock of $100,000.

This estimate is made on the basis of a small output compared to the extent of our property and the splendid facilities it affords for economical mining and on the operation of the mine for 300 days per year only, so that anyone can see at a glance that we are not over-estimating in any particular, especially when the output of mines similarly situated, and with ore bodies of less extent than ours, ship hundreds of tons a day. There is no good reason why our property, when fully developed—and that is what we are working for now—should not ship several hundred tons of ore per day, but we are basing our calculations on the immediate future in presenting the above estimate.

The property is now being developed by a cross-cut tunnel which is in nearly 100 feet and when driven a few feet further will intersect a large ore body in Vein No. 2 at a depth of 85 feet, when drifting on the lead and stoping ore will be commenced, and the price of shares advanced accordingly.

The capitalization of this company is low—only $100,000—so that the enterprise is free from all suspicion of stock jobbing which has too often ruined many otherwise honest companies.

In conclusion we wish to say that this is a good mining stock which you can buy low, and which you can either keep as an investment or re-sell when it advances in price, for it will be but a short time until this stock cannot be bought for less than many times its par value.

To persons of small means who cannot afford to purchase high priced shares this presents an opportunity that will enable them to get an interest in a business that has paid more clean profits, made more millionaires and is today paying greater dividends than any other business in existence.

Engineer's Report

THE DIRECTORS,
THE LARDEAU MINES, LIMITED, ROSSLAND, B. C.

Gentlemen:—I beg to hand you my report on the three claims in the Lardeau District, owned by your Company, on work done on the "Lardeau Queen" and on results attained during the past few months. This claim, with the "Lardeau King" and "Lardeau Prince," all abutting end on end, through which the hereinafter mentioned leads pass the entire length, from the Royal Group, situated at the head of Lexington Creek, in the Lardeau Mining Division of West Kootenay, British Columbia.

These three claims are located on the western slope of Goat Mountain, the lines being north-westerly and south-easterly, and form one complete portion of mineral land of about 156 acres. They lie east, less than four miles up, from Fish River (to where both the C.P.R. and K. & S. Railway are now in course of construction) and twelve miles by level road to Comaplix or Upper Arrow Lake deep water landing. A spur up Lexington Creek to the "Royal" and other numerous mining properties will no doubt afterwards be built.

In addition to the two separate and distinct parallel ledges, of which you are already aware, I recently discovered about 650 feet from No. 1 vein, another ledge within the southwest boundary of the "Lardeau Queen," which we will call No. 3 vein.

The Royal Group lies in the "Sitting Bull" and "Wide West" Belts, two of the strongest and best known leads in that district, and what work has already been done on adjacent extensions has given most satisfactory results as to the extent of ore bodies and increased values with depth. Several claims on this lead have already hundreds of tons of shipping ore ready for transportation to the smelter.

The formation is slate and schist, lying in an immense lime dyke and the croppings of the leads are generally topped with heavy iron capping and quartz, which gives assays of from $8.00 up on surface.

Buildings, Etc.

A good horse trail to the mines has been built and all necessary buildings for general mining purposes have been erected adjacent to the creek and workings.

Veins and Work Done

Exploitation of No. 1 vein consists of two open cuts along the surface for a distance of 30 feet, which exposed a body of argentiferous galena over 8 inches in width. The value of this ore body was $35.00 on the surface, but at a depth of less than three feet it had increased to $40.00. To tap this ore showing and the massive iron-capped ledge close to which it lies the present tunnel was commenced, and is now in a distance of 60 feet. Another 25 feet of cross-cutting should reach this ledge at a depth of about 85 feet. When 48 feet had been driven an almost solid body of iron ore 3 feet thick was encountered in the tunnel lying against a wall of slate. A sample at this point assayed $77.00 in gold, silver, copper and lead. Before opening out on this ore body it is, I think, advisable to drive a further 25 feet, when I believe the main lead will be reached.

No. 2 vein which occurs about 250 feet above No. 1 vein, is an iron-capped ledge about 8 feet wide, showing an occasional seam of mineralized quartz with galena. The surface assays gave $3 and $18 in gold, respectively. Although not so strongly defined as No. 1 vein, it is easily traceable at intervals, throughout the full length of the property, 4,500 feet.

No. 3 vein is in strong evidence about 650 feet below the centre line of the "Lardeau Queen," and appears to be directly within its area and dipping directly (north) into the hill towards this claim. The width is from 10 to 12 feet of very heavy iron capping and quartz with bunches of galena occurring under the surface in the talc at intervals of from 3 to 4 inches. The assay results of the quartz (148) samples I brought you is decidedly encouraging, and I am satisfied that the clean ore will prove to be of a high grade.

Transportation Etc.

The certainty of an early advent of a railway into Fish River section is acting as an incentive to the numerous mining companies there, who are employing large gangs of men in development work, more especially in the vicinity of Lexington Creek, where the "ore from the grass roots" proposition preponderates.

The property has an excellent surface showing. The average assays are most encouraging, considering the great width and continuancy of the leads across the country with such great width and prominence of the surface and judging from other properties in the near vicinity, some of which are on the same lead and have developed very rich ore bodies.

In conclusion I would like to say the Lardeau Mines are as good as any, if not the best in the vicinity, and I verily believe, with a nominal expenditure, they should be made dividend-paying in a short time, and I would strongly recommend extensive developments towards that end.

Signed,

H. O. McCLYMONT, Mining Engineer.

STOCK MARKETS

Now Time to Reassume Bullish Position

New York, Nov. 8.—Prices are down considerably down. The Republicans control Congress while mercantile business keeps remarkably active, therefore railway earnings are well maintained, while the country has a record crop yet to haul to tide water and to dispose of while ruling prices for same are above the average, consequently stocks at the present time are logically a most excellent purchase. Apathy and apparent general indifferentness as to market values are at present hand in hand holding the market down. Prices consequently drift at the lower level, alternately weak, then strong, practically the play things of the larger floor traders. Exactly how long this condition of affairs will last no man can well determine. From looking over the situation carefully, however, weighing all factors having a bearing look on prices, it narrows down to the logical deduction that the next market movement should be in the direction of better prices. We fail to see how purchases made at the present time can show any material immediate loss, while indications appear most strongly that they will shortly show good profits. When an uncertainty reigns as to the possibility, when a dull market will break away from its lethargy and a strong indication can be determined as to in which direction the values will swing, once the dullness of a market rut is broken the proper thing to do is to immediately place your speculative or investment account in conformity with the conclusions to be drawn. If you do this now you will immediately purchase some stocks with the intention of hanging on to them until they show at least fully 5 points profit. Don't vacillate in a vacillating market. Many people who believe prices to be low at present will lose the buying opportunity by overstaying their market awaiting more decisive market indications.

Summary—The market declined directly after the opening until about eleven o'clock, when it steadied, falling again after bank statement. The statement showed decrease in both loans and reserve, bears apparently completely dominated the market, even selling the steel stock heavily; transactions at each eighth decline in these shares were extremely heavy. Bears gained additional courage as prices receded, while the bull element appeared to be disheartened In the last half hour there was an effort on the part of the bear traders to cover some of their sales. The smaller bears provided the shares thus absorbed by the larger, so the short interest instead of diminished while the number of proper short of the market was larger than for some time past. Money offered 5 per cent. Last loan 4 1-2. Sales — 642,300.

CORPSE IN CARD GAME

Gruesome Guest Present For Two Hours While Game Goes on

Quincy Ill., Nov. 8.—Wednesday night a dead man sat in a game of cards for two hours in the saloon of James F. Hedrich, at Eighth and Locust streets.

He had taken a seat as a spectator between two of the players, and while the cards were circling about the table he was dealt the cold hand of death. His head sunk forward on his chest and he seemed to be dozing. Once the corpse swayed against one of the players, who pushed it back to an upright posture, with the remark:

"Brace up, comrade, and have a look at the game."

The man was Fred. W. Reinke, aged 64, a veteran of the civil war, and a resident of the Soldiers' home. As he sat at the table with his white head bowed, his companions thought that he was sleeping.

Two hours after he had taken a seat at the table one of the card players attempted to arouse him to show him an unusually good hand of cards.

"Wake up! Look at this!" exclaimed the card player.

The player pushed back Reinke's head and held the cards before his face The open, vacant, staring eyes of a corpse were revealed to the men about the table. They pushed back their chairs horrified.

"Great God!" exclaimed the man with the good hand. "He's dead!"

Chairs were overturned. The cards were scattered upon the floor, and the corpse sank forward against the table.

When Reinke walked into the resort about 5.30 o'clock he told the proprietor's wife that he was sick, and asked her to make him a cup of coffee, and then sat down at a table where a number of men were playing cards. It was his last request on this earth. Mrs. Hedrich told him she would have to boil the coffee first. About a half hour later she sent her 15-year-old daughter Florence, into the room with the coffee. The young woman noticed that his head had dropped to one side, and he had assumed an attitude of one fallen asleep. His comrades brushed against him, and now and then one of them asked him not to crowd. Reinke made no reply. The game went on until 7.30 when Joseph R. Barnaby, one of the men who had been sitting beside him at the table and engaged in cards, attempted to awaken him.

His honor Judge McDougall Toronto, and father of Mrs. Dr. Young, town, was seized with a fainting fit while sitting at his desk in his chambers in the city hall on Wednesday last. He lay for 20 minutes quite unconscious. Dr. McFaul, of Carlton street, was called in, and had his honor removed from his chair to a couch, and after a rest he was able to talk quite freely and go home without assistance. The cause of the sudden disorder is attributed to overwork.

The Judge has many warm friends in Peterborough and immediate vicinity.

Upon examination it was found that three ribs, and possibly four, were broken in two places, and the doctor had the child sent to St. Joseph's Hospital, Ashburnham, for treatment.

—Yesterday's traffic over the C.P.R. was larger than usual.

—The Canadian Pacific Railway's net profits for September were $1,410,764, against $1,352,121, for the same month last year. For three months ending with September 30th, 1902, they were $3,940,367, compared with $3,754,300. Here are increases of $58,662 and $186,136, respectively. Gross earnings were considerably in excess of last year, but operating expenses also increased very materially.

Their Last Night

The Marks' Brothers closed their engagement here on Saturday night by presenting "The Deacon's Daughter" to a full house. The play is a tale of mining life, and illustrates the devilishness and craftiness of the Mexican, the wily twisting of the Chinaman and the honor and forgiving spirit of the Irishman. Some people thought the Irishman and the Chinaman were too much in evidence during the affecting scenes of the drama, but on the whole, the play was well rendered. Mrs. T. T. Emmerson was the lucky holder of the ticket that secured the handsome set of dishes. The Marks' Brothers were high in their praises of the way they had been received and patronized in Peterborough, and as they are gentlemen and good entertainers, they may be sure of a hearty welcome whenever they return to our town.

The Mantle of Death

Mrs. Wm. Laing is no more. Her spirit took its flight from the residence of her son, Robert, Water street, early on Saturday morning. Her life was as full of good deeds as it was of years, and her memory will ever be kept fresh and green by her children and immediate friends and acquaintances. She was born in Scotland, but came to this country when eight years old, settling with her parents, whose name was Savigny, in North Monaghan. About sixty years ago she was married to Mr. William Laing, who died some seven or eight years ago, after which event Mrs. Laing removed to Peterborough and resided here up to the time of her death. She leaves a family of fourteen to mourn the loss of a loving mother. Deceased retired Friday evening about 9 o'clock, apparently in her usual state of health, but in an hour afterwards she became seriously ill, and despite all that medical aid could do death came about midnight. The funeral takes place to-day from the residence of her son, Robert, 566 Water street, at 2 o'clock p.m.

Saturday's Market

There was a large crowd and a splendid offering of produce of all kinds at the market on Saturday, in fact it is admitted that it was the best market day in Peterborough for some time. The upper hall in the market building was jammed full of buyers and sellers. Fowl were very much in evidence, and the prices asked were very high. Twenty cents was demanded for eggs, but they did not find ready sale at price, and some had to take 18c. Outside, the square was surrounded by meat and vegetable wagons, and the buyers had plenty of choice. The quotations were as follows: Chickens, 40 to 60c. per pair; ducks, 90c.; geese, 75 to 90c. each; turkeys, $1 to $1.50, butter, 20 to 22c. per lb.; eggs, 18 to 20c.; potatoes, $1.10 to $1.25 per bag; parsnips, 10c. a peck; celery, 5c. a bunch; turnips, 25c. a bag; onions, 25c. a peck; apples, 40 to 60c. a bag; cabbages, 2 heads, 10c.; pears, 25c. a basket; tomatoes, green, 10 and 15c. a basket, tomatoes, ripe, 30c. a basket; cauliflowers, 5c. each; carrots, 10c. a peck; pumkins, 10 and 15c. each; beets, 10c. a peck; honey, 10c. a lb.; peas, $1 to $1c. bushel; hay, $10 a ton; pork, dressed, 8 to 9c. a lb.; beef, 6c. a lb.; lamb, 7c.; pigs, live (6 weeks old) $5 a pair.

OUR TOWN COUNCIL

The Times Invites Votes for the Best Man

WHO WILL BE OUR MAYOR?

The People are Now Interested in the Matter

The Morning Times Makes the Start—The Plan Likely to Awaken the Interest—Some Really Good Men are Talked of—Send your Votes in at Once by Letter or Leave Them at Our Office

In oder to induce people to take a greater interest in municipal matters The Times has decided to adopt a plan which has become so popular with many of the leading newspapers in United States and Canada.

Who will be our next Mayor?

Who is to represent us in the Town Council?

Probably never before has Peterborough been in greater need of careful, prudent legislation than at present. She has arrived at the period in her history when the movement will be either forward or backward; when retrenchments and a carefull overhauling of our civic expenditure is an absolute necessity with a view to greater economy. The ratepayers must be made to realize that if Peterborough is ever to amount to anything our taxes must be reduced. Half-way measures are utterly useless. The evil must be met in a careful, thorough, practical manner, and this can only be done by the selection of men who sit at our council board who will be pledged to cut down our civic expenditure to the lowest possible amount consistent with the dignity of the town, and a proper administration of our civic affairs.

The Times speaks its mind freely on all matters that concern the people, we should be sorry to offend anyone, and our purpose is not do so. If however, we have to speak plainly to accomplish the end we have in view and our language is not what some think it should be, we hope that they will appreciate our position, and give us credit for what we try to do fearless in advocating what we believe is for the best interests of the people. The result of each day's voting will appear in The Times from time to time.

As before indicated, the object of the whole thing is to excite interest in municipal matters. Everyone will have a chance to name the men they think best fitted for a position at the council board

HOW TO VOTE.

This is Toronto the Good

Mr. Percy Coward, of the Westminster Abbey Choir, had a thrilling experience and one which he will remember for some time to come when in Toronto last June. Mr. Coward had occasion to be passing up Yonge street late one evening, and when at the corner of Richmond street he noticed a man acting strangely across the street. Just then, to Mr. Coward's surprise, another man stepped out of a doorway and dashed a revolver in his face at the same time demanding money. Mr. Coward indignantly struck out and sent the highwayman to the pavement and then took to his heels. He ran into the arms of a policeman, but after explaining the circumstances was let go. He says he never had another such a scare in his life.

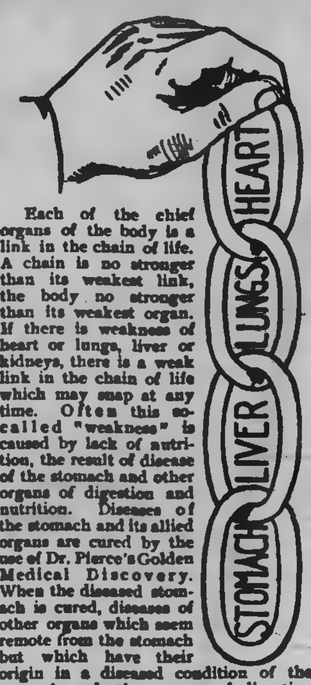
MIDY



Each of the chief organs of the body is a link in the chain of life. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, the body no stronger than its weakest organ. If there is weakness of heart or lungs, liver or kidneys, there is a weak link in the chain of life which may snap at any time. Often this so-called "weakness" is caused by lack of nutrition, the result of disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. Diseases of the stomach and its allied organs are cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When the diseased stomach is cured, diseases of other organs which seem remote from the stomach but which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, are cured also.

"I was in poor health when I commenced taking Doctor Pierce's medicines," writes Mr. Elmer Lawler, of Volga, Jefferson Co., Ind. "I had stomach, kidney, heart, and lung troubles. Was not able to do any work. I had a severe cough and hemorrhage of the lungs, but after using your medicine a while I commenced to gain in strength and flesh, and stopped coughing right away. Took about six bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I feel like a different person. I gladly recommend your medicine to all sufferers, for I know it cured me."

The use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets will cure that foul breath.

INDIA'S MANY MILLIONS UNDER BRITISH RULE

The Census Shows Over Seven Millions Increase During Last Decade

Decrease in Native States Was Due to Plague and Famine—Thousands Die From Snake Bites

London, Nov. 11—The total population of British India, according to a statistical abstract issued by the India Office recently is 294,360,356. This is an increase of 7,136,836 on the census of 1891. Unfortunately, the increase is only to be found in the British territory, for in the native states there is a decline of 2,565,922. This is undoubtedly due to the plague and famine, says the London Chronicle. For instance, in Baroda the population last year was 944,045, whereas in 1891 it was 2,415,396. Equally startling are the figures in the Rajputana agency, namely, 9,619,965, as against 12,016,102, and in the Bombay States 6,908,-648 against 8,059,298. Indeed the difference per cent. in the native States between the two periods shows a decline of 5.43, the population of 1891 being 66,-047,487, while in 1901 it is recorded as 62,461,549. In British territory the increase is 4.85 per cent. The largest towns are Calcutta, with a population of 1,006,307; Bombay, 776,006 (a decline of 45,758 on the register of 1891, due mainly to plague), and Madras, 509,-346.

The religions of India also supply striking figures. There are 207,146,422 Hindoos, 62,458,061 Mohammedans, 9,476,-750 Buddhists, 2,923,241 Christians, and 18,228 Jews. Of the Christians 453,462 describe themselves as members of the Church of England, 221,846 as Baptists, 76,907 as Methodists, 53,861 as Presbyterians, 37,874 as Congregationalists, and 1,202,169 as Roman Catholics.

Millions Illiterate.

There is no return for 1901 of those unable to read and write, but the figures for 1891, which are given, are interesting. No fewer than 113,000,000 males and 127,000,000 females ten years age were unable to read a newspaper or write a letter, and it is hardly possible to imagine that these figures have been very materially reduced.

The expenditure last year on famine relief was £4,125,230 an amount nearly double that spent in 1899-00 when of course the suffering was not so great. In 1897-8 the period of the previous memorable outbreak, £3,560,405 was spent in relief, a third of which sum was given away in gratituous relief. Last year £1,430,712 was granted as gartituous relief. The revenue provided by the "famine grant," established in 1877-8, now amounts to a total of £25,000,000, and of this sum £23,568,209 has been spent, leaving a balance of £1,431,611.

The total number of letters and postcards posted in India last year was 400,-369,482, an increase of 40,000,000 over those despatched in 1899-00. In the Post Office Savings Bank there was deposited at the end of the year a total of 29,-090,476 rpuees, an increase of 1,073,409 on the figures for the previous year. In 1892-3, 1893-4, 1895-6 and 1896-7 the sums deposited were considerably larger but the last year's total was bigger than that recorded since 1897.

In the agricultural statistics of British India it is shown that 30,056,002 acres are now irrigated, whereas in 1891-2 the figures were 27,232,430. The area under food grains last year was 182,825,146 acres, which is nearly 10,000,000 acres more than in 1891-2. The total area cropped last year was 236,162,539 acres (the Punjab claiming 23,870,190), and the total area irrigated was 30,056,002 acres, of which the Punjab owned 8,446,506 acres. This shows the extent to which irrigation has been carried in the northern province.

Extension in Railways.

Railways have been considerably extended during the past few years, the mileage in 1892 being 17,894, whereas last year the total was 25,373. In 1901 there were 613 miles added to those existing in 1900. The gross earnings under this head last year totalled £22,432,806, while the working expenses amounted to £10,-605,501.

Tea to the value of £5,708,534 was exported to the United Kingdom last year, the amount exported in 1899-1900 being £5,527,462. The total amount exported was valued at £6,267,287.

The British army in India last year numbered 3,317 officers and 72,326 non-commissioned officers and men. In the native army, there were 1,578 British officers, 2,761 native officers and 137,320 native non-commissioned officers and men and there were 30,846 efficient volunteers.

The number of persons killed in 1900 by tigers was 943 and those bitten by snakes was 22,301 but the latter figure cannot be relied upon for the reason that relatives frequently poison an undesirable member of the family and register the death as due to "snake bite." The number of wild beasts destroyed was 17,250 and the slayers received rewards amounting to 1,004,007 rupees. No fewer that 97,910 snakes were killed, the financial recognition totalling 2,218 rupees. In this case also, however, the rewards were found to give rise to a flourishing and profitable industry in snake rearing.

Seeking to Obstruct Britain

Keeping Germany Quiet While Delagoa Negotiations are Pending

Higher Wages for Native Miners—Average Fixed at $12.50 Per Month—Heavy Blow to Principle of Arbitration

London, Nov. 10.—A special correspondent of the Times says in a despatch from Mohammerah, Persia, that the recent developments in connection with the reorganization of the Persian customs service by Belgian officials in the Karun district compel him to modify a previous statement. In spite of occasional complaints, says the correspondent, there at first seemed no reason to believe that the new administration was inimical to British commercial interests, but high handed measures taken at Mohammerah without warning, which measures are a violation of specific engagements entered into by the Persian Government, augur a settled purpose to obstruct the expansion of British trade by the Karun route, the moment it promises to acquire increased importance by the development of means of communication in Central and Northen Persia. Urgent representations in regard to this matter, adds the correspondent, have been addressed to the British Legation at Teheran. The correspondent concludes by stating that this incident, coupled with the establishment of a Russian Consular agency at Ahwaz, where there are no tangible Russian interests, is regarded as preliminary to an organized attack on Great Britain's commercial, if not her political position, in Southern Persia.

BETTER PAY FOR MINERS.

London, Nov. 10.—A despatch from Johannesburg says the Chamber of Mines has agreed to the proposal that higher wages be paid to natives employed in mines, the average being fixed at $12.50 per month. This will probably improve the chances of recruiting native labor, but it is feared that the scarcity will not be entirely overcome by raising the men's pay.

TO CONTINUE STRIKE.

London, Nov. 10.—"You have dealt a heavy blow to the principle of arbitration." This message, says a Paris correspondent, was telegraphed by M. Basly the coal miners' parliamentary champion, to the delegates of Nord and Pas De Calais miners, who resolved on Saturday to continue the strike. The correspondent says the delegates' meeting is said to have been a stormy one, but that the decision to continue the struggle was nearly unanimous. The miners talk of asking the companies to arrange a fresh conference and a new form of arbitration, but, says the correspondent, the companies are sure to decline to engage in further parley with delegates capable of such a breach of faith. It is calculated that the strike in Nord and Pas De Calais departments has caused a loss of about $6,500,000. The negotiations with Loire miners have been broken off.

ORDERS DISCUSSION TO CEASE.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 10.—The Minister of the Interior, M. Dr Plehve, has made a fresh attempt to stop the discussion of local questions by local committees appointed to investigate the conditions of agricuture. Circulars have been sent to the Governors of all Provinces in which committees are sitting, saying that the discussion of "general questions must cease." The Marshal of the Nobidity of Orel Province has announced that M. De Plehve's interference is irregular, and should be disregarded by the committees.

BRITISH COLLIERIES SCHEME

A Pooling Arrangement to Resist Encroachment of American Trusts

Birmingham Nov. 10—The latest version of the syndicating of the collieries of the United Kingdom, represents the scheme as formulating a combination similar to the German coal ring, with the view to regulating prices and wages and resisting the encroachment of American trusts.

It will be a pooling arrangement, under which, in the event of part of the collieries closing owing to strikes or over-production, the owners will be compensated from a national reserve fund.

It is expected that as the movement is patriotic, aiming to keep the trade in British hands, the miners will cooperate.

MOLYBDENUM IN METHUEN

Rich Vein of This Precious Mineral Near Sandy Lake

About two years ago while Mr. Cowan of Marmora was picking huckleberries at Sandy Lake he discovered a mineral, samples of which he sent to the assay office at Kingston. The mineral proved to be Molybdenum. He purchased the lot on which the mineral occurred and it has since been secured by the International Mining Co., of Buffalo, who have men engaged in prospecting the find now.

Molybdenum is utilized in the manufacture of a special brand of steel. It is worth about $400.00 per ton in the ore. As it usually carries about 50 to 55 per cent. of Molybdenum it can be worked exceedingly profitably.

HAS THE RIGHT THING

A New Machine Invented for Manufacturing Peat for Use

Stratford. Nov. 10—Mr. W. J Henry, formerly of Woodstock, who now lives in Stratford, has filed an application for a machine which he has invented for cutting and pressing peat. He believes it is emminently superior to any machine now in use and he proposes to turn it to the fullest advantage by engaging in the peat manufacture himself. Mr. Henry is at present looking for a suitable location. He has spoken with some of the Stratford G.T.R. officials in regard to a switch and if he selects property close to the railroad one will probably be put in. According to present calculations Mr. Henry is confident that he can manufacture 20 tons of peat per day at such a cost that he will be able to sell it at $2.25 per ton on cars at Stratford station.

It is the intention of the Club to make the Driving Park the headquarters of all kinds of athletic sports., Mr. Arthur Rountree, the popular and energetic Secretary of the Club, has charge of the renting of the grounds for matches, etc.

The Club are also preparing for the big winter meet which is to take place in January. It is expected that some of the best horses in the country will compete, as the purses are to be sufficiently large to attract them.

MR. BUNTON'S PARTY

Mr. "Billy" Bunton, the popular local ticket agent of the Grand Trunk Railway, has been selected to take charge of a party of 25 capitalists now on their way to Arizona, California and Nevada.

The party are going out to inspect mining properties of the Douglas Lacey Co., and the enterprising Toronto manager, Mr. W. E. Watson, will be the host. Mr. William Bunton, passenger agent of the G.T.R., Peterborough, is in charge charge of the party and will see that they lack no attention on their three weeks' trip. The route selected after leaving the Grand Trunk at Chicago is via the Santa Fe System to Prescott, Arizona, where two days are spent, thence to Los Angeles and San Francisco, returning via the Southern Pacific, Union Pacific and Chicago and Northwestern roads, stopping at Ogden, Salt Lake, Denver and Chicago, then to Toronto over the Grand Trunk.

A Lady Says:

Paine's Celery Compound Has Been Worth Hundreds of Dollars to Me

A Happy and Complete Cure After Eighteen Years of Awful Agony

All weary and disheartened sick people and those who have lost faith in the remedies they have used in the past, because none of them would give indications of cheering results, should now be filled with a strong determination to make use on the one medicine that cures disease—the new agent of new life that saves hopeless and despairing sufferers after all other agencies and means fail.

The thousands of victims of tormenting neuralgia, after reading the testimony of Mrs. G. H. Parker, of Winona, must see, that to avoid a continuance of suffering and the possibility of sudden death, it is absolutely necessary to use Paine's Celery Compound, the only medicine that successfully banishes neuralgia and kindred nerve diseases. Mrs. Parker says:

"I have been a great sufferer from neuralgia for nearly eighteen years, and my sufferings at times were so bad that words fail to describe them. After having tried a host of remedies, I was persuaded to try Paine's Celery Compound. I am happy to say that I am now a different woman and completely cured. I can recommend Paine's Celery Compound; it has been worth hundreds of dollars to me."

BERLIN BEET FIELDS CLAIM CITY CHINAMEN

Montreal Celestials Will Assist in Saving Crop From Loss

THE NEGOTIATIONS ARE NOW ON

Mr. Lee Chee Says 150 Will Go—Wages to be $1.00 Per Day

Montreal, Nov. 10—There is a scarcity of labour in the beet fields in the neighborhood of Berlin, Ontario, and the Ontario Sugar Company has undertaken to solve the problem by engaging a number of Chinamen from Montreal.

The negotiations with the Celestials have been confided to Mr. Lee Chee, who is now engaged in trying to persuade three or four hundred of his countrymen to go to Berlin and work for one dollar per day.

Up to the present, not very many of the Chinamen have been induced to regard the suggestion favorably. They have become imbued with western ideas and think that the wages should be higher.

Mr. James Fowler, the secretary of the company, will be here on Monday, and all the Chinamen who have by that time been gathered together, will be taken to Berlin at once. Mr. Lee Chee expects to be untimately able to get at least 150 men and perhaps more. It is understood that the engagement of those men has been done entirely on the initiative of the Ontario Sugar Company, who know they will be needed, and have resolved to supply them in order to save the crop from any loss. From Berlin the men will be sent in groups wherever they may be needed.

MUNICIPAL LIGHTING PLANT

Peterborough has Facilities for Doing its Own Lighting

It might be worth while for Peterborough to consider the advisability of putting in a light plant at water works dam, which is the property of the town The town of Nelson in British Columbia has not been afraid to venture into the field of municipal ownership, and the first results are of a most encouraging nature. According to one of the local papers, the town—or, as they prefer to call it, the city—paid $5,000 for the waterworks system in 1897, spent $101,580 on improvements, collected $44,-839 in water rates, at an operating expense of $9,072. After providing for all charges, the people of Nelson are $18,-900 in pocket, through owning their waterworks service, and $23,676 ahead through owning their electric light service, since 1897. The town was incorporated in that year, and the electric light and waterworks taken over by the municipalities and these two services since then have profited the municipality to the aggregate of $42,648.

The rates have not been raised to the public, the services have been good, and the town has received the profits that would have gone into private pockets.

ANCIENT EGYPT

Lecture by Mr. Hampden Burnham at the T. A. S. Hall

Mr. Hampden Burnham, who has many times previously shown himself to be an accomplished and eloquent speaker, delivered a most comprehensive lecture last night on the physical conditions of Ancient Egypt and the advanced civilization, the political history and the daily life of its inhabitants. As the time at the disposal of the lecturer was very limited, it was impossible to go over the subject in detail, but a distinct and vivid picture of the period in question was presented to the audience.

It is expected that Mr. Burnham will in the early future give a lecture, or series of lectures, in the T.A.S. hall, and this will be lookedforward to with interest and pleasure by those at least who had the good fortune to be present last evening

A vote of thanks to the speaker was moved by Mr. F. McAuliffe, seconded by Mr. Jas. Hickey, the audience responding in a hearty manner on request of the chairman.

The musical part of the program consisted of a charmingly rendered instrumental duet by the Misses McCabe and Doherty, and vocal solos by Mr. Jas. Brown, Mr. John King and Miss May Callaghan, the accompanist for the latter being Miss Bessie Weir. Miss Denard also contributed towards the greater enjoyment of the evening by a most expressive reading.

At the conclusion of the entertainment Rev. Father O'Brien spoke a few words in praise of the pleasant evenings afforded the members through the efforts of the literary section, and hoped they would always be as well patronized.

Mr. R. Begley, the chairman, announced that a social evening will be given at the rooms on Thursday evening, to which all members are invited. There will be a debate in two week's time on the subject, "Resolved: That Trial by Jury Should be Abolished."

The evening was brought to an early conclusion with the singing of "God Save the King."

MR. CHAMBERLAIN'S WOOING

Invited to Take "Pot Luck" And Finds a Wife

New York, Nov. 10—Here is how the British colonial secretary, the Rt. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain met his wife in America. One day he called on a lady who happened to be giving a girl's luncheon. She went out at once to greet him, and said laughingly that, if he did not object to being the only man present, she would be delighted for him to come into the dining room and take "pot luck" in the vacant place of one of her girls guests who had not turned up. Timidity has never been a weakness of Mr. Chamberlain—even in the presence of the fair sex—and he accepted the invitation gaily By the chances of war he found that the absent girl's seat, which he occupied, was that of Miss Endicott, daughter of the secretary of war, and, as American newspaper men would say, "one of the greatest belles of the day." The outcome of this was the marriage between the English politician and the "Puritan maiden."

THE KAISER'S POWER ON ENGLAND'S SIDE

His Visit May Result in the Acquisition of Delgoa Bay

The Kaiser Does Not Hold the Constitution in a Very Great Reverence—The Kaiser's Personal Influence

London, Nov. 11.—On its face the visit of the German Kaiser William II. to King Edward is merely a courtesy of relationship on the King's birthday, Nov. 9th, but it has been accorded by some an important political significance because of the synchronous visit of the King of Portugal. The inference is drawn that the reunion of these royalties may be made use of for the partition of the Portuguese possessions in South Africa between Great Britain and Germany. Britain has been long in negotiation with Portugal for Delagoa Bay on the east coast, with the important strategic port of Lorenzo Marquez, but patriotic pride and the Portuguese capacity for surviving a depleted treasury have always combined to prevent the consummation of a bargain. If the former objections to parting with her colonial possession to overcome in Portugal, it would seem only natural that the present meeting of the chiefs of the nations mostly interested should bear fruit in that direction.

If the Kaiser's visit to England has the effect of modifying the feelings of antagonism that has arisen in consequence of the commercial encroachments of Germany and the supposed ambition for its dominance as a naval world power it may be well. Yet England would be better assured were the Emperor to assert some of the paramount personal influence which he possesses to curb the expression of ill will which at times is rancorous throughout the Empire and is unconcealed in the highest circles of the public press. Constitutionally Kaiser William is under the same restraints as to his official utterances as the King of England is, but the constitution counts for but little when the monarch chooses to assert his personal authority. As a German writer says: "He has declared himself in favor of projects or impending measures; he has proclaimed a new policy or an important alteration of an old one: he has launched the ship of state into the troubled waters of a dangerous adventure, without even first consulting with his chancellor. This he did throughout the Hohenlohe regime, and he has done it on several occasions since the present chancellor (Von Buelow) came into power. The seizure of Kiaochou was a step undertaken not alone without the knowledge of the chancellor, but directly against his will. If Germany at that time had become involved in war with China, that war would have been due to a flagrant violation of the constitution by the Kaiser. Public declarations have been made scores of times by the Kaiser, condemning or approving men and measures, without previous consultation with his chancellors. Yet while thus ignoring the constitution himself, the Kaiser has when such utterances of his were adversely criticised prosecuted such critics whom he advised to shake the dust of the fatherland off their shoes." The Kaiser has wheeled round on the agrarian agitation, which he declared in 1894 meant "bread usury." He now says, "agriculture is the back bone of the country, and it must be protected." As we know, the protective policy has taken form in a duty intended for the exclusion from the German Empire of Canadian wheat. He coined the phrase about the "greater Germany," and said, "Our future lies upon the water," and more strongly, "Without the consent of Germany's ruler, nothing must happen in any part of the world." Surely a monarch so powerful, having the loyal support of the German people, and compelling attention by his forceful personality, could do much to abate the tone of bitterness that has for years pervaded the press, yet it has continued, and even the chancellor, whose counsel the Kaiser disregards, has taken free rein to verbally chastise the most forceful character in British politics.

BRITISH STEAMER WRECKED NINETY SIX DROWNED

A Serious Fire in New York Last, A Number of Lives Lost

Inhaled Illuminated Gas--Carry Nation Bobs Up Serenely, Cut a Man's Ear Off

Melbourne, Australia, Nov. 10. — The British steamer Elingamite bound from Sydney, N. S. W., for Auckland, has been wrecked on Three Kings Islands. Forty-one of those on board the steamer were saved, and ninety-six are missing.

New York, Nov. 10.—A serious fire broke out to-night in the wooden frame work on top of the 300 foot steel tower of the New Williamsburg bridge at the foot of Delancey street. The flames spread to the false work along the main cables of the bridge, causing showers of blazing timbers to fall in the river. Owing to the danger to passenger craft from small cables hanging down to the water, the police have stopped all traffic on the river. Four workmen are reported to have lost their lives.

New York, Nov. 10.—Sarah Frost, a widow, Henry Frost, her son, and Jas. Kiley, a boarder, were found dead from inhaling illuminating gas in their apartments in West 37th Street to-day. The rubber connection of a gas range had accidentaly become detached during the night.

Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 10.—Despatches from Skagway give brief details of a story of withchcraft and superstition in the Hoonah Indian village, forty miles from Juneau.

Although quiet and peaceable, the Hoonah Indians are superstitious, and nearly ever year one or more members suffer violent deaths.

Several days ago the Indians took a man who was believed to be possessed o fa devil, and made him the victim of frightful atrocities. His ears were cut off, and his body frightfully hacked in an unsuccessful effort to drive out the demon.

The victim was troubled with epileptic fits, which continued under the ill-treatment. He was buried alive in the earth and his scalp cut off. Officers have started to the scene from Juneau on a special steamer.

New York, Nov. 11.—The Black Diamond express, the Lehigh Valley Railroad's show train, jumped the tracks out on the Hackensack meadows in a manner which the management of the railroad say is inexplicable. Mrs. Carrie Nation, H.D., of Kansas, was one of the passengers. After the accident she jarred the officials of the railroad and the other passengers, who, like herself, had escaped serious injury, much more than the accident itself had disturbed them.

Fifteen or twenty persons were hurt by the accident. Some of them were knocked unconscious, and many were faint and in great pain. Some quick-witted person ran to the dining-car of the train, which had not left the rails, grabbed two bottles of whiskey and supplied the contents thereof liberally to the wounded and frightened. Mrs. Nation promptly threw a fit that for violence and general incoherrence was right up to the Home Defender standard. She bounced up and down the rows of helpless victims of the accident, begging them not to sell their immortal souls by tasting the vile poison, and threatening those who were administering the stimulant with present bodily chastisement and future damnation.

When the bruised were bandaged and the one or two who were hurt badly enough to be taken to the St. Francis Hospital in Jersey City had been cared for, a special train was sent out from Jersey City to take the Black Diamond's passengers through to their destinations. But Carrie wouldn't go. She wanted to see the officials of the railroad. Mauch Chunk could wait. The accident had shaken up the contents of Carrie's teeming brain and there was something doing.

She appeared not long after the accident in the office of the claim agent of the railroad in Jersey City. She said that everybody told her that he was the man she wanted to see.

"I was in that accident that happened to your traveling gin-mill out here," she began. I tell you it's a crime. The curse of rum, my borther, and of cigarettes——"

"Your name, madam?" said Mr. Solliday.

"Why, say young man," said his visitor, in unassumed astonishment, "don't you know me? I'm Carrie Nation, Home Defender. I'll give you my autograph. I find that it is considered an interesting souvenir. Now, as I was saying, the curse of rum ——"

"Were you hurt in the accident? madam?" asked the claim agent.

HEART WAS BRUISED.

"Why, of course I was. That's what I was going to talk to you about. My poor heart was bruised and almost broken by the way rum was poured out on that train. The Devil could not have done his work better if he had been on earth to attend to it himself."

"Did you receive any direct injuries to your person, madam?" inquired Mr. Solliday, eying a long list of callers waiting in line in his outer office.

"I suppose," said Mrs. Nation, with an expression of slighted dignity, "that a man who will let his assistants sell rum to the innocent thinks it is right to insult innocent ladies when they come to him to save his soul from hell and rum, but——"

"How much money do you claim for your damages, madam?" said Mr. Solliday.

"I don't want a cent," she said, all good humor and pleading smiles again. "I've got a little cut here on the back ofmy head, and another off my shoulder. They don't count. I won't charge you a cent for the hurt you did my body. I won't lose a cent. I can get to Mauch Chunk in plenty of time to keep all my engagements, and that is all right. In consideration of my not suing you anything, and you know I could if I wanted to, I ant you to make me just one little promise."

"Surely, madam," said Mr. Solliday.

Mrs. Nation continued:

"It has always hurt my feelings to have dining-cars made into traveling gin mills, the way all railways do. I want you to smash every bottle of rum on your trains. Now, you will, won't you? Do it for my sake."

"But our passengers ask for it," protested Mr. Solliday.

"That's the Devil asking for them. You oughtn't to let them have everything they ask for. Now, please, won't you smash your rum bottles? Let me do it," she added hastily, as Mr. Solliday searched for a reply.

"Rum is a curse," she began, again. "It brings all kinds of trouble."

"It does, madam, it does," murmured Mr. Solliday. His visitor looked at his countenance and sniffed in scorn.

"I've got to go now," she said. "But I think there is some good in you. You may be saved yet, and your railroad with you. Just think what an advertisement it would be for your railroad. 'No selling gin mills on this line.' Good-bye."

AMERICAN INVASION OF BRITAIN CONTINUES

Immense Docks and Warehouses to be Erected in Manchester England

A Scheme to Facilitate the Handling of American Goods—It Will Greatly Develop Trade

Manchester, Nov. 10—The Guardian this morning makes an announcement of a new American enterprise which it says is more important to this city than the establishment of the International Mercantile Marine Company of a direct steamship service between Boston and Manchester.

The Guardian says the new venture has been planned and in all likelihood will shortly be executed by a syndicate of New York capitalists. Arrangements have already been completed for the purchase of eighty acres of land on the south bank of the Manchester ship canal on which it is proposed to construct wharves for ocean steamships, and a large docks and warehouses for the storage of cotton and other produce.

The promoting company will also furnish the necessary machinery and the money to enable American producers to sell direct from the warehouse to English spinners and merchants and also to give the latter an opportunity of purchasing cotton in America on c.i.f. terms with ample security. The scheme will allow the merchants to hold the cotton until it is required for consumption without locking up its equivalent in capital.

The Guardian says the enterprise, which will greatly develop the trade of Manchester, is part of a scheme to extend the American system of marketing produce, particularly cotton, to England, and the continent. It is also proposed to erect similar warehouses at Havre, Bremen and several other European ports.

The promoters of the scheme will hold a meeting in a few days and will explain the plan to the Manchester cotton and industrial interests in order to obtain the cooperation of these concerns.

PETERBOROUGH, NOV. 11, 1902.

TUBERCULOSIS AND ITS CURE

Of vast importance to humanity is the congress which assembled in Berlin recently to discuss the great problems connected with the disease of tuberculosis. Delegates were present from all the countries of Europe, and the United States. All medical authorities agree that consumption is the greatest scourge that afflicts humanity, some going so far as to assert that its victims outnumber those of all other diseases combined. The great object of the Berlin Congress is to find the best means of prevention. Its conclusions with regard to the housing of the working classes, the sanitation of factories, the establishment of sanitorii, hospitals and homes for consumptives, and also concerning the various systems of treatment followed in different countries, will be submitted for the approval of the several governments of the countries represented by the delegates. It having been ascertained the consumption is contagious under certain conditions, it has been suggested by an English delegate that measures for proper treatment and isolation, if necessary, might be taken. Opinion appeared unanimous in the congress against expectoration in public places. When this subject was discussed in this city among aldermen recently it was thought that this dirty habit could not be suppressed. But it has been pretty well overcome in several European cities, and it is wonderful how soon people learn to abandon a habit when they discover that it entails discomfort and punishment on themselves. In waging war against this terrible destroyer every means possible should be taken to educate the public, for every home is interested, and every man, woman and child should be made conscious of his and her responsibility to aid by personal conduct in preventing the spread of this disease.

THE DOUKHOBOR MUDDLE

One would think, from reading our newspapers, that whether a thing was a fact or not a fact depended on the party one belonged to. According to the Conservative press the Doukhobors are all Crazying, or, at least, the numbers of them that are doing so amount to a national migration. According to the Liberal papers the number affected by fanaticism is insignificant. One party sees nothing but folly and mischief in a people that came to Canada under the auspices of the other party. Such religious excitements as the recent access of vegetarian piety and more recent tendency to go on a pilgrimage to meet the returning Saviour are to be looked for among a people with no ideas that are not religious, cut off from the world's affairs and interests and carrying simplicity of living to the point of intolerable monotony. Our own condition of thronging interests and of so-called news tumbling in upon us to distraction, is productive of nervous exhaustion with many morbid consequences, but it is possible, on the other hand, to furnish the mind with too little to think of. Those who are always on the rush lose the highest things of life; those who have neither by reading nor intercourse any world to live in and work for lose the balance afforded by earnest endeavor towards adequate ends.

NEWFOUNDLAND AND CANADA

The question of confederation with Newfoundland and Jamaica which was before the Toronto Board of Trade a day or two ago, is made up of two very different propositions. Newfoundland is naturally a part of Canada. Its solidarity with Canada is a matter of first-class importance. Its separation is a menace to Canada. Should it fall into the hands of a foreign power it would render Canada's position very uncomfortable, and there is a foreign power which has taken just such advantage of us at the other end of the country. Newfoundland is not diverse in character and interest from Canada. Before confederation its people shared with those of the other maritime provinces the name of Blue Noses, and the group, including Newfoundland, were commonly spoken of as one in character and interest. There were at that time less than a hundred thousand people in Newfoundland, but this handful, having self-government, was able to decline to enter the union with the rest. We should lose no opportunity to get them to change their mind. The very opposite in some respects, is the Jamaica proposition. Instead of being a guarantee against another power getting its arms around us, it would be putting our arms around the United States in a way that would make that country feel disagreeable. It would be importing into our affairs other problems of a most distressful sort. Jamaica has on its hands the sugar question, just now at a crisis, and what is far more serious, the color question, which can, we think be far better solved on the spot than in parliament at Ottawa. There would not be enough of black men at Ottawa to form there anything like the celebrated Irish brigade at Westminster, but whatever there was in the color question would be distressful, and it is a problem which, unlike the French shore question, we have no call to adopt.

LOVES THE KING'S DAUGHTER

Austin Chamberlain Would Marry the Princess Victoria

London, Nov. 10—The clubs today are discussing a story to the effect that Austin Chamberlain, the newly appointed postmaster general, is in love with Princess Victoria, King Edward's second daughter. The princess, it is said, returns the affection and the engagement of the two is possible. Their difference in social position is probably insurmountable but it is pointed out that the king's well known democratic ideas might lead him to obviate this difficulty. Princess Victoria is the only unmarrried child of the king and was born in 1868.

COAL STILL HIGH

The Fuel Situation Is Still Unsettled in Peterborough

Coal still keeps at $15 a ton in Peterborough, although almost every other town sells it for less money. Toronto has had its first consignment of coal, as also has nearly all the larger cities of Canada. Peterborough will likely be getting some in soon.

Here are a few points about economizing in the burning of coal that may be worthy of note.

When it is understood that the same amount of fuel is consumed in producing either gas or heat it is readily seen why one person will use four times as much coal as another without producing any more heat, if as much. When feeding coal, after the fire is made only a small quantity should be fed at a time and that spread evenly over the surface of the fire, for when fresh coal is added it for a time lowers the temperature of the fire box—just as pouring cold water into a pot of boiling water stops the boiling by lowering the temperature—until the added coal is heated up to the igniting point, when it first begins to burn and adds its heat to the mass. When but little coal is added this lowering of the temperature will be hardly noticed, but add a large quantity and it can be plainly seen.

When Buying Mining Stock Buy the Best

AN INVESTMENT IN THE

Pitkin Gold Belt Mining and Reduction Company

Which is Safe and Sure of Quick Returns, may Bring an Enormous Return at any Moment. It has the Possibilities of Rivaling the Great Mines of the Past.

This Company has a mine on a true fissure vein, in the center of the Gunniston Gold Belt, Colorado, which is the "Mother" lode or dike, which has produced 55 per cent. more gold than the total output of the Cripple Creek district.

This Mine is no Prospect. Nor is it Waiting on Your Subscription to Buy Machinery or for Development.

After a careful examination by experts, Joseph M. Bradley, M. E., and Mr. George Arlett, A. I. M. E, Amalgamated Copper Company's expert in Chihuahua, Mexico, they advised the purchase of the property. The property had shallow development upon it, showing two ore shoots from which smelting ore had been shipped to the Buena Vista Smelter.

The Company purchased and paid for the latest improved machinery and has put a shaft down 250 feet and intend to carry it down 1000 feet. On the 150 foot level 200 feet of development has been made and an ore shoot has been encountered and blocked out for 57 feet, carrying values in gold from 2 to 9 ounces or $40 to $180 per ton. The cost of mining, hauling, freight and smelters charges will be between $12 and $15 per ton.

Ed. McCarthy & Co., bankers, guarantee a shipping mine of smelting ore running from 2 to 6 ounces in gold, or $40 to $120 per ton, by January 1st, 1903, or all funds will be returned to subscribers upon presentation of receipt issued by said bank.

Also to prospective purchasers of $100 worth of stock we are offering a free trip to Colorado and return. You investigate first and purchase afterward. Could you expect anything fairer than this?

The capital stock of this company is $1,000,000, divided into 1,000,000 shares of stock at $1 each, full paid and non-assessable. A portion of the treasury stock is now offered at

25 CENTS PER SHARE—PAR VALUE $1.00

in one payment, or 20 per cent. down and the balance in four equal monthly payments, for necessary expenditures and improvements on a shipping mine.

Write for further particulars and prospectus. Remit by postal, express money order, draft or check to Ed McCarthy & Co., Trustees, Galveston, Tex., or

COMPANY'S STOCK AT 35 CENTS

California Oil Stocks Have Paid Millions in Dividends

KERN COUNTY (SUNSET DISTRICT) OIL COMPANIES PAID

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS IN DIVIDENDS IN AUGUST ALONE

MORGAN IN THE OIL INDUSTRY--NEW YORK FINANCIER AT THE HEAD OF A $20,000,000 COMPANY TO EXPLOIT CALIFORNIA FIELDS

Bakersfield, Cal., Sept. 27.—J. Pierpont Morgan is about to identify himself with the oil business in California. On October 12, or a few days later, surveyors will be put into the field, and will run lines to the ocean from Sunset, Coaling, McKittrick, Midway and Kern River fields to determine by which route it is most feasible to transport oil to tide water. The surveys will run over the coast range at a number of points, and also will go down the San Joaquin valley parallel with the line of the Standard.

A company having a capitalization of $5,000,000 has been organized for the construction of lines, pumping stations, storage tanks, and the like. Mr. Morgan and his associates have also formed a separate company, capitalized at $20,000,000, half of which will be invested in proven ground and the other half turned into a reserve fund.

It is stated that the Morgan syndicate will be prepared to handle 2,000,000 barrels the first year, and will increase that amount at the rate of 1,000,000 a year until the whole demand of the market is met.

THE ST. PAUL & SUNSET OIL COMPANY own and control a large tract of absolutely oil proven asphalt land in the very heart of the best oil producing land of Kern County, California, the district where flowing wells are situated. We have a bed of Liquid Asphalt underlying a portion of our lands. Our property is situated right at Sunset Station. A new line of railway is surveyed and will be constructed in a very short time, putting us not only in touch with Eastern cities, but in touch with tide-water. This, in addition to the railroad facilities we now have. Remember that we own our land—it is paid for and entirely free from debt.

ST. PAUL & SUNSET OIL CO.'S GIGANTIC TRACT

will be developed and should prove a formidable rival for the new company.

PROFESSOR DR. RUD J. SCHIMPER, Analytical and Expert Chemist, of St. Paul, makes the following statement relative to the composition, what can be produced and the estimated profits of the Sunset Crude Oil. A copy of the original certificate can be seen at the office of the St. Paul & Sunset Oil Co., which is in substance as follows:

"This is to certify that the undersigned, Dr. Rudolph J. Schimper, Chemist expert, member of Parisian Academy, according to analysis made from the crude oil furnished me by the St. Paul & Sunset Oil Company, I find the following valuable products and with each beg to submit my estimate of its value:

1. LIQUID RUBBER—2000 lbs of this crude oil (6 bbls.) will produce 1,800 lbs. of liquid rubber, value of which is from 25c. per lb. and up. (Estimated value $450.00.)
2. SOLID RUBBER—2000 lbs of this crude oil (6 bbls) will produce 1,700 lbs. of solid rubber, value of which is from 30c. upwards. (Estimated value $450.00.)
3. FUEL BRIQUETTES—2000 lbs. of this crude oil (6 bbls.) will produce 2,000 lbs. (1 ton) of fuel briquettes, which, according to government tests made, is equivalent to two tons of best anthracite coal. (Estimated value $22.00)
4. ASPHALTUM—2,000 lbs. of this crude oil (6 bbls.) will produce ½ ton of asphaltum, value $25 to $35 per ton. 25 gal. of lubricating oil, value 50c. per gal. and upward. 40 gal. illuminating oil, value 30c per gal. and up. 60 gal. of distilled oil, value 5c. per gal. and upward. (Estimated value $54.50.)
5. SOAP—2000 lbs. (1 ton) of crude oil and filling will produce over 2,000 lbs. of soap, value 3c. per lb. and upward. (Estimated value $60.00.)

In my opinion many other valuable products can be obtained from the oil of that famous field.
Respectfully,
DR. R. J. SCHIMPER, Chemist Expert."

THIS goes to show the immense profits that will accrue from our products when refined. We expect to commence Building Our Refinery in the very near future. The sale of the next allotment of stock will be made for that purpose. The largest flowing wells in California were brought in adjoining our property and their stock was taken off the market. We employ the best drillers who report rapid progress on our wells and we expect to bring in gushers equal, if not to excel any in the Sunset field. Our General Manager, Superintendent and Drillers, all are experienced oil men. The officers of our company are all thorough, competent and efficient men who have always made a success of their undertaking in life and who will see that the welfare of the St. Paul and Sunset Oil Company is furthered, portected and promoted to the most advantageous extent possible.

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS SHOULD BE PAID STOCKHOLDERS.

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS should be paid to the stockholders of the St. Paul and Sunset Oil Company when their property is fully developed, their refinery equipped and in full operation. ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS IN DIVIDENDS was paid by Kern County Oil Companies during the month of August alone.

SIX MILLION BARRELS is the consuming capacity of the Southern Pacific Railway engines, which are now equipped for burning oil. Outside of this consider other railway lines, smelters, factories, steamships, stationery engines, which are all heavy consumers of fuel oil and last but not least, hotels and private dwellings are falling in line with the procession in the use of fuel oil.

A GOOD REASON WHY YOU Should Invest in the stock of St. Paul & Sunset Oil Company. More fortunes have been made in oil than any other business. Consider the immense amount of money the Standard Oil Company has made for its fortunate stockholders, and the California oil companies have done better in proportion to their capitalization than the Standard Oil Company. Here is what $100 has accomplished for those who invested that amount in the following California companies in the beginning of their career:

Home Whittier $1,000 on an investment of $100.
Kern returned $2,200 on an investment of $100.
Peerless returned $1,800 on an investment of $100.
Dillon returned $2,500 on an investment of $100.
New York returned $30,000 on an investment of $100.
Union returned $150,000 on an investment of $100.
Home returned $50,000 on an investment of $100.

THERE is no reason in the world why the St. Paul and Sunset Company's oil holdings and property, when developed and handled, should not bring like returns

CONTRARY to the general supposition the earth is the repository of all mineral wealth. When it is known and demonstrated beyond a question of a doubt where its wealth reposes and you put your money up to take it out, your money is invested. Hence you are an investor, not a speculator. A proven oil producing property does not draw its profits from the people but creates new wealth. It is therefore an investment.

Wonderful Increase in Value of Oil Stocks.

The rapid rise in the value of shares in some oil companies will be seen from the following table:	Original price per share	Present Market price
Black Mountain Oil Co.	$ .05	$ 1.50
Central Oil Co.	.30	1.50

STOCK MARKETS

Bearishness Becoming Prevalent Among Active Speculators

New York, Nov. 10—Among the class that are active daily in the market it is becoming extremely fashionable to work upon the bear side of the market. These daily scalpers are taking their cues and views from the Waldorf Astoria party and the extreme indifference at present to market conditions and offerings in making the present downward drift. All kinds of stories are put in circulation about a certain coterie of western speculators being left long of the market to quite an appreciable extent, while the vague suggestions are being made that their long holdings are gunnes, for it produces as a result an extremely treacherous market—one that when the turn does come will be clean cut and decided. Sugar has been singled out and specially attacked, being selected as the bear target by the leaders. Among the better class of railway shares excellent buying is discernable at every eighth decline, but the buyers show no aggressiveness or tendency to bid against the bear operators, merely a willingness to buy their offerings as made. The western party stoutly maintain their faith on the bull side and claim the short interest to be at present time unusually large, stating that they base their opinions upon the immense line of stocks they are loaning in many instances privately at a rate considerably below the current price for money. It is their contention that the bears will over-do the matter, running themselves into a trap. The last sensational speculation upon the bear side of sugar occurred last December when the price rapidly dropped from 125 to 103 1-4. The inevitable rebound came, carrying the price to 135 1-8 the following March and the bears lost heavily. The remarkable excellent buying of Union Pacific is based upon the forthcoming annual report, which is expected to show nearly ten per cent. earned upon the common stock the past 12 months. One thing is certain that when the turn of the market does come it will likely prove a sharp one; meantime for day to day speculation it would be a falacy to combat the statement that one man's guess was not as good as another's.

Summary—The dealings at the opening today were on an immense scale; it was a genuine bear raid and this contingent had no hesitation in circulating the questionable rumours usually identified with their tactics. The rumor of the serious illness of J. P. Morgan was scattered broadcast, demoralizing the stocks and bringing about excessive liquidation. Bull interests saw the hopelessness of giving support under such circumstances, so the market was left to itself. It rallied around noon and especially in sugar, Mo. P., Union Pacific, and A. C. P., but reactions continued till near the close when a new rally set in and placed many stocks as high as they were at Saturday's close, St. Paul, Penna B.R.T. Sugar showing up splendidly. It shows that the buying power is always at hand at any low level, and that with railroad and industrial prosperity undimmed the bull side of the market can hold its own. Such reactions form an excellent foundation for a bull market, weak holdings having sold out and the best support in the world being near at hand, that in bear covering. Money closed at 3 per cent. Sales 1,298,100.

The Moonstone Sphinx

why your mother and sister will not see you."

"Speak for yourself!" exclaimed Dick. "Mother and I will be one in this. We're only each other left in the world now."

• • • • • • •

Winifred slept not at all that night. She told herself that never before had she known what real unhappiness was. She could have borne to give up her lover, but to know him unworthy—to know him, to whom she had surrendered her whole confidence, her whole heart, in the plot against her, perhaps from the very first—seemed more than she could bear and live.

Early in the morning she heard Dick stirring in his room, which was next to hers. At first she hoped that he had risen betimes to come and tell her that he was sorry for last night, that he had made up his mind, if only for her sake, not to go to Lionel Macaire. But she soon found out her mistake. Dick was packing. He did not even come to her door before he went, though he passed it, dragging the box, which he would leave in the hall outside for the janitor of the flats to carry down.

"If only he tells Lionel Macaire why I have refused to see him—my own brother—while he lives under his roof!" she thought. At least she would like to feel that Macaire had little upon which to congratulate himself.

But Dick had no intention of telling his new employer anything of the kind. If, as he argued, he "went blabbing" to Macaire all Winnie's silly fancies, probably he should soon find himself out in the cold. Naturally, Macaire would not wish to keep for his secretary a young man whose sister imagined that he entertained a wild passion for her and plotted for her undoing. He had decided not to say anything to young Baron von Zellheim either, for what von Zellheim heard Macaire would hear also, as they appeared to be such intimate friends. Winnie had said that she would not explain; von Zellheim "would understand" why he was forbidden to see her, without that; and whether he did understand or no was not Dick's business. Winnie and von Zellheim could fight their quarrel out between them.

Dick was rather unhappy for a few hours, for he was fond of Winifred in his way, and was sorry to have gone against her, though he did not for a moment really regret what he had done. But, established in his new quarters at Macaire's beautiful house, far more magnificent than anything he had ever seen, his spirits bounded up again. Macaire treated him right royally, and Dick was more indignant than ever that Winnie should cherish such unjust suspicions of so good a fellow.

He found that he was not Macaire's only secretary. There was another, an elderly man of a retiring disposition, who apparently loved work for its own sake; but he was on a very different footing in the big household from that on which Dick was at once placed. Either from his own choice or because Macaire preferred it, this person had his meals served in the room where he attended to his correspondence, and was seldom seen outside it, except when taking instructions from the millionaire; while, on the contrary, Dick was constantly in request. His daily task, apparently, was to do nothing more arduous than sending out or answering notes of invitation to entertainments, though even that bade fair to occupy him for a couple of hours each morning.

The first day in his new berth he lunched with Macaire and half a dozen rich city men, who had been asked to the house. He drank a great deal of champagne, smoked several cigars, which he thought fit for Olympus, and was excited and happy, contrasting the present with the past in scorn of the latter. The man who sat next him at the table took him quite seriously, despite his youth, and talked so alluringly of the stock market that Dick resolved as soon as he could scrape enough sovereigns together to go in for a little plunge of his own.

That afternoon he went with Macaire to the Park to try a pair of two thousand-guinea horses. Not a word was said about Winifred, who seemed to vanish into the background, appearing of less and less importance among so many really big interests in her brother's eyes.

Macaire was dining out in the evening, but a dinner was served for Dick such as could have been prepared at only a very few of the best London hotels; and that the millionaire's famous chef, whose salary was one thousand five hundred pounds a year, should exert himself for the insignificant second secretary, was flattering.

Dick was just finishing a bottle of Nuits St. George, which filled his veins with a tingle as of electricity, when a footman of whom he still stood in awe informed him that Baron von Zellheim was anxious to see him. "Ask him to come here and have a coffee and liqueur with me," commanded the young man with his lordliest air; and two minutes later Newcome, still in morning dress, was shown into the dining-room, looking pale, even haggard.

"Nothing at all for me, thanks," he said, impatiently brushing Dick's hospitality away with a gesture. "Do you mind having in what you want and sending the servants away?"

Dick did mind the strain of dismissing such stately beings, but he managed it with the best grace he could, and he and his guest were left alone.

"I don't know that I ought to have come to you," said Newcome, "but I couldn't resist. If you think I have done you a good turn in introducing you to Macaire, for Heaven's sake be frank with me, and tell me if you know what I have done to offend Miss Gray."

This was exactly what Dick did not wish to do. He would have given a good deal if Newcome had begun the attack in a less straightforward way, but he determined to hedge.

"Is she offended?" he enquired. "I haven't seen her to-day. I—er—left home before she was up."

"I had a letter from her this morning forbidding me to attempt to see her again or to write, and offering not a word of explanation. Of course, I could not sit still under that. I did go to see her—immediately. But the door was not opened."

"Perhaps she was out," suggested Dick. "There's no servant in the house; though of course that and many things will be different now that I'm making money."

"She was at home. The janitor told me that before I went upstairs. She must have been firm in her resolve not to see me. I then sent her a letter by messenger, imploring her to tell me what I had done, to give me a chance at least of defending myself. The letter was returned to me unopened in an envelope addressed by her. I am absolutely at a loss to understand it. The only thing left was to come to you. For Heaven's

Back from Japan

He was thrown from a rig in China and had his back badly injured, and the doctors advised him to take several months rest.

Peterborough Protestant Home

The Committee of Management of the P.P. Home gratefully acknowledge the following donations for the month of October: Mark Street Church, vegetables; Mrs. Durnham, Toronto papers; Mr. Salisbury, reading matter, a bag of apples, "a friend"; Mr. A. Dean, reading matter; Mrs. J. B. McWilliams, clothing; Mrs. Brown, reading matter; Mrs. Ragg, apples and citron. The annual meeting on the P. P. Board will be held Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 11th at half-past three. All interested in the work are cordially invited to be present.

What Peterborough Lost

A railway to Bobcaygeon from Peterborough would be a good thing for both our back country friends and ourselves. For about seven months out of twelve Bobcaygeon and the country north is shut out from civilization except by the primitive stage lines. The following from the Lindsay Post will tell its own story:—"The extent of trade between Lindsay and Bobcaygeon is well exemplified these days in the immense quantities of freight taken away daily by the steamer Manita. In addition the Trent Valley Navigation Co's tug Ajax takes away a scowload of coal oil, salt, flour and feed, etc. every couple of days. Bobcaygeon is the winter supply points of a very extensive territory in which much lumbering is yet done, and the merchants have to lay in large stocks to tide them over till navigation opens again."

Another Fast C. P. R. Run

On Wednesday last owing to a delay at Smith's Falls, the C.P.R. train for Toronto made a specially quick run to make up time, and when it reached the Union Station had made up one hour and nine minutes of the time lost. Deducting stops, the running time shows that the average rate of speed between Smith's Falls and Toronto was 47 miles per hour; this includes the slow-downs necessary to pass through the yards at Toronto and at the larger towns en route. This speed made with a train of seven heavy coaches shows the character of the motive power and rolling stock of the Canadian Pacific, and also the high state of the roadbed between Montreal and Toronto.

Malt Breakfast Food

Builds Them Up in Flesh Bone and Muscle

Malt Breakfast Food is the only cereal food that children will keep to and relish from day to day. It has a delicious flavor that captivates the taste and makes it a favorite. Oatmeal and other forms of grain foods are injurious to the stomach and digestive organs of the little ones because of the presence of insoluble starch. Malt Breakfast Food is free from starch, therefore easily and quickly digested by the youngest children. Malt Breakfast Food is specially recommended for the babies after weaning. It affords all the elements for solid flesh forming and bone and muscle building. Try Malt Breakfast Food, dear mothers, it will give you wonderful results. Grocers everywhere.

LIVE LAKEFIELD LOCALS

Events Transpiring in Our Pretty Northern Village

—The Times is the people's popular paper here.

—Mr. Craig, of the Craig House, has still a number of summer guests, who "linger on the lap of summer."

—The creditors of the defunct bank would like to know how it was that the bundle of notes valued at $3,000 came to be in the Traders Bank at Port Hope, and if they were hypothecated as stated by Mr. Linton, how the late manager came to get possession of them. This should be cleared up at once.

—Now that the saw mills of the Dickson Company have shut down for the season, the village is a trifle on the quiet side. Mr. Thompson, the popular superintendent, has a gang of men at work making a lot of improvements. Mr. Thompson believes in keeping everything in first class shape.

—The new mills of the Lillicrap and Tate Lumber Company are now ready to begin cutting. Steam was got up yesterday (Monday) for the first time, and everything found to be in tip top shape.

—The absence of so many of our villagers who are away on the hunt is quite noticeable.

—The steamer Alert is kept busy bringing in wood, which is being shipped to Toronto and other places.

—The steamer Majestic is kept at work towing and has more than she can do.

—The work on Dam. No. 3 is progressing under the management of Mr. Ed. Wade.

—Mrs. J. M. Kilbourn, of Owen Sound, has been staying in the village for some time with Mr. Kilbourn. She proposes to return home in a few days. During Mrs. Kilbourn's sojourn here she has made many warm friends who will regret her departure.

—The congregation of the Presbyterian church will hold a bazaar in the town hall, on Thursday, Dec. 4th. Something special may be looked for.

—Mrs. Whaley, of Toronto, was in the village last week visiting friends.

—Mrs. J. Blewett left last week for Carberry, Man., where she will join her husband.

—Mrs. P. Daptie and Miss Maud, who have been visiting friends in Orillia and Norwich, have returned home.

—Mrs. S. Lauder, of Bridgenorth, was in the village last week, visiting friends, the guest of Mrs. G. Fitzgerald.

—Mr. Jas. Jory has returned home after spending a few months in Manitoba and British Columbia.

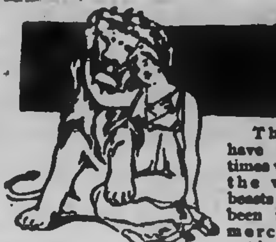
—Mr. H. H. Bingham, third year under-graduate of McMaster University, Toronto, preached in the Baptist Church last Sunday morning and evening.

—The many friends of Mr. Clarence Belt will be pleased to learn that he has been transferred from his post as clerk in the central office to that of assistant clerk in Chambers, Osgoode Hall, Toronto.

—Miss Armstrong, of Smith and Miss C. Trenwith of Port Hope, were the guests of Miss Sherin last week.

—A bad smash-up occurred here on Sunday. A team of horses, belonging to Mr. Leary, of Peterborough, ran away while in the yard of the Craig House and smashed the rig all to pieces.

—The Lakefield Cement Company are increasing their storage capacity by the erection of an addition to their present buildings, which is now well under construction. They will also erect a new building 30 x 120 feet, which will contain a six hundred horse power motor for grinding. The power to drive this motor will come from No. 3 dam, which is owned by the Company. The capacity of the works will be doubled.



There have been times when the wild beasts have been more merciful than human beings, and spared the woman cast to them in the arena. It is astonishing how little sympathy women have for women. In the home the mistress sees the maid with the signs of suffering she recognizes so well, but she does not lighten the sick girl's load by a touch of her finger. In the store the forewoman sees the pallor and exhaustion which mark womanly weakness, but allows nothing for them. It is work or quit.

Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well, by curing the womanly diseases which undermine the health and sap the strength. "Favorite Prescription" establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

"When I first commenced using Dr. Pierce's medicines," writes Mrs. George A. Strong, of Gansevoort, Saratoga Co., N. Y. "I was suffering from female weakness, a disagreeable drain, bearing-down pains, weak and tired feeling all the time. I dragged around in that way for two years, then I began taking your medicine. After taking the first bottle I began to feel better. I took four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, two of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' one vial of the 'Pleasant Pellets,' also used one bottle of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Now I feel like a new person. I can't thank you enough for your kind advice and the good your medicine has done me."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the most desirable laxative for delicate women.

THE TERRIBLE RUIN CAUSED BY VOLCANO

Further Particulars of the Eruption of Soufriere on October 15th

New York, Oct. 11—An account of the latest eruption of La Soufriere, St. Vincent, on Oct. 15, more disastrous in its effect on the vegetation of the island than any since May 7, and entailing greater money losses, has been received by a woman in this city from Miss Newsam, daughter of ex-Colonial Surgeon Newsam of Kingston. She says:

"Again I am writing to tell you of an awful eruption of La Soufriere which took place on Oct. 15. Happily there has been no loss of life, but the damage to property is far greater than in any eruption since May 7, owing to the immense fall of "sand" and stones. In Kingston we saw nothing of the eruption until about 8 p.m., when (as on May 18) we noticed a puff of white steam a little to the left of Mount St. Andrew's with the lightning running up it. It was a bright moonlight night and the effect of this silvery white cloud was lovely. This lasted for about an hour, accompanied by intermittent roars like thunder.

"By 9 p.m., all was quiet and the cloud which had increased in size and grown a dull gray gradually dispersed. Every one hoped the danger was over, at any rate for that night, but by midnight we were again made aware by the sudden bright flashes and distant roaring that the terrible forces of nature were at their deadly work.

"By 1 a.m., the sky was an appalling sight, from St. Andrew's right over to Cane Garden. One mass of black and gray cloud with that terrible lightning which we have so learned to dread, all through it. No one could ever describe that lightning nor could one imagine it. How can one describe it when one sees fifty different kinds of flashes in one second. Ribbons of red and yellow flame with balls of fire strung through them, things that looked like long skeleton fingers darting at you, branches of trees, long snakes of living fire, and, quite apart from the flashes, four purple and crimson flames glowing at the same time in different parts of the cloud.

"By 2 a.m., it was at its height, and the roar from the crater was perfectly deafening, it being about three times as loud as on the 3rd of September. This was supposed to be entirely the new crater, and so was far more east than the previous ones; the windward side of the island getting a double share of hot sand and stones, and leeward getting comparatively little.

At Kingstown the sand commenced falling about 2 o'clock. It is quite different to the dust which fell on May 7, being just like river sand, black and heavy, and the same as the stuff which fell at leeward on Sept. 3. It sounded like a very heavy shower of rain and we were relieved that no stones came, but rather feared for the roofs of small houses as this sand is so heavy. It is less unpleasant than the former "dust" as it falls off the plants &c., from its own weight, but is is just everywhere and terrible was the sweeping of roofs and clearing out of gutters the next day.

"It seems to have a particular fancy for getting into one's hair, which, is I think, the most unpleasant of all. In town is half an inch deep and weighs one pound to the square foot. In Georgetown it is nine inches deep and at "Grand Sable" an estate belonging to the H—'s, it is seven inches deep, and the estate buildings are riddled with stones, and not a blade of grass is left for the stock to eat. At Mesopotamia it is supposed to be twelve inches deep. At Mount William estate everyting is in a terrible way, for even the young cocoa pods were knocked off the trees.

"There is hardly a soul left in Georgetown. All the people who owned shops and stores there are bringing their goods into Kingstown. Altogether the outlook for St. Vincent is terrible. This eruption lasted all night, and all next day you could see the columns of smoke curling up into the sky. Since then (the 15th) both craters remain active, and though not visible from Kingstown are sending up thick black smoke and flame. Several shocks of earthquake were felt in the places nearer the Soufriere, but in town only some slight earth tremors were noticeable.

It is an anxious time, and apart from the depression everywhere one wonders how it will end.

A BOER GENERAL'S LECTURE IN BRITAIN

A Boer's Candid Opinion of the British and Boer Leaders

THE AFFAIR AT SPION KOP

Will Always Remain an Enigma to the Boer Generals—Interesting Reading for British

London, Eng. November, 11—When Gen. Ben Viljoen, of the late Boer army, delivered his opening lecture at the Queen's Hall there was not a large attendance, the stalls, for which half a guinea and 5s were charged, being almost empty.

With a smile the General said that he had been surrounded by the British force and had been in some tight corners before, but he had never felt so uncertain about his future as he did then. He had inspected all the exits carefully with a view to retreat. Sketching rapidly the history of the Boer nation, he said his own ancestors were Huguenots, who emigrated to South Africa at the time of their persecutions. Germans and Dutch also emigrated, and the Boers were a conglomeration of the three nations. Further, numbers of English, Irish and Scotch settled in the Transvaal, and they had people fighting on their side who knew not a word of English, and yet bore such names as Macdonald, Kelly, Brown and Jones.

"I hope," he said, slyly, "you will not be shocked if I say we might be distantly related to you."

The Boers, he went on, traced the war back to the "deplorable Jameson raid, coupled with the hasty manner in which the diplomatic gentlemen on both sides broke off correspondence. "If they had taken a little more time and used a little more common sense and considered humanity a little more this war might have been prevented." Then there was Majuba. The English thought they had an old score to wipe out; the Boer was rather inclined "to have another go" because of Majuba. Further there were the dissatisfied mining magnates, who had more money than they knew what to do with, and wanted more power.

"NEWSPAPER HEROES."

He lightly pictured the Boer generheroes. "We had generals," he said, "who would have been better as parsons, and others who could earn money as clowns. I don't know whether I am justified in saying that perhaps you would find some of those in your own army." Gen. Philip Botha, was the bravest man they ever had; Louis Botha was responsible for Colenso and Spion Kop and Delarey was able to entertain Lord Methuen for over two years. De Wet was one of the newspaper generals, but not by his own choice. The correspondents represented him as surrounded and on the eve of capture, and London was breathlessly awaiting his capture many times when he was perhaps a hundred miles away.

"When a drive failed," said Viljoen, naively, "the generals had to make a report in such a way as would satisfy you, or a question might be asked in Parliament."

Paying a tribute to the self-reliance of the Boer in the field, he said he also lacked discipline, which was remedied by the free use of the sjambok. In the later stages of the war they were badly fed, unless they could borrow some food from the British army. They had also to borrow clothes from Tommy. The British officers were very unwilling to part with their uniforms, especially the puttees. "In the exchange," he added, "sometimes an eyeglass got lost, and the officers got very indignant, and it was a source of great trouble with us."

THE SEVEREST FIGHT.

Spion Kop was without exception the most severe fight the Boers took part in, said the general. Whatever possessed the British officers to abandon the position the Boers could never make out. It was a Chinese puzzle to them to this day.

The audience laughed at this and took some criticisms of our generals with tolerance. Gen. French was lucky that he never had a mishap. Lord Kitchener they respected as a fine soldier who always keeps his word. The Boers would give to Gen. Buller a part of the grant made to Lord Roberts. Generals Warren and Carrington were old officers, who were 'left' right from the fall of the flag." Tommy Atkins was over-disciplined. The infantry fought hardest and well. Some of the cavalrymen did not seem too comfortable on the top of their big horses, and wanted more hands to look after their helmets and guns and keep themselves from falling off. The willingness and patriotism of the British soldiers were the foundation of the army.

Gen. Viljoen gave an interesting account of the battles he took part in, and of his life at St. Helena after his capture. His prediction that British and Boer will settle down peacefully together was well received.

DOUKS QUIET ON TRAIN

Stories of Their Fight with the Police Were Exaggerated

Minnedosa, Man., Nov. 10.—Another chapter in the history of the Doukhobor pilgrimage was completed Saturday night with their forcible deportation from Minnedosa to Yorkton.

The special train, which had been expected early in the afternoon, had been delayed, and did not reach Minnedosa until nearly 5 o'clock. Meanwhile a solitary member of the Mounted Police, stationed at the door of the rink, was sufficient to restrain any attempt of the new missionaries to continue their wanderings. However, trouble began when the Doukhobors were informed they must entrain for home.

Mr. Speers called upon them to follow him, which they did, out of the rink until they reached Main street, when they indicated their intention of continuing their pilgrimage to Winnipeg. Many of them, when seized by the arm, walked quietly to the cars, and were there received by the policemen in charge and placed in the cars. Others required a vigorous application of Manitoba muscle in the form of shoves and pushes to make them at all inclined to obey the voice of authority. Others, resisting stubbornly all attempts to guide them in the desired direction, were unceremoniously downed by the more athletic of the spectators and bodily carried to the train.

QUIET ON THE TRAIN.

Yorkton, Assa., Nov. 10.—The special train containing the Doukhobor pilgrims, their Mounted Police guards, and the Government agents arrived here at noon today. The journey was without incident, and the entire party are quiet and appear to be resigned or contented. The Doukhobors remained in the cars all night, and in the morning it is the intention to escort them to their villages.

A BUFFALO TRAGEDY MURDER AND SUICIDE

Jealous Normal Student Kills His Sweetheart and Himself

PARTICULARS OF THE CRIME

The Young Man Quite Well Off, But Became Insanely Jealous

Buffalo, Nov. 11—Christopher P. Willis, of Bath, a student in the State Normal School at Geneseo, who loved and was jealous of Mary Catherine Ferguson, a seventeen-year-old girl of his own village, killed Miss Ferguson and himself in front of the lodging house at 138 Swan street this afternoon. He had known her about eighteen months and they had come to Buffalo to visit the girl's brothers at the Swan street house.

This afternoon Miss Ferguson was in her brothers' room talking with them and Finch Humiston, another young man from Bath, when Willis called her to the door. They had a quarrel in the hall and later Willis had words with Humiston. Miss Ferguson, who had promised to return to Bath with Willis, told her brothers that she was afraid of him, but Willis assured the Ferguson boys that he had no intention of harming the girl.

All four went to the Lackawanna station to take the 2.30 p.m. train for Bath, but missed it and returned to the Swan street house, Willis and Miss Ferguson walking in advance. The couple mounted the high stone steps and Miss Ferguson paused to wait for her brothers, as she had no key for the door.

Without a word Willis drew a revolver clapped it to the girl's head and fired. She tumbled off the steps to the lawn, and he fired at her again, but missed. Then Willis turned the revolver to his own breast and fired three times, staggering after the third shot. There was one bullet left and he fired it into his brain and fell dead beside the dying girl. Miss Ferguson died at the hospital half an hour later.

In Willis's pocket was found a letter from Miss Ferguson in which she reproached him for expressing jealousy of her. Willis, who was only 21 years old, taught school near Bath until a few months ago. Money was left to him by relatives, and he was no longer obliged to work. He drank little, but was an excessive smoker of cigarettes.

NORTH GREY DECLARED OPEN

MacKay, the Liberal, Unseated—Agent Hired Rigs for [illegible]

Owen Sound, Ont., Nov. 11.—The election of Alexander MacKay was voided this afternoon after the hearing of one charge, No. 40, which established a technical breach of the Election Act.

The sitting of the court opened at 2 o'clock before Justices MacMahon and MacLennan. The court room was crowded to the doors with witnesses and spectators of both parties. Nearly five hundred witnesses were present, and Mr. McKay, the Liberal candidate, was represented by George Watson, K.C., of Toronto, while Mr. Boyd, the Conservative claimant for the seat, was supported by W. D. McPherson, K.C., of Toronto, and supporting local attorneys.

HIRED A CONVEYANCE.

The first charge taken up was, as stated, No. 40. Wm. J. Robinson of Meaford, was called. He admitted that on the night of May 28th, the night before the election, he had hired a conveyance to take several voters over to Owen Sound, some of whom had voted.

The matter of agency was admitted by Mr. Watson, counsel for Mr. MacKay, who said that he recognized a technical breach of the Election Act, although Mr. Robinson was not aware that he was doing anything illegal.

Mr. W. J. Hutton, financial agent for Mr. MacKay, admitted having paid the livery account, though he believed at the time that the item was the legitimate expenditure of the Meaford Association. He knew of no other irregularity in the election.

Mr. A. G. MacKay gave evidence that he became aware of the irregularity about three weeks ago. He did not deny the agency of Mr. Robinson. Of ninety per cent. of the other charges he did not believe there was the slightest foundation.

Justice MacLennan then announced that since the majority was only five, the conveying of "several" voters might be of great importance as affecting the result. Therefore, he declared the election void, without costs, the other charges and countercharges being dismissed.

THE WOOD SUPPLY

Gradually Diminishing and Nothing to Take Its Place

A drive through this section of the country around Peterborough will convince the ordinary observer that in a very few years the farms will be cleared of all kinds of timber and farmers will be obliged to purchase some other kind of fuel instead of wood for heating purposes. This matter concerns the people of the towns even to a greater extent than the farmers and is important to every class. There is scarcely any effort on the part of land owners to plant trees and thus rear up wood and timber limits, and the consequence will be that in a very short time coal will be the only fuel we shall have. A great many people stick to the old saying, that "sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof," but if we do not make some preparation for fuel when there is no wood to be had we shall be at the mercy of the coal combines. For the past two years there has been lots of talk of peat for fuel; companies have been organized and a loud bluster has been made about using the earth on which we walk in the place of wood or coal, but comparatively little satisfactory result has been obtained.

TO COLONIZE MANCHURIA

SAYS KOCH ADMITS ERROR

Bovine Tuberculosis May Be Communicated to Men

Paris, Nov. 11—Prof. Brouardel, who represented France at the tuberculosis congress in Berlin, returned to Paris today. He says Prof. Kock no longer denies the possibility of the communication of bovine tuberculosis to human beings. Kock also admitted, he says, that milk infected with the disease might be injurious.

FROGS AS BIG AS AN OX

Remarkable Bones Unearthed in Oklahoma by Mr. Menke of the Field

Norman, O.T. Nov. 11—H. W. Menke, of the Field Columbia Museum, Chicago, is in Oklahoma collecting fossils. Among the fossils bones he has found are back-bones, leg bones and a few skulls, and teeth.

Mr. Menke says the animals whose bones he has unearthed probably were members of the class known as amphibians. The amphibians constitute the class of creatures now represented by frogs, toads and salamanders. If one can imagine a frog as big as an ox it is said, an idea can be gained of the appearance of these prehistoric monsters that once flourished in Oklahoma.

ACTIVITY IN PEAT CIRCLES

New Plant Being Erected at Newington—Other Bogs

The fuel famine has caused quite a stir in the camps of peat manufacturing companies, according to Mr. W. E. H. Carter, Secretary of the Bureau of Mines, Toronto, who has returned from a trip through Eastern Ontario. He found a new plant in course of erection at Newington, where a German process will be tested. The bogs at Brockville and Perth were also inspected. Mr. Carter says the deposits at each of those three places are upwards of 1,000 acres in extent, and run from 10 to 25 feet deep on an average. The success of the plant at Beaverton has been a stimulus to the other companies experimenting in Ontario. The Times is informed that the Company in which several local capitalists are interested, will begin operations in the spring.

COLIMA VOLCANO THREATENS

Mexicans Fleeing From the Towns Near the Mountain

Guadalajara, Mex., Nov. 11—An eruption of the Colima volcano is threatened and the people living in the valleys at the base of the mountain are fleeing to Manzanillo and other points of safety.

A dense volume of smoke has been pouring from the crater for several days and during the past forty-eight hours deep rumblings and sharp reports have come from the interior of the volcano and at night the dark pall above the crater has reflected the brightness of the fire below.

It is reported that an order has been issued to suspend construction temporarily on the Colima extension of the Mexican Central Railway as the native laborers cannot be induced to go near the volcano to work.

JUDGE MARRIES A MILL GIRL

The Hon. A. J. Cornish of Nebraska Weds His Second Cousin of Rome N. Y.

Rome, Nov. 11—Mr. and Mrs. P. N. O'Donnell of this city, have received the announcement of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Alice O'Donnell, and the Hon. Albert J. Cornish, Judge of the Supreme Court of Nebraska, the bride and groom being second cousins. This announcement came as a surprise to the bride's parents. The marriage ceremony was performed on Oct. 28, in St. Theresa's Pro-Cathedral, Lincoln, Neb. After an elaborate lunch to a few intimate friends, Judge and Mrs. Cornish left on a wedding trip for Colorado and the Pacific coast.

Last summer Judge Cornish and his father spent several weeks in this vicinity, the Judge having been born in Camden, Oneida county. They returned home just before Labor Day and extended an invitation to Miss O'Donnell to accompany them and make them an extended visit which she accepted.

Miss O'Donnell is an attractive young woman and has a host of friends in Rome, who are pleased to extend congratulations and best wishes. For the past two or three years she and her sister Mame O'Donnell have been employed in a knitting mill in Utica, and where they also have made many friends. Judge Cornish is a wealthy man and stands high in Nebraska, both professionally and socially.

ITEMS OF NEWS BY CABLE AND LETTER

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—Mr. J. A. Smart, Deputy Minister of the Interior, says that the expense of the Doukhobor expedition to the Government will be but little. The Doukhobors will themselves be saddled with the cost of their return to Yorkton, and the amount will be taken from a fund of about $20,000 belongs to these people which is now in the hands of the Government.

Mr. Smart says that it is absurd to condemn the whole of the North-West Doukhobors as fanatics because some 1,800 of them went off on a religious pilgrimage. The pilgrims do not form one-fifth of the Doukhobors in the North-West, and the most of them have proven themselves quiet, industrious citizens, and have prospered wonderfully. Their houses are as well built as any log houses in the West, and many are now erecting for themselves substantial houses of more modern materials.

"Reports I have from the West say that the most of the people were willing to return home," said Mr. Smart, "They were led astray by a few fanatical religious leaders."

New York, Nov. 11.—All of the men whom it was feared perished in the fire which swept the great tower portion of the new East River bridge last night have been accounted for.

Today careful estimates of the damage are being made. This is difficult to approximate from a monetary standpoint until experts have ascertained the condition of the great cables, at least three of which may have to be replaced. If this has to be done a loss of atleast $400,000 will fall upon the contractors, and there will be much delay in the completion of the bridge, which is one of the crying needs of the city.

The contractors who will be forced to meet the loss are John A. Roebling Sons Company, the Pennsylvania Steel Company of Scranton, Pa., the New Jersey Steel Company, and Terry & Trench. The proportion of each has not yet been figured out, but it is believed the Roeblings will suffer most.

Engineer Hildenbrand said today that he did not know how badly damaged the cables were as yet. All four were damaged, he said, but to what extent he could not say, except that they were certainly so much injured twenty feet each side of the New York tower that it will be necessary to have that much of them replaced.

"The footpaths were destroyed," Mr. Hildenbrand added. "The fire was caused by the carelessness of a workman. It was about the grinding time when the fire started. The men grind their tools on the New York tower, and one of them there carelessly threw a match into some oily rags. I don't know who that man is. Maybe we can find out. I don't know whether he will be arrested."

London, Nov. 10.—The Daily News says it has good reason for stating that the Kaiser's visit marks an important crisis in the foreign relations of Great Britain. It says "No official denials will alter the fact that the question at issue is what quid pro quo shall be granted Germany as a reward for her quiescence while we complete arrangements with Portugal in reference to Delagoa Bay." The News adds that Colonial Secretary Chamberlain is endeavoring to hasten the completion of the Delagoa Bay arrangement, and that it is impossible to disconnect this situation from the sudden refusal of Germany to evacuate Shanghai on the usual identical conditions.

HUNDREDS OF BOXERS PUT TO DEATH IN CHINA

Hemmed in on All Sides by Imperial Troops, with no Chance of Escape

The Viceroy Says There is Not Much Now to be Feared from Boxers —200 of Them were Killed

Victoria, B. C. Nov. 11—Advices received from the Orient include official reports from Kuei Chun, ex-Viceroy of Sze Chuan, detailing the recent Boxer outbreak there. After relating the incidents leading up to the destruction of the churches in the two districts and the murder of many native converts, the report says:—"Several regiments of troops were sent to the disturbed places, and, beside slaying two or three hundred of the insurgents, succeeded in capturing several who were brought to Cheng Tu and decapitated. Between 5,000 and 6,000 Boxers assembled in Hwai Yang Hsien, Chin Tang Hsien, and Shir Chou, where they occupied the market town and killed as many captains of the train bands as they could got hold of. A small force was sent to the Boxers to exhort them to disperse. It did not take stringent measures on this occasion, because I feared that among the Boxers there might be many famine-stricken inhabitants, who were not disposed to do evil, but were simply misled by the Boxers. Two hundred Boxers were killed, and the others driven back. Many entrenched themselves, and the force sent was obliged to return."

The report continues, describing the disaffection throughout the province which prevented garrisons being transferred, and then tells of the attack on Cheng Tu, where three regiments and 600 banner men had been assembled for defence.

The Boxers attacked the Imperial troops in the outskirts of Cheng Tu and a hot battle followed, which lasted for a whole night with the result that between 400 and 500 rebels were slain, about 1000 were dispersed, and the rest retreated to Ching Tang Hsien, where they burned the churches and put many natives to death. When the Imperial troops were despatched to Ching Tang Hsien the Boxers proceeded to Hsuao Ching Ping where they joined forces with other insurgents. A battle was fought there and 300 Boxers were put to the sword. Defeated there, the Boxers fled to the hills at Suchiawan, where they found refuge for the time being, but reinforcements of Imperial troops arrived and marched against the rebels in Suchiawan from three different directions, slaying about 1,400 of them and captured 16 alive, who were beheaded on the spot, after undergoing a formal trial. Concluding, the report, which is a lengthy one, the Viceroy says:—"Although there still exists elements of disorder, there is not much to be feared from the Boxers, because all the rebel chiefs have been exterminated."

KILLED HER LOVER BEFORE HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE

Sensational Tragedy Outside the Lombard Street Post Office--Kitty Byron Used a Knife

London, Nov. 11.—A sensational love tragedy has been enacted in this city in full view of hundreds of people. A young woman named Kitty Byron stabbed to death her lover, Arthur Reginald Baker, a well known member of the Stock Exchange. The crime took place just outside the Lombard street post-office. Although the city was generally making merry over the Lord Mayor's procession, there was the usual press of business at this ever very busy office.

Shortly after two o'clock, a young woman of attractive appearance, with slight figure, dark eyebrows, black hair, and handsome features, went into the post-office and sent an express letter to the Stock Exchange. She waited a few minutes, when she was joined by Mr. Baker, to whom the letter had been addressed. For several minutes the couple engaged in conversation near the counter. Then their voices rose, and the clerks noticed they were quarreling.

Finally the man turned toward the street with a gesture, intimating that he wished to end the interview. He passed through the door, and the woman followed, nervously handling her muff. Suddenly she pulled a knife from the muff and dealt the man a terrible blow in the back.

As he half staggered and then partially turned around, with one foot on the lower step, the woman withdrew the weapon and struck again, this time plunging it into his left breast. The man gasped and fell heavily forward. Two clerks seized the woman, who was leaning over the prostrate form as though preparing to strike a third blow. Mr. Baker died on the way to the hospital.

The young woman was taken to the police court, where she gave her name as Kittie Byron, age 22, but refused to say anything further. Baker's wife lately introduced divorce proceedings.

THE TURKISH SOCIAL

At St. John's School House Last Night a Very Successful Affair

The Turkish lecture and social in St. John's school room last evening was very interesting and instructive, which accounts for the large attendance in spite of the threatening state of the weather.

The address by Rev. C. H. Brooks, who spent eighteen years in Turkey as a missionary, was listened to very attentively as he described the country, its customs, people, religion, and in fact all the points that could possibly enlighten the audience as to that distant land. Mr. Brooks is an excellent speaker and is sure whenever he comes to Peterborough of having a large crowd to hear him. His address was agreeably interspersed with vocal and instrumental selections, some new talent being introduced which was highly appreciated.

Perhaps the most unique part of the affair were the Turkish costumes which were worn by the gentlemen ushers and the lady waitresses, the former wearing the regulation Turkish male costume which was indeed worth attending to see. But for artistic dress the ladies excelled, as is usual in the country they represented. The only portion of them visible was their eyes, and as they were attired in variously colored robes, the effect as they moved around the room was indeed picturesque.

Turkish refreshments were served after the address which were enjoyed by all, and after a pleasant period of social intercourse the meeting was brought to a close.

HARD ON ONTARIO

The following opinion of "Bystander" in the St. Johns, Quebec, News, is worth reproducing:

It is possible that the population of a province should be indifferent to personal and political righteousness, but there is certainly in Ontario groups of men who are lost to every elementary notion of truth and decency. There are men in that province, whose business it is to buy votes; there are men who sell votes for ten dollars; for one dollar; for a drink of whiskey behind a shed. These are not isolated instances. There is something like an organized system by which the decent instincts of the people are beaten down. Men lie in Ontario and do not blush for it. Men admit acts of amazing turpitude and think it a part of the game. And this in a province which has always, professedly at least, stood the highest in the Dominion for rectitude. Ontario has churches and the best school system in the world; it has all sorts of bettering and ameliorating agencies; it has a strong prohibition sentiment; it is scrupulous in regard to the Sabbath; it has passed laws against if one regarded the statute book merely, gambling and horse racing; and indeed, he would conclude that we have reached the ideal state of living. And there are good people in Ontario—many of them. There are lofty ideals in the individual life and conduct; there are efforts which are sincere. There are lives which are beautiful. And there is hypocrisy, too, and smug self-righteous, and there are men who, though they make long prayers, are callous and corrupt, and it is a curious spectacle that the province which has been setting an example to the whole Dominion—which has thought so, or said so, at any rate, should fall behind, in moral act and tone, that other province where practical politics is, or seems to be, the pursuit of the whole people—to wit, Quebec. Ontario shocks Quebec. Quebec is not namby-pamby. Quebec drinks its whiskey, runs its street cars on Sunday, is frankly jovial and careless, but Quebec stands aghast at the political turpitude of Ontario. Quebec knows how to win an election. Quebec is pious, but it does not snivel. It believes in Providence; also in human methods. But Quebec is moral, is beautiful, is irreproachable, compared with Ontario. Which proves, perhaps, that preaching of itself is not enough. A great poet has said that the "'aids to noble life are within'" and what Ontario needs is not pious phrases, but acts of probity the cultivation of a good conscience, which may be possible without psalm-singing, though psalm-singing ought to produce better fruit than perjury and bribery.

THE SERVANT GIRL PROBLEM

In Chicago originated the first domestic servants' union to regulate wages and the relations between mistresses and servants. Now the conditions in that progressive city have evolved a Housewives' association to regulate matters from the other side. It proposes to grade servant girls according to their individual efficiency as "satisfactory," "good" and remarkably efficient," and, presumably, to pay them accordingly. The new association, says the Ottawa Citizen, is having a good deal of newspaper humor fired at it, but it is based on a sound business proposition. No doubt there are questions of wages and business relations which the Servants' union finds advantageous to have dealt with as an organization the same as most trades and professions, but there is one vital point that is apparently overlooked and which the counter organization has been brought into existence to reguade: Every trade or profession which unites for its protection assumes responsibilities commensurate with its rights. It can lay down a scale of wages or fees, but it also assumes a moral obligation to guarantee that employers who pay such rates or fees and submit to its regulations shall be furnished with the worth of their money. The trades unions and the members of professional associations undertake the responsibility of furnishing such safeguards in regard to the training of the individuals whom they authorize by card or parchment as members of their organizations to charge certain wages or fees as to enable employers to depend that they are capable of and efficient in the discharge of the duties for which such wages or fees are exacted. The servant girls' unions have not, so far as we have heard, shown any desire to assume this responsibility. All that was necessary to become entitled to the union scale of wages and secure the protection of the walking delegate was to join the union. This was manifestly unfair because nothing varies more than the standard of efficiency in domestic service, and it would be manifestly unjust to exact the same wages for a practically untrained domestic as for highly trained and efficient service. It is to deal with this phase of the problem that the Housewives' association has been formed, but it is undertaking work that should be done by the union.

As a matter of fact a Domestic Servants' union properly conducted should be an important factor in solving the servant girl problem. If the union would undertake that the union card should be a guarantee of efficient training to employers so that they would be assured of getting the service they paid for few people would object to submitting to reasonable conditions or paying reasonable wages. But the exaction of certain wages and conditions without undertaking a corresponding responsibility, is against all business principles and not in accordance with the principles of unionism.

VERY UNDESIRABLE EMIGRANTS

The more that is learned about the Doukhobors and the manner in which they have been handled since they came to Canada, the worse the scandal grows. It is now stated that the bulk of them have never paid any taxes since they have been in the country and that the interior department has even interfered with local authorities to prevent these freaks from being annoyed by the tax collector. It is noted that at one point, Devil's Lake district, where the authorities insisted in making them amenable to the law and exacted taxes from them the Douks are now settled down and taking no part in the present disturbance. Apparently the others have been pampered and allowed to do much as they liked. It will be remembered how reports as in order, if possible, to avert any demonstration, such as has now occurred, to the eccentricities of these people had been denied by the department even up to within a week or two of this final outburst of craziness, the object being to conceal the real state of affairs. They were even allowed to live tax free in addition to other privileges while the Canadian taxpayers paid their taxes for them. When the whole facts concerning this importation become known it bids fair to result in some remarkable revelations.

make, don't keep anything back if you know what my offence is."

Dick reflected for a moment, and his forehead, under the boyish rings of hair, grew moist. He could not tell this man of the monstrous treachery of which Winifred accused him and Macaire together. No man would stand it. He (Dick) would only be breaking a wasps' nest about his own ears, without doing good to anybody, so far as he could see.

"Winnie doesn't often confide in me," he said at last. "She thinks I'm too young to be much good. I've been racking my brains as to what you can have done; but you know what girls are, especially actresses. They pride themselves on being whimsical and capricious; I believe they fancy it's fascinating. She's like all the rest. Perhaps by to-morrow she'll be sorry, and will write you a sweet little note, just as if nothing had happened——"

"She's not like that," said Newcome. "She must have heard something which has turned her against me, though I'm conscious of no sin which deserves such punishment."

"Maybe she's brooding over something you said to her," suggested Dick, "and feels differently about it from what she did at first."

A spark leaped up in Newcome's dark eyes. "Ah!" he exclaimed, and gave no hint to Dick of what was in his mind, though it was Dick who had struck out the spark. His thoughts had gone back to three nights ago, when he had told Winifred of his mission which was to wreak vengeance upon a murderer. That confession had made the one rift in the lute that had played the sweet music of love. Dick had inadvertently hit upon the explanation, perhaps. The rift had widened, and the music was to be for ever mute.

CHAPTER XXXII.

The Moonstone Sphinx.

Weeks went on, and life pressed heavily upon Winifred Gray. The one comfort she had was that her mother, though still frail and very, very weak, was no longer in danger, and that they were together again.

The flat was given up, for Winifred had had a chance to let it furnished, and, though the amount paid by the new tenants was ridiculously small, that, with Mrs. Gray's pension, was something to depend upon. When the invalid was strong enough they moved into cheap lodgings in Westminster, and Winifred tried again to find an engagement.

The girl was driven at last from the theatrical agents to those who made a specialty of engaging music-hall artistes, and strove to persuade her mother that she was delighted when she was given a chance to sing a ballad at a "hall" on the Surrey side.

For this she received two guineas every Saturday night; and as she did not know that she had been engaged on the strength of the "Mazeppa" reclame rather than for her charming young face, her reputation as an actress or her genuine talent as a singer, she made the best of the new life, never telling her mother of the coarse things she often had to see and hear behind the scenes at the hall.

Mrs. Gray had had to be told the truth about Dick, however, as soon as she was well enough to bear it, for her questions had called for answers which could not be denied. And after he had replied almost harshly to the one appealing letter she wrote him he had to be left to go his own way. Once he sent home money; but this was promptly posted back again, and his mother and sister heard from Lionel Macaire's secretary no more.

But Macaire was not in ignorance of Winifred's movements, and they all coincided well enough with his wishes. The only thing he did not know of her doings was the episode of the masked minstrels, and her brief "partnership" with Hope Newcome. He saw no reason to believe that her acquaintance with Newcome had been more than his new protege admitted—a few words of gratitude for championship of her cause near the stage-door of the Duke of Clarence's Theater, so long ago, and perhaps a meeting when Newcome had found his way to the flat to engage Dick Gray as his secretary.

This method of securing Dick had been carefully planned by Macaire, however, so that, in case Winifred had remembered handsome, picturesque Newcome with admiration, he would be stained black in her eyes for ever.

The millionaire knew her feelings towards himself well enough to be sure that if Newcome were associated with him in her mind he would at once become hateful to her. He had exacted Newcome's promise to preserve the secret of their bargain, so that their acquaintance should not be prematurely known; and then, Dick once engaged as his secretary, he had opened the bag with a malicious chuckle that the cat might spring out.

Once or twice, during the short interval that Winifred was left alone in the flat between her brother's going and her mother's homecoming, the desire for a desperate coup had haunted him, beating about in his head like a great moth round a flame; but he had put it away for three sufficient reasons. In the first place, Winifred would at such a time, after her late experiences, be on her guard; in the second, the failure of such a scheme would be fatal to others in the future; while in the third, and most important place of all, the purpose for which he had taken Dick to live in luxury in his house was in a fair way of being accomplished; and its successful accomplishment would surely give him Winifred, revenge and triumph, all in the grasp of one outstretched hand.

Meanwhile, he amused himself by throwing bait which Dick Gray was the unsuspecting fish to snap at, and in watching the Baron von Zellheim's success in society. He laughed in his sleeve to see how people took up the handsome young man whom he had introduced, and at the romantic stories regarding him. He laughed to see how well the new baron played his part, and, more than all, he laughed at the thought of the surprise he had in store for everybody, including his protege, at the end of the stipulated six months.

With all his wealth Macaire had not been able to gain an undisputed foothold in the most exclusive set, though he had lent money to lesser Royalties, and in consequence secured them for his dinner-parties. But Baron von Zellheim was more fortunate in this regard. In a few months he did what Macaire had not been able to do in years. A great lady who tolerated the millionaire took a fancy to the young Baron von Zellheim, and his way was made easy. His title, but an insignificant one, though the pride of an old German family, was not disputed, or, if disputed, only enough talked about to make him a piquant personality; and he was invited

AN INVESTMENT IN THE

Pitkin Gold Belt Mining and Reduction Company

Which is Safe and Sure of Quick Returns, may Bring an Enormous Return at any Moment. It has the Possibilities of Rivaling the Great Mines of the Past.

This Company has a mine on a true fissure vein, in the center of the Gunnison Gold Belt, Colorado, which is the "Mother" lode or dike, which has produced 55 per cent. more gold than the total output of the Cripple Creek district.

This Mine is no Prospect. Nor is it Waiting on Your Subscription to Buy Machinery or for Development.

After a careful examination by experts, Joseph M. Bradley, M. E., and Mr. George Arlett, A. I. M. E., Amalgamated Copper Company's expert in Chihuahua, Mexico, they advised the purchase of the property. The property had shallow development upon it, showing two ore shoots from which smelting ore had been shipped to the Buena Vista Smelter.

The Company purchased and paid for the latest improved machinery and has put a shaft down 250 feet and intend to carry it down 1000 feet. On the 150 foot level 300 feet of development has been made and an ore shoot has been encountered and blocked out for 57 feet, carrying values in gold from 2 to 9 ounces or $40 to $180 per ton. The cost of mining, hauling, freight and smelters charges will be between $12 and $15 per ton.

Ed. McCarthy & Co., bankers, guarantee a shipping mine of smelting ore running from 2 to 6 ounces in gold, or $40 to $120 per ton, by January 1st, 1903, or all funds will be returned to subscribers upon presentation of receipt issued by said bank.

Also to prospective purchasers of $500 worth of stock we are offering a free trip to Colorado and return. You investigate first and purchase afterward. Could you expect anything fairer than this?

The capital stock of this company is $1,000,000, divided into 1,000,000 shares of stock at $1 each, full paid and non-assessable. A portion of the treasury stock is now offered at in one payment, or 20 per cent. down and the balance in four equal monthly payments, for necessary expenditures and improvements on a shipping mine.

25 CENTS PER SHARE—PAR VALUE $1.00

PROSPECTUS
OF THE LARDEAU MINES
LIMITED
(NON-PERSONAL LIABILITY)

Property in Lardeau Mining Division, West Kootenay District of British Columbia

Represented in the United States by the MINING SECURITIES COMPANY Temple Court, N.Y.

Your attention is called to a comparatively new section of the World's surface, and at the same time to our own enterprise there, regarding which we invite the strictest inquiry and investigation.

During the past five years British Columbia has been brought, through the development of its remarkable mineral resources, from the condition of a comparatively unknown region to a place in the front rank as a field for the profitable investment of capital.

The political conditions are of the most stable character, and the mining and company laws fully equal to, if not more favorable to operate under than exist in any State or Province, either in the United States or Canada.

The total value of the mineral output of the Province of British Columbia during 1900 was $16,344,751. During 1901 it rose to $20,713,501, an increase last year of 25 per cent. It is estimated that the output for the present year will reach a total value of at least $30,000,000, and that within five years the production will equal that of any country in existance.

Our object in presenting these statements is to convince everyone of the high character of the country in which we are operating and at the same time, advertise our own business.

We are at present developing an extensive property in the Lardeau mining division of British Columbia. This property is owned by the "Lardeau Mines, Limited," a company having a total capital of $100,000.

The property owned by this Company consists of three full claims, embracing an extent of 156 acres—mineral claims in British Columbia are 1,500x1,500 feet—equal to 52 acres each in extent.

Three strong, parallel ore veins run through this property from end to end, a distance of 4,500 feet. If placed end to end this would give 13,500 feet equal to a continuous ore body over two and a half miles in length. The values are in gold, silver, copper and lead, and run from $25.00 to $77.00 per ton of 2,000 pounds. These results are from surface ore only, "grass root values," and are indications of permanent values of the most convincing kind.

We feel that such a property ought to recommend itself to any one who want to better their position and who may desire to invest with reliable people a small or large amount of money where it will earn permanent profits.

The gross value of shipments of ore aggregating 6,192,004 pounds from twelve mines in the Lardeau, all situated near the property owned by this Company was $452,410.21. Equal to a return per ton of over $146.00. The property owned by this Company shows up equally as well as any of these more fully developed mines, and will, we are convinced, shortly rank among the best in the Lardeau division.

In order to show why we are confident we are right, we will estimate our ore values at $50.00 per ton, a little over one-third of the average ore values of the entire Lardeau mining division. We will also base our calculations on a daily output of 30 tons—a small amount compared with the extent of our property and the size of its ore bodies. We will allow $10.00 per ton for mining, transportation (a few miles only) and smelting charges. The profits, after making a reasonable deduction for incidentals, and surplus work out as follows:

30 tons at $50.00 per ton		$1,500 00
Less $10.00 per ton mining, transportation and reduc. chgs		300 00
Net daily income		1,200 00
Say for 300 days per year		300
Total net yearly income		$360,000 00
Deduct for incidental expenses, 15 per ton	45,000
Deduct for Company's surplus account, 15 per ton	$45,000	90,000 00
Total yearly net earnings		$270,000 00

which sum is equal to 270 per cent per annum on our capital stock of $100,000.

This estimate is made on the basis of a small output compared to the extent of our property, and the splendid facilities it affords for economical mining and on the operation of the mine for 300 days per year only, so that anyone can see at a glance that we are not over-estimating in any particular, especially when the output of mines similarly situated, and with ore bodies of less extent than ours, ship hundreds of tons a day. There is no good reason why our property, when fully developed—and that is what we are working for now—should not ship several hundred tons of ore per day, but we are basing our calculations on the immediate future in presenting the above estimate.

The property is now being developed by a cross-cut tunnel which is in nearly 100 feet and when driven a few feet further will intersect a large ore body in Vein No. 2 at a depth of 85 feet, when drifting on the lead and stoping ore will be commenced, and the price of shares advanced accordingly.

The capitalization of this company is low—only $100,000—so that the enterprise is free from all suspicion of stock jobbing which has too often ruined many otherwise honest companies.

In conclusion we wish to say that this is a good mining stock which you can buy low, and which you can either keep as an investment or re-sell when it advances in price, for it will be but a short time until this stock cannot be bought for less than many times its par value.

To persons of small means who cannot afford to purchase high priced shares this presents an opportunity that will enable them to get an interest in a business that has paid more clean profits, made more millionaires and is today paying greater dividends than any otherbusiness in existence.

Engineer's Report

THE DIRECTORS,
THE LARDEAU MINES, LIMITED, ROSSLAND, B. C.

Gentlemen:—I beg to hand you my report on the three claims in the Lardeau District, owned by your Company, on work done on the "Lardeau Queen" and on results attained during the past few months. This claim, with the "Lardeau King" and "Lardeau Prince," all abutting end on end, through which the hereinafter mentioned leads pass the entire length, from the Royal Group, situated at the head of Lexington Creek, in the Lardeau Mining Division of West Kootenay, British Columbia.

These three claims are located on the western slope of Goat Mountain, the lines being north-westerly and south-easterly, and form one complete portion of mineral land of about 156 acres. They lie east, less than four miles up, from Fish River (to where both the C.P.R. and K. & S. Railway are now in course of construction) and twelve miles by level road to Comaplix or Upper Arrow Lake deep water landing. A spur up Lexington Creek to the "Royal" and other numerous mining properties will no doubt afterwards be built.

In addition to the two separate and distinct parallel ledges, of which you are already aware, I recently discovered about 600 feet from No. 1 vein, another ledge within the southwest boundary of the "Lardeau Queen," which we will call No. 3 vein.

The Royal Group lies in the "Sitting Bull" and "Wide West" Belts, two of the strongest and best known leads in that district, and what work has already been done on adjacent extensions has given most satisfactory results as to the extent of ore bodies and increased values with depth. Several claims on this lead have already hundreds of tons of shipping ore ready for transportation to the smelter.

The formation is slate and schist, lying in an immense lime dyke and the croppings of the leads are generally topped with heavy iron capping and quartz, which gives assays of from $4.00 up on surface.

Buildings Etc.

A good horse trail to the mines has been built and all necessary buildings for general mining purposes have been erected adjacent to the creek and workings.

Veins and Work Done

Exploitation of No. 1 vein consists of two open cuts along the surface for a distance of 30 feet, which exposed a body of argentiferous galena over 8 inches in width. The value of this ore body was $25.00 on the surface, but at a depth of less than three feet it had increased to $40.00. To tap this ore showing and the massive iron-capped ledge close to which it lies the present tunnel was commenced, and is now in a distance of 60 feet. Another 25 feet of cross-cutting should reach this ledge at a depth of about 85 feet. When 41 feet had been driven an almost solid body of iron ore 3 feet thick was encountered in the tunnel lying against a wall of slate. A sample at this point assayed $77.00 in gold, silver, copper and lead. Before opening out on this ore body it is, I think, advisable to drive a further 25 feet, when I believe the main lead will be reached.

No. 2 vein which occurs about 250 feet above No. 1 vein, is an iron-capped ledge about 6 feet wide, showing an occasional seam of mineralized quartz with galena. The surface assays gave $2 and $12 in gold, respectively. Although not so strongly defined as No. 1 vein, it is easily traceable at intervals, throughout the full length of the property, 4,500 feet.

No. 3 vein is in strong evidence about 600 feet below the centre line of the "Lardeau Queen," and appears to be directly within its area and dipping directly (north) into the hill towards this claim. The width is from 10 to 12 feet of very heavy iron capping and quartz with bunches of galena occurring under the surface in the talc at intervals of from 4 to 6 inches. The assay results of the quartz ($48) samples I brought you is decidedly encouraging, and I am satisfied that the clean ore will prove to be of a high grade.

Transportation Etc.

The certainty of an early advent of a railway into Fish River section is acting as an incentive to the numerous mining companies there, who are employing large gangs of men in development work, more especially in the vicinity of Lexington Creek, where the "ore from the grass roots" proposition preponderates.

The property has an excellent surface showing. The average assays are most encouraging, considering the great width and continuancy of the leads across the country with such great width and prominence of the surface and judging from other properties in the near vicinity, some of which are on the same lead and have developed very rich ore bodies.

In conclusion I would like to say the Lardeau Mines are as good as any, if not the best in the vicinity, and I verily believe, with a nominal expenditure, they should be made dividend-paying in a short time, and I would strongly recommend extensive developments towards that end.

Signed,
H. O. McCLYMONT, Mining Engineer.

The above company is now paying its stockholders a portion of its earnings in quarterly dividends of 8% per annum on par of twenty-five cents per share, putting the balance into its treasury; this rate of dividend pleases the stockholders and allows their treasury fund to grow larger at the same time. The company is preparing to drill another well.

NEXT DIVIDEND PAYABLE JANUARY 1st, 1903, to stockholders of record at December 1st.

PRICE OF STOCK twenty cents per share.

STOCK MARKETS

Reasons for Believing Market at Bottom.

New York, Nov. 11—After several days' decline there have been two very large days' business in succession, namely last Saturday and Monday, the latter day seeing transactions of nearly one and one-half million shares; yet yesterday the market closed on an average about equal to Saturday night's close prices. At yesterday approximate lowest prices fully a million shares of stock were liquidated. Some one held the bag and took them, while this morning London is all higher. As a rule, after a movement in either direction, the culmination in a day or so of large trading with prices active, but at about an average, then liquidation has usually run its course. If you will look the matter up you will find this rule to apply at almost the end of large movements in either direction up or down. The troubles of the trust companies have been relieved by the purchase from them by certain Wall St. interests of the securities which were embarassing them. They are therefore no longer a menace to the market. Some time ago a like trouble of a syndicate at Cleveland brought about a very similar state of affairs. After the syndicate was relieved of its burden the market righted and became normal again. To-day the episode is practically forgotten. So it will be with this latest financial trouble. It appears to be bankers against railway men in diagnosing the immediate future of the market. The bankers urge that loans are sufficiently expanded, so speculation should go slow. The railway men see the enormous business offering and the certainty of its continuance with the enormous earnings bound to be steadily made. These two classes of men are hard-headed business men, hence the more or less deadlock in the market. The latter have immense lines of stocks and will not liquidate them under the reigning conditions. The former will loan no money upon stocks that they possibly can help, and do all they can to discourage speculation. A held back speculation will, however, when it does break out go faster and more furious, owing to the fact of its having been smothered while favorable conditions were ruling.

Summary.—The market opened at an advance along the line, was inclined during the morning hours to be more firm with absence of liquidation. After one o'clock a heavy attack was directed against copper shares, carrying the stock down about four points in an hour. It unsettled the balance of the market causing after 1.30 p.m., a renewal of the selling movement throughout the entire list. The market was extremely weak. After 2 o'clock T.C.I. broke badly, aiding in the general demoralization of the list. Fears of the coming President's message are being discounted. More than likely it will not bring about as low prices when announced as are at present existing. A good rally at least is due if nothing more. Money closed 4 per cent. Sales 979,000.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

DASHES HERE AND THERE BY TIMES' REPORTERS

Police Court

In the absence of Magistrate Dumble, Mr. Adam Hall presided at the police court yesterday morning. Two parties appeared before the Magistrate charged with being drunk and disorderly on Saturday night. One got a fine of $5 and costs, and the other $2 and costs.

Big Pay for Shantymen

Provincial Engineer McCallum returned to Toronto from Northern Ontario, but has not yet reported on the Fort Frances water power. Labor in the country is scarce, he says, and shantymen are getting as high as $40 a month. At Fort William laborers in elevators are getting 22c. an hour and carpenters $3 a day, and hard to secure at that.

Shot in the Hand

David Quinlan, a young lad of fourteen years, of Ashburnham, was fooling with an old revolver on Sunday. He did not know it was loaded, but he realized the fact when the weapon went off and the bullet passed through his hand. A doctor was called from Peterborough and the wound was dressed, and is now healing nicely.

Wholesale Confectionery

Messrs. Poplan & Craft have leased 462 George street from ex-Mayor Yelland, and workmen are busily engaged putting in a new front on the lower story. As soon as the alterations to the buildings are completed, Messrs. Poplar & Craft intend to start a wholesale confectionery therein, and, as they are well-known residents of Peterborough, no doubt they will receive a large share of the public patronage.

Buying Horses

Mr. W. J. Pearson, the well known horse buyer has been in town since Monday at the White House, buying horses. He will remain to-day, and will also be here Saturday. Mr. Pearson told the Times yesterday that there is a fair demand just now for large horses, although good drivers are always ready sellers. Mr. Pearson secured a fine lot yesterday, which were shipped to his Montreal stables.

Port Hope Boy Hurt

A despatch from Cobourg says a young boy named John Milne, about twelve years of age, and hailing from Port Hope, fell between the cars on a west-bound freight train about 5 o'clock yesterday evening and was terribly mangled. He, in company with two other little boys, was bumping when the one fell and the other two boys went on to their homes in Port Hope.

Grain Coming to Peterboro

Large shipments of grain are being received in town from Rice Lake. The steamer "North Star" brought three loads in this week, averaging from 1,300 to 2,000 bushels each. The "Water Lily" is also bringing in large cargoes of grain and hogs. The grain shipments are consigned to W. H. Meldrum, the McAllister Milling Company, Central Milling Company, and the hogs to Mr. Matthews.

DOG AND GUNS STOLEN

A Party of Hunters Had an Annoying Experience Yesterday

A party of hunters returning to Haldimand township, had an annoying delay in town yesterday. They had been hunting in Harcourt township, and on the way home a valuable hound and eight guns were appropriated, at Lindsay, from the railroad company, in whose charge they were. The thief was caught at Lorneville Junction and the goods recovered.

Coal at $6.75

Prescott Messenger: "Two cars of coal arrived here on Monday, consigned to Mr. Geo. Heck. This is the first coal to reach Prescott since the big strike. Mr. Heck is quoting chestnut and stove coal at $6.75 and grate a little less. We understand that coal will arrive regularly after this date, so that the high price panic is over." In Ottawa coal sells for $3.50 per ton, and in Peterborough $15 is the price. The only solution for immediate application appears to be for the people of Petrborough to appeal to President Baer to make good his promise and permit citizens to import coal from the mines direct in car lots.

The Annual Thank Offering

St. Andrew's Mission Band held their annual Thank-Offering meeting last night in the lecture room of the church. Miss Edminson, President of the Mission Band, was in the chair. Mrs. (Rev.) W. M. Kannawin, President of the Peterborough Presbyterial, gave an address, which was very instructive and was listened to with much interest. The Pastor, Rev. Mr. Potter, also gave an address. A short program was rendered, after which refreshments were served. The Mission Band is to be congratulated upon its prosperity and the good work it is doing.

Use Catarrhozone Inhaler four times daily and erradicate this awful disease from your system. Catarrhozone kills the germs, heals the inflamed membrane, clears nose, throat and air passages by one application. Mr. F. W. Baillie Honored

Mr. F. W. Baillie was honored by his late associates of the Central Canada Loan & Savings Company, and the Dominion Securities Corporation at a dinner in Toronto on Monday evening. Hon. Geo. A. Cox was unavoidably absent, but the chair was ably filled by Mr. E. R. Wood, Vice-President and General Manager of the Central Canada Company, who, in proposing the toast of the evening, referred in glowing terms to Mr. Baillie's many good qualities, and his very great service to the companies he had just left to assume the General Managership of the Metropolitan Bank. On behalf of the officers and staffs of both companies Mr. Wood presented Mr. Baillie with a magnificent punch bowl. Mr. Baillie made a feeling reply, after which short speeches were made by Mr. G. A. Morrow, Assistant Manager of the Central Canada; Mr. G. H. Wood, Manager of the Dominion Securities Corporation, and several others.

POWERFUL FOOD

That Can Lift You Out of Bed

The proper food to build up the system, after an attack of illness or any other time, is important to know about

"Last year I had typhoid malarial fever," says a lady in Manilla, Ia., "and it left me so weak I could scarcely turn in bed. I was very nervous, the least noise annoyed me, and I could hardly eat anything.

A friend recommended Grape-Nuts food thinking maybe I would like that, and I did. I commenced gaining strength and am now able to walk around out of doors, having gained over twenty pounds, and Grape-Nuts did it.

My little brother used to be thin and pale. Although he seemed to eat enough food, what he did eat did him no good. is now strong and well and gaining fast. He was put on Grape-Nuts regularly and in flesh. I recommend Grape-Nuts to all who are weak and run down." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

12 Minutes for Lunch.

That is the average time spent in a large city restaurant by three thousand lunchers. It takes three hours to digest a fresh egg soft boiled; three hours to digest a boiled apple dumpling; three hours to digest fresh roast beef. In fact, three hours is about the time required to digest the average twelve minute lunch. The object of the hasty lunch is to let the busy man get back to his office work. But when the brain is active, the stomach is inactive for lack of necessary blood. The natural consequence is indigestion, and indigestion opens the door to many diseases.

Indigestion is cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of food.

"It is with heartfelt gratitude that I send this testimonial which I wish you to publish with my name and address," writes Mr. Willis Seaman, of Washingtonville, Orange Co., N. Y. "I had stomach trouble from childhood and suffered with it more or less as I grew up. At the age of 26 I was broken down with dyspepsia. My suffering was terrible. Could not eat without distress. Could only eat a few certain things and was not able to work half the time. Every thing I tried only gave me temporary relief. My wife finally persuaded me to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets.' I took six bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and two vials of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.' I then felt so well that I stopped taking medicine. Several months have passed and I can do the hardest kind of work, can eat anything that is set before me and enjoy it. I am 27 years old and this is the first time I have ever been well."

Free. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser in paper covers is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only; or 50 stamps for cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

NO COAL FOR A MONTH

Coal Men are Making Hay While Navigation Lasts—Navigation Closes December 5th

A coal dealer yesterday morning told the Times that he did not think there would be much coal delivered here until next month. Navigation closes December 5th on the lakes, and up to that time coal will be rushed from Buffalo to Duluth. The vessel freight is much lower than that of the railroads. An example may be taken in the case of Sault Ste. Marie. It costs $2.46 to carry a ton of coal from Buffalo to the Soo by rail, and only 50 cents a ton by water.

"After navigation closes there will be plenty of coal here," said the dealer, "but that will not be for another month." Most coal dealers in this city are still without coal and cannot supply their customers.

WHERE MAD MULLAH FIGHTS THE BRITISH

The Least Known Corner of the Dark Continent

DERVISHES RALLY TO HIS ASSISTANCE

A Formidable and Costly War on Britain's Hands

London, Nov. 12—The Mad Mullah has been largely reinforced from all points of the country. Dervishes, who escaped slaughter when Kitchener overthrew the Madhi at the battle of Omdurman, are rallying in thousands to fight the British.

Latest advices state that the British advance will not be made for some time, and will be done with the greatest caution. An army of 15,000 mounted men will constitute the advance guard, and 5,000 infantry and artillery will follow.

Arabs describe as "Bar-Agan," or the "Unknown Land" that particular horn of Africa's eastern coast which lies directly opposite Aden and which from time immemorial has enjoyed so evil a reputation that not only has it been avoided by the vast majority of explorers of the dark continent, but has likewise in the partition of the latter by the great powers of Europe been left untouched, save as regards the coast line, none of them caring to assume the responsibilities of the sovereignty of the Hinterland.

Strength is Underestimated.

As usual in cases where Asiatic and African campaigns are concerned, the British Government underestimated the strength of the "Mullah." Instead of that worthy being "smashed" it is he who has forced several expeditions sent against him to retire to the coast. In fact, to judge by the latest news from Berbera, he seems to have done some "smashing" on his own account, and the success which he has achieved in escaping destruction at the hands of the British forces sent against him, as well as the circumstance that he has compelled them on several occasions to retreat with heavy losses, has naturally served to enhance his prestige among the natives, and to bring to his standard Mahometan fanatics, not alone from Somaliland itself, but likewise from other portions of the dark province.

The sentiment to which he appeals is that of the most intolerant form of Islamism — that form indeed, taught by the late Shiek-el-Senoussi and by his father and predecessor — the so-called "Veiled Prophet" of Jerboub, a stronghold situated in one of the most remote oases of the desert lying south of Tripoli—and which not only forbids, under the most severe penalties, all intercourse with Christians, but actually goes to the length of teaching that the slaying of all unbelievers is an action most meritorious in the eyes of Allah and of Mohamet, insuring the Moslem paradise. It is by no means impossible that a connection may exist between the operations of the "Mad Mullah" in Somaliland and the Senoussi headquarters.

Has Evil Reputation.

The evil reputation which Somaliland has enjoyed for centuries and to which reference is made above, is as much due to the dangerous features of certain points of the coast as to the untamable fierceness of the people, who of Ethiopic or Hamatic origin, like their neighbors, the Abyssinians, show to a greater extent than the latter the admixture of Arab and of negro blood. I do not think that there is any part of the entire coast of the dark continent where so many vessels have come to grief in ancient and modern times as in the neighborhood of Cape Guardaful, which is the extreme eastern point of the continent. It is there that the ships which carried the gold from the mines of Ophir, south of the Zambesi river, for the building of the temple of King Soloman, at Jerusalem, came to grief, and many is the merchantman, and even passenger steamer, which in modern times has been driven by a combination of unknown currents and sudden storms to its doom on that dreaded portion of the coast.

Must Capture Mad Mullah.

It is owing to the existence of this belief that England refrained from seeking the co-operation of the Abyssinians in their war with the Mahdi, since it would have placed them in a bad light, not only in regard to the Egyptian army which played so large a share in the reconquest of the Soudan, but also in the eyes of the eighty million Mohammedans in India. It is this same consideration which restrains them from accepting assistance of the Abyssinians in "smashing" the "Mullah" in Somaliland. This of course, is a disadvantage, since it will make necessary the employment of a far larger body of British troops that would otherwise have been required.

It must be thoroughly understood that not merely the defeat of the "Mullah" but likewise his capture or death, is imperative upon the English, since their failure to suppress him for once, and all time, no matter at what cost, is certain to result in the development of his war against them into another dervish movement, as difficult to crush as that of the Mahdi. Great Britain cannot afford to leave him unconquered, virtually, abandoning Somaliland and its trade to his sway, without incalculable damage to her prestige and her power in all other Mahometan countries subject to her rule. For in the case of Islam, more than in that of any other creed, the authenticity of the mahdis and prophets is gauged by the degree of their success against the infidels, and the leaders of any armed religious movement are not relegated to the ranks of false prophets, until defeat, capture or death has convinced their co-religionists that they were frauds.

BAER REPLIES TO MITCHELL

Says Conditions Since Union was Formed Have Been Intolerable

Washington, Nov. 11.—The reply of President George F. Baer, of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal Company to the charges of President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers makes no reference to Mr. Mitchell as the president of the miners' organization, but refers to him simply as an individual.

Taking up the specifications in Mr. Mitchell's charges seriatim, Mr. Baer first admits that his company owns thirty-seven collieries, and that before the strike it employed 26,329 people. Following is a brief summary of the response to Mr. Mitchell's other specifications:

Second, the demand for 20 per cent. increase in wages on piecework is denounced as "arbitrary, unreasonable and unjust." The company contends that after making all necessary allowance for different conditions, the rate of wages paid for the mining of anthracite coal is as high as that paid in the bituminous coal fields.

Third—The company denies that the present rate of wages is lower than is paid in other occupations in the same locality and controlled by like conditions.

Fourth and fifth—Mr. Baer denies that the earnings of the anthracite for other occupations requiring skill workers are less than average earnings and training, and also the charge that the earnings are insufficient because of the dangerous character of work in the anthracite mines.

Sixth—This specification made by Mr. Mitchell is referred to as too vague for specific answer, but in a general way it is stated that the anthracite regions are among the most prosperous in the United States.

Seventh—The company pronounces as unjust and inequitable the demand for a reduction of 20 per cent. in hours of labor without a reduction of earnings for time employees, and this demand is pronounced impracticable. In this connection the following statement is made:

"Because of the injury to the mines by the strike of the United Mine Workers the cost of producing coal has been greatly increased, and a temporary advance in price was made by this company, but it will be impracticable to continue such increase when mining operations become normal."

Eighth—Mr. Baer says that his company has no disagreements with any of its employes about the weighing of coal, because the quantity is usually determined by measurement and not by weight.

Ninth—Replying to the fourth demand made by Mr. Mitchell, Mr. Baer says since the advent of the United Mine Workers organization into the anthracite fields business conditions there have been intolerable; that the output of the mines has decreased; that discipline has been destroyed; that strikes have been of almost daily occurrence; that men have worked when and as they pleased, and that the cost of mining has been greatly increased. He also takes the position that the jurisdiction of the commission is limited to the conditions named by the coal company presidents, which excludes the United Mine Workers from any recognition in the proceedings. He says, however, that "when a labor organization limited to anthracite mine workers is created which shall obey the law, respect the right of every man to work, and honestly co-operate with employers, trade agreements may become practicable."

POVERTY TO MUCH WEALTH

Poor Woman near Woodstock was Left $35,000 in England

Woodstock, Nov. 11.—For years past a little Englishwoman, carrying a basket and sometimes accompanied by a child, might have been seen on Saturdays plodding into the city from the east. After visiting a little store in the east end, where she often spoke of the poverty which was pinching her and hers, she made small purchases, which she put into her basket and carried home. With these she supplied the needs of her little domestic circle, which for a time was located in a miserable hut in Waugh's woods near Eastwood. She has tramped the intervening five miles between Woodstock and Eastwood in all kinds of weather, sometimes getting a lift from some kind-hearted farmer, but usually trudging along, often tired and weary, but always bright and cheery to those who spoke to her. For years she had known little but the direst poverty. Her husband had been laid low with a bodily affliction and his position of bread-winner was bravely taken by the little woman, who toiled late and early to keep the wolf from the door. She served as a domestic, and was even seen following the plough, for she would do any work that would bring her in money to buy the necessaries of life. To-day that woman can afford to live in a mansion and journey to and from Eastwood in an automobile.

The woman who has thus been raised from poverty to affluence is Mrs. Smith. Years ago she left a comfortable home in England and came to this country, but her life here was not an easy one. Until her husband took sick they were able to get along fairly well, but one calamity followed another, until Mrs. Smith found herself occupying a little hut in Waugh's woods, battling with her adverse fate and rearing a family of small children on the little she could make hiring out and doing any odd jobs she couldget. For some time she was employed as a domestic at Mrs. T. C. Patterson's, at Eastwood, but that place was locked up and then she was forced to go along as best she could. The neighbors were kind to her, and often came to her rescue when the next meal was not in sight. But better times were in store for the brave little woman, and they came at last.

On Saturday Mrs. Smith received a letter from a law firm in England, informing her that by the death of an aunt she has been left seven thousand pounds, which is $35,000 in our money. The letter also requested her to go to England to be present at the distribution of the estate, and informed her that money would be sent to bring her over. Mrs. Smith is now getting a few things together preparatory to visiting the scene of her childhood days and to collect the fortune which has been left her at such an opportune moment.

MORGAN'S A SECOND HOOLEY

London Paper Thinks a Great Financial Smash is About to Come

London, Nov. 11.—The London Daily Mail, in an article entitled "The Consequences of Morganism," says that Morgan's operations have been carried out with such a degree of recklessness that they seem almost to have succeeded in achieving the impossible, and shaking the credit of the United States. The paper considers that the concerns floated by Morgan are inevitably bound sooner or later to end as Hooley's companies have ended, and a vast amount of money, most of which has been entrusted to the banks, and the trust companies by the American public, is locked up in them.

The effects of these unsound operations, it goes on, "are being felt throughout the whole civilized world, so that London is suffering as well as the United States. It is an unfortunate fact that though they excel in many things the Americans never seem to have grasped the principles of sound banking."

IN DEFENCE OF BRETON TONGUE.

London, Nov. 12.—A Paris correspondent says the Breton Mayors have met and drafted a protest against the recent Government prohibition of preaching and catechising in the Breton tongue. Republicans as well as Royalists, the correspondent says, are joining in the movement in protest against this prohibition. It does not appear that Minister Combes had any legal authority for issuing such a prohibition.

THE DOUKHOBORS TO STAND ALL EXPENSES

Their Mad March May Cost Them Quite a Penny

THE GOVERNMENT HOLDS FUNDS

Out of Which They Will Pay Themselves Before Settling With the [illegible]

Ottawa, November 11— The expense incurred by the Government in providing for the Doukhobors who started out on a pilgrimage, but were returned to Yorkton, must, according to J. A. Smart, Deputy Minister of the Interior be borne by the Doukhobors themselves. There is an amount of upwards of $20,000 to the credit of these people now in the hands of the officers of the Department of the Interior, and any outlay to which the department has been put in connection with the recent movement will have to be paid out of these funds. Mr. Smart thinks that the pilgrimage, in which between 1,200 and 1,400 Doukhobors took part, was due to the teachings of a few so-called leaders among the Doukhobors. The majority had little or no interest in it, but were persuaded to join those who originated the idea.

"It is utterly absurd," said Mr. Smart, "to condemn the whole Duokhobor population of the West for the attitude of even those who were led into the pilgrimage, as they do not form one-fifth of the Doukhobors who have settled in the North-West Territories. From the reports in the department, as well as personal observation, I am of the opinion that these people have prospered beyond their own expectations or the expectations of others. It is simply marvelous the large tracts of land which they have brought under cultivation during the last two or three years. Their houses, too, are as good as possibly any log dwellings that have even been built in the West, and most of the people have been able to rebuild more substantial structures than those first erected by them on their arrival in the country. Any attempt to create the impression that these people were forced by the Government officers, or the police into returning to Yorkton, is, I am sure, entirely wrong, as the reports to me have shown that a good majority were not only willing, but anxious to return to homes. The journey may prove to have been rather an expensive journey for the Doukhobors, but the cost to the Government will amount to practically nothing."

The more that is learned about the Doukhobors and the manner in which they have been handled since they came to Canada, the worse the scandal grows. It is now stated that the bulk of them have never paid any taxes since they have been in the country and that the interior department has even interfered with local authorities to prevent these freaks from being annoyed by the tax collector. It is noted that at one point, Devil's Lake district, where the authorities insisted in making them amenable to the law and exacted taxes from them the Douks are now settled down and taking no part in the present disturbance. Apparently the others have been pampered and allowed to do much as they liked It will be remembered how reports as in order, if possible, to avert any demonstration, such as has now occurred, to the eccentricities of these people had been denied by the department even up to within a week or two of this final outburst of craziness, the object being to conceal the real state of affairs. They were even allowed to live tax free in addition to other privileges while the Canadian taxpayers paid their taxes for them. When the whole facts concerning this importation become known it bids fair to result in some remarkable revelations.

Mr. Fitzgerald bought the October cheese at 12c. of Keene, Central Smith, Myrtle, Fraserville, Trewern, Buckhorn, and Lakefield factories.

Mr. Kerr at the same price purchased East Emily, Fleetwood, Cavanville, Benafort, Norwood, Melrose Abbey, Dartford, Percy, Otonabee Union, Peterborough, Ballyduff, Missing Link, Mount pleasant, Oak Leaf, Lang, Indian River, and North Smith.

Mr. Whitton bought Villiers and Westwood at 12c.

Mr. Rollins secured Warminster, Oakdale, Maple Leaf, Pine Grove, Daisy D., Cedardale South Burleigh and Apsley.

Mr. Brown secured Warsaw, North Dummer, Stoney Lake, and Young's Point.

Mr. Bailey was the highest bidder at 11 3-4 for November Cheese, and took Keene, and was refused by North Smith, Oakdale, Dartford, Lakefield, and Fleetwood. He secured Dartford at 11 3-4 without the pound shrinkage off.

Mr. J. A. Ruddick, of the Dairying Branch of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, addressed the Board in an able manner. He said a turning point had come in the making of cheese in Ontario, and pointed out the advantages of cold curing cheese. The plan adopted was to roll the cheese in parafine wax, which preserved the cheese and allowed it to be placed on the market in the very best condition. The cost for parafine was about two cents per cheese. The cost of the building would be considerable on the start, but several factories might unite and use the same building, thus minimizing the cost to each. In the long run the system would more than pay for itself.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Ruddick for his address, and a similar vote was passed to the Council for the use of the hall

DEPRAVITY PERSONIFIED

How a Villian Planned to Have His Wife Murdered

Glasgow, Nov. 12—An extraordinary conspiracy by which a husband planned to have his wife murdered for a bribe of $100 has just been revealed in the Sheriff's Court. The person to whom the money was paid confessed and said that when about to commit the deed his heart failed him, and he handed over the bribe to another man, who also had compunctions at the last moment and turned back to him half the amount.

The most extraordinary feature of the case is the action of the murderous-minded husband in bringing suit for the amount off the bribe, claiming it was money loaned. All three conspirators were placed under arrest and their conflicting stories investigated.

SOUTH AFRICAN MINES

Increase of White Labour—The Output Becoming Greater Daily

London, Nov. 12—The latest in South South African statistics prove that there is a steady increase in the number of white men employed in the mines in the Rand. In 1899, the year before the war, 9,476 white men we employed in 73 mines, the highest number of stamps at work being 5,765. In August of this year 9,122 white men were at work with only 3,455 stamps in operation. In July and August the increase in the number of white men in the mines was 1,363, and of natives for the same period 1,330. The total number of natives working on the last day of August was 36,363, but the on the books of the contractors was 41,672, the difference of 5,309 implying a wastage of 12.7 per cent. While the value of unskilled white labor is still a matter of dispute, mine managers are using all available material and running a considerable number of stamps which otherwise would be idle.

ITEMS OF NEWS BY CABLE AND LETTER

New York, Nov. 12.—One of the most sensational murder trials in modern criminal history was closed yesterday by the acquittal of Roland B. Molineux, who was charged with the murder of Mrs. K. J. Adams, after spending nearly four years in prison.

Two friends of Molineux, Henry C. Barnett and Harry Cornish, the former of whom was a rival in love, were acquainted with the past career of the woman whom Molineux married. Barnett died in November, 1898, shortly after receiving a powder, which he frequently used, and was supposed to be poisoned. Cornish, near Christmas, 1898, received a bottle labelled "bromo-seltzer." He gave some of the contents to his aunt Mrs. Adams, besides drinking some himself. Mrs. Adams died, but Cornish survived. The poison was recognized as cyanide of mercury.

As Molineux worked in a wholesale drug store, and had quarrelled with both men, he was arrested, and in 1899 was found guilty of murder by the Supreme Court of New York. His friends obtained a retrial.

New York, Nov. 12.—It has been estimated that the trial of Roland B. Molineux has cost more than any other for a capital offence in any country where the English system of jurisdiction is in vogue. The cost to the County of New York of the first trial approximated $250,000. This was expended in various directions, largely in fees for handwriting experts who were brought from distant States, and for detectives who endeavored to trace Molineux's movements from his fifteenth birthday to the time of his arrest. The defence expended about $75,000 in the first trial, and it is estimated that his total on both side for the two hearings will foot up nearly $500,000.

Barrie, Nov. 11.—Mr. and Mrs. Eber Graham, a bride and groom, of Guilford, were charivarid one night last week. Guns, pistols, and horse fiddles, with musical instruments, played an important part, and attracted neighbors from miles around.

Among the latter was Mr. John Harper of Stroud. Just as he arrived at a point on the road opposite Graham's house, he was shot down by George Mattenly, one of the wedding guests, who was trying to disperse the crowd which had gathered about the premises. The charge took effect in Harper's legs, and as blood poisoning is feared, bail has been refused for Mattenly, who has been lodged in the jail at Barrie. The charge laid against him is "shooting with intent to murder."

The prisoner has acknowledged firing the shot, but claims that he did not see the victim, and only fired the gun to alarm the crowd.

Fifteen of the young men who participated in the charivari were brought before Magistrate Ross but the charge against them was withdrawn on payment of the costs, amounting to about one hundred dollars.

APPEAL TO THE IRISH IN THE UNITED STATES

To Help to Free the Island From the Curse of Britain's Rule

ENEMIES OF ENGLAND HARD AT WORK

Appeal to the United Irish League of America—What Irish Agitators Hope to Accomplish

Boston, Nov. 12—The following address of the national officers and executive committee of the United Irish league of America has been issued to the American Irish:

Friends and Fellow Citizens—At its first national convention held in Faneuil hall, Boston, on Oct. 20 and 21, 1902, the United Irish League of America pledged itself to raise an Irish national defence fund of $100,000 for the maintenance of Ireland's struggle for land and liberty, within the period of six months.

The raising of the Irish national defence fund will be the most telling answer we can give to the brutal insolence of Balfour, and the wanton coercion of Wyndham.

MONEY ENGLAND'S WEAPON.

Money, more than any other weapon, makes England formidable to Ireland. Without it she would be powerless to enchain her victim, because she matches cupidity against courage and venality against virtue, just as she did in the days of Elizabeth, Stafford and George III.

If, unfortunately, we cannot at present fight for Ireland, we can, at least, subscribe for the defence of her gallant champions, now behind prison bars, or soon to be placed there by the despotic suspension of all constitutional procedure on Irish soil.

The name of Ireland stands for liberty. Her noble action in declaring by the votes of her members of parliament, contrary to her own political interests, against England's war upon the Boer Republics, has placed her in the forefront of European and American approval. Ireland has given the lie to the cynical aphorism that the age of chivalry has passed away.

Her attitude of calm, self-restraint under maddening oppression appeals to the sympathy of mankind, and the insults heaped upon her representatives by the English prime minister should kindle into generous flame in the hearts of the Irish race in every quarter of the globe.

TEST OF AMERICAN IRISH.

Shall it be said of us, the American Irish, in the pages of future history, that in the moment of supreme trial we proved false to our motherland? Are we not, at least, as content and self-respecting as our English opponents? What Englishman, however high or humble, would fail to respond to his mother country's appeal under similar circumstances? The Englishs have their faults, and Ireland and other countries know to their sorrow, but lack of patriotism is not one of them.

The English minister, in the plenitude of his power and the cruelty of his his arrogance, has put an insult, unparalled even in the annals of Anglo-Irish relations, upon Ireland; the insult of a coward, who is brave because he deems himself secure.

He must be hurled from his political power, as Parnell alternately hurled both Salisbury and Gladstone in 1885 and the succeeding year. Balfour has gone much further in official brutality than any of his predecessors in refusing to give Ireland even one day during the parliamentary session for the discussion of exclusively Irish affairs, —a privilege never denied to other parts of the alleged "United Kingdom."

We can destroy Balfour politically if we unite against the English ruling classes as they have united against Ireland.

In conclusion, we ask you to go into this work with zeal and energy. The example has been generously set by Boston, New York and Philadelphia, at the recent gatherings held in those cities, and their subscriptions are but a token of what they will give before the struggle is at an end and Ireland's independence and prosperity are secured. God save Ireland!

VERY COOL POLITENESS TOWARDS THE GERMANS

Germany More Accommodating when Given Cold Shoulders by Powers

Disloyal Dutch Retain Their Rifles—Loyalists Compelled to Give Theirs Up—Fate of German Tariff Scheme

London, Nov. 12.—A Vienna correspondent says that while the German-Austrians display disappointment at the attitude of the British public toward the visit of Emperor William, independent opinion inclines to the view that it will not do Germany any harm to be left out in the cold for a time, and that it will benefit those who have had dealings with her, since Germany is always more accomodating when she receives the cold shoulder from other powers. It is thought that nothing further than the cool politeness and keen business competitors is possible between England and Germany, and that even that is difficult in the face of outbursts of Anglophobia, such as those recently filling the pages of the German press, which were encouraged by the inconsiderate and far from friendly utterances of German statesmen. It is pointed out that any show of favor toward the Kaiser will be interpreted as an attempt to curry favor, resulting from a repetition of the old Bismarckian warnings of the pernicious influence of the English royal family in German affairs.

WANT MOUNTED TROOPS.

London, Nov. 12.—A Cape Town correspondent says that a motion by a progressive member of the Cape Town Parliament to provide for the continuance of the maintenance of district mounted troops for guarding the towns, raised in Cape Colony in 1901, has been shelved. The correspondent says there is considerable feeling caused by the disarming and disbanding of these forces, as it is notorious that in the vicinity of Kimberley the disloyal Dutch retain their rifles, while loyalists who served during the war are compelled to give theirs up. The Peace Preservation Act, which is a dead letter in many of the districts, prohibits all persons from bearing arms. The progressives want an act passed allowing all approved persons to keep their rifles on registration.

TARIFF SCHEME IS SEALED.

London, Nov. 12.—A Berlin correspondent says that among well informed friends of the Government it is regarded as practically certain that the fate of the tariff scheme is sealed. The Agrarian organs are abandoning the hope that a Parliamentary majority will be able to keep the House together in support of a measure wherein movement has ceased to exhibit any voice of lively interest. It is very generally believed, according to the correspondent, that the Government is entirely resigned to shipwreck the present scheme. The most competent observers, it is said, are of the opinion that the Government will endeavor to prolong the present commercial treaties for at least five years, which they will employ in remodelling the autonomous tariff. The idea of a further respite is also supported by the consideration that the future tariff policy toward certain foreign powers, particularly the United States, remains a great uncertainty. It remains to be seen whether the United States will treat Germany better or worse than she has recently done with regard to a customs policy.

ITALIAN FRIENDSHIP FOR ENGLAND

London, Nov. 12.—A Rome correspondent says that Italian comments on Premier Balfour's Guild Hall speech, referring to Somaliland operations, can scarcely be called enthusiastic, but the Tribune, the official organ, expresses satisfaction at what it considers the Premier's homage to Italian straightforwardness. The Tribune confirms the joint action of the British and Italian cruisers off the coast of Somaliland, remarking that Italy thus performed an act of friendship toward England, but has reserved all ulterior action. The correspondent says that noisy Ministerial Radicals imagine that England is about to entice Italy into a costly and dangerous adventure.

COUNTRY SCHOOLS

The announcement that Prof. Robertson is interesting himself in the matter of the consolidation of rural schools is a welcome one to all who have even given the subject any thought, says the Ottawa Journal. There can be no question of the fact that country schools as they are conducted today do not fulfill the requirements of the farming communities. Owing to the manner in which the population in country districts is scattered it is an impossibility under existing conditions for any one school section to meet the expenses of constructing and equipping a school equal to what the residents of the city have come to consider a necessity for their children. Yet, however, no one will claim that it is not as essential that country children should be well educated as it is that city children shall.

This difficulty has led to the introduction in sections of the United States of a new system known as the consolidation of rural schools. Instead of having a large number of small and poorly equipped schools large central schools have been erected to and from which children are taken in vans. The increased attendance thus brought about makes it possible to grade the children into classes and to employ different teachers for each class. Where tried this system seems generally to have proved a success, and a marked improvement over previous conditions.

Unless country schools can be thus centralized then there is little possibility for their ever attaining the rank now enjoyed by town and city schools and country people can have no hope of ever being able to give their children the advantages in education to which they are entitled unless they remove them from the country and send them into the towns.

If, on the other hand, centralization is possible, then a new area is begun in country life, and the question of the proper education of country people is completely solved.

The requirements of country schools are even greater than are those of the city. Not only does a farmer's son require to be taught the things that other men and other citizens find it necessary to know, such as to read, to write and to compute, but as an agriculturalist he has special needs. He is dealing with the natural world, and must therefore know nature. The studies adapted to his needs in this respect can scarcely be said to be taught at all in the country school. Not only are they not taught now but there is reason to lead to the belief that they never will be as long as present conditions continue.

Three great disadvantages under which country schools labor at present makes it apparent that no great improvement can take place without a sweeping change in the present system.

It is a safe estimate that there is an average of at least thirty pupils in the ordinary country school. A teacher, even if very capable, can hardly, under the present system, properly instruct such a large number of pupils, of different ages, in the time at his disposal. And yet in the country districts teachers are compelled year after year to attempt this almost impossible task. If it is almost impossible under present conditions, with only the ordinary and limited number of studies at present prescribed, how will it be possible when such additional studies are introduced as are necessary, in order that the schools be brought to meet the requirements of the farmers' needs?

Proper training, suited to the farmer's requirements, cannot be given under existing methods, for another reason; lack of qualified teachers. Teachers qualified to give instruction in the branches needed in the country schools will not take a country school because of the meagre salary that these schools pay. They will go to the towns and cities where their attainments are appreciated and adequately paid.

It is impossible also for a third reason, lack of supply of proper apparatus of school apparatus necessary in order to give the kind of instruction the farmers need is much larger than the ordinary school can afford to procure.

The consolidation of rural schools would mean fewer but larger schools, properly graded classes with more scholars in each and consequently keener rivalry among the pupils, fewer but better paid and more competent teachers, and a complete supply of all necessary school equipment.

The announcement from Prof. Robertson as to what he proposes to inaugurate in this direction will be paratus in the country schools. The awaited with considerable interest.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The Ontario authorities cannot be too vigilant in their efforts to keep out the smallpox plague which is reported at Port Huron. The people will support them in all proper measures for that purpose

Gerald Sifton has been found innocent of the murder of his father. Herbert, the hired man, who pleaded guilty to assisting in a murder that the jury say never took place, has yet to be dealt with As Inspector Murray declared, the jury system is guilty of some glaring blunders at times.

A Bloemfontein correspondent observes that South Africa is being flooded with polygot trade circulars issued from American and German commercial houses. None come from British firms. They appear to feel superior to such devices, or perhaps, have not thought of employing them. In this matter Canadians are not backward, but they might well be more forward.

The experience which some Canadian ridings had with the voting machine seems to have been improved upon in New York State. The Rochester Democrat speaks highly of it. It says—"The voter cannot beat them unless he has free license to disregard the case the inspectors could not conceal to states prison. No 'expert' once behind the properly drawn curtain, can make the machine lie."

The Governor of the State of California has protested vehemently against the recent edict of Imperial Washington, ordering the decapitation of the Chief of Police of San Francisco, who was responsible for not protecting the Confucian missionaries, Po-King and Fu-ni, who were killed on the sand-lots, August 15, by a San Francisco mob. President Roosevelt, Emperor of the Philippines, is opposed to the decapitation of the officials."

How would that strike the public as news? It is a precise parallel to a telegraphed information in a Montreal paper, in a despatch from Hunan, China, by way of London. To decapitate a Mandarin because a mob murders a missionary seems to be coming it rather un-Christianly strong.

everywhere—to many houses, indeed, where Macaire had never been asked until the handsome young man in his gratitude obtained him a welcome.

Nobody, not even Macaire himself, dreamt of the true reason of the "Baron's" insatiable fondness for society, his eagerness to make new acquaintances among the mighty ones of the land. But there was such a reason beneath all the young man's actions, deep under the surface as some currents in the sea, and as darkly hidden. If it had not been so he would not have had heart or courage, after the loss of his love, for the life into whose vortex he had thrown himself.

He went wherever it was fashionable to go, wherever he was likely to meet people intent on the spending of much money for their own pleasure, and he stayed nowhere long; he seemed possessed by the spirit of restlessness. Sometimes he was in London; sometimes in Scotland; sometimes in Paris, in Rome, or in the Riviera; but his visits (save one to Germany, on private business) were only long enough to see for himself what personages of importance were amusing themselves in a place, and the personages in whom alone he appeared interested were English, or at least English-speaking.

Baron von Zellheim had the reputation of being a very rich young man, not because he had ever said that he was rich, but because he lived luxuriously and was a great friend of Macaire, who found the society of most poor men too dull, and because Macaire had hinted at his protege's wealth.

And this was another cause of laughter to Macaire; for he had the best of reasons for knowing exactly what the Baron's income was, on what it depended and how long it would last. He rather liked Hope Newcome, though he was jealous of his strength, his youth, and his good looks; nevertheless, he looked forward to the day which he had set for the great crash—the day on which society should see how it had been fooled; the day on which F. E. Z.'s "friend" would learn what the early folly of F. E. Z. had done for him.

Though the scheme in which Dick was the leading marionette worked well, it worked slowly, and to hurry it on Macaire at last decided that the long-talked-of trip to Monte Carlo should be undertaken.

The night before starting he invited a number of very young men in a fast set to dine with him, and he entertained them afterwards by what he called "slumming." Having plied his guests with so much wine of many kinds that the world floated before their eyes in a haze of rainbow colors, he took them to a box at Winifred's music-hall, where they behaved so uproariously that they would have been turned out by the police had they been persons of less importance.

When Winifred appeared, Macaire led the applause, which his friends kept up so stormily that the poor girl was obliged to stand silently waiting for it to cease, conscious that Macaire was staring at her and that all the audience saw him stare. If Dick had not been at home in Park lane getting ready for the journey next day, even his anger might have been excited against the man who could do no wrong.

The trip to Monte Carlo was to be made in Macaire's steam yacht, which was supposed to be the second largest, the second handsomest, and the first in speed, on the seas. The millionaire took with him a party of a dozen friends, besides his highly favored secretary, and among these were several women more conspicuous for beauty than dignity, and not too particular to flirt a little with Dick Gray when for the moment there was no better way of keeping their hands in.

Every night after dinner they played poker, or bridge, or ecarte, in the beautiful cabin of the yacht, and stakes were high. Dick was asked to join, and could not bear to refuse. Fortunately for him, Macaire had made him one or two presents, and, besides, luck was often with him; still, to play as the others played subjected him to a severe nervous strain.

Then came Monte Carlo, and—the beginning of the end. Life for Dick Gray began to be a brilliant dream, a delirium. Where everybody had plenty of money, he lost his head, and fancied that he had plenty, too. Macaire encouraged him in the fancy, and finding that the gambling-rooms fascinated his secretary, he told him to "go in and win, and be a good-plucked one." Beginners were always lucky. Who knew but Dick would break the bank, like that chap Wells, a few years ago? What was a sovereign here or there, when there was any fun to be had? He would see that Dick didn't come to grief.

Thus cheered into the thick of the fray, Dick let himself go, and ceased to resist the maddening excitement which sang in his veins a wonderful song.

Rouge et Noir was the game which held him its willing slave, for he had evolved a system which worked well for a time. He won two hundred pounds in a couple of days, and as Macaire seemed to have forgotten that Dick was merely his secretary and not a guest with the others, there was plenty of time to spend in testing the system. But one night it failed—failed unaccountably. The two hundred pounds melted away like gold in a furnace. Dick's small savings from what he had made on board the "Diavolo" followed, until, with his last three pounds, luck began again to change. He staked on red, and red won; on black, the same thing happened. He grew excited, and lost his all, but he was sure this was because in his confusion of mind he had forgotten the system. If he only had something to go on with!

Then he remembered that in his pocket was an uncommon trinket of Macaire's, which the millionaire had tossed to him that afternoon, carelessly asking if he would take it to be repaired. It was supposed, his employer had said, to bring luck to its possessor, and he was rather superstitious about the thing, having carried it with him in his pocket for years. Still, judging from Macaire's tone and indifferent way of handing it over to him for repairing, Dick did not believe that the millionaire really attached great importance to the fetich.

The young man searched in his pocket, and brought out in his hand a very curious jewel.

It was an exact representation of the Sphinx's head, exquisitely carved from a single large Egyptian moonstone, holding in its depths a marvelous blue light, radiant, elusive, like a soul imprisoned in the stone and striving to escape. Underneath was a small gold screw, by which the luck-giving talisman could be fastened into the coat or the pocket of the wearer for safety; and it was the screw which had been broken.

"I wonder if the bank would lend me anything on this?" thought Dick. "I could get the thing back in a few minutes, for I feel I should have luck, if I

AN INVESTMENT IN THE

Pitkin Gold Belt Mining and Reduction Company

Which is Safe and Sure of Quick Returns, may Bring an Enormous Return at any Moment. It has the Possibilities of Rivaling the Great Mines of the Past.

This Company has a mine on a true fissure vein, in the center of the Gunniston Gold Belt, Colorado, which is the "Mother" lode or dike, which has produced 55 per cent. more gold than the total output of the Cripple Creek district.

This Mine is no Prospect. Nor is it Waiting on Your Subscription to Buy Machinery or for Development.

After a careful examination by experts, Joseph M. Bradley, M. E., and Mr. George Arlett, A. I. M. E., Amalgamated Copper Company's expert in Chihuahua, Mexico, they advised the purchase of the property. The property had shallow development upon it, showing two ore shoots from which smelting ore had been shipped to the Buena Vista Smelter.

The Company purchased and paid for the latest improved machinery and has put a shaft down 250 feet and intend to carry it down 1000 feet. On the 150 foot level 300 feet of development has been made and an ore shoot has been encountered and blocked out for 57 feet, carrying values in gold from 2 to 9 ounces or $40 to $180 per ton. The cost of mining, hauling, freight and smelters charges will be between $12 and $15 per ton.

Ed. McCarthy & Co., bankers, guarantee a shipping mine of smelting ore running from 2 to 6 ounces in gold, or $40 to $120 per ton, by January 1st, 1903, or all funds will be returned to subscribers upon presentation of receipt issued by said bank.

Also to prospective purchasers of $500 worth of stock we are offering a free trip to Colorado and return. You investigate first and purchase afterward. Could you expect anything fairer than this?

The capital stock of this company is $1,000,000, divided into 1,000,000 shares of stock at $1 each, full paid and non-assessable. A portion of the treasury stock is now offered at

COAL VEINS.

The several layers or seams of coal available aggregate 27 to 30 feet in thickness.

TITLES.

These areas are held under Crown Lease for a period of 80 years. Royalty 10 cents per 100 of coal sold.

2.—IRON.

The Company has acquired by purchase immense iron deposits on the North Shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, about 350 miles from Sydney. The deposits are estimated to contain 20,000,000 tons of ore above sea level, with probably as much more below that line. The iron can be handled for $1.00 per ton or less. Quantities of this ore have been shipped to Great Britain and the United States, where it has given great satisfaction, and we can sell large quantities f. o. b. at the properties, netting us a profit of $2.00 per ton. This ore makes the finest steel.

3.—FLUX.

We are now negotiating for valuable deposits of dolomite and limestone of the most satisfactory quality, situated on the tide water, within 100 miles of the works.

MARKETS.

For six months in each year the Canadian markets can be reached by water at low freight rates, and at all times by rail. As Cape Breton is distant from Liverpool only about 2,300 miles; is nearer to Pernambuco, Brazil, than any point in the United States, and also nearer to Cape Town, South Africa, it has the advantage, in point of distance, for export business over any American steel-producing points, which, with scarcely any exceptions, are situated some distance from tide water. Under any conditions of the world's market, it is believed that the output of these works can be disposed of at satisfactory prices.

OUTPUT

When in full operation, the output is expected to be about as follows:—

1. IRON.—200,000 tons iron ore shipped direct from property, showing net profit of $2.00 per ton, total	$400,000 00
200,000 tons fine iron ore shipped in briquettes, showing net profit of $4.00 per ton, total	800,000 00
100,000 tons steel blooms, showing net profit of $3.00 per ton, total	300,000 00
2. COAL.—600,000 tons coal, showing net profit, at least, of $1.00 per ton, total	600,000 00
3. AIDS.—Government bounties (averaged) added to above per year for 6 years	100 000 00
Total yearly revenue	$2,200,000 00

GOVERNMENT AIDS.

To encourage the manufacture in the Dominion of iron and steel the Parliament of Canada has granted bounties as follows:—

	ON PIG IRON.	ON STEEL.
Apl. 21st, 1902, to July 1st, 1903	$2.70	$2.70

July 1st, 1905, " " 1906	1.05	1.05
July 1st, 1906, " " 1907	.60	.60

If the production of steel from the Company's works be as estimated, 300,000 tons per annum, the bounties to be received from the Canadian Government will be as follows:—

1904	$225,000
1905	215,000
1906	145,000
1907	85,000
or an average of $100,000.00 per annum for 6½ years	$670,000.00

Net yearly profits		$2,045,000.00

Equivalent to yearly dividends of over 30 per cent., or 15 per cent. half yearly on total capitalization.

If the capitalization was increased to .... $20,000,000.00 this estimate would still show a dividend-earning capacity of 10 per cent. per annum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Coal Co. is .... $20,000,000.00 earning fully 12 per cent., and is paying 8 per cent. guaranteed dividends on this enormous sum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. is ...... $[illegible],000,000.00 on which it is believed 6 per cent. dividends will be earned.

The capitalization of the Canadian Steel & Coal Company is only $6,000,000.00 controlling, it is believed, equally valuable properties, and it is reasonable to expect much larger dividends.

Within the last few months Dominion Coal shares common rose in market value from $40 to $144 per share, and Dominion Iron & Steel Company's shares common rose over $30 per share in market value.

With such low capitalization the Canadian Steel and Coal Co's shares should show tremendous profits, and it is confidently believed they will.

STOCK MARKETS

More Reasons for Believing Market Storm Over

New York, Nov. 13—Tuesday's market has been better; there was also an absence of the urgent selling noticeable on Saturday and Monday last. Stocks sold on those two days evidently found safe lodging where they will be cared for. The market all along the line is at an extremely low level and while it is not possible to state that the low prices will not again be reached, or even in some instances to a slight degree more than equalled, it is possible to believe that the market should from this point be more likely to do better than to do worse. The parties who were so out-spokenly bullish about Sept first upon their return from Europe, are evidently repurchasing the stocks they sold under cover of their bullish utterances. The Waldorf—Astoria crowd who have been bearing the market since just prior to election day were free buyers on Monday afternoon, and on Tuesday were outspoken in their belief that the decline had gone about as far as they considered possible. The veteran operator, Mr. J. R. Keene, who has been silent for some time past, spoke yesterday as follows:—There has been so much writing about gold exports and expansion of loans, that an atmosphere of encircling gloom seems to have enveloped Wall Street until sensible men have lost their heads. So far as railroads are concerned there never was before them such a large volume of business, and the most influential and sagacious railway presidents unhesitatingly predict larger net earnings for a year to come than railroads have ever enjoyed before. The demands of wage-earners on the roads are being carefully considered; the exports of manufactures, wheat, cotton and other products, are on a scale, equalling, if not exceeding, those of last year. I have not changed my opinion one iota from that which I have entertained for six months past. There is no dispute that since Saturday last fully one million shares of stock have been liquidated by pools and public. It has found secure lodgement. Tuesday's market, with absence of liquidation, plainly emphasizes the fact. Even should the market be going to record still lower prices, we feel very confident that an average improvement of fully 5 per cent. will be witnessed first.

Summary—Today's market was apparently opened at as low prices as it was possible to make them. An effort was plainly made to buy as many stocks as possible, accompanied by the endeavor to hold down prices. After an early rally there was a nervous fitful decline followed by a renewal of the buying movement. Stocks generally sold higher than at last night's closing. Sales 1,193,600.

COMPANY'S STOCK AT 35 CENTS

California Oil Stocks Have Paid Millions in Dividends

KERN COUNTY (SUNSET DISTRICT) OIL COMPANIES PAID

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS IN DIVIDENDS IN AUGUST ALONE

MORGAN IN THE OIL INDUSTRY--NEW YORK FINANCIER AT THE HEAD OF A $20,000,000 COMPANY TO EXPLOIT CALIFORNIA FIELDS

Bakersfield, Cal., Sept. 27.—J. Pierpont Morgan is about to identify himself with the oil business in California. On October 12, or a few days later, surveyors will be put into the field, and will run lines to the ocean from Sunset, Coaling, McKittrick, Midway and Kern River fields to determine by which route it is most feasible to transport oil to tide water. The surveys will run over the coast range at a number of points, and also will go down the San Joaquin valley parallel with the line of the Standard.

A company having a capitalization of $5,000,000 has been organized for the construction of lines, pumping stations, storage tanks, and the like. Mr. Morgan and his associates have also formed a separate company, capitalized at $20,000,000, half of which will be invested in proven ground and the other half turned into a reserve fund.

It is stated that the Morgan syndicate will be prepared to handle 2,000,000 barrels the first year, and will increase that amount at the rate of 1,000,000 a year until the whole demand of the market is met.

THE ST. PAUL & SUNSET OIL COMPANY own and control a large tract of absolutely oil proven asphalt land in the very heart of the best oil producing land of Kern County, California, the district where flowing wells are situated. We have a bed of Liquid Asphalt underlying a portion of our lands. Our property is situated right at Sunset Station. A new line of railway is surveyed and will be constructed in a very short time, putting us not only in touch with Eastern cities, but in touch with tide-water. This, in addition to the railroad facilities we now have. Remember that we own our land—it is paid for and entirely free from debt.

ST. PAUL & SUNSET OIL CO.'S GIGANTIC TRACT

will be developed and should prove a formidable rival for the new company.

PROFESSOR DR. RUD J. SCHIMPER, Analytical and Expert Chemist, of St. Paul, makes the following statement relative to the composition, what can be produced and the estimated profits of the Sunset Crude Oil. A copy of the original certificate can be seen at the office of the St. Paul & Sunset Oil Co., which is in substance as follows:

"This is to certify that the undersigned, Dr. Rudolph J. Schimper, Chemist expert, member of Parisian Academy, according to analysis made from the crude oil furnished me by the St. Paul & Sunset Oil Company, I find the following valuable products and with each beg to submit my estimate of its value:

1. LIQUID RUBBER—2000 lbs of this crude oil (6 bbls.) will produce 1,800 lbs. of liquid rubber, value of which is from 25c. per lb. and up. (Estimated value $450.00.)
2. SOLID RUBBER—2000 lbs of this crude oil (6 bbls) will produce 1,700 lbs. of solid rubber, value of which is from 30c. upwards. (Estimated value $450.00.)
3. FUEL BRIQUETTES—2000 lbs. of this crude oil (6 bbls.) will produce 2,000 lbs. (1 ton) of fuel briquettes, which, according to government tests made, is equivalent to two tons of best anthracite coal. (Estimated value $21.00)
4. ASPHALTUM—2,000 lbs. of this crude oil (6 bbls.) will produce ½ ton of asphaltum, value $25 to $35 per ton. 25 gal. of lubricating oil, value 50c. per gal. and upward. 40 gal. illuminating oil, value 10c per gal. and up. 60 gal. of distilled oil, value 5c. per gal. and upward. (Estimated value $64.50.)
5. SOAP—2000 lbs. (1 ton) of crude oil and filling will produce over 2,000 lbs. of soap, value 3c. per lb. and upward. (Estimated value $60.00.)

Id my opinion many other valuable products can be obtained from the oil of that famous field.

Respectfully, DR. R. J. SCHIMPER, Chemist Expert."

THIS goes to show the immense profits that will accrue from our products when refined. We expect to commence Building Our Refinery in the very near future. The sale of the next allotment of stock will be made for that purpose. The largest flowing wells in California were brought in adjoining our property and their stock was taken off the market. We employ the best drillers who report rapid progress on our wells and we expect to bring in gushers equal, if not to excel any in the Sunset field. Our General Manager, Superintendent and Drillers, all are experienced oil men. The officers of our company are all thorough, competent and efficient men who have always made a success of their undertaking in life and who will see that the welfare of the St. Paul and Sunset Oil Company is furthered, portected and promoted to the most advantageous extent possible.

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS SHOULD BE PAID STOCKHOLDERS.

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS should be paid to the stockholders of the St. Paul and Sunset Oil Company when their property is fully developed, their refinery equipped and in full operation. ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS IN DIVIDENDS was paid by Kern County Oil Companies during the month of August alone.

SIX MILLION BARRELS is the consuming capacity of the Southern Pacific Railway engines, which are now equipped for burning oil. Outside of this consider other railway lines, smelters, factories, steamships, stationery engines, which are all heavy consumers of fuel oil and last but not least, hotels and private dwellings are falling in line with the procession in the use of fuel oil.

A GOOD REASON WHY YOU Should Invest in the stock of St. Paul & Sunset Oil Company. More fortunes have been made in oil than any other business. Consider the immense amount of money the Standard Oil Company has made for its fortunate stockholders, and the California oil companies have done better in proportion to their capitalization than the Standard Oil Company. Here is what $100 has accomplished for those who invested that amount in the following California companies in the beginning of their career:

Home Whittier $1,000 on an investment of $100.
Kern returned $2,200 on an investment of $100.
Peerless returned $1,800 on an investment of $100.
Dillon returned $2,500 on an investment of $100.
New York returned $30,000 on an investment of $100.
Union returned $150,000 on an investment of $100.
Home returned $60,000 on an investment of $100.

THERE is no reason in the world why the St. Paul and Sunset Company's oil holdings and property, when developed and handled, should not bring like returns

CONTRARY to the general supposition the earth is the repository of all mineral wealth. When it is known and demonstrated beyond a question of a doubt where its wealth reposes and you put your money up to take it out, your money is invested. Hence you are an investor, not a speculator. A proven oil producing property does not draw its profits from the people but creates new wealth. It is therefore an investment.

Wonderful Increase in Value of Oil Stocks.

The rapid rise in the value of shares in some oil companies will be seen from the following table:	Original price per share	Present Market price
Black Mountain Oil Co	$ .05	$ 1.50
Central Oil Co	.30	1.50
Home Oil Co, Whittier	.25	2.50

The time will come in the near future when stock in St. Paul and Sunset Oil Co., should bring prices equal to the last.

WE CLAIM NOTHING WE CANNOT PROVE TO BE TRUE

BRIEFLY, OUR PROPOSITION IS THIS: THE ST. PAUL & SUNSET OIL COMPANY

owns its immense tract of proven Oil Land—without a penny of incumbrance. The property is located in the most wonderful and richest oil producing section in the world, in the famous Sunset District of Kern County, California. These companies in many instances have less property, and in some cases are only lessors, not owning refinery, tanks, lines, etc.

A LIMITED AMOUNT OF THIS STOCK WILL BE SOLD AT 35c. PER SHARE, PAR VALUE $1.00.

BUY NOW. THIS STOCK WILL BE ADVANCED TO 50c WITHIN THE NEXT 30 DAYS

THE ST. PAUL & SUNSET OIL COMPANY will erect their own refinery, etc. are now owners of the property they are developing, employ the best drillers in the whole State of California. The manager is an old and experienced oil man who has been connected with large California companies. The officers are all successful and reliable business men, who are investors—the same as every other stockholder. And the company, with plenty of ready capital, proposes to make the St. Paul & Sunset Oil Co. a leader in the field and to develop their property to the fullest extent that money and brains will permit.

The first orders received will be the first ones to be filled. In case we are unable to fill your orders at 35c. your money will be refunded. ☞ Send Orders and Remittances to —Mr. W. A. Chisholm, of town, has been appointed local agent of the Scranton Correspondence School. This is a good selection, as Mr. Chisholm is well known and very popular. Mr. G. W. Morgan goes to the Montreal office.

—A supply of the new coinage of coppers has been received at some of the banks. On one side there is no change, on the reverse the King's head is shown, facing in the opposite direction to what the head of Queen Victoria does on the old coins. The inscription is "Edward, V. R., Dei Gratia, Rex. Imperator." The first received is so bright it might be taken for a new sovereign.

—Daniel and John Brophy, who were killed in a fire which damaged the new East River bridge, New York, to the extent of half a million of dollars on Monday night, were at one time residents here, together with a brother, Andrew Brophy, who was drowned while coming from the Klondyke. The weight of a quantity of gold in his belt made it impossible for him to keep afloat.

A BULL DOG

Is Easier to Shake Off Than the Coffee Grip

A lady of St. Paul, Minn., never drank anything but cold water until she was married and then commenced to drink coffee.

She says, "About one year after our marriage, my husband began to complain of a distress in his stomach and I had such dizzy spells after each meal that we had to see a doctor. We drank coffee three times a day, but did not imagine that coffee was causing all this distress. The doctor said both our livers were out of order, gave us some medicine, and told us that we ought to break off drinking coffee. We stopped it for a while but missed the hot drink so much we went back to coffee. In five years' time I lost a complexion that was faultless and gained a very bad stomach and my husband's stomach was ruined. He thought he had cancer of the stomach, or something worse, but we had formed the habit of coffee drinking, and like drunkards, found it no easy matter to break off, although we knew it was killing both of us.

We kept a grocery store at the time, and a lady called one day and asked for Postum Food Coffee, saying,—'My children like it; will not drink anything else, and I know it is good for them because they never have trouble with their stomachs.' This interested me, and I told her about my bad stomach. She told me how to make Postum and we began its use ourselves.

After drinking it three times a day for a week, I felt much better and my husband declared that he felt like a new man. We have drank Postum for four years and have never had one particle of stomach trouble since, and I have lost that sallow, yellow color I so much disliked and the whites of my eyes are as clear as ever again. I know it is because we left off drinking coffee and drank Postum. I can eat everything and anything, and never knew I have a stomach. My husband used to say I would ruin our coffee trade because I told all my friends what Postum had done for us." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek Mich.

BIG HOPPER, SMALL SPOUT

Canada Developing the Interior But Neglecting Atlantic Outlet

Montreal, Nov. 12.—Sir William C. Van Horne, Chairman of the Canadian Pacific Railway, when in New York, was asked by a representative of the New York Post to explain the lack of elevator facilities and the difficulties which the Canadian farmers experience in getting their wheat out of the interior to the market, especially to the Montreal outlet:

"Canada," he said, "has been adding sides to her hopper for a long time, but has neglected to enlarge the spout. She has for years been spending millions generously in the development of the interior and her railways, but has neglected her outlet at the Atlantic. Her crops and industries have grown, and the hopper is simply full to overflowing, and the outlet at Montreal is not large enough. Her exports take the easy routes by the great lakes and the Erie Canal to Boston and New York, simply because Canada sits comfortably by and does not see what she is losing.

"Our folks have not come to the point yet of realization of the fact that 70 per cent. of the gross earnings of a people's railway or ship lines are paid back within a month as earned, for labor and materials, in the community in which they operate; or that the other 30 per cent. which goes for interest and dividends, establishes credit so that the company may borrow more money and establish great industries by branching out and enlarging. They do not realize that every dollar paid for transportation or elevator facilities in the States is that much taken from themselves, and their loss. In time the Montreal outlet will be developed, and while I don't know how much wheat and flour England uses, it seems very probable that Canada will supply her whole needs within a few years as has been suggested. Eventually, she may export wheat to the States, also, although that is a question which we need hardly consider now, as it will not have to be met for twenty-five years or more."

THE PROSPECTS.

"What are the prospects for the next year in Canada?" was asked.

"Canada never attains the exuberant heights of prosperity which are noted periodically in the States, nor does she sink so low in hard times. Canada has more of an even temper and prospers industriously all of the time. We are expecting a good year."

Sir William was asked what effect the building of the prospected trans-Canadian line would have upon his road. He replied:

"The position of the Canadian Pacific Railway is absolutely unassailable. For that reason it is our policy never to oppose anything. The trans-Canadian road has started with better prospects than the Canadian Pacific had once. When the Northern Pacific road was built, everybody thought it was way up north beyond nowhere. Then the Great Northern was built, and people promptly forgot thinking of the Northern Pacific as far north. Then came the Canadian Pacific, and that seemed to run through the Arctic regions. We would hail with delight a parallel route from the Atlantic to the Pacific to help us develop the country. There is enough of it up there for us all."

"Why did your road contract in Scotland for a large order of locomotives recently?" was asked.

"Because we must have them within three years. We could not get them here in America. We have bought all we could get here, and must have engines to provide for the traffic, which is growing with the development of our territory almost beyond comprehension. The original engines with which our road was equipped were made in Scotland. The last order is of American type, and we have decided to give them a trial over there."

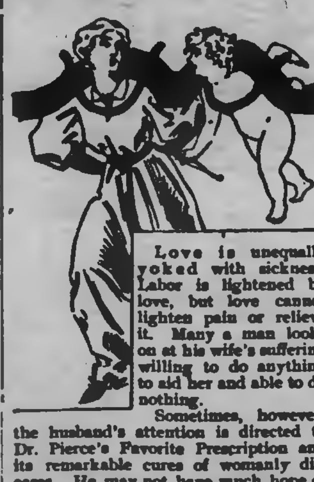
Fitzgerald v. Fitzgerald

Appeal by plaintiff from judgment of Falconbridge, C.J., at trial dismissing action without costs. The action was brought by the plaintiff, as widow of James W. Fitzgerald, against his son, and plaintiff's stepson, claiming dower out of certain lands conveyed by deceased husband to defendant, subject to existing mortgages, the grantor retaining a life estate and taking back a mortgage for an amount which, with the existing mortgages, made up the whole consideration. Plaintiff also asked to have this conveyance declared null and void, as against her right to dower. A. B. Aylesworth, K.C., and Dennet, Peterborough, for appellant. The plaintiff was induced to marry the deceased upon the faith of his promise to convey to her the lands in question. The conveyance to the son was therefore a fraud upon her. And even if there was no actual intention to defraud her, the conveyance nevertheless had that effect, and the secrecy of the transaction and the fact that the deceased, in spite of the conveyance, retained possession, mark it as fraudulent. G. H. Watson, K.C., and R. B. Edwards, K.C., for defendant. The plaintiff's claim upon a contract is a cause of action independent of her claim for dower. It is not set up in her statement of claim, and does not help her in this action. The conveyance was not secret. There was no fraud or wrongful intent. The son took the compensation due to him in the best form he could. In any event the lands in question were at the time of the marriage, subject to two mortgages, and the plaintiff therefore never acquired any inchoate right of dower. The husband might have conveyed his equity absolutely without her concurrence to bar dower. Judgment reserved.

Thursday: Still unsettled and cooler.



Love is unequally yoked with sickness. Labor is lightened by love, but love cannot lighten pain or relieve it. Many a man looks on at his wife's suffering willing to do anything to aid her and able to do nothing.

Sometimes, however, the husband's attention is directed to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and its remarkable cures of womanly diseases. He may not have much hope of a cure, but he is led to try the medicine, with the result that in almost every case there is a perfect and permanent cure.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures irregularity. It dries the drains which weaken women, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

As a tonic for women who are nervous, sleepless, worn-out and run-down "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled.

"In answer to your letter I will say, my wife commenced to complain twenty years ago," writes Lewis A. Miller, ex-Chief-of-Police, of 33 Prospect St., Weissport, Pa. "We have tried the skill of twelve different doctors. She took gallons of medicine during the time she was ill, until I wrote to you and you told us what to do. She has taken eight bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and six of the 'Golden Medical Discovery.' She can do her own work now and can walk around again and is quite smart."

"Favorite Prescription" has the testimony of thousands of women to its complete cure of womanly diseases. Do not accept an unknown and unproved substitute in its place.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

BISMARK'S WORK GOES ON BY GERMAN EMPEROR

The Dead Statesman's Policy of Expansion of Empire

HOW BRITAIN AND GERMANY WILL AGREE

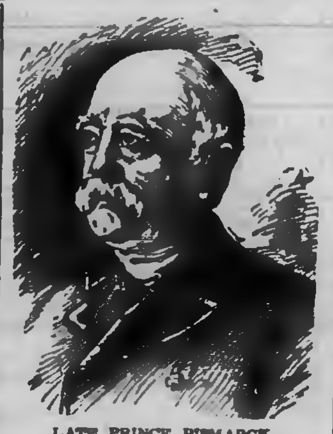
On the Division of the Dark Continent Between Them

London, Nov. 13.—The policy of the late Prince Bismarck "the father of the German Empire" was one of expansion. The Emperor is following up the policy of the dead statesman in a way that is setting the world thinking. His visit at this time to England was more than a family compliment, having partly to do with the partitioning of the Portugese possessions in South Africa. For this object an alleged secret treaty has existed between the two countries for some time past. A fortnight ago it was the subject of interrogation in Parliament, when the Under Secretary of State, Lord Cranbourne, replied that if there were such a treaty he was not at liberty to give its terms. These, however, were stated by a Berlin paper in December 1898, Germany, besides receiving Portugal's Asiatic possessions, would, in return for a payment to Portugal of 25,000,000 marks ($6,250,000), receive all the Portugese territory in South Africa north of Mozambique except a strip of land three miles wide for Mr. Rhodes' Transafrican Railway. England would, on her part, receive the remaining African possessions of Portugal, which contain two million square kilometres and thirteen million inhabitants. This includes Delagoa Bay and Lorenzo Marques, of which Britain had in 1891 secured the right of pre-emption in the event of Portugal's ever agreeing to dispose of her African colonies.

On the Emperor's arrival, the London Times uttered a warning against England's being drawn into any complications dangerous to her foreign relations, as a result of the royal visit. Though the wording of the Times article was obscure to the average reader, it was held to refer to a possible proposition from the Emperor looking to a subsidy to the German-Bagdad Railway, for the Indian mail service. The political value of this concession to Germany, it is explained, would be more than its economical worth, inasmuch as it could be used as an evidence of a close understanding between England and Germany, which would have the effect of arousing jealousy and suspicion of Great Britain on the part of Russia and France, and prevent Great Britain from making terms with the Dual Alliance, which is what the Germans fear more than anything else. If this took place Germany would be completely isolated in Europe. In order to extort the concession from Britain, it is said the German Emperor has remained passive, while the German press has reviled England mercilessly, in the hope that England would see the utility of granting it as the price of Germany's withdrawal from Shanghai in China.

This is the complication of higher politics, which intelligent onlookers have worked out in connection with the royal visit, and against which the London Times and other leading journals are emphatic.

Other observers have of late given out signals of the great trade activity of the Germans in the near East. It is complained that Austrian traders are being ousted from markets in the Balkans and the Levant, which they had long held. It is doubtless a case of antiquated methods and lack of push giving way before energy and originality, though there may also be something in the Viennese theory that Germany is using her military prestige to promote her commerce. Furnishing drill-masters to the Turk, she naturally provides him with military equipment, and other manufactures push in behind the Krupp guns. Emperor William's journey to the realms of the Sultan was conceived, it would appear, very much in the light of a commercial traveller's trip for orders. At any rate, the orders have certainly followed.



LATE PRINCE BISMARCK.
Who created the German Empire.

If the trip to England may be regarded in the same light, it will be met with disappointment, for Great Britain is in no mood for further concessions which do not bring reciprocal benefits. The Bagdad Railway will soon not be needed to expedite the Indian mail. The Kushni-Quetta road proceeding under English auspices, will suffice

TO SEW UP NEWFOUNDLAND

Uncle Sam Wants to Bind Island Against Preference to Britain

Washington, Nov. 13.—An important feature of the new treaty with Newfoundland is a clause preventing that British colony from following the example of Canada in granting a Customs preference of 33 per cent. to British goods. It is true that the differential has not yet been imposed by Newfoundland upon United States goods, but it is learned that it was the purpose to do so, and that the result would have been the loss of most of the trade with Newfoundland is not doubted here. The attitude of the New England senators to the new treaty is problematical; they have committed themselves to a treaty in theory, but it is not yet known whether they will accept the details of his new arrangement.

SIXTY MILLIONS

Is the Value of the German Estate Claimed by an American

Berlin, Nov. 13—The reported coming of W. R. Taylor from Indianapolis, accompanied by a lawyer, to claim the so-called Bradenburg inheritance, valued at $360,000,000 has caused a cold shiver in Berlin, as the property claimed is near the capital.

Bradenburg Castle was long ago transferred into a hospital and as Mr. Taylor's claim dates back to 1812, when the original possessor of the Bradenburgh inheritance fled to America, it will take some little litigation to secure its restoration, even if Taylor's title is good.

The claimant's agents here are engaged in locating the property.

Blooming in Open Air

Nelson, B. C., Nov. 13.—Wild roses blooming in November is something not unusual in November, and this year there are more than usually handsome specimens to be seen in many of the gardens of the city. G. Nunn, manager for A. Macdonald & Co., last week had on exhibition a bunch of roses and carnations picked from his gardens that would be "hard to beat" in the East in September.

THE PRESENTATION

Of the Medal Given by Royal Canadian Humane Society

To Miss Isabel Hay, at the Residence of Her Father, Mr. T. A. S. Hay

Our readers are all familiar with the facts in connection with the saving from drowning of Miss Maud Allen at Chemong Lake last August, by Miss Isabel Hay, and it will not be necessary to publish them here again. At that time the heroism of Miss Hay was deservedly eulogized and her brave deed will always be remembered. The matter was brought to the attention of the Royal Canadian Humane Society and they forwarded a medal to Mayor Denne, who called upon Miss Hay last night, at the residence of her father, Mr. T. A. S. Hay, Town Engineer, McDonald street, and in the presence of the family and a few intimate friends, made the presentation of the medal and an address to Miss Hay. Her father replied, expressing his most hearty thanks and also those of Miss Hay to the kind friends who had taken such an interest in having his daughter thus publicly honored by the Humane Society.

The following is the address read:

Peterborough, Nov. 13, 1902.

Miss Isabel Hay:

Dear Madam,—I have been requested by the Royal Canadian Humane Association to present you with this medal, and it is with pleasure that I have acceded to the request. The Association exists for the purpose of recognizing brave deeds done in order to rescue others from danger or death, and as in this country aquatic sports and pleasures are popular a large proportion of their awards are made to those who, like yourself, risked their lives to save others from death by drowning. I would have been glad if you had seen your way to accept the suggestion of the Association that this presentation should take place on some public occasion but as you are, as the President of the Association has said to me "like all true heroines, modest and retiring," it gives me pleasure to represent the donors of the medal here. I think you depreciate your own act, for to those who remember the circumstances of your rescue of Miss Maud Allen at Chemong Lake on August 8th last are delighted that the facts were brought to the notice of the Association and that you have been awarded their medal, which is only for acts of conspicuous courage. We remember that when you heard Miss Allen's call and saw that she had disappeared into the water of the lake, without taking any thought of the great risk to yourself, you hurried to the rescue, dove to the bottom of the deep waters and brought her to the surface. Nor was your dangerous task then accomplished, for we recollect that more than once your hold gave way and your friend sank into the waters to be again raised up by you, until, after a struggle that only the greatest courage and the most unselfish spirit could have continued so long, you brought Miss Allen to safety. It is right that such a spirit as you manifested on that occasion should be recognized. The medal is not in any sense a reward: that we know you would not accept. But the community, as well as your personal friends, is pleased to know there has been a suitable recognition of the daring and endaring courage you displayed on that occasion, and I am exceedingly pleased to act as the representative of the Association and to present you with this medal.

T. H. G. DENNE,
Mayor of the Town of Peterborough.

Control of the Coal Supply

Mine Operators Declare That Miners' Union Seeks to Secure Supremacy

Washington, Nov. 13.—The reply of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad Company to President Mitchell's statement to the anthracite coal strike commission was made public to-day. It is signed by W. H. Truesdale, president of the company, who says that the company owns 26 anthracite collieries and employs 12,000 workmen in this branch of the business. Mr. Truesdale, like Mr. Baer, objects to making the recognition of the union one of the issues to be considered by the commission, saying that in the proposition made by the company for arbitration one of the express conditions was that "the findings of the commission should govern the conditions of employment between it and its employees."

WILL NOT RECOGNIZ UNION.

He adds: "This company unequivocally asserts that it will under no condition recognize or enter into any agreement with the association known as the United Mine Workers of America or any branch thereof Nor will it permit said association or its officers to dictate the terms and conditions under which it shall conduct its business."

Referring to the recent strike, Mr. Truesdale says that he is reliably informed that eighty per cent. of its employes were opposed to the strike, but were forced to enter upon it by a majority vote of the mine workers in other fields.

Mr. Truesdale follows closely the lines of Mr. Baer's argument as to the dissimilarity between the work in the anthracite mines and that in bituminous mines. He declares that it is impossible to adopt a uniform rate to be paid to the miners for a unit of coal mined at all the mines. The declaration is made that the anthracite miners as a rule do not work as many hours a day as do the bituminous miners and the opinion is advanced that if the wages of the anthracite miners had been less than that of other workingmen they would have found employment elsewhere, which they did not do. On the point of general prosperity, he says that prior to the introduction of agitators and mischief-makers, the anthracite workers were on an average as prosperous, comfortable, and contented as any body of workers in similar employment in this country. The wages, it is added, are such that frequently frugal employes have saved a substantial amount every year.

OBJECTS TO A SHORT DAY.

Mr. Truesdale resists the demand for a reduction of twenty per cent. in hours of labor, saying that no branch of business employing thousands of men can hope to compete successfully in the markets of the world if its hours of labor are restricted. He declares that there is no unjust discrimination in the weighing of the coal, as it is measured rather than weighed, and he asserts that the demand is "out of all reason, and its effect, so far as his company is concerned, is a demand for an additional increase in the wages now paid miners of from 5 to 40 per cent." The present method of measurement is declared to be the result of long usage, and fair to all concerned.

WORK SIX HOURS A DAY.

President Olyphant, of the Delaware and Hudson Company, in his reply, declares that the wages paid by his company are just and adequate. He also says that "those of its employes who perform contract or piece-work, as a matter of their own volition work only about six hours a day, and take numerous holidays without the consent or approval of this respondent, and their earnings by hours of actual work are, therefore, much higher than those in any similar employment."

Denial is made of all the allegations relative to the demand for shorter hours, and it is contended that such a reduction necessarily would increase the price of coal. While admitting that the mine-owners sell their coal by the ton he says that the coal thus sold is a very different article from that taken out of the mine. Hence he argues against the change from the present system of payment to that of paying by the ton.

CONTROL SUPPLY.

President Olyphant also takes exception to the proposition to arbitrate the question of the recognition of the Miners' Union. This position is taken on the ground that the organization seeks to control the entire fuel supply of the county; and as the union is unincorporated, it is incapable of making a binding contract, and that the association has not shown its ability to control its own members. He says his company has no desire to discriminate against members of the union.

President T. P. Fowler speaks for the Scranton Coal Company and the Elkhill Coal and Iron Company. He says they own ten collieries and employ five thousand men. He asserts that if the average wage earned by the anthracite piece-workers is less than that paid to workers in other employment, it is because "they fix their own hours of labor and the amount of their earnings without any regard to the interests or wishes of their employers, and in total disregard of the earnings and welfare of every other class of employes."

He declares that the men in the mines do not work to exceed four or five hours a day. All other charges made by Mr. Mitchell are combatted, and on the question of miners' unions Mr. Fowler says:

"We deny that agreements between employer and employe through workingmen's organizations are beneficial and successful in the bituminous coal fields or elsewhere, and assert that any such agreement as a method of regulating production would be, and is, injurious to the best interests of the public."

COMPANIES TO FIGHT.

That the anthracite coal mine owners will resist to the utmost every effort to make the recognition of the United Mine Workers of America an issue in the arbitration which is now in progress is made evident by the replies to the statement of President John Mitchell of the miners' organization, which have been filed with the Strike Commission. There are five of these answers in addition to that of President Baer, which was made public yesterday, and all dwell with much emphasis and marked unanimity on this point. They also agree in contesting the demands of the miners for an increase of pay for time work, and the weighing rather than the measurement of coal.

19-YEAR-OLD-GIRL MURDERED

Criminally Assaulted and Then Killed—Her Employers Hostler Arrested

Albany, Nov. 13.—A brutal murder of a nineteen-year-old girl was committed here last night. The victim, Anna Mitchell, was a domestic in the home of Mrs. Adrian O. Mather, in Londonville, a suburb of Albany. She was criminally assaulted late last night, her head was battered and her body left in a gully a few hundred feet from the Mather home, where it was found shortly afternoon to-day.

The victim left the Mather home early last evening to visit her widowed mother, who lived a mile away. The police have in custody Frederick W. Knapp, a hostler employed by Mrs. Mather. The girl never reached her mother's home. The mother's inquiries at the Mather home early this morning led to the search for the girl.

PHONOGRAPH RECORDS OF MONKEY SPEECH

Professor Garner Back From the African Jungle

Philadelphia, Nov. 13—Professor R. L. Garner is back from the wilds of Africa with the big iron cage, in which he lived while trying to learn the monkey language and thousands of phonograph records of his dialogues with the simian denizens of the jungle. Besides monkeys Prof Garner had an opportunity to study other wild animals in their native haunts and took hundreds of interesting phonographs. Speaking of his work he says:

"Monkeys are very interesting folk, but I must confess that after a time their society becomes monotonous, and I am very glad indeed to be again in America to mingle with the more exciting whirl here. I have no doubt now that the monkeys converse with each other in a language of their own. This language is difficult for man to learn, but I believe that I have mastered at least a considerable part of the vocabulary and I am now able to continue my studies at my leisure by the use of the phonographic records which I have brought with me."

MORGAN'S MANIPULATIONS MENACE AMERICAN CREDIT

London Mail Denounces Pierpont's Recklessness—His Scheme Must End

London, Nov. 13.—The London Daily Mail, in an article entitled "The Consequences of Morganism," says that Morgan's operations have been carried out with such a degree of recklessness that they seem almost to have succeeded in achieving the impossible, and shaking the credit of the United States. The paper considers that the concerns floated by Morgan are inevitably bound sooner or later to end as Hooley's companies have ended, and a vast amount of money, most of which has been entrusted to the banks, and the trust companies by the American public, is locked up in them.

The effects of these unsound operations, it goes on, "are being felt throughout the whole civilized world, so that London is suffering as well as the United States. It is an unfortunate fact that though they excel in many things the Americans never seem to have grasped the principles of sound banking."

ARE TRYING SPIRITUALISM

And Mesmerist Said to be Treating Russia's Royal Couple

Vienna, Nov. 13.—The Russian Liberal paper printed in Stuttgart states that the Czar is suffering from a nervous affection, and that the Czarina is ill of a nervous malady. The paper further alleges that the Czar has placed himself under the care of Dr. Phillips, a Spiritualist and mesmerist healer. Dr. Phillips has summoned the spirit of Alexander III. at the Czar's behest and receives messages foretelling imperial and domestic events. The doctor, it is alleged, treats the Czarina hypnotically, but reports from Livadia concerning the health of the imperial couple are carefully censored.

PEAT FUEL ASSURED AS SUBSTITUTE FOR COAL

United States Consul at Toronto Says It will be Made for $1.50 per Ton

And is Said to be Almost as Good a Heat Producer as the Best Anthracite Coal

Washington, Nov. 13.—United States Consul Gunsaulus, in a report to the State Department from Toronto, says:

Recognizing that a good and cheap substitute for anthracite coal would prove a great boon to the people of many States of the Union, and having learned that the efforts in Canada to produce dense fuel blocks from peat have within the last few months been brought to a successful issue, I have made careful enquiry, with a view to reporting whatever has been definitely accomplished, and I feel that practical experiments, which have been perseveringly continued for some years, have now resulted in the economical production of a salable peat fuel, highly satisfactory for domestic purposes.

Manufacturing operations on a commercial scale have been reported upon by engineers of high standing, and all agree in the opinion that methods and appliances are now available whereby peat briquettes may be produced, ready for shipment, for a maximum manufacturing cost of $1.50 per ton, and probably for considerably less in plants of large capacity.

A number of experienced business men and Government officials concur in the engineers' conclusion, and I find that the large majority of customers are much pleased with the fuel, which, if burned with proper regard to the few simple precautions necessary to insure best results in combustion, cannot fail to meet the most exacting requirements heretofore expected of anthracite coal. There is, however, some difference of opinion as to the length of time a given weight of peat briquettes will burn, as compared with the same weight of anthracite. Theoretically the heat units in peat being fewer, it may be argued it must burn out faster, but with effective control of draughts, it is surprising how nearly its lasting quality approaches that of hard coal.

EMPTY OLD COAL SCUTTLE

How sadly we gaze at the coal bin that's empty
And think of the blizzards that soon will be due!
The poker is standing unused in a corner
The shovel is idle and rusted o'er too.
The furnace is empty; there's soot on the damper;
No ruddy beams dance through the cracks in the door;
The wild wind howls dismally up the dark chimney,
And the coal scuttle's lying unused on the floor.
The rusty coal scuttle, the useless coal scuttle
The empty coal scuttle that lies on the floor.

Oh, sadly we gaze on that vessel and wonder
How long it must lie there to rust and decay!
We think of the days when we used to go grumbling
To fill and carry its contents away.
How ardently now we would take up the shovel
And scoop up the lumps prized too lightly before,
But the bin where we once braced the sides up, is empty,
And the coal scuttle's lying unused on the floor—
The rusty coal scuttle, the useless coal scuttle,
The empty coal scuttle that lies on the floor.

Let us grind the old hatchet and chop up the boxes.
The babies are yelling; their noses are blue!
Ah, dear are the dreams of the days when we gladly
Sat hearing the flames as they roared up the flue,
And sweet was the sound of the coal as it rattled
Down through the long shoot where it rattles no more;
The lumps are all gone, and the ashes are scattered,
And the coal scuttle's lying unused on the floor—
The rusty coal scuttle, the useless coal scuttle,
The empty coal scuttle that lies on the floor.

—Our hunters from Beaver Lodge came out for Sunday, and have had good luck, having captured 10 fine deer. One of the boys took out his bob-tailed collie thinking it would make a good deer dog but the first deer it saw frightened it so it climbed a tree and Rob had a time getting it down. Dr. Patterson went in to see the boys on Friday eve, and on Saturday took a snap shot of the camp and surroundings. The boys have another week and will surely get their complement of deer. Other parties are having good success and the weather is perfect.

ITEMS OF NEWS BY CABLE AND LETTER

Slocan, B. C., Nov. 13.—The sawmill by-law was submitted for vote to the property owners of Slocan yesterday, and was carried by an overwhelming majority, the vote standing 41 for and 7 against. It is understood that the Slocan Ontario Lumber Co., of which Mr. J. H. Lavelle, of Orillia, and George Chew, of Midland, Ont., are the chief owners, will commence operations immediately and will eventually employ 100 men, in accordance with the agreement with the city. This industry will give new life to this locality, and will be an immense boon to the city.

Berlin, Nov. 13.—The Reichstag today adopted by 186 to 71 votes, the paragraph of the new tariff bill authorizing the Government to retaliate on any country discriminating against German goods. The agrarians openly affirmed that it was necessary to arm the Government with the weapons for reprisals, especially against the United States' practices.

Dr. Brumer, National Liberal, related an instance in which he said $300,000 worth of enameled goods were ordered in Germany for New York, but, the speaker asserted, the customs officials "changed the classification at the instance of the American trust, whereupon the New York importers cancelled the order." It was proven, the speaker continued, to the customs officials that the invoice was in exact accord with the German seller's books, and that instead of the goods being undervalued, the books showed that the shipments had been made to India at still lower prices. Dr. Brumer further asserted that the customs officials treatment was dictated by the interests of home manufacturers.

He continued: "It is said that we must not offend the United States, but they will respect us more and we shall gain more by showing our teeth than by always giving pleasant words."

Herr Gothein, Radical Liberal, replied that such words were no fitting epilogue to the sentiments expressed by Count Posadowsky, the Home Secretary, in the presence of the Foreign Secretary, Baron Von Richthoff, at Ambassador White's farewell dinner.

"They will make discord," he continued, "among the wishes spoken there for friendly relations with the United States. Why empower the Government to do something it does not want to do? Although the present Government would not apply the paragraph, some succeeding Government might commit such a folly. Retaliatory duties are the weapons of chauvinism, and not of patriotism."

Herr Fichback, Radical, said all the chambers of commerce were opposed to a tariff war with the United States.

Herr Broemel, Radical, remarked that if Germany adopted retaliatory measures against the United States on account of regulations which applied to the goods of all countries, it would be a serious breach of all existing treaties.

The Associated Press is authorized to announce that the Ministry has not decided to drop the tariff bill, as published in London, but is determined to persist until the dissolution of the Reichstag in June.

London, Nov. 13.—Referring to the "senseless speculations" of French journalists in regard to the visit of Emperor William and the King of Portugal at Sandringham, a Paris correspondent says there is a competition of imaginative invention in the French press. The papers have determined that such a journey as that of the Kaiser must have a political object, the only question being whether the Emperor will delude King Edward or King Edward delude the Emperor. It is suggested, moreover, that the two monarchs together have probably laid a trap for the King of Portugal, who will not escape until he has abandoned in favor of covetous Great Britain, Delagoa Bay, Lorenzo Marques, and perhaps Angola, Guinea and Mozambique. The fact is, the correspondent says, French newspapers are not expected to give sound judgement. Most Continental readers ask for spicy articles, not solid information, and the wild talk about Emperor William is due to the desire to satisfy the demand for sensational news.

KIDD'S TOUR.

London, Nov. 13.—A Cape Town correspondent says that Benjamin Kidd, author of "Social Evolution," has returned to Cape Colony capital from his tour of the Transvaal, Orange River Colony, Natal and Transkei. Mr. Kidd considers South Africa to be a richer country than the United States west of the Mississippi, and believes that its future is assured. He thinks that the leading questions in the future will be of an economic character, and describes the present as being "without cohesion." The principal problem before politicians in the opinion of Mr. Kidd, is the creation of a middle class in the shape of a consuming population settled on the land, and a class of well-paid White workers.

REQUESTS FROM TEACHERS

A deputation of teachers waited upon the minister of education a few days ago and asked for the following things:

1. That the age limit for teachers be raised from eighteen to twenty-one.

2. That the training term in model schools be lengthened.

3. That the graduates of the Ontario Normal College, who are not also graduates of a model or normal school be not allowed to teach in a public school.

4. That Latin be not compulsory for either junior or senior leaving examinations.

5. That the basis of the apportionment of the legislative grant be changed, making it dependent on (a) average attendance (b) building and equipment, (c) salary paid, (d) qualification of the teacher employed.

6. That a system of teaching the metric system be adopted.

7. That the Bible be not introduced as a text-book.

8. That less time be spent on arithmetic.

9. That less literature be required of entrance candidates.

It will be observed that the tactics of the medical men have been adopted by the teachers. They want the standard of qualification raised as a means to an end and that end a reduction in the supply of teachers. Barring the way, making it hard and expensive, is one method of producing a result, but a method that ought to be sought only as a last resort.

The people generally will not endorse the recommendation of the teachers in regard to Bible teaching. Who authorized the deputation to present this request to the minister of education? The Ontario Educational Association? What right has it to be dictate as to what shall be done about the religious education? The masses are interested in this question, and the masses must be consulted about it. The minister of education could not, of course, do otherwise than receive the petition of the teachers, but so far as this matter of Bible study is concerned the paper deserves a place in the waste paper basket.

With almost as little patience do we read that the teachers want less time spent upon arithmetic and literature. Nay, these subjects must be well taught and to the exclusion, even, of other subjects. This proposal of the teachers should not be considered for one moment.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The pupils in two Chicago schools went on strike last week. Their grievance was the transfer of former teachers. Pickets and union labels abounded. The principal of one school had to have police protection. The strikers amused themselves by breaking the school windows. Four hundred strikers followed and hooted an objectionable principal, who was "escorted" to a car by patrolmen and detectives. Ingenuous youth learns the complete art of striking fast. A delegation of strikers waited on Alderman John Powers, a celebrated Chicago statesman, but got cold comfort. "Go back to your studies," said the Alderman unfeelingly. But studying is such poor fun, compared to striking.

MORGAN'S A SECOND HOOLEY

London Paper Thinks a Great Financial Smash is About to Come

London, Nov. 11.—The London Daily Mail, in an article entitled "The Consequences of Morganism," says that Morgan's operations have been carried out with such a degree of recklessness that they seem almost to have succeeded in achieving the impossible, and shaking the credit of the United States. DEPRAVITY PERSONIFIED

Glasgow, Nov. 12—An extraordinary conspiracy by which a husband planned to have his wife murdered for a bribe of $100 has just been revealed in the Sheriff's Court. The person to whom the money was paid confessed and said that when about to commit the deed his heart failed him, and he handed over the bribe to another man, who also had compunctions at the last moment and turned back to him half the amount.

The most extraordinary feature of the case is the action of the murderous-minded husband in bringing suit for the amount of the bribe, claiming it was money loaned. All three conspirators were placed under arrest and their conflicting stories investigated.

THE MOONSTONE SPHINX

By Mrs C N Williamson

Author of The Barn Stormers Fortune's Sport, Miss Nobody, Her Royal Highness Lady Mary of the Dark House, etc.

only had the chance. And supposing I should muff it, why, I need merely pretend that the jeweler hadn't finished his work till I could reclaim it. Macaire's such a good-natured fellow he wouldn't cut up rough at a little delay."

Dick regretted the roll of bank-notes with which Macaire had entrusted him the day before to buy various more or less useless odds and ends that the millionaire fancied he wanted. The secretary had had forty or fifty pounds of his employer's in his pockets when he walked into the Casino last time, and, indeed, now he thought of it, Macaire had often thrust money upon him since coming to Monte Carlo. He had always faithfully disposed of it by carrying out the commissions, and last night's care had been no exception to the rule, for he had expended the money, according to instructions, the first thing in the morning. But now he wished that he had not been in such a hurry.

Macaire had encouraged him to try his luck at the gaming tables, and had said that he wouldn't "see him come to grief." Very likely he had meant his secretary to have plenty in his pocket, in case of emergencies, and had been too tactful to speak out bluntly. At all events, Dick thought now, in his almost frenzied desire to go on, that he would have "chanced it," had the money still been in his possession. In all probability he would have been able to replace it at once with his own winnings, and if not, he could have gone frankly to Macaire, confessing that he had borrowed something which he would repay out of his salary.

With the moonstone Sphinx, of course, it was different. If he could pledge it and obtain a few pounds to go on with now, and should be so very unfortunate as not to be able to redeem it to-night, he would not care to confess what he had done to Macaire. He would get it back when he could, which would certainly be soon, at worst, for it did not seem to him a thing worth more than seven or eight sovereigns at most.

He was shy of doing what was in his mind to do, not knowing whether he might be rebuffed or not; but as he stood not far from the table where he wished to be, gazing doubtfully at the moonstone and calculating its value, a voice addressed him in French. Looking up with a start he saw that the speaker was an elderly Parisienne, with bistre under her sunken eyes, rouge on her haggard cheeks, and a handsome, poppy-red evening dress emphasizing the emaciation of her figure.

Dick was not a French scholar, but he had learned the language with Winifred when they had both been children, and he could understand enough to hold his own in an ordinary conversation.

"Pardon me, monsieur, but that is a very charming ornament you have there," the lady in poppy color was remarking. "Quite unique. Will you allow me to look at it more closely? My great fad is uncommon jewels of all sorts."

Dick held out his hand, and a dyed head, sparkling with diamond combs and pins, was bowed over it. The lady did not attempt to touch the moonstone, as he had feared she might, but peered at it through her lorgnettes as it lay in his palm, crying out at its beauty.

"It is for luck, madame," Dick informed her.

"I thought it must be a fetich," she responded. "Intrinsically, perhaps, the jewel may not be worth more than five hundred francs" (Dick was astonished at so high an estimate), "yet the workmanship is perfect, and the stone has a rare light. How I wish that your talisman were for sale, monsieur! I would give you—in reason—what you liked to ask, that I might add it to my collection and also use it as a rival to my lucky pig" (laughing, she held out a golden pig, with ruby eyes), "which has basely betrayed me to-night."

"I don't see how I could very well sell it," stammered Dick, "though I was just wondering if I could raise money on the thing."

Perhaps the lady's experienced eyes had read some such purpose in his before addressing him.

"That would, I fear, be impossible here," she said. "I know the rules well; I confess to being an old habituee. Monsieur, if you will sell me the moonstone (I do not care for the gold screw with the initials; you could keep that), I would give you, this minute, one thousand francs. It is far more than you could get from a jeweler."

Dick's face flushed and he bit his lip, his eyes traveling wistfully to the pocket-book studded with gold and French notes which the lady in red was producing from a brocaded silk bag that hung at her waist.

Suppose he did sell the moonstone? He could tell Macaire that he had lost it, and Macaire would believe him, especially if he kept the screw, which would be good evidence that the sphinx's head had come off. Macaire would not mind much; he would be sure to forgive, and say: "It doesn't matter."

With a thousand francs to stake all the bad luck of this evening could be retrieved. Something told him that it would be so.

"All right, you can have the Sphinx," he said, abruptly.

And the deal was closed. The lady had the jewel; Dick had the money; and the "something" which whispered hopefully of luck to come did not add that with the changing hands of the moonstone his future, his sister's future, and the future of two others would be changed as well.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

What the Light Showed.

Dick's spirit of prophecy had been a deceiving spirit. He lost his thousand francs.

Next morning Macaire said: "By the way, that moonstone Sphinx's-head I gave you to have repaired. When will it be ready?"

The question came so abruptly, and the millionaire's look, to his secretary's stricken conscience, seemed so keen, that Dick grew confused, and instead of saying that he had lost the moonstone, and apologizing as he had intended, he stammered that the jeweler could not do the work for a day or two.

"Next time you're out just step in and tell him it will be a favor to me if he can let me have the thing to-morrow. The fact is, I feel quite lost without it," said Macaire; and Dick felt a sensation of coldness and weight in his breast.

Last night nothing had seemed of importance, except to get money; and his employer had appeared to care little more for the moonstone than for fifty other valuable odds and ends which he flung recklessly about, or even gave to Dick or his valet, if the mood seized him. Dick was very much frightened, and could settle himself to nothing all day.

The CANADIAN STEEL AND COAL COMPANY was organized to mine and manufacture iron and coal, coke and steel in Canada at Atlantic tidewater.

The raw materials for these manufactures are:—

1.—COAL. 2.—IRON. 3.—LIMESTONE.

All these materials we have at hand.

1.—COAL.

The Company controls 3,000 acres of excellent coal areas in the Province of Nova Scotia, and efforts are being made to increase this to 10,000 acres by the purchase of some very valuable additional coal fields.

The coal has been thoroughly tested and found to be suitable in every way for the manufacture of iron and steel, and the supply is practically inexhaustible. The following analysis was made by the Canadian Geological Survey:—

ANALYSIS.

Moisture	4.05
Vol. Comb. Matter	30.72
Fixed Carbon	60.
Ash	5.23
	100.00

COAL VEINS.

The several layers or seams of coal available aggregate 27 to 30 feet in thickness.

TITLES.

These areas are held under Crown Lease for a period of 80 years. Royalty 10 cents per ton of coal sold.

2.—IRON.

The Company has acquired by purchase immense iron deposits on the North Shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, about 350 miles from Sydney. The deposits are estimated to contain 20,000,000 tons of ore above sea level, with probably as much more below that line. The iron can be handled for $1.00 per ton or less. Quantities of this ore have been shipped to Great Britain and the United States, where it has given great satisfaction, and we can sell large quantities f. o. b. at the properties, netting us a profit of $2.00 per ton. This ore makes the finest steel.

3.—FLUX.

We are now negotiating for valuable deposits of dolomite and limestone of the most satisfactory quality, situated on the tide-water, within 100 miles of the works.

MARKETS.

For six months in each year the Canadian markets can be reached by water at low freight rates, and at all times by rail. As Cape Breton is distant from Liverpool only about 2,300 miles; is nearer to Pernambuco, Brazil, than any point in the United States, and also nearer to Cape Town, South Africa, it has the advantage, in point of distance, for export business over any American steel-producing points, which, with scarcely any exceptions, are situated some distance from tide water. Under any conditions of the world's market, it is believed that the output of these works can be disposed of at satisfactory prices.

OUTPUT

When in full operation, the output is expected to be about as follows:—

1. IRON.—200,000 tons iron ore shipped direct from property, showing net profit of $2.00 per ton, total	$400,000 00
200,000 tons fine iron ore shipped in briquettes, showing net profit of $4.00 per ton, total	800,000 00
100,000 tons steel blooms, showing net profit of $3.00 per ton, total	300,000 00
2. COAL.—600,000 tons coal, showing net profit, at least, of $1.00 per ton, total	600,000 00
3. AIDS.—Government bounties (averaged) added to above per year for 6 years	100 000 00
Total yearly revenue	$2,200,000 00

GOVERNMENT AIDS.

To encourage the manufacture in the Dominion of iron and steel the Parliament of Canada has granted bounties as follows:—

	ON PIG IRON.	ON STEEL.
Apl. 21st, 1902, to July 1st, 1903	$2.70	$2.70
July 1st, 1903, " " 1904	2.25	2.25
July 1st, 1904, " " 1905	1.65	1.65
July 1st, 1905, " " 1906	1.05	1.05
July 1st, 1906, " " 1907	.60	.60

If the production of steel from the Company's works be as estimated, 300,000 tons per annum, the bounties to be received from the Canadian Government will be as follows:—

1904	$225,000
1905	215,000
1906	145,000
1907	85,000
or an average of $100,000.00 per annum for 6½ years	$670,000.00

NET REVENUE

Total net annual profits		$2,200,000.00
LESS FIXED CHARGES:—
7 per cent. interest on preferred stock	$70,000.00
Sinking Fund	60,000.00
Incidentals	25,000 00
		155,000.00
Net yearly profits		$2,045,000.00

Equivalent to yearly dividends of over 30 per cent., or 15 per cent. half yearly on total capitalization.

If the capitalization was increased to .... $20,000,000.00 this estimate would still show a dividend-earning capacity of 10 per cent. per annum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Coal Co. is .... $20,000,000.00 earning fully 12 per cent., and is paying 8 per cent. guaranteed dividends on this enormous sum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. is...... $28,000,000.00 on which it is believed 6 per cent. dividends will be earned.

The capitalization of the Canadian Steel & Coal Company is only $6,000,000.00 controlling, it is believed, equally valuable properties, and it is reasonable to expect much larger dividends.

Within the last few months Dominion Coal shares common rose in market value from $40 to $144 per share, and Dominion Iron & Steel Company's shares common rose over $30 per share in market value.

With such low capitalization the Canadian Steel and Coal Co's shares, should show tremendous profits, and it is confidently believed they will.

STOCK MARKETS

Market Naturally Feverish

New York, Nov. 13—Wednesday's market was still a backer and a filler. Every effort was made by the bears to create distrust, while the story of a fight between giants of the market was given wide circulation with the view of still further adding to the general scare. Most operators were more or less panic-stricken and at a time when they should keep cool. To become demoralized in one's trading at such a time is to make it almost certain that you will lose money. One should keep one's head buying and selling, as the market suggests, with coolness and calculation. Stocks are at present ludicrously cheap; how much cheaper they may be if at all no man can honestly predict, owing to demoralization of the average stock buyer. One thing is certain, such demoralization and fright is most widespread when stocks are at bottom prices. Facts and figures cut no immediate figure in current market at such times. Ordinarily the wondrous Union Pacific Statement just issued would have affected the stock materially and favorably—at present it has no influence. Before long however it will have an important influence upon the value of the stock Southern Pacific, Manhattan, Ill. C., Mo. P. and N.Y.C. and stocks of similar calibre are more than cheap at present and if bought and protected will be sure to show good profits. It is not a market at present to trade in upon small margins. The trader should be well fortified upon his commitments at present. Those who buy stocks right have an unprecedented opportunity to do so now. To such we unhesitatingly advise risking purchases immediately. Those who buy upon margin if they can command good margins should commence to buy right now. The small margin men should either not trade at all, at present, or accompany every new commitment with a close to market stop order. The larger speculators of Wall street seem to be fighting out old differences upon the floor of the Exchanges. It will be most natural to anticipate for a few days an extremely feverish market, extremely vacillating, and more or less uncertain, its movements being absolutely unexplainable. It will recover greatly, however, before winter is over and will afford opportunwinter is over and will afford opportunity to sell most stocks at better prices than those now prevailing.

Summary—The market opened today up smartly, recording good advances over night on top of the rally of yesterday afternoon. Gains were made in the morning hours which were more than lost later on through a heavy selling movement in B.R.T., which carried this stock down sharply to the lowest prices registered in some time, the stock breaking 56.. Compared to Union Pacific selling at about twice the price and earning ten per cent., B.R.T. is relatively, when you consider the latter for its fiscal year according to its annual statement only earned four-tenths of one per cent. upon its capitalization, for this reason it may possible sell somewhat lower; the market immediately becomes feverish and erratic whenever any stock develops special weakness. This is to be expected for some little time to come. Money 4 and 4 1-2. Sales, 710,900.

Mining Investment Without Precedent

A SMALL SUM INVESTED NOW SHOULD PROVIDE COMFORTABLE INCOME FOR MANY YEARS

The LARDEAU Mines, Capitalized at Only $100,000 00, Should Produce $270,000.00 Net Revenue Per Year—These Figures are Based on the Reports of Well-Known Mining Engineers—Present Price of the Stock Only 10 Cents a Share, but Subscriptions Will Have to be Made Promptly, as the Price Will Soon Advance to Very Much Higher Figures.

We do not hesitate to say that in our judgment stock in the LARDEAU MINES LIMITED, offers a most magnificent opportunity for investment.

There is every reason to believe that the LARDEAU MINES will pay a profit of 270 per cent. PER YEAR, within a short time, and will continue to yield such profits for more than a lifetime.

These are stupendous figures, but we believe them to be absolutely conservative. Our reasons are based on these facts:

PROOF OF NO STOCK JOBBING

In the first place the capitalization is only $100,000. This low capitalization shows upon the face of it that the company is honestly organized—that there is no suspicion of stock-jobbing, which has too often ruined many otherwise honest companies.

DESCRIPTION OF THE PROPERTY

The property is located in the celebrated Lardeau mining division of West Kootenay, British Columbia. The property owned by this company consists of three full claims, embracing an extent of 154 acres—mineral claims in British Columbia are 1,500x1,500 feet—equal to 51 acres in each extent. Three strong parallel ore veins run through the property from end to end, a distance of of 4,500 feet. If placed end to end this would give us 13,500 feet, equal to a continuous ore body over two and a half miles in length. The values are in gold, silver, copper and lead, and run from $25.00 to $77.00 per ton of 2,000 pounds. These results show indications of permanent values of the most convincing kind.

GROSS VALUE OF SHIPMENTS.

The gross value of shipments of ore aggregating 6,192,604 pounds from twelve mines in the Lardeau, all situated near the property owned by this company, was $453,410.81, equal to a return per ton of over $146.00. The property owned by this company shows up equally as well as any of these more fully developed mines, and will, we are convinced, shortly rank among the best in the Lardeau division.

READ THESE FIGURES CAREFULLY

In a very conservative statement issued by the officers of the company, appears the following:

"'In order to show why we are confident we are right, we will estimate our ore values at $50.00 per ton, a little over one-third of the average ore values of the entire Lardeau mining division. We will also base our calculations on a daily output of 30 tons—a small amount compared with the extent of our property and the size of its ore bodies. We will allow $10.00 per ton for mining, transportation (a few miles only) and smelting charges. The profits after making a reasonable reduction for incidentals and surplus, work out as follows:

30 tons at $50.00 per ton...		$1,500
Less $10.00 per ton mining, transportation, and reduction charges		300
Net daily income......		1,200
Say for 300 days per year...... ...		300
Total net yearly income...		$360,000
Deduct for incidental expenses, $5 per ton...	$45,000
Deduct for company's surplus account $5 per ton.	$45,000	$90,000
Total yearly net earnings......		$270,000

which sum is equal to 270 per cent. per annum on our capital stock of $100,000.

"This estimate is made on the basis of a small output compared to the extent of our property and the splendid facilities it affords for economical mining and on the operation of the mine for 300 days per year only, so that anyone can see at a glance that we are not overestimating in any particular, especially when the output of mines similarly situated, and with ore bodies of less extent than ours, ship hundreds of tons each day. There is no good reason why our property, when fully developed—which will be within six months to a year—should not ship several hundreds of tons of ore per year, but we are basing our calculations on the immediate future in presenting the above estimate.

"We are now within seventy to eighty feet of the main ore veins, and assays show values as high as $77.00 per ton. The average returns from twelve mines in our district, according to Government records, which are always conservative, run as high as $146.40 a ton in gold, silver, copper and lead.

HONEST, LEGITIMATE MANAGEMENT

We know the men connected with the management of the LARDEAU MINES, and have known them for years. We know that they never were and never will be connected with any but honest and legitimately conducted enterprises.

REPORT OF MINING ENGINEER.

The property has been thoroughly examined by well known mining engineers and their reports have borne out every statement that has been made by the company. Mr. H. O. McClymont, one of the last engineers to make a report says in conclusion:

The average assays are most encouraging, considering the great width and continuancy of the leads across the country with such great width and prominence of the surface, and judging from other properties in the near vicinity, some of which are on the same level and have developed very rich ore bodies The LARDEAU MINES are as good as any, if not the best, in the vicinity, and I verily believe with a nominal expenditure, they should be made dividend-paying in a short time, and I would strongly recommend extensive developments towards that end. Signed, H. O. McClymont, Mining Engineer."

SMALL AMOUNT OF MONEY NEEDED.

As Mr. McClymont says in his report, only a small sum of money is needed to complete the development work and put these mines on a dividend paying basis.

We want to raise about $10,000 from the sale of shares, this money to be used to complete the work just specified.

A very short time will be required to raise this amount of money for this magnificent property, and then the sale of stock will be discontinued.

READ THIS CAREFULLY.

The present price of the stock is 10 cents per share.

The price will be advanced to 15 cents per share very soon, and then 20 cents per share.

The company reserves the right to withdraw the stock from the market without notice.

TWO YEARS AGO—AND NOW.

We believe that there are 80 chances in 100 of the LARDEAU MINES proving a BONANZA. One property in the vicinity of the Lardeau was recently sold for $400,000 cash, and stock in addition. Two years ago it was not nearly as good a prospect as the Lardeau is today.

The LARDEAU MINES, LIMITED, is a small, close corporation and the profits will consequently be large to each stockholder.

Those who are fortunate enough to buy stock at the low price of 10 cents can calculate on an annual income of $135.10 from an investment of $100.00 in other words, you would get your principal back and $35.00 besides every year.

YOU CAN PAY IN INSTALMENTS.

Write us for further particulars.

We will allow you to purchase a block of stock and pay for in in monthly instalments. Before your stock is paid for you will see it double in value—perhaps more.

We urge prompt action, because of the approaching increase of 15 cents per share, which may occur any day. The easiest thing to do is to send us $30, which will reserve the stock you desire at 10 cents per share. Then you can investigate the matter carefully and fully and if you are not completely satisfied we will return your money.

The Light Turned On

The people of Lakefield have been without light for some time past, and as the residents of that burg prefer light to darkness at all times, it was with a feeling of exultation that they again saw the light turned on on Tuesday evening. A Well Attended Meeting Held at the Rink Last Night

A well attended meeting of curlers took place last night at the rink, for the purpose of organizing for the coming winter. Mr. George Morrow was elected chairman, and Mr. C. N. Brown acted as secretary.

Mr. Robert Neil submitted estimates for putting the rink in first class shape for curling. It is proposed to take out the floor of the skating rink, and remove the partitions, creating six curling rinks.

Committees were appointed to canvas for members and finance.

It looks as though curling was likely to boom this winter in Peterborough.

PETERBORO' TO PLAY ARGONAUT II. HERE

On Saturday Afternoon on the Nicholls Oval

TORONTOS GO TO LONDON.

The Winners to Play off for the Championship

A meeting of the Ontario Rugby Union Executive committee was held in Toronto yesterday afternoon to straighten out the tangle in the intermediate series.

President A. W. Ballantyne, who was unable to be present at Wednesday night's meeting on account of a bad cold, stated that in his opinion the executive had acted unwisely in throwing out all the games in the Western district. The London protest against Toronto having been sustained, that game only should have been ordered to be replayed. Instead the executive had ordered a new series, Toronto to go to London, and the winner to play Argonauts II. for the championship of the district.

On hearing of the decision arrived at Mr. McPherson telephoned to Toronto at the close of the meeting Wednesday night and suggested that two games be played off on Saturday, and the winners play off at some point decided by the executive. This proposition seemed to meet with general favor with the clubs and a meeting was called for Thursday afternoon, when it was practically agreed that two games should be played off on Saturday, as follows:

Toronto at London.

Argonaut II. at Peterborough.

The winners to paly off for the championship at some point to be decided by the executive the following Saturday.

At a meeting of the Executive committee of the Ontario Rugby Union Executive Wednesday night, at which Messrs. G. S. Gibbons, Fred Thompson, S. S. DuMoulin, George Ballard, and F. D. Woodworth were present, the protest off the London Club against Bert Morrison of the Torontos was considered.

The Executive, at a former meeting, had requested a declaration from Morrison in regard to his amateur status while playing hockey in Pittsburg. Morrison failed to make the necessary declaration, and the meeting declared him a professional.

George Black of London was present at the meeting and asked for a reconsideration of his application to play in the O.R.F.U. The secretary was instructed to write Mr. Black informing him that he was considered a professional baseball player, and advising him to apply for reinstatement to the C.A.A.U.

An application for reinstatement was received from Chaucer Elliott, but the Executive decided not to open up his case again.

LAKEFIELD MAN INJURED

John McCormack Had a Close Call for His Life Wednesday

On Wednesday afternoon, John McCormack, an aged employe of the Lakefield Cement Company, was seriously injured by an engine used for hauling the company's cars. McCormack was attending to the switch, and in attempting to get on the cowcatcher to ride a short distance he slipped and fell in front of the engine. The cowcatcher pushed him along the track, and had it not been that the engineer promptly reversed the engine he would have been killed. The unfortunate man was carried to the office of Dr. D. Fraser, where his injuries were found to be very serious, and he was immediately conveyed to his home about a mile from the village. It was found that the fibula, or small bone, of the right foot, was badly shattered, and it is feared that serious internal injuries may complicate the case, as the lower portion of the abdomen was badly bruised.

Mr. McCormack is about 60 years of age, and is an industrious and well-respected citizen. He is a widower and lives with his daughters, whose main support he has been.

RITCHIE—SCOTT

On Tuesday, Nov. 11th, a pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. Thos. Croly, Auburn, when his niece, Miss Armine Adelaide Scott, of Peterborough, and Mr. John S. Ritchie, of Lakefield, were married, Rev. J. Bastow officiating. The bride was assisted by Miss Mary E. Ritchie, of Peterborough, sister of the groom, while the brother of the bride, Mr. Stewart Scott, of Toronto, was best man. After the ceremony a few relatives and friends sat down to a sumptuous dinner. They, with many others, wish the new couple a happy and prosperous career.

Advice That was Worth It

"I was once a slave to the coffee habit, and became almost a confirmed invalid by drinking it," says Mr. C. H. Aitken of Whiting, N.J.

"I tried to break away from coffee but every time I stopped I suffered from severe sick headaches and for relief went back to coffee again, only in the end to suffer from extreme nervousness and severe bilious attacks.

I became so irritable that I made life miserable for my family and myself. Finally I went to New York to consult a specialist. After thoroughly questioning and examining me, he said I must give up drinking coffee as it had greatly undermined my health and he further said that coffee killed more people than rum. I laughed at him, but he said it was the truth and that in his practice he had seen many evil effects from coffee drinking.

He said it was of no use to prescribe for me, unless I gave up coffee, and recommended that I use Postum Food Coffee, which he highly recommended. He charged me $12 for his advice, which I thought rather high priced at the time, but today I think it very cheap. I bought several packages of Postum from the grocer and it was the best day's work I ever did for myself.

I had a pot of Postum made for my supper that night; that was in the spring of 1900 and I have drank it ever since with the best of results to my health. The sick headache and nervousness I suffered from drinking coffee have entirely gone; I am never bilious, and have increased in weight; I have a happy disposition and am much more agreeable company to my family and friends."

RUSSIA'S BOLD DESIGN CHECKED BY BRITAIN

The Great Northern Power Intended Military Occupation of Afghanistan

END OF SOUTH AFRICAN WAR STOPPED IT

Checked by News of Victories in South Africa and Great Britain's Firm Attitude

London, Nov. 14—The Daily Graphic says:—Among the questions and answers recently printed and circulated with the votes in the House of Commons, is an inquiry by Mr. Moon as to the date of the communication from the Russian Government in regard to the appointment of a Russian agent at Cabul. To this Viscount Cranborne replied:—

The date of the communication from the Russian Government is February 6th, 1900.

The significance of this reply is dealt with in the following note we have received from a well informed correspondent:—"Now that Lord Cranborne has revealed the date of the proposal of the Russian Government to establish diplomatic relations with Afghanistan, there can be no harm in pointing out that this demarche was the abortive culmination of a very serious military enterprise on the part of the Government of the Czar, which caused our own Government no small amount of anxiety in the early days of the South African war. It has long been known that the only foreign power whose attitude towards Great Britain at this time was at all menacing was Russia. The story of Count Muravieff's attempt to organize a European coalition against this country has already been told, but it is less generally known that the attempts of Russia to involve us in complications did not stop with the breakdown of that scheme. The idea was to seize the opportunity in our South African embarrassments in order to realize certain Russian aspirations in Afghanistan. The forward party in the Russian Ministry favored a march to Herat; others were content to force Great Britain to acquiesce in the establishment of diplomatic relations between the Czar and the Ameer under cover of an imposing military demonstration. The mot d'ordre was given to the press and in November, 1899, the Russian newspapers were without exception clamoring for an active policy in Afghanistan. At the same time troops were concentrated in the trans-Caspian provinces, and over 30,000 men with 150 guns, were sent from Tiflis, via Askabad, to Kushk, on the Afghan frontier, where strong fortifications were constructed and an immense amount of railway material was accumulated. Towards the end of January four army corps, of 44,000 men each, with proportionate artillery, were gathered together in trans-Caspia, and it had been ascertained by experiment that each army corps could be transported to Kushk in eight days. Throughout India, Persia and Central Asia war was regarded as imminent. Already, in the middle of January, it was rumored in Teheran and Meshed that the Russian Government had formally proposed to Great Britain the despatch of a Russian fully credited that it caused a slump in Government paper in the Bombay Bazaar (see Times, January 19th, 1900, and Bombay Gazette, January 27th.) It was not, however, until three weeks later that the proposal was actually made.

There can be no question that it was the intention of Russia to repudiate her engagements of 1873-1885 not to interfere with Afghanistan in the same way that she had denounced the Black Sea clauses of the Treaty of Paris, in 1870. The reason that this step was not taken is said to be that the Czar vetoed further action and strongly reprimanded the Minister of War who, it is alleged, ordered the concentration of troops in Trans-Caspia and at Kushk without his Majesty's knowledge. It is more probable that the scheme was rendered abortive by the firm attitude of the British Government, and also by the dramatic change in the situation in South Africa and the sudden development of the Boxer crisis in China. On the very day that the Russian Government despatched its proposal to London—February 6th—Lord Roberts left Cape Town for the Modder River, and when the British reply reached St. Petersburg, Kimberley had been relieved and Cronje had surrendered. A fortnight later the dowager Empress of China, threw down her gauntlet to all the European powers, and Russia could no longer afford to risk a war with Great Britain in Afghanistan. Thus the crisis passed away."

THE MONROE DOCTRINE AND SOUTH AMERICA

The Action of the United States Means a Protectorate Over Republics

The Nations on the Southern Continent are Not Pleased With Their Position

New York, November 14—What the end of the Monroe doctrine will be as regards the South American States, it is difficult at this moment to forsee. What seems to be plain is that important countries like Brazil, Argentina and Chili chafe under the idea that they are virtually subject to a protectorate. Even the smaller states, Venezuela, Colombia and the rest are not enamoured of the situation. A Washington correspondent of the New York Evening Post says that the early policy of the United States towards these countries was not of a nature to conciliate their respect of affection. "We never lost," he goes on to say, "an opportunity of reminding them that, worthy and unworthy alike, they were only 'dagoes.' We planted at their capitals, as the diplomatic representatives of our government a job lot or worn out or morally discredited politicians, the theory seeming to be that men whose appointment to anything at home would raise a stench would answer well enough to fill a South American mission." The declaration that the Monroe doctrine applies to the Southern no less than to the northern half of the continent may have given the South American government a certain feeling of security, but it has not enhanced their sense of dignity. They are so "fixed" now that they could not, even if they wished to do so, cede any portion of their territory to a European power. It is questionable even whether one of them could, without the consent of Uncle Sam, obtain any increase of territory at the expense of another. Germany has been casting longing looks at Brazil, and Argentina, where so much rich territory is going to waste, and thinking how much better situated a German colony would be there than in East Africa, but she cannot make the least move towards realizing her desires without arousing the wrath of the American eagle, who is ostentatiously spending a great deal of time these days sharpening his talons. It is doubtful whether the Monroe doctrine is doing much for the progress of the world.

BOY TO WEAR AUSTRIAN CROWN

Possibility of the First and Second Heirs Stepping Aside

Dresden, Saxony, Nov. 13.—A letter received here from Vienna gives some interesting gossip about the Austrian succession. In spite of official denials, it is not impossible that there is some truth in the story recently published by the Neue Budapester Abendblatt of the alleged intended abdication of the heir presumptive to the Austrian throne, the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, in favor of his nephew, the 15-year-old Archduke Charles Francis.

There is no question that the young Prince has for a couple of years past attracted a greatly enhanced interest in Austria-Hungary, and the unusual care is now being bestowed upon his education, in view of his proximity to the throne. A few years ago, when Francis Ferdinand's health was very indifferent, his younger brother, Otto, the father of Charles Francis, was for a time informally put forward as the immediate successor of Emperor Francis Joseph. Subsequently it was rumored that Otto had expressed his readiness to surrender his rights in favor of his son, an exceptionally handsome boy, whose bright, intelligent looks and self-confident, good humored expression have already done much to endear him to the Viennese.

In matters directly affecting the interests of the dynasty, not only the reigning Sovereign, but other members of the Imperial house, exercise a considerable influence on such important decisions as those concerning the succession to the throne, and it is only a man of very strong will who can resist the urgent representations of a family council of the Imperial house.

At present the succession to the throne is provided for with perfect clearness. Archduke Francis Ferdinand, a nephew of the Emperor, stands next in order, and as he has formally renounced all claims to the succession on behalf of the issue of his morganic marriage with the Countess Sophie Chotek, now Princess Hohenberg, he would be succeeded by his brother, Otto, unless the latter should abdicate in favor of his son.

The strong attitude taken by Francis Ferdinand on certain political and national questions has, it is feared, placed him in conflict with important elements o fthe population of the monarchy. His clerical and anti-German tendencies do not please the bulk of the Germans in Austria, and his clerical views are equally distasteful to the liberal Magyars in Hungary. In these circumstances, and remembering that the Emperor still enjoys robust health, and may be expected to live several years, it is conceivable that an effort may be made to induce the heir presumptive to surrender his rights to his nephew.

The present Emperor ascended the throne at the age of 18, in virtue of the abdication of his uncle, Emperor Ferdinand, and similar renunciation on the part of his own father, Archduke Francis Charles. The Imperial family was convinced then that an energetic ruler was essential, and that the inexperience of the youth of 18 was a smaller disadvantage than the less vigorous initiative of a man advanced in years. While Francis Ferdinand is still in the prime of life, there is some apprehension that the position he had adopted may seriously increase the difficulties of a sufficently embarrassing situation. Furthermore, the want of confidence felt in his clerical advisers is calculated to excite suspicion as to the possibility of his being induced by powerful factors to embark on courses which might imperil the stability of the monarchy.

While these considerations might lead the members of the Imperial family to wish for another successor to the throne, less compromised by his public expression of views and more popular with all his future subjects, it does not at all follow that their counsels would prevail with the Archduke. He is a man of quite exceptional independence of character, whose iron determination has before now broken down very powerful opposition to his own views. The ambition attributed to his clever wife, who is enthusiastically devoted to the clerical cause, would seem to confirm rather than weaken his resistance to any such proposition.

CLUBFEET CURED BY THE AUSTRIAN SURGEON

Dr. Lorenz Turns the Feet of Infants Sufferers in San Francisco

ALL DEFORMITIES DISAPPEAR

Vienna Specialist Says Successful Age Limit in Such Cases is Eight Years

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 14—Dr. Adolph Lorenz, of Vienna, who operated on Miss Lolita Armour, and who arrived in this city last Sunday evening, has already performed several successful bloodless surgical operations in the presence of a large number of California physicians and surgeons.

He treated free of charge yesterday a case of double club feet on a five-months-old baby, Rose Jackson, of Santa Rosa. This infant's feet were so badly disarranged that they were bent inward and upward until the soles faced each other and left as the only possible walking surface the outer rear edges of the feet.

Dr. Lorenz took each tiny foot in his hands and powerfully turned them round into the right position, practically wringing the soft little feet as though they were of plastic clay. In that way he destroyed the tendency to form in the improper shape. He pulled the little tissues and ligaments around to where they should be, and impressed the soft baby bones into proper position.

The bayb, soothed to sleep by ether, was not conscious of any pain. A plaster cast was placed about the rearranged joints, leaving the toes exposed, so that the blood circulation may be observed during the six or nine months that the plaster mould is to be kept on.

DR. LORENZ EXPLAINS.

In speaking of his method, Dr. Lorenz said that there was no difficulty in treating very young children, but that there was much more trouble with older children, because of the hardening of the bony cavity. The successful age limit, he explained, was up to seven or eight years.

He had performed on children ten years old, and in one instance he operated on a patient twenty-three years old, but that was a very singular case.

The surgeon had three patients today at the Cooper Medical College, the most interesting of which was Viola, the five-year-old daughter of Dr. F. F. Lord, of this city. Viola was suffering from a congenital dislocation of a hip joint.

Dr. Lord never left his baby daughter's side. When Dr. Lorenz finished the operation and declared that in less than a year little Viola would walk, Dr. Lord grasped the surgeon by the hand and thanked him. Dr. Lorenz said nothing. A mere smile conveyed his appreciation of the father's feelings.

The Vienna specialist performed two operations on Tuesday at the Children's Hospital, his subjects being Harold Kuckheim, six years old, and Adele Steinberg, eight. Both children suffered from congenital dislocation, the girl from dislocation of the left hip joint, and the boy from double dislocation.

Dr. Lorenz was assisted in both cases by his colleague, Dr. Frederick Mueller, also of Vienna, and Dr. James Watkins, of this city, who once studied under Dr. Lorenz.

The operations were pronounced a success. After the operation the hip of little Adele was placed in a plaster of paris cast, in which it will be encased for six months.

Both hips of the boy were also placed in plaster of paris casts and they will remain in them for six months. Adele will be able to move around in several weeks, while the boy, owing to both hips being in the cast, will not be able to walk for six months.

Two boys were operated upon at the Affiliated Colleges yesterday. They were Philip O'Neil, the four-year-old son of William O'Neil, a farmer of Mendocino county, and Donald Lum, four-year-old son of Dr. W. T. Lum, of Alameda. In both cases the doctor exercised his method of treatment for congenital dislocation of the left hips. The children are doing splendidly.

DR. RACE GOES IN FOR SICHE GAS

The Well Known Stony Lake Cottager Has His Brooklyn Home Lighted

Persons acquainted with Stony Lake will know Boscabel Villa, Boschink, and Dr. Race, of Brooklyn, who spends his summers there. Dr. Race was so impressed with the excellent showing of SICHE GAS at the Park Hotel, Burleigh Falls, Viamede, Juniper Island, and Eaglemount that he has installed a Siche Machine in his charming residence and palatial offices at 366 Clinton Street, Brooklyn, N. Y. This is a decided triumph for our most progressive new Canadian enterprise. Canada for Canadians is a good motto, and SICHE GAS is a purely Canadian invention. The Times is glad to see that it is more than holding its own, even across the border, where is supposed to be the natural home of the ablest inventors. The Art Metropole, Canada's leading Art Store, 149 Yonge Street, Toronto, has also installed SICHE GAS. These facts show that at last a system of using carbide or calcium for lighting purposes that can successfully compete with the large incorporated Light companies of such cities as greater New York (Brooklyn), and Toronto, has been invented. Everyone knows that SICHE GAS, which is the absolutely pure form of Acetylene, gives the steadiest, whitest and most brilliant light commercially obtainable. Auer mantles and electric incandescent lights are not nearly so brilliant, and at the same time are much more expensive. What every one does not know is that SICHE GAS is practical, cheap and safe. On this point the evidence of the following gentlemen will be conclusive,—

"I have great pleasure in thoroughly endorsing your machine."—C. S. Gzowski, Toronto.

"Its superiority to other machines is in my opinion unquestioned. I consider it the only light"—Wm. McDivitt. (Mr. McDivitt has lit the Windsor Hotel, Bala, with Siche Gas for TWO years. He has the first large SICHE MACHINE ever built. What Company can show a fact to equal that?)

"The lights are very satisfactory, better and steadier than electric, and taking volume of light into comparison, it is cheaper than oil."—Mrs. Davidson, "Steubenden Villa" Beaumaris.

"A better light and cheaper light than City Gas."—W. H. Banfield, Manufacturer, Toronto.

"Have done away with electric light altogether and now use SICHE GAS only. It is a better light and a cheaper cheaper light. Can select colors by it perfectly."—T. W. Chapman & Co., the Leading Store, Orangeville, Ont.

"The SICHE machine in my residence is doing its work perfectly."—T. W. Chapman, Merchant, Orangeville.

"Has given us perfect satisfaction in every way."—Kinmaster & Mabee, The Bay Cliff, Port Rowan.

"The cost of lighting from Dec. 28th 1901 to 28th April last has been less than $10."—J. C. Ingles, President Hagersville Contracting Co. (Mr. Ingles has over 20 lights in his fine residence.)

"It is all you claimed for it, no offensive odour, no dirt,—don't require to put on overalls to clean it."—A. B. Mofatt, Stove Manufacturer, Weston, Ont.

"I find the machine all you claimed, safe, simple, economical, reliable—a really practical independent plant at a reasonable cost."—Rev. Dr. Elmore Harris, Toronto.

Anyone interested can obtain full particulars as to SICHE GAS by addressing the Head Office of the Company, Rossin House Block, or phone the SICHE GAS COMPANY, Main 1971, Toronto.

NOT BOUNDARY MONUMENTS

Jack Dalton Says Alaskan Mounds Are Over Indian Graves

Vancouver, B.C., Nov 15—Jack Dalton, the Klondike mine owner has arrived from Dawson. He says he accompanied Lieut. Emmens, who was sent to find Russian boundary monuments in Alaska. He went over the very line of stone monuments spoken of by De Blondeau, as the boundary monuments. Dalton says they are not boundary monuments but stones placed to mark Indian graves.

A well known Vancouver citizen has complained to the authorities that the United States Government has erected a number of Houses of Refuge on the North shore of Portland Canal in territory in dispute between the United States and Canada. Great Britain asserts that the Iehm Canal is the boundary, while the United States say the Portland Canal is the dividing line.

These houses of refuge are of stone and each has a tablet stating that it is United States Government property. The traveller, who has brought the news to the Board of Trade here, has caused some excitement and the case will certainly be investigated.

A Wonderful Tonic and Strengthener

Said a druggist today, "No doubt about it, the tonic that gives best results is the biggest seller, and that is Ferrozone. It enriches and purifies the blood, restores strength and energy to the feeble, and is a scientific reconstructor that was always popular. In Chlorosis, Anaemia, Tiredness, Langour, Brain Fag, Indigestion and Dyspepsia its action is prompt, and satisfactory cures always follow. Yes, I recommend Ferrozone to my customers because I believe it is the best tonic and strengthening medicine that money can buy." Large boxes cost 50c.

TORONTO SPECULATORS VERY BADLY HIT

It Is Said That Several Millions of Dollars Has Been Dropped in Stocks

Wall Street Men Picked Them Out for Raids on Stocks Which They Wanted at Low Price

Toronto, Nov. 15.—Toronto speculators, who have for some weeks been plunging heavily in Wall Street, have been hard hit lately, and they attribute their ill luck partly to a trick played on them by the Waldorf contingent, who, they declare, sent one of their crowd to Toronto a couple of weeks ago and again a few days ago to discover what stocks the local speculators were dealing in, with a view of breaking the price of those particular stocks in New York and shaking them out.

Toronto traders for the most part largely follow three or four stocks on the long side and the plan of the Waldorf speculators, so it is charged, was to ascertain just what stocks they were long of and when a favorably opportunity occurred to break the price. The Toronto crowd was long of Canadian Pacific and "Soo" common, among others, and these stocks finding little support in New York at the moment it was an easy matter to carry the prices of them that the Canadians decided that valor's best part was discretion, and threw over their stocks. This was just what the Wall Street men wanted and they succeeded in picking up the stocks at low prices.

This week a tip was given by local brokers that one of the Waldorf crowd was again in this city looking after similar information and that it would be prudent to keep quiet. The result was that little information was obtainable.

Claimed Damages from Pincess, Active Tobacco War

Three-Sided Contest in Which American Tobacco Company is Foremost

Berlin, Nov. 14.—An active tobacco war is in progress in Germany. It is a three-sided contest. The most formidable adversary is the American Tobacco Company, which has bought up the Jasmatzi factories at Dresden, and several days ago set the domestic tobacco interests agog by purchasing all the Turkish leaf tobacco in storage at Dresden in order to secure a monopoly of the supply. The German tobacco dealers are clamoring for protective measures, and a counter tobacco movement to throw off the grip which the Duke tobacco interests have already obtained upon the German market. To complicate matters, Mr. Rothschild, of Rothschild, Brother & Company, New York, one of the most powerful rivals of the American Tobacco Company, has opened headquarters in this city. Inasmuch as the German tobacco market and its supply is not a monopoly as in France, Russia and other countries, the fight for control promises to be a keen one. Mr. Edward Kraemer, who has opened an office in this city, and is beginning to fight against the tobacco trust by selling a popular brand of American cigarettes, said: "There is no doubt that matters will be warm here. In England the tobacco trust failed to make a successful fight, and now they have transferred their efforts to Germany, which is not yet subject to a Government monopoly. In a few days Mr. Rothschild, one of the members of our firm, is coming over here from New York, and we propose to compete with the tobacco combination."

London, Nov. 14.—Captain Ladislaus de Porkony appeared before Justice Willis yesterday, claiming damages against Princess Lowenstein Werthein. When the court opened, the captain's wife stood up and announced: "I appear on behalf of my husband, Captain de Porkony, who is a Hungarian and cannot speak English." This, however, the court would not allow, and the fair would-be barrister, was told she could not act as counsel. The Captain must state his own case. She could act as his interpreter. Captain de Porkony, then through his wife, stated that in 1896, the late Prince Lowenstein retained his services, but did not carry out his bargain as to payment. After Prince Lowenstein's death Porkony endeavored to secure payment from the Princess, but was unsuccessful. He said the Princess had often remarked in the presence of other princesses and baronesses of high rank that Porkony was a dangerous man, a blackmailer, and that he had blackmailed both the Prince and herself. These alleged remarks of the Princess Lowenstein were the basis of a suit for libel. Mrs. de Porkony said that the defendant had declined to apologize for what she had said. Her husband, she added, had no local witness. His only witness was in America. The counsel for the Princess said that as Prince Lowenstein was dead, the plaintiff Porkony was not entitled to enter into anything that had occurred between the Prince and himself. As to the alleged slander, the Princess absolutely denied having spoken the words complained of. In view of there being no witness to give evidence for the plaintiff, Justice Willis decided that Captain de Porkony was non-suited, and judgment for the defendant.

London, Nov. 14.—A Berlin correspondent of the Times says that the memorial in regard to the tariff question, presented to Count Von Buelow, Imperial Chancellor, by the Commercial Treaties Association, was published last evening. The Association now numbers 17,000 members. The memorial says that for two and a half years the whole economic life of Germany has been in a condition approaching a crisis. The uncertainty in regard to the commercial policy of the country has contributed to intensify and prolong this. It adds: A satisfactory state of things will not be restored until stability and security have been introduced in our commercial relations with foreign countries. German industry is the most productive branches is suffering from want of employment, and the spirit of enterprise is practically extinct, new plants hardly anywhere being acquired. The memorialists urgently request that with a view to aiding the present altogether intolerable situation existing, commercial treaties be prolonged for ten or at least five years, instead of waiting until the present unprofitable tariff discussion in the Reichstag has yielded some further result."

FOOD ADULTERATION

Jams That Are Very Innocent of the Genuine Fruit—Laws Violated

Discussing the question of food stuffs the other day a gentleman conversant with the situation stated that the Ontario inspection laws should be more rigidly enforced in order to give the consumers a fair measure of protection. Adulteration, he said, is becoming quite common. So called 'strawberry jam is being turned out by Quebec factories which, he claimed, is made of glucose and clover seeds, the whole flavored to taste, the presence of the clover seeds giving the jam the "seedy" appearance common to the genuine article. This product of a fertile brain and foreign substances undersells the real thing and is obtaining a good foothold in Ontario.

Head Shot Off

Elyria, Ohio, Nov. 14.—Marshal Henry Krohm was seriously shot and an unknown burglar had his head blown off in a battle here early to-day. The shooting occurred during a fight with four robbers, who completely terrorized the town, stole horses and rigs, entered several houses, and shot recklessly in a wild charge down the main street of the town. J. B. Baird was awakened by burglars in his house. He got up, and saw two masked men standing on either side of his bed. Drawn revolvers were pointed at his head, but, in spite of this, he jumped from bed and grappled with the intruders. In the darkness they broke away and fled from the house.

The burglars then entered the home of Town Marshal Krohm, who opened fire on them. When he had fired three times, one of the robbers who had jumped into a buggy got out, and began firing at the marshal. At the third shot the latter fell with a bullet through his hips.

Baird, who had meantime arrived at the scene, picked up the officer's gun and continued the firing. The robbers, however, drove rapidly away. Baird followed them to the home of the superintendent, W. J. Hitler, of the Cleveland, Elyria, and Western Railway. Even when Baird again opened fire on the robbers they burst into the Hitler's home, after smashing in the door.

A GREAT WORK FINISHED

The dedication of the Nile dam at Assouan, which will occur on Dec. 10, is regarded as an event of such importance that the duke and Duchess of Connaught will be present to represent the royalty of England on the occasion. It is said that this dam is the greatest work of the kind ever attempted, and that as a triumph of engineering skill it stands at the head of human achievement. It cost some $25,000,000, and is capable of storing a billion cubic feet of water. As the United States Government under the act of the last session of congress, is going to engage in irrigation work upon an extensive scale, it might be well for their government to send some expert engineers to get pointers from the great Nile irrigation dam.

MOLYBDENUM

At Sandy Lake, near Havelock, a farmer was picking huckleberries a couple of years ago when he discovered a mineral that was new to him. He sent samples to the assay office at Kingston, and it proved to be molybdenum, a very valuable mineral that is utilized in the manufacture of a special brand of steel. The farmer quietly bought the land in which the mineral was found and sold it to the International Mining Company, of Buffalo, at a big price. Molybdenum is worth about $400 per ton in the ore and is a rare element of the chromium group, occurring in soft, lead-gray, foliated masses or scales, resembling graphite, and when reduced obtained is a hard silver-white fusible metal. This valuable find will start the prospectors, and unless the Buffalo company has pre-empted all the land at Sandy Lake there are a few fortunes in store for enterprising Canadians.

DISAPPEARING EMPIRES

The division of the Portuguese possessions in South Africa between Germany and Great Britain is an incident in the progressive partition of that continent among the great and vital powers of Europe. The deal for this division has been in progress for some time. The financial position of Portugal made it necessary, and the great powers had only to wait patiently for her surrender to internal compulsion. Probably the arrangement would have been made long ago but for the South African war.

Portuguese East Africa extends north and south along about fifteen hundred miles of coast, on both sides of the Zambesi river with a hinterland of 150 to 600 miles. Should the division be made on the river, Germany would get the city of Mozambique, opposite Madagascar, with valuable ports and mines. Great Britain would get the useful ports of Lorenzo Marques and Beira which are terminals of railroads from the Transvaal and Rhodesia, and would give all her new Boer territory a coast line.

This arrangement will mark the almost complete disappearance of an Empire even mightier than that of Spain three centuries ago. Before the voyages of Columbus, bold Portugese navigators had extended the dominion of that little kingdom over all that was known of Africa, south of the Mediterranean. In the division of the papal bull, Portugal was given everything east, and Spain everything west of a line which cut off part of South America and gave Portugal title to the great colony of Brazil.

These two mighty empires have slipped away from nations that had lost the power to hold them. Four years ago we took the last of Spain colonies, after the whole American continent, south of the gulf of Mexico had broken away from her. Now Great Britain and Germany take the last of Portugal's empire except West Africa, which probably will be divided later and some pitiful islands. Nations are like individuals. Permanent possession is only to those who have strength to hold and skill to use.

FROGS AS BIG AS AN OX

Remarkable Bones Unearthed in Oklahoma by Mr. Menke of the Field

Norman, O.T. Nov. 11—H. W. Menke, of the Field Columbia Museum, Chicago, is in Oklahoma collecting fossils. Among the fossil bones he has found are back-bones, leg bones and a few skulls, and teeth.

Mr. Menke says the animals whose bones he has unearthed probably were members of the class known as amphibians. The amphibians constitute the class of creatures now represented by frogs, toads and salamanders. If one can imagine a frog as big as an ox it is said, an idea can be gained of the appearance of these prehistoric monsters that once flourished in Oklahoma.

NO COAL FOR A MONTH

Coal Men are Making Hay While Navigation —Navigation Closes December 5th

A coal dealer yesterday morning told the Times that he did not think there would be much coal delivered here until next month. Navigation closes December 5th on the lakes, and up to that time coal will be rushed from Buffalo to Duluth. The vessel freight is much lower than that of the railroads. An example may be taken in the case of Sault Ste. Marie. It costs $4.46 to carry a ton of coal from Buffalo to the Soo by rail, and only 50 cents a ton by water.

"After navigation closes there will be plenty of coal here," said the dealer, "but that will not be for another month." Most coal dealers in this city are still without coal and cannot supply their customers.

19-YEAR-OLD-GIRL MURDERED

Criminally Assaulted and Then Killed—Her Employer's Hostler Arrested

Albany, Nov. 13.—A brutal murder of a nineteen-year-old girl was committed here last night. The victim, Anna Mitchell, was a domestic in the home of Mrs. Adrian O. Mather, in Londonville, a suburb of Albany. She was criminally assaulted late last night, her head was battered and her body left in a gully a few hundred feet from the Mather home, where it was found shortly afternoon to-day.

The victim left the Mather home early last evening to visit her widowed mother, who lived a mile away. The police have in custody Frederick W. Knapp, a hostler employed by Mrs. Mather. The girl never reached her mother's home. The mother's inquiries at the Mather home early this morning led to the search for the girl.

ARE TRYING SPIRITUALISM

Vienna, Nov. 13.—The Russian Liberal paper printed in Stuttgart states that the Czar is suffering from a nervous affection, and that the Czarina is ill of a nervous malady. The paper further alleges that the Czar has placed himself under the care of Dr. Phillips, a Spiritualist and mesmerist healer. Dr. Phillips has summoned the spirit of Alexander III. at the Czar's behest and receives messages foretelling imperial and domestic events. The doctor, it is alleged, treats the Czarina hypnotically, but reports from Livadia concerning the health of the imperial couple are carefully censored.

THE MOONSTONE SPHINX

By Mrs C N Williamson

Author of The Barn Stormers Fortune's Spor , Miss Nobody, Her Royal Highness Lady Mary of the Dark House, etc.

In the afternoon Macaire asked him if he had been to the jeweler's yet.

"No," faltered Dick. "The fact is, I ——" He was on the point of beginning his made-up tale concerning the loss of the jewel when the millionaire broke in, for the first time in his secretary's experience of him showing anger.

"By Heaven!" he exclaimed. "I can't get anybody to remember my wishes. What jeweler has the stone? I'll go to him myself."

Dick grew hot and cold. "No, no, Mr. Macaire," he implored. "I haven't forgotten, really. I was busy. I will go at once."

He went out into the street, not knowing what he should do. He had cut the ground away from under his own feet now, committing himself to the statement that he had made. Next time they met, if he could not satisfy Macaire that he had been to the jeweler's, the millionaire would insist upon having the man's name, and Dick would stand discredited. Something must be done at once, but what—what?

Suddenly he thought of the woman who had bought the jewel. If he could offer her the thousand francs she had paid, and at the same time throw himself upon her compassion, she might be induced to sell the moonstone back again. But first he must get the thousand francs, and then he must find the lady.

Having accomplished no more than evolving this plan, he returned to the hotel, where Macaire had taken several of the best suites for himself and his friends, since it had not been considered convenient to spend the nights on board his yacht.

"Well, have you been to the jeweler?" Macaire called from his private sitting-room as Dick would have passed the door.

"Yes," answered the young man desperately. "He will try to have the Sphinx's-head ready by to-morrow night."

Ten minutes later Macaire went out, having shouted a request that Dick would write three or four letters for him while he was away.

Dick knew what his employer wished him to write, and sat down at his desk in the sitting-room, which Macaire had left open. The millionaire was noted for his careless ways, and to-day he had left lying on the desk a roll of English bank-notes.

Dick looked at them, fascinated, then drew the roll towards him and began counting it over.

There were twenty ten-pound, six five-pound notes—two hundred and thirty pounds in all. Macaire was certain not to have taken the numbers, he had never been known to do such a thing, and money flowed like water through his hands. In all probability he was not aware how much this fat roll contained. If several notes were abstracted he would not be the wiser; or even if he did discover his loss, after leaving the money lying out on his desk, he would not know whom to blame. One of the hotel servants would be suspected; but it would be unfair, in such circumstances to make an accusation.

Feeling faint and sick, Dick selected five ten-pound notes, huddled them away in his pocket, and pushed the roll back into the place where it had lain. Luckily he had finished the letters first, for it would now have been impossible for him to have concentrated his mind upon writing a single line.

He had taken the first step; now for the second. And, hurrying out, he went to the Casino, hoping to find there the purchaser of the jewel, who had seemed to be a keen gambler, and had said that she was an "old habituee of Monte Carlo."

To his joy he presently spied her, absorbed in the game. His heart leaped up as he saw on the table beside her winnings the sphinx's head, evidently in use as a fetich.

He tried to speak, but she motioned him away; she was not to be interrupted. Again and again he implored her attention for a moment, but she flashed out at him in angry French that she would complain; she would have him removed if he disturbed her.

She was quite capable of keeping her word, and, fearing a scene, Dick was forced to wait upon her convenience. Time dragged on while he despaired; but at last madame was satisfied, and thought, perhaps, of her dinner. Gathering up her winnings, which were considerable, she turned from the table and to Dick. She was a different woman now—soft and agreeable in manner as if she had never threatened vengeance. What was it that monsieur wanted? Had he another jewel to sell?

Dick explained that his desire was to the contrary effect. But at the first words the hard, painted face grew harder. The lady was sorry that monsieur regretted disposing of the fetich, but she could not think of giving it up. Already it had brought her great luck. No, there was no price he could name for which she would change her mind.

The unhappy young man poured arguments upon her; he had reason to believe the jewel had been stolen by the person who gave it to him; there would be trouble for madame. But Madame would risk it, so she replied with a smile, and the glint in her eyes caused Dick to regret this last suggestion. He feared that she might leave Monte Carlo.

Nothing that he could say would move her, and she airily remarked that if monsieur persecuted her by following to her hotel she would certainly appeal to the police.

Dick was in a worse plight than before, for now he was doubly a thief and a failure. He determined that he would replace the money he had taken, since it had not availed his purpose, and would concoct the best story he could about the loss of the moonstone, saying that he had not confessed at first, hoping to find it.

By this time Macaire and his guests would be dining, for Dick was very late. Feeling certain of this, he went straight to the millionaire's sitting-room, which was apparently deserted and in semi-darkness. It was now the last of April, but as it was past eight o'clock the night was falling in deep blue dusk.

Dick stepped softly into the room, and groping his way to the desk which was near the window, felt for the roll of bank-notes, upon which—if it was in the place he had first seen and left it—he knew exactly where to put his hand. But suddenly the room was flooded with electric light; and, dazzled and blinking, Dick saw Macaire standing with a finger and thumb still on the electric button which he had just turned.

On the man's hideous face was a look which Dick had never seen before—a look that was fiendish.

"I was right, then; you are a thief," he said. "You whom I have made my friend. You have stolen my money."

The CANADIAN STEEL AND COAL COMPANY was organized to mine and manufacture iron and coal, coke and steel in Canada at Atlantic tidewater.

The raw materials for these manufactures are :—

1.—COAL. 2.—IRON. 3.—LIMESTONE.

All these materials we have at hand.

1.—COAL.

The Company controls 3,000 acres of excellent coal areas in the Province of Nova Scotia, and efforts are being made to increase this to 10,000 acres by the purchase of some very valuable additional coal fields.

The coal has been thoroughly tested and found to be suitable in every way for the manufacture of iron and steel, and the supply is practically inexhaustible. The following analysis was made by the Canadian Geological Survey :—

ANALYSIS.

Moisture	4.05
Vol. Comb. Matter	30.72
Fixed Carbon	60.
Ash	5.23
	100 00

COAL VEINS.

The several layers or seams of coal available aggregate 27 to 30 feet in thickness.

TITLES.

These areas are held under Crown Lease for a period of 80 years. Royalty 10 cents per ton of coal sold.

2.—IRON.

The Company has acquired by purchase immense iron deposits on the North Shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, about 350 miles from Sydney. The deposits are estimated to contain 20,000,000 tons of ore above sea level, with probably as much more below that line. The iron can be handled for $1.00 per ton or less. Quantities of this ore have been shipped to Great Britain and the United States, where it has given great satisfaction, and we can sell large quantities f. o. b. at the properties, netting us a profit of $2.00 per ton. This ore makes the finest steel.

3.—FLUX.

We are now negotiating for valuable deposits of dolomite and limestone of the most satisfactory quality, situated on the tide water, within 100 miles of the works.

MARKETS.

For six months in each year the Canadian markets can be reached by water at low freight rates, and at all times by rail. As Cape Breton is distant from Liverpool only about 2,300 miles ; is nearer to Pernambuco, Brazil, than any point in the United States, and also nearer to Cape Town, South Africa, it has the advantage, in point of distance, for export business over any American steel-producing points, which, with scarcely any exceptions, are situated some distance from tide water. Under any conditions of the world's market, it is believed that the output of these works can be disposed of at satisfactory prices.

OUTPUT

When in full operation, the output is expected to be about as follows :—

1. IRON.—200,000 tons iron ore shipped direct from property, showing net profit of $2.00 per ton, total	$400,000 00
200,000 tons fine iron ore shipped in briquettes, showing net profit of $4.00 per ton, total	800,000 00
100,000 tons steel blooms, showing net profit of $3.00 per ton, total	300,000 00
2. COAL.—600,000 tons coal, showing net profit, at least, of $1.00 per ton, total	600,000 00
3. AIDS.—Government bounties (averaged) added to above per year for 6 years	100 000 00
Total yearly revenue	$2,200,000 00

GOVERNMENT AIDS.

To encourage the manufacture in the Dominion of iron and steel the Parliament of Canada has granted bounties as follows :—

	ON PIG IRON.	ON STEEL.
Apl. 21st, 1902, to July 1st, 1903	$2.70	$2.70
July 1st, 1903, " " 1904	2.25	2.25
July 1st, 1904, " " 1905	1.65	1.65
July 1st, 1905, " " 1906	1.05	1.05
July 1st, 1906, " " 1907	.60	.60

If the production of steel from the Company's works be as estimated, 300,000 tons per annum, the bounties to be received from the Canadian Government will be as follows :—

1904	$225,000
1905	215,000
1906	145,000
1907	85,000
or an average of $100,000.00 per annum for 6½ years	$670,000.00

NET REVENUE

Total net annual profits		$2,200,000.00
LESS FIXED CHARGES:—
7 per cent. interest on preferred stock	$70,000.00
Sinking Fund	60,000.00
Incidentals	25,000.00
		155,000.00
Net yearly profits		$2,045,000.00

Equivalent to yearly dividends of over 30 per cent., or 15 per cent. half yearly on total capitalization.

If the capitalization was increased to .... $20,000,000.00 this estimate would still show a dividend-earning capacity of 10 per cent. per annum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Coal Co. is .... $20,000,000.00 earning fully 12 per cent., and is paying 8 per cent. guaranteed dividends on this enormous sum.

The capitalization of the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. is...... $28,000,000.00 on which it is believed 6 per cent. dividends will be earned.

The capitalization of the Canadian Steel & Coal Company is only $6,000,000.00 controlling, it is believed, equally valuable properties, and it is reasonable to expect much larger dividends.

Within the last few months Dominion Coal shares common rose in market value from $40 to $144 per share, and Dominion Iron & Steel Company's shares common rose over $30 per share in market value.

With such low capitalization the Canadian Steel and Coal Co's shares should show tremendous profits, and it is confidently believed they will.

Interesting Items.

A young swell wore a new style evening coat at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York the other night. It was a swallow-tail, with velvet collar and a pocket for a handkerchief in the left breast. A tiny lace handkerchief peeped from the pocket.

A man advertises in a Syracuse paper for a job as general housework servant. He is a widower, familiar with all phases of housekeeping, and says that he can pickle, wash, and iron, enact the parts of the cook and the waitress, mind the baby, dust, and take care of the furnace.

It is a good advertisement for vegetarianism that a pedestrian who doesn't eat meat came in first in the international walking-match between Berlin and Dresden. The winner made the one hundred and twenty-five miles in the record-breaking time of twenty-seven hours, thirteen minutes, and fourteen and one-half seconds.

The New York "Commercial Advertiser" estimates that Andrew Carnegie's benefactions, up to date, amount to $68,000,000, distributed in the following order: United States, $55,261,673; Scotland, $13,073,750; Canada, $876,500; Cuba, $262,000; Ireland, $65,500. And yet, Mr. Carnegie's wealth is said to be increasing more rapidly than he can give it away, owing to the enormous earnings of the properties whose securities he holds.

In his book on "The Private Life of the Sultan," Mr. Georges Dorys says that during the Armenian massacres it cost the Turkish treasury the equivalent of about $1,000,000 for hush money, or "allocations," to certain European newspapers, besides the distribution of six hundred and forty costly decorations placed where they would do the most good. Abdul Hamid seemed to believe firmly in the cynical saying of Walpole that every man has his price.

Miss Azalene Earle, formerly of Portland, Oregon, but latterly a "hello girl" in San Francisco, is now Mrs. William Halleck Deming, and will travel in Europe with her husband this summer. Says the Portland "Oregonian:" "Mr. Deming, who is a man of wealth, was attracted by her soft and gentle voice in calling 'Number?' through the telephone, and acquaintance and marriage followed. If the voices of the telephone girls in this city have lately become indistinct through muffled sweetness, the above announcement accounts for it."

Thomas A. Edison thinks that in six or seven years horses will have disappeared from the streets as beasts of burden, and automobiles will be made so cheap as to be within the reach of all who wish or need vehicles. He declares this revolution will be brought about by a storage electric battery which he has invented. "The man that cannot quite afford to keep a horse and carriage is the man that I am trying to provide for," he said the other day; "the automobile will be the thing for him. Its first cost will not be great, it will not require care, and the cost of maintenance will come far below the cost of keeping a horse."

An interesting series of experiments has been tried by the school authorities in South Germany to test the faculty of observation as it is exercised by boys and girls. A man dressed as an ordinary workman and with ordinary features was placed in a room by himself. Classes of girls of different ages were sent through the room. All that the teachers told them was that they were to go into the room through one door and out through another. When they returned to their classrooms they were asked to describe the man in the room. Nearly eighty per cent. of the girls confined their attention to the man's clothes; the others described both clothes and features. The same experiments when tried with boys revealed the fact that nearly seventy per cent. of them confined their attention to the man's features, the remainder to both features and clothes.

The Stupidity of Instinct.

Are insects, bees for instance, so very intelligent after all, or does their instinct resemble automatism instead of reason? Mr. J. Carter Beard has assembled a number of interesting instances in the "Scientific American" which lead to the conclusion that the wonderful results often accomplished by insects are due, not to intelligence, but to automatic obedience to external or internal stimuli. We might as well, he thinks, call a watch intelligent as an insect.

In one instance it appears that house-flies exhibit more appearance of real intelligence than do honey-bees. Take a large glass jar with a wide mouth, says Mr. Beard, and imprison in it a bee and some flies. Put the bottom of the jar against a window-pane, draw the curtains around the jar and then uncork the mouth. The flies will quickly find their way out of the open mouth into the room, but the bee will stupidly continue to try to get through the glass where it sees the light and will never think of exploring in the other direction. But perhaps this shows, not superior intelligence on the part of the flies, but less attraction to the light or a greater variety of stimuli to motion.

The bee's whole existence seems to depend upon routine. She always does the same things in the same way and exhibits no capacity to profit by, or repair the effects of, accident. Mason-bees, for instance, build little thimble-shaped structures of mud, half fill them with honey and pollen, then lay their eggs therein and top off the construction with a roof. If a hole is made in the bottom of one of these thimbles while the building is going on, and the honey is allowed to run out, the stupid bee, even after discovering the hole, makes no attempt to stop it up, but continues to pour in the honey at the top, allowing it to run away at the bottom, until the proper amount required by instinct having been put in, she lays her eggs and seals up the top, content with her vain labor.
